Did you ever notice, while riding out the National Road, (Broad St.), the numerous large stone culverts along the way? They were put there many years ago, and that they were hauled there from long distances, some from the northern part of the State on wagons, at a very great expense. This National Highway, was built from Cumberland, Maryland through Columbus to Bloomington, Illinois. Passing through large tracts of timber there were also, hundreds of loads of stone hauled from the quarries north of the Asylum grounds, and dumped along the line; then men with long handled hammers worked from morning till night, week in and week out, breaking the stone and placing them in the roadbed of this highway.

Mr. Jonas Wilcox was superintendent of construction of the road from Zanesville through Columbus to Springfield, and was constantly traveling over it between these points. The expenses of early maintenance of the road was met by the toll gates established at intervals along the road every few miles, Toll for a two-horse vehicle was about two cents a mile, and less for a single rig; no charge was made for vehicles going to and from church services. There was a toll gate where Central Avenue and Broad St. crosses, then it was moved to about where Midland Ave. is, then near where the present Wheatland and Broad now is, the next move was to the present location of Ogden and Broad, then to the last place near the crossing of the C. S. & C. Railroad, (Now Big Four) where it was later abandoned. The toll gate house that stood at Wheatland and Broad is said to have been moved to Highland Ave. and converted into a dwelling, where it now stands, at 433 that street. The story is told that some mischievious boys "swiped" a duck late one night and approaching the gate aroused the toll gate keeper, and when he came out, they asked him how much he charged for a duck to go through. They had to make a quick get away. Along the National Road, at stated intervals a hoted, or "tavern", was located, to take care of the travelling public, and the men working on the road.

The toll gate was a long pole extending across the road and fastened to a post near one end with a few feet of the post extending over the short end and wedged so that by releasing the rope at the long end of the pole it was lifted into the air high enough to allow the passing of the horse or vehicle wishing to go through. The man operating the affair was called the toll gate keeper. Following is a partial list of toll charged at these gates which existed in 1840:

Score sheep or hogs, 5 to 10c; score cattle, 20c; each horse, mule or ass, led or driven, 3c; horse and rider, 5c; horse or ox drawn sled or sleigh, 5c; one horse, buggy or sulky, 10c; additional horse, 5c; vehicle with tires from 2½ to 6 inches wide, from 10c down to 4c according to size of tire.

These prices prevailed with same charges at various times as long as toll gates were used.

The "Jaybird" hoted stood on the south side of Broad Street in front of the present property of Karl Webber, near Ogden Avenue. East of that a deep ditch bordered the south side of the road, lined by a long row of willow trees. A saw mill at one time stood south of this section. Next west of the "Jay Bird" stood the old "Four-mile House" on the north side of the road about where the Hilltop Transfer Co. is now located. The road was originally under National control; but was afterward turned over to the various States through which it ran; for the up keep.

Michael and William Sullivant, two of the first settlers in this part of the county, owned, at one time, all of the land on both sides of the National Road from the Scioto river nearly to where the Village of Rome now stands. This was all timber land, with several saw mills kept busy; one large mill stood a short distance north of the road, a couple miles west of the Hilltop.

The timber was oak, ash, walnut, hickory, sugar, elm, and some beech. Some of these trees reached an immense size, being six feet in diameter, and about one hundred feet high. Mr. F. P. Speery, now living on South Harris Avenue, says in his young days he helped cut an oak over five and one half feet, and three over six feet in diameter. Some black walnut trees were said to be six feet across.

Stage Coach lines used this road for many years during the early days, but after the Columbus and Xenia, and C. S. & C. Short Line Railroads were built; stage coaches ceased to run along the thoroughfare, and went out the Harrisburg Pike to Washington, C. H. thence south.

About this time there were only three residences on the National road west of where Davis ave. now is; one owned by a Mr. Seely, one by a Mr. Dixon St. Clair, and a farm home on the Dr. Hawkes farm. where Hawks Ave. now is.

For eight or ten years after Lucas Sullivant and other pioneers settled in Franklinton West of the Scioto river; there was no Post-office nearer than Chillicothe. It was a common thing for citizens to make up a purse and send a man on horseback 50 miles for the mail; later on Stage coaches were established, which finally opened up communication to Cincinnati, Wheeling and eastern points as far as Buffalo, N. Y. The time from Columbus to Wheeling was forty-nine and one half hours.

On July 1, 1837 the first "Pony Express" from the east was established; starting from Fredericktown, Maryland; connecting with New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, Each day and evening, people would gather to see the fine blooded horses ridden by "boys" go through the "berg" on a run.

BUY IN BROADVIEW

A Few Important Facts About Beautiful Broadview

Broadview is in the inevitable path for rising prosperity values—West.

It occupies a seventy acre plot two blocks west of Hague Avenue on the south side of Broad Street.

It is located on the main thoroughfare, convenient to both interurban and city transportation service.

Schools, stores and churches of every denomination are within easy walking distance.

All modern improvements are being made under the regular city supervision and procedure.

From the very first, we have worked, planned, beautified, restricted and sold with the idea of making Broadview a community of home owners.

That we have succeeded is evidenced by the list of Broadview purchasers to date. This we will be very glad to let you look over.

Broadview is restricted against business of every kind, and single homes will only be permitted. There will be no doubles, duplexes or flats.

WHETHER you seek a permanent location for that dream home of yours, or are looking for a quick and surely profitable investment, you will be interested in our new subdivision—Broadview.

YOU REMEMBER THESE

When we offered Hillcrest and Hillcrest Park to the public we stated that those who bought would profit. Those who took our advice and bought can today tell you to what extent our prediction came true. In just a short period of time many of the sites increased in value from two to three times their original cost. Both those who bought them and many of those who failed to buy and who have since regretted it, have come to us for Broadview sites, realizing they are much better than anything we have ever offered to the Columbus Public.

WITHIN YOUR MEANS

But even considering the location of Broadview with respect to rising values in real estate, its conveniences, improvements, restrictions and the great care we are taking to make this subdivision one of the most beautiful in the city—YET these sites are reasonably priced and are within easy reach of the average person. You don't need cash to buy a Broadview site. We can so arrange payments that the money required monthly will be almost negligable.

A RUSH FOR REMAINING SITES

The coming of warmer weather will bring a rush for the remaining Broadview sites and will without doubt mark the beginning of extensive building activities. Therefore we suggest that you call our offices at once if you wish to be shown through Beautiful Broadview and get your pick of the most desirable sites in this most desirable and restricted sub-division.

First Postoffice

The first postoffice at Camp Chase was opened in about 1877. Mr. George W. Scott was postmaster. It was located at the crossing of the old C. S. & C. R. R. (now the Big Four) and West Broad Street. At that time there was but one hotel in Franklin Township, the Old Four-mile House (four miles west of the river), which stood about where the Hilltop Transfer Co. is now located; this was the regular stopping place for all travelers along the National Pike, as it was known in those days. The old fashioned stage coaches which plied between Dayton, Springfield and Columbus, stopped to feed passengers and teams. And many noted travelers of those days were partakers of its hospitality. The last proprietor was Mrs. Harriet Bigelow. The building was torn down just a few years ago.

The first burrying ground in Franklin Township was located on the bank of the Scioto river, just north of what was then the village of Franklinton; and here was where the early settlers from all this new territory were buried. Lucas Sullivant and wife and other pioneers were buried there. Since the establishment of Greenlawn Cemetery, the bodies have all been removed.

Tracy, Cal.—A pilot in an airplane sowed a 276-acre field to grain three miles west of here on the Argunauer ranch.

The pilot kept the machine 100 feet from the ground and the released seeds covered a swath 50 feet wide.

A half-sack was required to the acre and it was estimated the cost was $1 an acre.

Polio Heroes Given Privilege.

Paris.—A presidential decree declares that hereafter all Frenchmen in the military service whose families suffered during the war or who have brothers under arms will be stationed so far as possible in garrisons near their homes.

An Early Church

Among the early religious gatherings in Franklin township, was a congregation of Methodists who held forth as early as 1823 in a Log meeting house built on the banks of Big Scioto Run; the walls of the inside were covered with bark, which was held in place with wooden pins driven thru and into the logs. This was all the inside decoration that was used in those days. This building was in use for a period of ten or more years, then was succeeded by the building of the Brick Church, which was known as the Union Church.

OLD FOX FOOLS THE HUNTERS

Also Eludes Dozen Hounds and Escapes to Her Hiding Place—Drowns Two Dogs.

Black Hill, Conn.—The old gray fox that has had 16 years of complete victories in this part of the town was up against 16 hunters, a dozen hounds and some of the sharpest shots in the state and, as usual, eluded them all.

She drowned two hounds in "blow holes" on the Quinebaug river and remained on Willoughbys island until the dogs had all gone after hot deer trails. Then she trotted back across the thin ice and escaped to her hiding place in Tophet swamp.

This old reprobate of the fox world has been shot at over 300 times, been hit a half hundred times and carries so much shot in her carcass that she waddles sideways, yet she still lives and is a terror to all poultry raisers for miles around.

Soldiers' Home

There are probably many persons who do not know that at one time the Soldiers' Home was located on the Hilltop. On April 22, 1862, the Soldiers' Aid Society caused to be established, in a room in the depot building, a place where sick and disabled soldiers could be cared for. But on October 17, 1863, it was moved into a building erected by the Columbus Branch of the United States Sanitary Commission, near the Little Miami Depot. It contained 45 beds, and provided a great comfort for the sick and destitute soldiers and sailors. In May, 1864, a barracks and other buildings were erected by the government on the south part of the State quarry tract near the crossing of the Columbus and Xenia railroad, now known as the P. C. C. & St. L. Railroad, and north of the State Hospital grounds. There were about twenty tenement buildings, which were given over to be used for the Soldier's Home, which were taken possession of in September, 1865, and a larger home instituted.

An act passed by the Legislature in April, 1866, established a temporary home for soldiers, with sufficient funds to maintain the institution. It also provided for the appointment of a board of trustees by the Governor to manage its affairs. The home had then nearly two hundred disabled soldiers. In April, 1869, by action of the trustees, the legislature ordered the removal of the patients, belongings, etc., to Dayton, to the National Soldiers' Home.

Stone Quarry

In 1845, by act of the Legislator, the State purchased a tract of some fifty acres of land on the right bank of the Scioto river, north of the Columbus & Xenia, now the P. C. C. & St. L. Railroad, containing an immense supply of limestone rock lying in strata from five inches to five feet thick, and affording some of the finest building stone in the western country. The purchase was made from W. S. Sullivant for fifty thousand dollars, and included the right of way through his land for suitable transportation to and from these quaries to Columbus.

A railroad was soon constructed by the Columbus and Xenia Co., leading from the quaries to the penitentiary. The stone used in the construction of the State House was taken from these quarries.

New Haven, Conn.—Barbara Kresian, twelve years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kresian of West Cromwell, has been cured of an earache with which she has suffered for some time by the removal of a dead hornet from the ear. Her parents say the hornet had apparently been lodged in the ear cavity for ten years. It came out when the ear was syringed.

POET SINGS TO WORLD IN CELL

Outbursts of Life Convict in Pennsylvania State Prison Win Praise of Critics.

TELLS STORY OF HIS LIFE

Verses Are Likened in Intensity, Artistic Merit and Realism to Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Gaol."

Philadelphia.—There are law-breakers and law-breakers. There are cunning men who make crime a deliberate object and there are others who sin impulsively under extenuating circumstances. The man who is designated as "B 8266" and is a "lifer" in the Eastern state penitentiary here evidently belongs to the latter class of convicts, though it hardly seems fair to classify him as a convict after one has learned his story. Undoubtedly he occupies a unique niche in the realm of criminology and is a subject for the psychologist.

The confessions of most criminals are crude enough, but in "A Tale of a Walled Town and Other Verses" (Lippincott company) B 8266 relates the story of his languishing life in such excellent poetry that William Stanley Braithwaite, the well-known critic, visited the poet in prison and wrote an enthusiastic introduction to the book, which is attracting the attention of persons who know what's what in poetry.

"A Tale of a Walled Town," like Oscar Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Gaol," is a poem of lyrical intensity, artistic merit and powerful realism. It is an honest confession, for the poet does not deny his sins.

It was only when locked in his cell that this unusual man turned to literature and writing for consolation against terrible despair; for he had written virtually nothing before for print.

Ill Treated as Child.

Adopted when a child, he was badly treated and was forced to run away and work out his own salvation as best he could at a time when other youths have parental protection and influence. The poet sings with sad, haunting beauty:

"I know no mother's face; nor knew
The mother love that was my due;
Yet dreamed of such the long years through—
And never did the dream come true,
I hold it dear."

He wandered about the world a restless youth. He found success in labor and fell in love, but again was unfortunate. The woman in the case was of a wealthy family, and the match was opposed. The lovers eloped and for a year were exceedingly happy. She, having been used to costly clothes and gems, sighed for them again, and the poet, who loved not wisely but too well, stole that she might have luxuries. He was given seven years. After serving his time he returned to his wife, and then appeared his saddest disappointment and his downfall.

He found her practicing the principles of a rich man's cult. She had forgotten her defunct husband, who had spent a dozen years for selfish [illegible]. She [illegible] about [illegible]

"Where [illegible]

"Here in this cell they outlined me; Toll slowly)
Hence dead to all save [illegible]
And an abiding memory."

Verses Show Originality.

The prison poet makes use of the refrain, "toll slowly" frequently, and with telling effect. It is as if the bell is sounding the death knell of all his hopes. Not once is the reader given a chance to forget that this poetic confession is a bit of real human drama.

The other verses in the book are full of originality and intensity, though some are playful and clever, and others reveal a vivid imagination, a fine sensibility and an appreciation of nobility and beauty. "B 8266," an unknown convict, is a true poet who has been most unfortunate.

PEACE [illegible]GNS IN [illegible] TOWN

Tame History of Newest Unique Boom Village in Arkansas.

NOT LIKE GOOD OLD DAYS

Gamblers and Gunmen Conspicuous for Their Absence in Smackover, Ark. —Promoters and Get-Rich-Quick Men Gone.

Smackover, Ark.—An oil boom town, with most of the characteristics of a boom town eliminated, surprises visitors to this place, which, less than four months ago, was a sleepy, little railroad stop, but now is a booming, hustling city, with a population said to be 15,000. Slot machines indicate the limit in open gambling, and the old-time "bad men" of boom towns are a matter of history.

A. M. Friend, elected the town's first mayor December 22, won his fight in an election in which 48 votes were polled on a platform of law enforcement. Before the election and in the early days of the boom town there were some disorders, including four homicides, but what disorders have occurred in the field, authorities declare, were before the present law enforcement system had been worked out.

None Get Rich Quick.

There is a notable absence of promoters, lease peddlers, "oil stock exchanges" with their quotation boards, and the usual rush of excited men carrying blue prints of the field in their hands. These things are explained by the fact that the entire field, with the exception of a few small tracts, is all in the hands of the big companies. The speculator and promoter haven't a chance.

There are no get-rich-quicks, in spite of the fact that the territory is the most productive in the mid-continent field. When oil was struck, the owners were unable to realize from the sale of leases at high prices, as most of them had already leased their land. The few who were suddenly made rich were the non-residents whom the original lease buyers had been unable to sign.

Fire Is Feared.

Smackover is a typical boom town in one respect—the tent colony. There are 20 short blocks of one and two-story frame buildings, hastily constructed, and several acres of tents. The buildings are all rooming houses, hotels, stores, or other business places. They are jammed together and, as the town is absolutely without water except from half a dozen wells not equipped with pumps, fires similar to the ones that several times destroyed the boom town of Breckenridge, Texas, are almost a certainty sooner or later.

Every building is plastered with signs warning of the fire danger, and the state fire marshal has taken what other means are within his power to prevent fire, but most of the citizens of the town confidently expect that the place will be razed by flames when one of the "boomers" becomes careless and drops a cigarette in one of the oil-soaked, flimsy buildings.

CUTS OFF BROTHERS IN WILL

New York Woman Declares Kin Have Not Used Her in Friendly Way.

New York.—The will of Isabella B. Hamilton of 285 West One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, who died, leaving an estate of more than $25,000, has been filed in the Surrogate's court.

After making specific bequests of $22,500, the testator said in her will: "As the conduct of my brothers, George H. Hamilton and Benjamin P. Hamilton, has not been brotherly toward me for many years, and having in mind that they contested the will of my brother, Erastus Hamilton, and put me to great expense and trouble in so doing, I have made no provision for them in this instrument."

Footprints to Identify Babes.

New York.—The footprint method of identification of babies that is to be urged in a bill before the legislature was shown to be already in effect at the New York Nursery and Child's hospital when John R. Howard, superintendent, offered to the police department the collection of 6,000 babies' footprints recorded at the institution. It is said to be the largest collection of infant footprints in the world.

They are taken after the birth of the child and are used as a guaranty to the mother that her baby cannot be exchanged.

Civil War Bomb After 57 Years Wrecks Home

Opelousas, La.—Tossed about for 57 years, in which it served as an andiron and was used in shotputting exercises and for other purposes, a bomb intended for use in the Civil war exploded the other day, wrecking a tenant house on the plantation of A. E. Veltin, two miles south of here.

It was serving as an andiron when it exploded. No one was in the house at the time. The house was wrecked and burned.

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY

How many Hilltop people are aware that the first street car line in Columbus operated by electricity, was on West Broad Street? Mr. Jonas Wilson and his son William were largely instrumental in getting that accomplished. The cars run to the front of the State Hospital only.

The State Hospital

In the year 1835 the Legislature in response to a petition from a convention of physicians, decided to provide a home for the mentally deranged. Plans were drawn for the erection of such a building, for which work the architect was allowed the munificient sum of $35.00. The bricks for the building were burned on the ground by the convicts of the Ohio Penitentiary. The first stone was laid by the convicts April 20, 1837, and the asylum was opened for patients November 30, 1838. The building was situated in the midst of a 64-acre tract of land on East Broad St.

On November 18, 1868 this building was burned; fire was discovered about 9 o'clock at night; it was a bitter cold night, and it was with great difficulty the inmates were removed, to safety. There were 314 patients, and all were removed to safety but six who were suffocated in the ward where the fire originated.

By another act of the Legislature, April 23, 1869, it was planned to erect a new building which would accommodate 500 patients. Work was begun at the old site, but soon stopped and the new location was selected; that being the present location on the Hilltop. Construction on the main building was begun and the Corner Stone was laid July 4, 1870. It took seven years to erect the building and the first patient was received on August 23, 1877. The cost of building the institution was $1,520,985.45. The central or administration part of the building is 80x120 feet, the amusement hall is 80x120 feet, the four ward sections with the connections are 48x842 feet. There are over 1,000 rooms, corridors and passage ways, not including basement compartments, which are used almost exclusively for ventilating purposes.

There is about ten acres of floor space. More than four and one-half acres of slate and iron roofing, nearly 40 acres of plastering; there are over 3,000 windows. Do not stop to count them, but the number of brick in the main building is 35,000,000; 4,200,000 pounds of iron work; 4,500 feet lineal, of iron stairway, or about seven-eighths of a mile. How would you like to climb the golden stairs?

Steam heating, ventilating, and water supply apparatus, plumbing and gas piping, sewer pipes, foul air ducts, cistern connections, etc, consumed about 100 miles of various kinds of pipe. The total number of cubic feet of air space heated is 3,345,000.

There is two miles of concrete walks around the grounds, which enables the patients to have outdoor exercise in suitable weather.

Since 1903 three large cottages have been added which accommodate 650 patients; while the mainbuilding is taking care of 1,400, or a total in the institution of 2050. Including the new tuberculosis building. This great home for the unfortunate is managed and operated by a force of less than 200 people; or to be exact, Dr. Pritchard is the present superintendent, who is just closing his seventh year in that capacity. There are six other doctors, 2 medical internes, 1 dentist, 1 druggist, and 150 nurses and attendants. This is but a few of the many interesting facts concerning this, the largest institution of its kind in the world. Over one and a quarter miles around the foundation.

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY

In February 1915 I stood on the corner of Avondale and Broad St. with one street car ticket and seven cents in my pockets, wondering where I could get some kind of work, as I had been out of employment since October 1914 and was discouraged with life and at my wits' end when looking around I found that there was only one tailor shop and one cleaning and pressing place I thought I would like to start a Tailor Shop here. There was a room empty near. I enquired and found out that Mr. Jones, the Dry Goods merchant owned it. I asked him about the room in regards to the rent. I told him I would like to start a tailor shop there but I had been out of work and had no money he listened to me and pondered for a little after I had finished, and said, "I'll tell you, boy, what I will do. You can have the room on trial for two months. If you can not pay the rent at that time you will have to vacate." So I started.

The party that I was buying my home off of thought that I had lied to him because I had started a shop and did not pay the payments on the house so he put me out.

I had to retreat to shelter in an old abandoned school house until I could do better by the time five months had passed.

Things were going rather good.

I endeavored to give good work, prompt service and low prices, doing all I could to please the customer.

Business increased so that I had to get more room and in the year of 1918 I bought the place where I am at the present time, 1034 West Broad St. I have a nice clean shop with the Latest Pressing Machines, Steam Vaccum cleaners, good polite help and a sincere desire to serve every one on the West Side.

If you would like to deal with me call Hilltop 884 on the Bell phone. There is no job too small or none too large for us. Yes, we call for and deliver.

Historical Camp Chase

From Second Page

ure of the wood wagon, which caused the failure of the plan. The leaders were so eager to escape that they gave the signal as the wood wagon went out, and most of the men who were mindful only of the bread wagon were off their guard, not expecting the signal at that time. Thus the few leaders, about a score, passed through the gate, and the main force not being in supporting distance, the guards succeeded in closing the gate. The few escaping prisoners did not get very far away before they were recaptured and returned, two of them being wounded by bullets from the guard. Two men running down the Sullivant road darted into the farm house of a Mr. Lacey, near by, and crawled under the bed, but were soon recaptured.

On another occasion several prisoners secretly banded together and planned to escape by the tunnel route. A new sink about ten feet square was dug to the depth of eight feet. The planks covering it were secretly loosened and a number of men let down, who proceeded to tunnel on the east side toward the outer fence about 30 feet away. After days of desperate digging by different prisoners, who secretly relieved each other, and with high hopes of success, the ground caved in during one night, and the plot was revealed when daylight came, much to the disappointment of the [illegible].

A disease that infected the camp a good deal was smallpox, which broke out among the prisoners and took a large tool. In order to combat this disease and care for the afflicted, a separate building was erected south of the prison ground along the east line of the camp, and was known as the "pest house" (it is said that an old thorn tree which still stands along the west side of Hague avenue a short distance north of Sullivant, is the same one which stood by the side of that building). A wagon known as the "black Mariar" conveyed the dead from that place to the graveyard.

Smuggling of forbidden articles into camp was practiced to some extent, and was a source of annoyance at times to those in authority. One of the things was whiskey. All manner of schemes were resorted to in order to sneak that inside the camp. Putting it in tin cans and labeling "canned peaches," was one method resorted to. Another was having a false bottom in a large milk bucket, with a quart or so of whiskey stored away in the bottom of the bucket, arranged to be extracted when a convenient time arrived. At one time a party was found to have quite a number of bottles of "tanglefoot" hung on her hoop skirts. It's probable that a good many of the younger people do not know what hoop skirts are. Well, grandma can tell you about 'em. There's one thing, though, it is quite fortunate they do not abound in these days of narrow street car doors, automobiles, etc., else there would be other great problems to solve in connection with the present ones. Some of the large hoops could be used, however, in our present day poultry yards for coops for little chicks. It is said that in the "hoop skirt day" when a thunder storm was seen approaching the said hoop skirts were rushed to a window and (provided window was large enough) rolled out of doors by some of their proprietors, fearing the steel hoops in them would draw the lightning.

During the month of February, 1866, the military records and documents of Camp Chase were moved to Columbus, and the place ceased to be an army post, although a guard was still retained there for safety of the property.

In the spring of 1866 a description of Camp Chase was thus given:

"It is no longer a military center—no more a living thing. The city is deserted, the giant form of a skeleton. Thousands of armed men paraded as the guardians of the living thing. A single man, unarmed, keeps watch over the remains of the thing dead, waiting for burial. Two years ago you entered Camp Chase and with signs and courtesies were directed to shortspoken orderlies, warned by sentinels, received by officials, and came away impressed with its greatness. Now you drive as to a cemetery; a guard in shirt sleeves kicks away a stone and opens a lonely gate. The row of barracks remains unchanged, flowers planted by some careful wife of careless officer still bloom, the flagstaff stands without pulley rope or flag, the chapel is empty. The scaffold on which Hartrip and Oliver were executed stands firm in ghostly solitude with beam in place and trap half sprung, and seems waiting for another victim. Everywhere silence, propsticks withdrawn, windows from buildings; old shoes piled in promiscous groupings tell which buildings have been last occupied. A fruit tree in the midst of its loneliness blossoms and puts forth its leaves with all the proud defiance of nature, and with a scornful fling with every wave of wind for the works of man perishing on every side."

The prison property of Camp Chase was offered for sale at public auction on July 14, 1866, by order of Gen. Richardson.

The camp was torn down, and a portion of the lumber shipped to Dayton to be used in the National Soldiers' Home at that place.

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY

The Chamber of Commerce

The third noonday luncheon of the Hilltop Chamber of Commerce was held last Thursday, February 22nd. A short business discussion was taken up. It is urged by the officers of the Chamber that more members should attend these luncheons which from now on will be held every Thursday noon at one o'clock. Notify Secretary C. E. Helmbrecht to reserve your plate.

Tuesday evening, February 27th, there was a meeting of the Chamber at the Hilltop Lutheran Church. Col. Edward Orton, President of the downtown Chamber of Commerce, gave a very interesting talk on the purpose of the Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was also attended by a representative of the Headquarters Co. of the 166th Regiment of the National Guard, for purpose of finding out if the Chamber as well as residents of the Hilltop would sanction such a project on the Hilltop. The Chamber approved the idea and appointed a committee of J. W. Dinsmore, George Cooper and John Fippin to find a suitable location. They will report at the next regular meeting.

The following new members have come into the Chamber since the last regular meeting: W. and W. Confectionery and Restaurant, 2326 West Broad Street, Mrs. J. R. Watts, Prop.; Eldon Pharmacy, Floyd Clymens, Prop.; A. J. Silliman, Tailor, 2396 West Broad Street.

Plans are going to be started soon for a bigger and better Hilltop picnic for the coming season.

The Chamber of Commerce is urging all residents of the Hilltop to cooperate with them and also the Library Committee in making the library drive from March 16 to 23 a big success. Everybody keep the slogan in mind. We want that library.

taken to C. J. Kohn's mortuary, 2456 W. Broad street, where private funeral services will be held Thursday. Burial in Green Lawn cemetery.

Mrs. Woerner Suicides

Mrs. Clara E. Woerner, 39, of 78 N. Terrace, wife of O. J. Woerner, motorman, probably during a season of mental ailment, took her life Wednesday morning, by throwing herself into the Scioto river at the storage dam. The body was recovered by the police later in the day.

Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Hilda and Lucile, her mother, three brothers and four sisters.

The body will be sent to Zanesville for funeral and burial.

Mrs. J. F. Knecht, 67 N. Burgess Ave., will be hostess on Tuesday night to the North Burgess Ave. Needle Club. The annual election of officers will be held. The invitations have been sent out to all members of Robert Morris Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, to the annual Inspection Dinner to be held at Glenwood Church on Tuesday, March 6th at five P. M.

Barnett-Smalley Co. held their formal opening of Hilltonia Annex Addition Saturday. This comprises the tract of land lying south of Sullivant Ave. clear through to Mound street, from a little west of the Baby Camp west to Lechner Ave. They report the sale of lots in the resident section as being beyond their expectation for this time of the season. We were told that within the next 60 days at least 35 houses will be in course of erection. Also within that time a two-story business block with three store rooms will be built at the southeast corner of Columbia and Sullivant Avenues, and probably another business block will be erected nearby also.

There is a plot of 6¾ acres one square south of Sullivant avenue being reserved for park purposes and as a community center. It is expected that about this point, in the near future, to see the erection of a city public school, which will be an excellent location when that section is built up.

Health Hints

These Health Hints are progressive. Following the Hints of the past two weeks I give here a word about acid and alkaline foods, with lists.

Have you eaten freely of lettuce today? Have you scraped and eaten a large carrot? Have you eaten two ounces of raisins or a stem of grapes for the iron they contain?

You answer, "No, the foods you mention are low in food value and I have chosen only the foods known to contain the greatest number of calories, such as white bread, butter, salt pork, beef, beans, cheese, etc., for I have to have 2500 calories every day."

Did it ever occur to you that the calories you expect from the foods you mention are not fully available to you if the mineral salts have been milled, or refined out of the various "refined foods"?

And did it ever occur to you that the only way to reach your blood for betterment is thru the food you eat? No iron mixture that you take from a bottle can ever reach and enrich your blood.

The blood is normally alkaline. The patient is in a bad way whose blood shows acidity or even low alkalinity for such results are sure to follow, as impaired vitality, lassitude, shortness of breath, anemia, neuritis, rheumatism, neurasthenia, etc. Then what procedure can be more rational than choosing and eating the foods that contribute to alkalinity and at the same time reject the acid foods.

Foods that incline to acidity are: all white flour products and "refined" cereals, corn meal, tapioca, macaroni, and spagetti. All meats, lard and fried foods, white sugar, white of egg, etc.

You may wonder for a moment what is left that one can safely eat, but look at this list of Foods that contribute to alkalinity in the blood:

Whole wheat bread and whole oat meal, beans, peas, and lentils, rotated. Potatoes, boiled or baked with jackets on, raw cabbage, lettuce and celery, all milk products and yolk of egg, all fruits, rhubarb, spinach and tomatoes.

Or expressed in general terms: Whole flour, garden vegetables and fruits, raw or so cooked and served as to save the mineral salts. (Acid fruits are known to have an alkaline tendency.)

The housewife has a wonderful opportunity for good service here in her prerogative of diet manager for the family. A liking for proper foods can be cultivated by serving them attractively. If meat must be served twice a week, serve mutton, chicken or baked fish and you have done your family a great service when they discover that they do better without meat.

The Hilltop Aldermyth Club

Knocking the poker on the side of the stove, Cam Chase, president of the Hilltop Aldermyth Club, called the club members to order, and said, "Since this here night is mighty cold, this club will hold its regular monthly meetin' around the stove."

Bob O. Link, as he sot down right in front of the stove near the hole in the front door big enough to spit through, said, "This here reminds me of the time that Pat O'Flannigan went home good and soused one day, and staggering into the room, flopped down on a chair in front of the hot stove. Directly when he commenced to get pretty well warmed up he began seein' the chairs, bed and stove and things going 'round and 'round in the room. Trying to brace hisself, he said 'Begorra—hic—Pat, the nex' time shat bloomin' bed shooves itself, 'self 'round forninst me—hic—I'll be afther joompin' in—hic.' When on she came, and Pat made a lunge and landed smackdoodle on the hot stove."

"That's like the feller that—" but Cam Chase rapped Skid More to order and said, "This here club must come to order."

Deacon Scyler riz up and said he thought "we ought to begin this here meetin' with some kind of an opening ode." Whereupon Ezra Prospect jumped up and shouted that this here club owed too much now, and as he had already had his supper before he left home, and as there was only about nine cents in the treasury, he objected to the club opening any more accounts.

Cam Chase then said he thought "this here club ought to take an active part in helping to get that library on the Hilltop," and that the meeting was "now open for discussin' that matter if any member has any safe and sane proposishuns to make."

Tonia Hill ris and said "where I go to church—(sometimes)—when they want anything did they generally call on the wimmen's aid sassiety, then the wimmen they git busy and hold a rummage sale or somethin' and pretty soon they'll come bringin' in the jack, an' the thing is done. Now why don't they steer the Hilltop wimmen on this job—tell 'em to throw the gear in high and step on 'er and make each one of us tightwad sons of the Hilltop coff up our dollar apiece."

Hi Land objected to Tonia Hill's idea, and said that "the men of this glorious country have put things across ever since Andy Jackson helped lick the English. We put the skids under John Barleycorn, all by ourselves and if we men of the Hilltop ain't got gumption enough about us to raise the wherewith for that library, we'd ought to be ashamed to look a book in the face." Sikologists tell us that if we want a thing bad enough we'll generally find a way to get it.

After a general discussion as to ways and means Cam Chase asked "how many members of this here club want that library?" Stand up. It was unanimous.

Cam Chase then said, "the best way for this club to do is to go into a committee of the hole and every feller roote down into his pocket for a dollar apiece and get the other fellers to do the same."

The fire was nearly out and the coal bucket was empty, so the club adjourned.

Income Tax

In the making of his income tax return for the current year, 1922, a taxpayer, if single, is allowed an exemption of $1,000. A married person, or head of a family, whose net income for year 1922, was $5,000, or less is allowed an exemption of $2,500. The exemption allowed a married person, or head of a family, whose net income was in excess of $5,000, is $2,000. A head of a family is a person who actually supports one or more persons living in his or her household who are closely related to him or her by blood, marriage or adoption.

An additional credit of $400, is allowed for each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon the tax-payer for chief support, if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. A single man whose net income for 1922 was $2,000, and who supports in his home an aged mother would have no tax to pay, but would nevertheless be required a return. The fact that a person's income may be non-taxable by reason of the exemptions does not nullify the requirement to file a return if his income was within the prescribed figures—$1,000, if single and $2,000, if married. Churches must file report.

The normal tax is 4 per cent on the first $4,000, of net income in excess of exemptions, and 8 per cent on the remaining net income. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four installments due on or before MARCH 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15. The blanks may be secured at the Post-Office Building at the corner of State and Third, and none in Columbus should allow the full time to pass without filing such return.

The penalty for falsifying the return or failing to make one is very heavy and to avoid difficulty people of the Hilltop will do well to take care accordingly.

The Government support by every citizen is imperative if the United States is to prosper and pay its debts. More in where none is exempt from civic duty.

Miss Ruth Greiner, of Camp Chase will be married this Thursday evening at eight o'clock to Mr. Ed. Distelhorst, of this city. They will make their home at 238 North Warren avenue.

Mr. C. E. Helmbrecht, who has been with the Kerr & Sons Co., Hilltop store since it was established here in 1911 and for the past couple of years as manager has resigned his position with that firm to take effect March 1st. He expects to enter business for himself.

"25% Cook and 75% Oven!"

That's the way a well-known culinary expert recently interpreted the secret of good cookery.

Good ovens make good cooks—poor ovens make poor cooks. Every woman knows how true this is.

So the big point to consider, when purchasing a gas range, is the oven.

Estate
GAS RANGES
Bake with Fresh Air

There are no openings in the sides of the oven—no chance for the products of combustion to enter where the food is cooking. Better baking and roasting, sweeter and more wholesome, are thus achieved. And absolute heat uniformity in every part of the oven is assured.

Additional Baking Capacity, Too!

A 16-inch Estate oven actually has the baking capacity of an ordinary 18-inch oven. That's because baking can be placed closely against the walls. In the ordinary range, with openings in the side linings, there is at least one inch of oven space, at each side, which cannot be utilized.

Estate Gas Ranges are made in a wide variety of styles, sizes and finishes, to suit all requirements. Several models are enameled throughout, and some of the cabinet ranges can be had with or without an oven heat control.

The following excerpts of humor were taken from a letter, written by an 89 year old gentleman of Leon, Ia. to a niece of the "Hilltop."

I was compelled to go to town for a square meal. I always go to the 10c store and eating house. Having no looks to an old farmer like me. I place to rest except on piano stools around their horses shoe tables, as it climb up on one of those stools placed their for that purpose alongside of a bunch of school-Ma'ams—I suppose they were as they seemed so quick at figuring up the bill of fare before time to taste of it. I shall name the varieties I had for my dinner. First, came a shaving mug full of coffee (I judged they had rinsed it out good before filling); next, a plate of roast beef, a scoop of gravy and an ice cream cone of potatoes as round as a peach and about as big; then the pepper box was placed in easy access with white sugar in it. You know how difficult it is to get white sugar out of a pepper shaker enough to season a shaving mug of coffee. You shake and shake and shake and then a sprinkling only. Well, the bill was figured up in no time and, when added, totaled 20c. I reached to the bottom of my pockets, found two dimes which settled the bill satisfactory to both parties. I went to work on what those two dimes paid for and in less than 10 minutes made room for the next hungry man.

The Hilltop Athletic Club

About 10 years ago in a home on the Hilltop a germ made its self known. This germ started the disease that is now prevalent among the business men of the Hilltop, i.e. The Hilltop Athletic Club. This club started at the corner of Eureka and Broad over the rooms now occupied by the wallpaper store with about 12 charter members. Since then they moved three times to more spacious quarters to accomodate their ever increasing membership. The membership of the club is now well over a hundred.

The club has 2 pocket billiard tables, several card tables, and a piano. There is quite a bit of talk at this time of installing a Radio Set. Some of the more prominent members of the club as called to the writer's attention are: W. L. Milliken; A. J. Thatcher; Fred Postle; Dr. L. B. Turner; L. M. Seiler; M. W. Seiler; A. F. Elliott; W. E. Dolby; M. S. Milikin; Del. Howard; R. A. Jennings; Fred Reather; C. E. Heimbrecht and several others.

HUNTS ON HONEYMOON

Young Couple Take an Unusual Wedding Trip Into Wilds.

Bride Slays Lions, Jaguars, Leopards, Rhinoceroses and Other Beasts of the Jungle—Has Many Thrilling Adventures.

New York.—No one would believe to look at Mrs. Augustine Healy, that she had slain lions, jaguars, leopards, rhinoceroses and other beasts in the wilds of the jungle. She is small and slight, has a soft voice, likes to sip tea at five o'clock, and is only twenty-three.

When Mrs. Healy set out for Japan April 29, 1920, for a honeymoon trip, neither she nor her husband of a day had any intention of shooting anything. They didn't even have a gun.

How came it, then, that they returned laden with five lion skins, one of them that of a lion shot by Mrs. Healy—the third largest lion ever shot in British East Africa; the head of a freak rhinoceros, the only one of its kind ever killed; a leopard skin and two feet and tusks of an elephant, each 50 pounds of ivory?

"You see," Mrs. Healy told, as she sipped tea, "after we had spent five months walking through Japan, we went on to China and the Philippines, then to Indo-China, Siam and India. In Mysore we tried tiger hunting without success and then went to Africa. In Nairobi, British East Africa, we discovered Will Judd, who shot game with Roosevelt on his African trip.

"I had been practicing with my rifle, and one day we set out with ten mules, 18 porters and 18 oxen, escorted by Judd, all bent on a lion hunt."

Mrs. Healy said that in the Nairobi wilds the party frequently saw 200 elephants at a time, droves of hyenas, zebras and many deer, lions, tigers and rhinoceroses.

"Up the Gauso river," she continued, "we heard one night a terrifying roar. 'Lions!' the word passed about. Presently we saw a lion sneak over and sniff at a dead elephant we had left as bait. A shot sounded. I saw the lion dash up the river. We had missed him."

It was on their next hunt that Mrs. Healy succeeded in downing the third largest lion ever killed in Africa.

"We were awakened by deafening roars," she said. "We saw a large lion battling with a lioness that was attempting to eat our kill. Through the firelight I could see other lions stalking about. I had to fire, if I was to save the lioness. I discharged two rifles. The lion toppled over with a roar, and the lioness dashed off into the wood."

There were dozens of other thrilling adventures, in which Mr. Healy shot down rhinoceroses, leopards and elephants.

A Few More Reminiscences

Many people today would be surprised could they hear the stories of the flocks and flights of wild pigeons that used to pass over this section at times, generally from west to east. An instance is told of one time in about the year 1836 the numbers of pigeons flying over were so great as to darken the sky for half a day. They flew at a height out of gun shot.

In 1852-53-54, and also '56 they were said to be plentiful. The Ohio State Journal of Feb. 24, 1860, is quoted as saying that "The numbers of pigeons caught in the country is almost incredible. We noticed on the streets the other day three wagon loads of the blue-winged birds, all caught by one company of trappers. The city market is flooded with them, all fat and in good condition for the table. They sell for 50 cents a dozen, and thousands are shipped to the East, where $1.25 and $1.50 are readily given."

According to the Columbus Gazette of August 20, 1822, a general squirrel hunt was planned, at which residents in these localities took part to help get rid of the thousands of squirrels that had become so numerous as to be a nuisance to farmers. And it was stated that 19,660 scalps of squirrels were produced by those reporting, and a large number did not report the result of the hunt.

We learn that along in the late 50's Mr. Lucas Sullivant, who was the owner of nearly all the territory west of the river, including the Hilltop, owned and harbored a number of elk, also buffalo, which were in a large pen located south of the National road and near where Ogden avenue now is.

It is also said that Mr. Sullivant at one time had a "deer lick" where Glenwood park now is, and that two fine springs at that place provided them with a quantity of good water. Our informant says he could locate today the spot of one of the springs, which has been covered up.

Helpful Hints for Hilltop Homes

WIPE OUT THE UGLY SPOTS

No Real Reason Why Any Part of a Community Should Be Other Than Attractive.

No careful housekeeper would be satisfied to have one of the front door steps bright and clean and the others left grimy with dirt and soot; to have one part of the yard set with attractive flowers and shrubs and the other part filled with rubbish, or to have half the sitting-room floor swept and the other half littered with papers. A house and yard kept after this fashion would indicate slovenliness, lack of pride and self-respect on the part of the owner or dweller.

Keeping a city clean and attractive is merely a job of good housekeeping. How well is the work being performed? An observing army officer who has been stationed first at one city and then another states that one "is strikingly impressed" with the scant accomplishment of the cities along the lines of attractiveness.

"Our cities have their 'show' streets," he writes, "few having as pretty boulevards as Kansas City; but compared to the total mileage such streets are almost insignificant. Arriving at a city by rail, one may detrain at a beautiful station, but even that cannot make one forget the messy and junk-strewn yards and streets traveled through for miles from the outskirts. Drive in by motor, and however wonderful the concrete beneath, the roadside usually is without trees, and sign boards without end greet the arrival. In place of trees there are several pole lines carrying hundreds of wires—in short, no beauty but only ugliness."

How long are the cities going to be satisfied with their bad housekeeping methods?—Exchange.

TAKE TIME TO INVESTIGATE

No Reason Why Buyer of a House Should Judge Value Only by Its Appearance.

Most people buy houses in the manner of the man who ordered a blue automobile. They purchase almost wholly on outward appearances, so far as the physical condition of the property is concerned. Paint, varnish and newness sell many houses. Very few purchasers concern themselves with the invisible construction of a house or with external evidence of the nature of the internal work. Yet what is not seen largely determines the future value of the property, the cost of upkeep and the satisfaction of the owner. The passing years inevitably reveal the true nature of the construction.

Yet it is not difficult for a home buyer to find out whether the house is of proper and suitable materials and correct methods of construction says an experienced builder. The best way, of course, is to have the house inspected by some competent person, but there are certain fundamentals which anyone may apply for himself with the probability of being guided to a correct determination of the intrinsic value of a house. Nobody wants to buy a house that will soon develop cracked plaster, sagging doors, jamming windows, floors that spring and crack, unsightly open joints in woodwork and spaces between casings, baseboard and floors; leaky roofs, unsightly, sagging porches, and leaky or spilling gutters, swayback gables, etc.

Rural Community Centers.

Country schools should be community centers, according to George F. Comings of Wisconsin. The school should provide not only classrooms but an auditorium, a home for the teachers, and a garage where automobiles and farm machinery could be repaired by the rural schoolboys under competent teach[illegible] The curriculum should include a thorough business training in the business end of the farm.

How Detroit Tells Them.

Detroit's police department has erected an information booth at the center of the ci[illegible] Directories, maps and other reference books are kept available for answering questions. It has been found a great convenience to the public and simplifies the work of the police.

Ohio Coal Yard.

Columbus, Ohio, has by a recent ordinance re-established its municipal coal yard. It is under the supervision of the street cleaning department. Coal is sold and delivered to the consumer at a price not exceeding the cost of purchase and handling by the city.

Absent-Minded Hunters.

GIVE THOUGHT TO BUILDING

Time and Consideration Well Bestowed on the Exterior Appearance of the Future Home.

In recent years much has been accomplished in the direction of improving house exteriors but one needs only to drive through any rapidly developing residential district to observe that the field for improvement is still large, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Many houses are apparently planned without any regard for exterior appearance. In many cases it appears that the designer himself could have had no clear notion in the beginning of the type of house that finally was to emerge from his plans. Scores of new houses are to be found not only in Cleveland and in its suburbs but in every important building center that offend the simplest architectural tenets.

Many of these hodge-podges doubtless have their explanation in the desire and necessity for economy, but the fact remains that it costs less to build a neat little house that is architecturally attractive than to build the badly designed type of dwelling that profanes the landscape of every residential district in America. Simple architectural education is one of the American home builder's greatest needs and a need that Better-Home week was designed to satisfy.

Successful Parody.

The London Sunday Times—which, by the way, is quite distinct from the Times—prints a brief paragraph that will appeal to all lovers of parody:

"Sir Owen Seaman said last week that one of the greatest compliments he had ever received was when a writer whose work he had caricatured remarked that he could almost have sworn he had written the thing when he was drunk. There is a touch of unconscious plagiarism in this. When Sir Walter Scott's attention was called to 'The Tale of Drury Lane in Rejected Addresses,' he replied, 'I must have done this myself, but I forget when.'"—From the Living Age.

Ohio People Know

That the Buckeye Building & Loan Company, of Columbus is Safe and Dependable

Never spectacular nor in any way speculative. Its steady and regular growth has given it exceptional strength, until it has finally become the largest Building and Loan in America and the largest financial institution of any kind in Central Ohio.

It is now receiving the savings of the people at the rate of $71,000.00 per day, and in turn is paying the daily withdrawals of customers and loaning the balance to the people of Columbus and vicinity, to help them get homes.

Although interest rates are declining in some sections, The Buckeye is still paying its depositors 5% and will continue to do so. It cordially solicits your deposits.

Publisher Record:

Permit me again to say to the splendid people of the Hilltop that it is not my intention to leave Columbus in entering upon a much larger work as pastor-evangelist. It was my purpose in purchasing our home to make this city headquarters. Moreover the Robbins-Greiser School of Music is weekly increasing in popularity. Mrs. Robbins and myself first of the coming week begin a three weeks' evangelistic service in Chillicothe, and then go to Cincinnati. When home it will be a pleasure to assist any pastor as a supply for a Sunday or assist in revival work. Already the demands are many and the work is delightful.

London at last is to grant a haven to the birds that visit her parks. A committee appointed to consider the question has recommended that sanctuaries be established in Hyde park, Kensington gardens and St. James', Regent's, Greenwich and Richmond parks; and King George has consented that parts of the gardens of Buckingham palace be used to the same end. There are areas in several of the parks where work has already begun by leaving them to nature, on the theory that "birds abhor the tidiness of the gardener."

"Best Sellers."

It was in a little bookshop in Chicago. A middle-aged woman entered and much as though she were asking for a translation of the hieroglyphics on Cleopatra's needle, she asked:

"Have you a book called 'If Winter Comes?'"

"Certainly, madam," answered the clerk, and standing on a table, he picked up a copy of the book and handed it to her.

"Why!" she exclaimed. "Is it a book like this? I thought it was a magazine."

"QUALITY AND SERVICE"

"I talked with a group of foreign architects the other day, after they had made a tour about this country," said Elihu Root recently, in asking funds for the completion of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. "They said that our banking houses and our railroad stations were far superior to anything of their kind in Europe." On the other hand, Mr. Root pointed out, America was "a country of small churches." He wondered whether the country, after her experiences in the great war, had "no message to the world that is fit to express."

The public in general will do well to ponder the full symbolism of beautiful banks and ugly churches. Our handsome banks and terminals are, of course, an encouraging rather than a discouraging sign. Fifty years ago we did not have even them. We are making a beginning with regard to fine buildings outside of business and industry. For instance, we are creating a number of respectable and some beautiful universities. The athletic stadiums represent an artistic impulse needing only proper direction. Our bridges, in many cases, have a sweep and panoramic beauty. Despite the multitude of cheap houses going up, there is probably a more general interest in the beauty of homes and home furnishings than there ever was.

Structural beauty in the United States shows a few points of light in half a continent of rather dismal commonplaces. This may be natural. We have built in a day—with haste and carelessness. But haste and carelessness must pass if the richest nation in the world is to contribute more than crops and machinery and money to the life of the world.—New York Globe.

Hog Buried Under Hay 47 Days Without Food

Madison, Neb.—A Poland-China hog, buried under a stack of hay, lived 47 days without food or water on a farm near here. The hog had crowded into some hay piled on a spot where farmers were to erect the alfalfa stack. When the stack was broken the hog was found. The porker was too weak to walk, almost blind and his ribs almost broke through the skin. The hog is reported as recovering.

Holmes Hilltop Library Canvass

"Every detail is being put into shape for the financial canvass for the Holmes Hilltop Library Canvass March 16-23. The Men's Committee and the Women's Committee will meet together for dinner at Dulgar's restaurant the evening of Thursday, March 15th, at 6:30 o'clock, when the streets will be allotted and the receipt books given out for the actual canvass from house to house. Enthusiasm has been increasing. One gentleman has promised a gift of a $50 set of reference books to the library and several others have promised subscriptions to magazines and the gift of books.

The canvassers will finish their work during the week of March 16th to 23rd, going two by two to every home on the Hilltop. ONE DOLLAR is the share asked for membership in the supporting association of this very valuable community library. Judge Holmes left over 3000 books in his collection, to which will be added books contributed from various organizations and individuals, besides a loan of several hundred volumes from the State Library Department and a reading room in which the best magazines will be found.

A report of progress will be held at a supper meeting on Wednesday night, March 21st, and a final report made on the last night, Friday, March 23d. Anyone wishing to leave their dollar or dollars at the bank or with Mr. Fred Raether, the Fund Treasurer, is gladly permitted to do so. Each of the schools is behind this venture as is also the Hilltop Chamber of Commerce and Librarian Pugh says he will give every assistance he can to help us out. When the solicitors come to your home make them feel welcome and give one dollar for every member of the family or one dollar as a family and feel that your are supporting a WORTHY HILLTOP VENTURE. We want that Library! If enough people want it strongly enough, it will be ours!

Library Committee of men—Rev. R. E. Shields, Rev. R. T. Stimmel, Dr. E. W. Martindale, M. H. Prior, Dr. Howard Whitehead, Carl Hitsch, Ray Haunts, H. M. Gibson, J. W. Worrel H. G. Deems, A. F. Do you enjoy the pleasure of reading good books?

Can you spare the price of a new book every time you want to read one?

Can you, and do you like to, borrow books continually from your friends?

If your boy or girl needs to hunt up some reference for their school home studies, have you always got the books they need at your home?

If your child likes to read story books, would you rather he would have good ones put before him or some of the "trashy" kind?

Then help boost the Hilltop Library.

Something new in Brunswick Records every day. G. T. Cooper.

March 9th will be community night at the Parent-Teacher Meeting at West Broad street school. The Westgate Masonic Chorus, who have won such a splendid reputation for their singing in the last few years, have kindly consented to furnish the music for the evening. H. E. French, Chief of Police, will be the principal speaker while five minute speeches will be made by members of the Hilltop Chamber of Commerce. Keep this date open, Friday, March 9th, at 8 o'clock, as we know every resident on the Hilltop will want to attend.

MRS. J. C. CLOSE,
Secretary.

H. C. Cain, 2045 W. Broad street, was hurt about the head, legs and arms, Saturday, when struck by an automobile driven by Dennis Leach, 107 S. Terrace street, as he stepped from behind a street car at Belvidere and W. Broad. Cain was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital.

A small boy, about 7 years old, whose name was not learned by police, was slightly hurt and his coaster wagon demolished, last Saturday, when struck by a truck belonging to the Clark Bakery and driven by H. B. Tittler, 228 S. Ogden avenue.

Buy your Easter coat at Seiller's. You'll save money.

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY

In conversation with Miss Sarah E. Lewis, the Librarian at Maggie Fager Library, located near Avondale and West Broad, she states that that library contains about 3,500 volumes, and that from 200 to 300 persons visit that library for books each day. It is open every day except Tuesday and Sunday, from 2 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

She says people of all ages patronize the library, and it is wonderful the number of boys and girls who come getting material for school work, and lots of them come from the Hilltop.

She also states that patrons are not confined to the West Side. but people come from all over the city, north, east and south. She thinks one reason is that people under 18 are not allowed in the City Library in the adult section. Many citizens encourage the library by donations of books.

Miss Lewis thinks that by all means the Hilltop ought to have the library, as it would be of great benefit to everyone concerned, and especially to the many children not able to go over to town for books.

While we were in the library room, Saturday afternoon, there was a very large number of persons seeking books—keeping two persons busy accommodating them.

Real Estate

We are informed by the City Engineer's office that the final ordinance for sewers in Broadview Addition has passed the City Council. Advertisements for bids will be published March 10th, and contracts should be awarded by April 1st.

The city's portion for all streets in this Addition has been appropriated by Council and the City Engineer has completed plans for improving Binn's Boulevard and Crescent Drive with asphalt. This work should closely follow the sewers.

The H. G. Butler & Co., real estate dealers, have succeeded, during the past ten days, in making Mr. J. McCarty the owner of a Broad street lot in Broadview; getting J. P. Rowe and family, of Circleville, Ohio, located in a home of their own at 57 So. Oakley, and selling G. R. Huffman a lot in Broadview, and another on North Hague, the latter for a double 6-room house. Through this firm Mr. Lauer, of the Godman Shoe Company, bought the lot at 145 N. Hague, and will build a six-room house on it. Also Mr. Robert Day, 216 N. Warren, disposed of his house to Mr. Ira B. Pressley, of the Wyman Pump Mfg. Co. Rev. and Mrs. Bon Durant, former Hilltop people, are returning here from Murray City, and have bought, through Butlers firm, a lot in Hill Crest Park.

Mr. C. E. Davis, who has been with the B. F. Kerr & Sons Co. stores, assumed management of their Hilltop store Monday of this week in place of Mr. C. E. Helmbrecht, who resigned to enter business for himself.

Health Hints

By Doctor Mack.

We can live without food for 30 days and without water for a day or two, but we cannot live without air for 10 minutes.

A very light intake of good air is sufficient in many extreme cases to tide the patient over until he can take care of more. And how necessary at such times that the air breathed be the best air and that the patient's capacity be increased. Verily air (oxygen) is life. Then, as our ordinary short breaths are to the deepest breaths we ever take, so is the short life we are choosing to live, compared with the long life we are entitled to if we habitually breathe deeply.

The thread between life and death is, at times, very slender, indeed. If we are satisfied to hang on by such a meager thread, when we could live "more abundantly," we must abide by the results. We are all more or less remiss in this particular. No one lives up to the capacity of his lungs. We cannot regain what we have lost by carelessness, but we can add to the length, breadth and depth of our lives by habitual deeper breathing of good air. And we have good air at hand, and nothing is cheaper. We go to Arizona and may be benefited, but wherein is the salvation? The air there may be purer, but it is also a fact that we must breathe more deeply there to live at all. With a little will power and effort here to take the place of the push the climate gives us there, the trip might often be saved. But there comes a time when will power and effort are more easily imagined than managed.

Most of us believe in saving "for a rainy day." Thrift is a popular virtue and the more effort money costs the more the tendency to save. But air is free, and being free, is valued lightly. We cannot store air to advantage, but we can build physical strength with air and store the strength, and there is no saving that pays better than surplus energy. Vigor is of prime importance as a basis for learning, money-getting and achievement generally. Then, why not cultivate a habit of always breathing in a little more air than we must have merely to exist, and thereby store up the energy that costs nothing, saves doctor's bills and prolongs and gladdens life?

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 49 S. Terrace St. Please note change of location.

Mrs. C. J. Winegarner, 232 Belvidere avenue, was taken to Mercy Hospital in A. J. Held's ambulance with injuries about her head and shoulders received last Saturday when the machine in which she was riding and driven by her husband, turned over in the Infirmary road, near the Franklin County Home. Winegarner was not injured.

Proposed Exposition Bldg.

Commissioner M. W. Westlake addressed the West Side Board of Trade last week in behalf of establishing the proposed Exposition Building on the west bank of the Scioto River north of Broad street. He showed how great the railroad facilities would be for loading and unloading exhibits as the tracks could be laid right into the building so that cars could be backed and unloaded near the place wanted without truck hauling. It would also be in keeping with the new million dollar high school now building and centrally located for all ceremonies.

Everybody's going. Where? St. Patrick's Carnival and Bake Sale, at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church, Saturday, March 10, 7 o'clock. Tickets 15c. Come one, come all.

The S. P. I. class of Glenwood Church will hold their regular monthly meeting at the church Monday evening, March 12th, at 7:30. Every member urged to be present as it is the election of officers.

Have you ever attended an Irish party that was stiff and sedate? Neither have we. So the W. B. P. T. A. wants you to be prepared to limber up; and don't forget your costume, even if it's of green crepe paper, nor your nickels.

Three cheers for St. Pat!
Here's to his howly name!

Miss Dorothy McFadon, organist and choir director at Plymouth Congregational Church, announces the opening of a piano studio at 49 S. Terrace street, where she will reside with her father, Dr. O. E. McFadon, whose office is also located there. Miss McFadon is vice-president of the Saturday Music Club, and also a member of the Women's Music Club in the piano department.

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY

Thursday, March 1st, was one of the most eventful days in the history of the Ladies' Aid Society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church. Four years ago the manse at 2508 West Broad Street was added to the church property and this society assumed a share of the debt. Early in February the mortgage was cancelled, final figures showing that the sum of $2276 had been paid by the society. At the meeting on Thursday the burning of the mortgage was celebrated, the members formed around the mortgage, which had been placed upon a pedestal, and with lighted matches set fire to it. All joined in singing this song composed by Mrs. F. P. Sperry:

We'll rally 'round the mortgage, it's all paid off today,
We're shouting the debtor's cry of freedom.
We did it giving dinners and many other ways
Shouting the debtor's cry of freedom.

Now out with your matches and set them on fire,
We'll burn up that mortgage unto our heart's desire.
For we're out of debt today, for the manse we hold so dear,
Still shouting the debtor's cry of freedom.

Preceding this ceremony the annual election of officers was held, resulting as follows: Mrs. P. G. Gantz, President; Mrs. C. C. Cook, Vice President; Mrs. H. A. Lear, Second Vice President; Mrs. Florence Metzgar, Secretary; Mrs. G. W. Matson, Treasurer; Mrs. W. H. Deems, Chaplain; Mrs. W. G. Davis, Assistant Chaplain.

Hoge Memorial Church officials are planning an addition to the present church home and the members of the Ladies' Aid Society have pledged the sum of $3000 to the new structure.

Dr. Robbins last week officiated at his one thousandth funeral service during his ministry. He also last week united in marriage two couples in the union ceremony, using two rings. He left early Wednesday morning to begin the evangelistic services in Chillicothe after two weeks' go to Cincinnati for four weeks, he is booked for preaching from one to three sermons a day during the next six weeks, in dddition to having charge of the dedication of a new church and raising a large debt.

Speaking of luck, in "Pot Luck" suppers the Personal Workers Class of Hoge Memorial know just what to say about it. Monday evening they entertained their husbands and the Men's Bible Class with a "pot luck" supper and such eats, they were fit for a king, and a large crowd turned out to enjoy them. Many games were played and a lovely evening was spent, everyone declared.

We desire to express our thanks to Rev. R. T. Stimmel and Rev. R. E. Shields, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Kohn and friends and neighbors for kindness and sympathy shown during the sickness and death of our husband and father, Mr. Chris Voss.

Is Your Child Equipped Properly For The School Methods of Today

SCHOOL WORK HAS CHANGED—TEXT BOOKS LOSING THEIR IMPORTANCE

No intelligent parent today doubts the necessity of having a reference work in the home. School methods have changed very much in the last fifteen years. The teachers seek every means of encouraging the pupils to investigate subjects outside the class rooms. But, unless a suitable reference work is available in the home, this important work of modern education is seriously hampered.

A special work has been prepared by leading educators, men and women in every state, that is simple, non-technical, entertaining in style, attractively illustrated, dignified and scholarly in treatment of subjects, convenient in size and weight, and finally, offered on low terms at astonishingly low price that places it within the financial reach of even the poorest homes.

For more complete information on this important phase of your child's educational needs from the kindergarten through the high school work, call H. 4138, or address E. I. Price, 147 S. Terrace Ave.

Mrs. A. L. Ditrick and Mr. and Mrs. Errett Loomis were called to Beaverdam, Ohio, last week because of the serious illness of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Loomis.

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY!"

The C. I. C. Class of Glenwood M. E. Sunday School will meet Friday evening, March 9th, at the home of Mrs. Carl J. Barnes, 134 N. Warren Ave. All members are urged to be present.

The Elite Embroidery Club met at the home of Mrs. Frank Wilkins, 51 Dana Ave., Thursday, March 1st. Those present, Mrs. Orif Jenkins, Mrs. Arthur Fisher, Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt, Mrs. Arthur Bigler, Mrs. William Spangler, Mrs. Orman Spencer.

Social Affairs

A very enjoyable evening was spent Friday, March 2nd, at the home of Miss Alice Crouthers, 234 South Harris Avenue, when the F. A. C., a girls' nature-study club, met to elect officers for the coming year and to vote on new members.

The officers were Miss Selma Houdashelt, President; Miss Louise Ruegg, Secretary; Miss Helen Cunninham, Treasurer, and Miss Edith Gibson, Press Reporter.

Those present were Mrs. Hope W. Gibson, leader; Miss Etolle McMahen, Miss Lilda Uhl, Miss Ruth Bechett; Miss Selma Houdashelt, Miss Louise Buegg, Miss Helen Cunningham, Miss Edith Gibson and Miss Alice Crouthers, hostess.

A very dainty luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jennings of 162 North Harris Avenue, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fallemer and daughter, Dorothy Virginia, at dinner Sunday, celebrating the third marriage anniversary of both parties.

Officers of Sunset Literary Club—Mrs. Malcolm C. Grove, president; Mrs. Grover C. Woodin, first vice president; Mrs. Charles W. Lentz, second vice president; Mrs. W. H. Mann, recording secretary; Mrs. Lawrence N. Earl, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Charles W. Haldy, treasurer, with Mrs. J. R. Sheeders, chairman of the social committee, and Mrs. Emma Singley—acted as hostesses at the Colonial tea given by the club Wednesday afternoon, February 28th, at the home of Mrs. W. L. Millikin, 55 South Warren avenue. Club members were in colonial costume. The tea was in honor of Mrs. C. S. Ross, Mrs. T. S. Lowden, Mrs. A. E. Basler, Mrs. Charles W. Harrison and Mrs. Opha Moore.

Mrs. Howard Vallance sang two groups of songs, accompanied by Miss Ethel Greisser and Miss Dorothy Dyer presented a group of readings, also numbers on the piano accordion. Miss Ethel Greisser played a piano solo and Mrs. Lawrence N. Earle read a paper on American song writers.

The tea table was presided over by Mrs. C. S. Ross and Mrs. W. L. Millikin.

These were guests: Mrs. J. M. Ater, of Canton; Mrs. W. M. Simpson, of Newark; Miss Delia Haldy, Miss Lillie O'Dell, Mrs. E. M. Leach, Mrs. H. W. Large, Mrs. Edward Roberts, Mrs. E. H. Davis, Mrs. W. C. Whiting, Mrs. E. C. Beggs, Mrs. Bruce Jackson, Mrs. D. B. Ulrey, Mrs. Emma Dean, Mrs. W. E. Ranney, Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. J. W. Burkett, Miss Elsie Vanderburg, Mrs. A. L. Wagner, Mrs. Paul Barnes, Mrs. C. H. Lentz, Mrs. R. E. Rogerson, Mrs. L. D. Wolfe, Mrs. Charles Blevins, Mrs. Harry Biddle and Mrs. Thomas Sloan.

Mrs. W. K. Merriman and Mrs. T. S. Fox were hostesses at a dinner Wednesday evening at the Merriman home, 194 S. Eureka Ave., for the members of the Hilltop Embroidery Club and their husbands, honoring Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Payne, who are leaving soon to make their home in California. Sweet peas were used in decorations, pink and white, the club colors, predominating. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Payne, the party included Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Matson, Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Gentz, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. R. Millikin, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Seiller, Mr. and Mrs. D. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Shaffer, Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Fox and Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Merriman.

Several affairs were given last week honoring Mrs. Payne. Mrs. C. O. Irwin and Mrs. W. G. Matson entertained with a luncheon at the Maramoor, followed by a theatre party, their guests being members of the Hilltop Embroidery Club.

Mrs. L. M. Seiller, of Upper Arlington, entertained with a gift showty. Her guests were Mrs. G. A. Payne, the honor guest, and Mrs. F. S. Sulzberger, Mrs. S. F. Fairchild, Mrs. H. W. Jones, Mrs. T. S. Fox, Mrs. D. E. Wells, Mrs. R. Millikin, Mrs. C. J. Randall, Mrs. W. Rankin, Mrs. Tillman, Mrs. Gantz, Mrs. G. W. Matson and mother, Mrs. McGowan, Mrs. C. C. Cook, Mrs. E. E. Shaffer, Mrs. Mayer. Mrs. Payne received many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mrs. E. E. Shaffer, of Longview avenue, Clintonville, entertained with a luncheon on Friday, in Mrs. Payne's honor. Her guests were members of the Hilltop Embroidery Club.

Wednesday of this week Mrs. J. T. Evans, N. Terrace, entertained with a one o'clock luncheon, honoring Mrs. Payne and members of the Hilltop Embroidery Club. The regular meeting of the club followed the luncheon.

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY

Opinions About the Library

While the committee appointed by the Hilltop Chamber of Commerce are getting their plans made for the drive during the week of March 16th to 23rd to raise subscriptions for the establishing of the library on the Hilltop, we took the pains to ask a number of Hilltop people—professional, business and otherwise—to express in a few words their opinion about the proposed library, and below are the answers, which certainly shows the feeling of our people in the matter. Though there may be some opposed to it, yet we will say that we did not find anyone to express themselves openly against it.

With the seemingly almost unanimous sentiment for the establishing of a library on the Hilltop, we predict a most glorious victory for the committee and feel confident that a few weeks will see in our midst a library that we will well feel proud of. Let's all boost it by talking about it whenever we can.

Rev. R. G. Stimmel: "The question arises, why a library on the Hilltop? Why anything on the Hilltop? Why a dry goods store, a grocery, a drug store, or any place that provides the commodities of life?

"The answer is easy. We need all of these places as a matter of convenience. The more convenient the library the more it will be used. If we can create a greater interest in good literature by establishing a library on the Hilltop, it is certainly worth our while to put forth the necessary effort.

"Then we ought to be interested in our children and youth. The library will be used more by the pupils in our schools than by any other class. It is a real necessity for reference work and no student can do his best work without access to a library. By all means let us put forth a concerted effort and secure the Holmes collection as a nucleus and the library will grow year by year and soon the people of the Hilltop will come to regard it as an absolute necessity."

Dr. Whitehead: "One of the best things ever offered to the Hilltop, especially for the younger generation, whose minds are ever ready to see the imprint of good or evil. Nothing better can be put in their hands than good books."

Rev. Father Schwars of St. Aloysius parish: "If the right kind of books are selected, with elevating stories and books containing the kind of teachings that will help to develop the children's mind in the right way, the library cannot help but do good."

Mrs. Joseph Bopeley, 2215 West Broad: "I have always been very much in favor of the library and think it will be quite an improvement to the Hilltop."

Rev. J. N. Johnston, pastor Hilltop Church of Christ: "I think it is a mighty good thing and will save our young people from going over town after books."

Rev. W. E. Seesholz, pastor St. Paul Evangelical Church: "It would be a mighty fine thing to have a library on the Hilltop."

Mrs. William I. Murnan, 2586 West Broad: "I have four youngsters who are great lovers of books, and I think the library certainly will be a very good thing."

Rev. J. M. Wenrick, pastor Hilltop Lutheran Church: "I think it will be of such an immense benefit to the school pupils of the Hilltop that we cannot possibly avoid availing ourselves of the opportunity to have the library."

Rev. D. G. Hodgin, pastor Highland Avenue Friends Church: "I believe it most commendable, and am thoroughly in sympathy with the movement and hope it will be established.

Rev. E. B. While, pastor Burgess Avenue U. B. Church: "It is a good move. We ought to have a library more handy than those over town."

Mrs. Dr. Sharp: "There is nothing in my opinion that would benefit our community, both economically and socially, more than the establishing of a public library."

Mrs. F. P. Ireland: "I do so think we need a library. I am very much in favor of it."

Dr. L. B. Turner: "We undoubtedly need a library on the Hilltop. A real need. I am highly in favor of it."

A Real Estate Man: "I'd be tickled to death to see a library on the Hilltop."

F. L. Sulzberger, jeweler and optometrist: "Just push the thing along. There's nothing in the world better for the young mind than good, clean literature and a convenient place to get it. When I was a kid I had to buy a newsboy's ticket and go over town every time I wanted a book."

Fred Raether, of the Economy Store: "By all means we ought to have the library. It is one of the best things that can be added to this community."

Weber's (Confectionery): "Think it would be awfully nice for us to have—for both young and old."

County Commissioner M. W. Westake: "I think it would be a great good for the general public, even for the young and the old."

Mrs. W. L. Millikin: "Any city of 15,000 has a library. Why shouldn't we, of the Hilltop community have one, too?

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Cohn (funeral directors): "Think it would be a mighty fine improvement for the Hilltop, and of great value to the young people."

Mrs. Charles L. Lentz, 26 N. Harris: "I think it would be a wonderful help to everyone who reads, and the convenience of having the library here would induce everyone to read."

Mr. T. A. Jones, of the Deddington Lumber Co.: "I am in favor of it."

Mr. W. H. Deems, 2626 W. Broad: "I am highly in favor of the project and hope the effort will be a success."

Rev. Mr. Lose, pastor St. John's Lutheran Church: "The Hilltop Library will prove a safeguard to our youth and a source of information and pleasure to all those who use it."

WE WANT THAT LIBRARY

"I am so firmly convinced of the absolute need of a library on the Hilltop that I am willing to say it is the most pressing need of this year. We cannot argue now about the value of a library. Toledo, with the population of Columbus, has 15 branch libraries. This is just the beginning of great things for the Hilltop in library service. Put me down, Mr. Westake, as enthusiastic and whole-heartedly for the HOLMES HILLTOP LIBRARY."

Rev. Richard E. Shields,
Pastor Hoge Memorial Pres. Church.

An Englishman was once heard to remark: "Wherever the Germans go you will find an arsenal; wherever the French go you will find a railroad; wherever the British go you will find a custom house; wherever the Americans go you will find a school house."

May I not add, as our aim, "and wherever school houses are found there also will be a library."

It seems to me we have built the stage out here on the Hilltop where a library is an absolute necessity. We are rapidly growing into quite a city out here, many people coming to the Hill from all sections of our city and country, bringing their families. The children will all be educated here and we want them to have all possible advantages. We have numerous churches, all a power in the community, wonderful schools for the training and developing of our children. Now, let us pull together for one more great big need—a library. Not only will we soon appreciate how much nicer it is to just go over to Broad street to change books, but will all take a deeper interest because we helped work a little for it.

It is my prophesy that during the library drive you will find the average person, when once aroused to the needs of a library, not only willing, but eager to render assistance.

Mrs. J. C. Close

The Schools

John Burroughs School

"We want that library,
Yes, we do!
John Burroughs will help;
Won't you help, too?"

—Slogan.

The John Burroughs School lifts its voice in boosting the Hilltop library. The accomplishment of this project will supply within our midst a long-felt want.

A public library, convenient, and with doors open to the young, is a strong factor in stimulating the book habit, which habit, rightly applied, is the greatest moral uplift that into the life of the growing boy, girl.

The appreciation of the undertaking comes many fold from the John Burroughs School, which, still in its infancy, faces a handicap, through lack of equipment.

Judging from the community spirit shown in previous drives for improvement, the library for the Hilltop is assured.

John Burroughs School.

Miss Judd, Principal of West Broad St. School

A city as large as Columbus should not be content to have one centrally located library, to which people must travel for miles, but should maintain branch libraries in the residence sections, well stocked with books for children, youth and adults.

Ir, however, the city is not able to provide these libraries, would it not be a tribute to the foresight, vision and community spirit of the Hilltop, if its residents should be the first to establish a public library?

The question, "How does a person spend his leisure time?" is giving many people grave concern. How can one spend much of his leisure time to greater advantage and with more satisfaction, than with a good book?

Nowadays, people do not need to travel to know the world—that knowledge can be had for the price of a visit to the library. The men and women who have made history may become familiar friends to the readers of books. The wonders of nature and science, the joys of poetry and the delights of fiction may be the property of all through the reading of books.

The community has the opportunity to confer a great benefit by making the library not a possibility, but an actuality.

And some day there will be a beautiful little building housing thousands of books, the pride of the Hilltop. There will be a children's room filled with shelves to which the boys and girls have access. There will be also a room where the most wonderful stories are told by one who understands children. Can the value of such a place be estimated?

INVESTING MONEY AT HOME

Faith in One's Own Community Has Been the Foundation of Many Immense Fortunes.

An investment is only as sound as the permanence of its security. Land: it is my contention, is the soundest of all investments.

A case in point:

The land upon which the New York stock exchange is constructed is probably one of the most valuable plots in the world. Almost with each tick of the clock fortunes are made and lost on the exchange floor.

Yet, through all depressions, panics and money stringencies that have hit the market, the value of the land upon which the exchange stands has steadily increased.

Stocks may rise and stocks may fall, but the permanence in value of the exchange site goes on forever. Cyclones, either of the financial or physical brand, cannot destroy the security of land investments, because the land, as the basis of all wealth, is its own surety.

Another line on the soundness of land as an investment may be had by analyzing the basis of many of New York city's oldest family fortunes.

Those families that now stand highest on the social and financial calendar are invariably the ones whose ancestors invested in land, and succeeding generations followed the sensible policy of their progenitors. There can be named many families, the wealth of which, founded on investment in New York city real estate, has been dissipated by its being employed and invested in other mediums by the heirs. But there are many who stand pre-eminently wealthy and distinguished today because their faith in land never diminished from colonial times to the present.—Joseph P. Day in the New York Tribune.

TOWN IMPROVED BY ZONING

Secretary Hoover Is a Recent Advocate of Principle That Is Growing in Strength.

Says the American Bar Association Journal: "The growing importance of zoning is well illustrated by the appointment by Secretary Hoover of an advisory committee on zoning in the division of building and housing of the Department of Commerce, to make studies of state enabling acts [illegible] ing ordi[illegible] division in question [illegible] just issued a 'Zoning Primer,' prepared by the advisory committee, which sets out in simple language exactly what this undertaking is. It defines zoning as the application of common sense and fairness to the public regulations governing the use of private real estate. It is a painstaking, honest effort to provide each district or neighborhood, as nearly as practicable, with such protection and just such liberty as are sensible in that particular district. It avoids the error of trying to apply the same building regulations to every part of a city or town, regardless of whether it is a suburban residence section or a factory district or a business and financial center. It fosters civic spirit by creating confidence in the justice and stability of the protection afforded. Further paragraphs point out that zoning protects property and health; reduces the cost of living by rendering unnecessary the destruction of great numbers of expensive buildings."

The Home Fires.

Mark Twain said that a bed was the most dangerous place to be, since more persons died in bed than elsewhere. Recent surveys have developed that the whole house is a dangerous place. A man's house is his castle, perhaps, but 836 of these "castles" are going up in smoke on this one day in the United States, according to statistics compiled by an insurance company. That number of homes burn on every working day of the year. More than 66 per cent of the fires in the United States originate in residences, and 10,000 of the 15,000 persons who lost their lives in fires last year died in residence fires.

Leasing and Character.

The most highly moral way for you to live and for your children to grow up is to own your own home. Moving every year or every few years is disorganizing, wasteful, demoralizing. Work toward owning your own home and no matter how simple it may be it will have dignity. A homestead gives character, backbone, individuality. In it develop our strongest and best impressions. It serves as many different kinds of an anchor in peaceful times as well as in stormy ones.

Bright Guess.

"In 879 B. C.," stated the professor to the history class, "Nebuchadnezzar captured Tyre. Now can any one of you tell what reason he could have had for doing this?"

There was no delay for a reply.

"He probably wanted it for his chariot," answered the bright young man of the class.

Mexico's Timber Lands.

It is estimated that the area of first-class timber lands in Mexico is approximately 25,000,000 acres.

Automobiles made their appearance about twenty-five years ago. From the appearance of some of them, we thought it was longer.

One of the remarkable traits of Benjamin Franklin—remarkable for a public man—was that whenever he talked he said something.

FRANCE TO GROW U. S. WHEAT

France will soon be growing the hardier variety of American wheat, if the sample seeds sent to France prove successful after cultivation. Victor D'Autremont, an American of French extraction, who recently was awarded the palm of the Academy of France by the government, has made arrangements with the United States Department of Agriculture whereby samples of American wheat are to be sent to French farmers for test cultivation. Mr. D'Autremont is pictured here with a package of the experimental wheat seeds.

Facts About Broadview

LOCATION When purchasing a tract of land for a subdivision, the first and most important consideration is location. This should be of great importance to you in the selection of a home site.

Close-in locations on main thoroughfares (such as High Street and Broad Street in Columbus) are always most desirable and certain of increase in value. The best homes and most prosperous business are sure to be found in such locations.

Broadview is on West Broad Street, two squares west of Hague Avenue and almost adjoining the solidly built-up section. It is right in the path of the rapid growth of the Hilltop and just as certain to be built up quickly as any addition ever offered to the people of Columbus.

IMPROVEMENTS While location is of utmost importance, the best located lots will not be built upon without city improvements, and the only way to secure improvements within reasonable time is through the co-operation of the original owners.

Broadview has become a part of this great City of Columbus and proper officials have been petitioned for every improvement that the city can supply. Each lot will be supplied with improved street, sewer, water and gas. An electric light line has already been constructed through the Addition and actual work on other improvements will be started just as soon as weather permits.

OTHER FEATURES Broadview is only two blocks from the splendid West Broad Street school. Churches of all denominations and high class stores are within a short distance.

When you build a home in this beautiful addition you will be sure of having desirable neighbors. Every lot is restricted to single dwellings. No flats, doubles, duplexes or storerooms. No lots less than 40 foot frontage — many are 50 and up to 100 feet. Very reasonable terms can be arranged and liberal discounts will be allowed for cash.

A phone call will place an auto at your service, or we will gladly mail you a plat of the addition

MOVE IS STEADILY UPWARD

Great Promise Shown for the Future Development of American Cities and Towns.

Neither the accumulation of money nor the sense of power that money brings are among the real satisfactions of life. Those satisfactions come from either rendering the service to one's fellows or enjoying the service that the past has rendered to us. In thousands of ways the poorest of us can render service to others. But the ability to appreciate that service is a different matter. That requires cultivation. To enjoy knowledge we must have a trained mind; to appreciate works of art we must have a trained taste. And if I add to that requirement also a trained heart I shall be well within the truth. The great advantage of Greek and Latin is that those languages present to both mind and heart those ideas and ideals that are the noblest spring of action. School and college, the first-hand study of nature, and the practice of all those virtues which enrich human nature are needed to form correct taste.

No one who has paid attentions to the changes that the past two decades have brought about can be pessimistic as to the future development of the American city along the lines of convenience, dignity and good order, combined with a certain amount of beauty. The day of the uglifier seems past. The uncertain element is the presence or absence of good taste. And good taste is the combined product of the mind and the emotions rightly directed. So that in the last analysis the soul of the city is a keenly developed civic consciousness on the part of its citizens.—Exchange.

Helpful Hints for Hilltop Home

IMPROVE THE HOME GROUNDS

Attractive Garden Is One of the First Requisites of a Worth While Home.

What is home without children? But one might go further and say: "What is home without a garden and flowers?"

Prof. William Dallas Campbell echoes this thought in some of his most interesting talks on "Better Homes."

A home is rendered more attractive and interesting when each functional furnishing is in the right place, of the right size, shape, scale and color, and consequently because useful and beautiful, appears to have grown or happened there. The trees, shrubs, vines, flowers and other features that adorn the garden, the home's intimate environs, should give the same suggestion.

The residence, garage, boundary fences, walls, steps, pergolas and indeed all construction evident, form a skeleton, or it might be more appropriate to say, a figure in the nude, that needs to be clothed with befitting grace and color in living plant forms that do not hide or smother the architecture, but only serve to reveal and emphasize its charm.

Plants add further interest through their change in growth, and their evolutions through the seasons whether it be leaf, fruit and flower that delight, or bare twig, decorative branch and trunk that etch silhouettes against a background of building, water or sky. The house may with propriety express repose, while the plant life signifies animation, joy, movement and color, epitomizing all life in cycles of birth, growth, fruitage and decay.

PAINT AND MORALS RELATED

Undoubted Psychological Effect on the Morals of Community That Keeps "Cleaned Up."

The close relation between paint and morals was emphasized at the thirty-fifth annual convention of the National Paint and Varnish association. That freshly painted houses stimulated their occupants to be better and cleaner citizens was the declaration of W. T. Stott of St. Louis, executive secretary of the finance and audit committee of the association which last year conducted "clean-up" campaigns in 7,000 cities of the United States.

"The psychological effect of a freshly painted house upon the occupants is the same as that created by wearing a new suit of clothes. Painting homes not alone increases the pride of the occupants but increases the property value as well," he said. "The time will come when unsightly frame dwellings of the type that are so frequent in most cities now will be a thing of the past. Reports of the beneficial results of the work we are doing have spread to such far flung points as China and Japan and we have had inquiries from these countries as to what we are doing."

Handy Incinerator.

An incinerator in which to burn refuse should be in every home, as it lessens the danger of fire and prevents burning papers from being scattered by the wind. When it is full it is carried out away from the buildings and set on fire.

A piece of small mesh chicken wire about three feet high and ten feet long will do for the cylinder part, reinforced by pieces of heavy wire lashed to the top and bottom and four pieces up and down the sides. Two pieces three feet square will form the top and bottom and may be fastened to heavy wire circles and the bottom fastened to the cylinder all around. The top one, or lid, can be hinged to one side and a piece of loose wire placed on the side to fasten it down when the refuse is being burned.

Community Spirit.

A healthy city-wide optimism removes the mental hazards from business. A keen realization on the part of business men that real-estate development must precede city growth; that real-estate investment is safe and profitable; that the surest way to anchor the stranger permanently to your population is to sell him a home or an investment in real estate, all help the home. Bankers should co-operate with the business interests, and especially the real-estate men, in diverting all available idle capital into enterprises that would build up and develop the city instead of permitting this money to be loaned to large foreign industries, and thereby be used to add prosperity to some other city at the expense of their own.

Animal Outlaw Finally Shot.

For three long years Lobo, giant wolf, fattened on the cattle of the Arizona plains; from one ranch alone, in one year, he seized 60 fine white-faced yearlings. A government hunter, in an automobile, has at last brought Lobo down with a single shot from a rifle with the rear sight missing. The wolf weighed 70 pounds after the skin from shoulders to head was removed, and was the largest ever seen on the range. His disposal means a saving of several thousand dollars in stock annually.—Scientific American.

CITIZENS MUST LOOK AHEAD

Advice Given to Kansas City Men Applicable to Every Town in the United States.

A city ought to be willing to look at least as far into the future as real estate men do when they draft the terms of a 99-year lease, Charles Moore, the art arbiter of Washington, D. C., said in a short talk before the closing session of the Kansas City realtors' conference.

"A city like Kansas City is master of its own fate," he continued. "The European monarchs of old did some wonderful things—for themselves. We are our own masters and can do what we have a mind to."

Mr. Moore urged Kansas City to do something big, to get beyond "small plans."

"Any plans we make, our sons and grandsons will find too small," he explained. "Yes, and before you die you will find your biggest plan not big enough.

"And don't look over your shoulder," he advised. "Always there is a great deal more to do than you can do in a lifetime. Look ahead, not backways, and you won't be downcast at the progress."

Winter Reading.

Judicious reader, when the long winter evenings come round, you have abundance of leisure. Let the poets stand idle on the shelves till the return of spring, unless perchance you would fain resume acquaintance with "The Seasons," which you have not read since a boy, or would divert yourself with Prior or be grave with Crabbe. Now is the time to feel once more the charm of Lamb's peerless and unique essays; now is the time to listen to the honied voice of Leigh Hunt discoursing daintily of men and books.—Arthur Henry Bullen.

Tennis Balls Carried by Spring.

Tennis players will appreciate an appliance introduced for the purpose of carrying that extra set of balls to and from the courts during the summer months when pocket space is usually limited. The contrivance, described and illustrated in Popular Mechanics Magazine, consists of a spiral spring of brass wire, wound in such a manner that it may be fastened to the side of a racket by its own tension and containing two ball-holding loops.

EVERY CITIZEN SHOULD HELP

No Reason Why Fight on Civic Ugliness Should Be Left to an Organization.

The Anti-Ugly association is the attorney for every home owner, every property owner, every person who does business in Kansas City. Every defacement of sidewalk, street or alley damages property. It tends to make Kansas City a less desirable place to live in.

A man may erect a million-dollar building, and we still permit his neighbors to give him a back alley trash can setting. A family may put its savings into a home, and we permit the owner of a vacant lot next door to depreciate the value of the home.

The Anti-Ugly association has gone out to remedy this condition. It is employing attorneys to help enforce existing ordinances and to study the situation with a view to more protective legislation. In this it is acting as the agent for the average citizen. The man who hears about the work says, "That's fine." If he meets a member of the organization he slaps him on the back and calls him bully boy. But kind words pay no bills.

It is no more the job of the members of the Anti-Ugly association to do this work than it is of any other citizen.—Kansas City Star.

Getting After the Careless Citizen.

The farmer is held liable for damage if he builds a fire and permits it to spread to his neighbor's land; railroad companies have been held liable for damage done by the fire spreading from their rights of way. Why not extend this liability to the man with a basement full of rubbish, a defective chimney or other known fire hazard, which results in fire and injury to his neighbor? Why not compel him to reimburse the city for the expense of putting out the fire caused by his carelessness? Pennsylvania has such a law. A number of cities provide this penalty by ordinance.

The large majority of fires are due to carelessness, and there is no more effective way to cure such carelessness than through the pocketbook.—Chicago Daily News.

All Lovb "Old Homestead."

One trouble with the American people, declares an eastern journal, is that they have not enough cherished old homesteads. We have been a migrant people. We transplant ourselves by habit. We are Munchausens constantly engaged in pulling the family tree up by the roots. "Home" is to most of us more like a tent than like a house. But through all our nomadism we yearn for the "old homestead." Let all who can hold fast to it, or recover it if it is lost. Its sentiment, its inspiration, are priceless.

Mortar Saved His Life.

A Dallas (Tex.) laborer fell ten stories down an elevator shaft, landed in a wheelbarrow of mortar and stepped out unhurt. Through a misunderstanding, the elevator on the thirteenth floor where the laborer was working was lowered unknown to him, and when he stepped for it, down he went. He caught up with the elevator at the third floor, landing in the soft mortar. He stepped out unhurt at the bottom floor and continued working after he had scraped off some of the mortar.

Pelican Pecks

Remember those beautiful spring days last week? Some thought winter was over, but it doesn't pay to believe appearances too soon.

We heard the other day of a man "gifted" in bootlegging, who had owned six different autos in the course of a year. We'd report that chap if we knew where he lived.

THE PELICAN wants that library! Think of all the pecks he could find in it for the Hilltop Record.

We rode down town recently with this idea in mind—how long would it take to get to High Street if we stopped just half the number of times?

The man who can't find what he wants on the Hilltop ought to ask a merchant to get it for him. Merchants of the Hilltop are the most obliging lot of men we have ever met.

It is said in the advertisement of one grocery—"We specialize in chickens." Who does?

That chap who laughed when you slipped and fell would probably laugh at an oyster which had the stomach ache!

Did you ever have your hat to blow four way for Sunday? Ours did once, and when we finally captured the blame thing, we had an audience as large as the picture show audience on Sunday night.

Mrs. Dulgar serves a meal which the C. of C. men are calling the best meal for 50 cents we ever ate.

We noticed where the W. Broad P. T. A. was turning Irish. Let's hope they give their money's worth when St. Patrick shows his face.

A stitch behind saves——embarrassment!!

Keep the City Clean.

"A cheap coat," said President Harrison, "makes a cheap man." In the same way it might be said a dirty town makes a dirty people; a dirty people makes moral and material dirt and decay. It is the duty of all men and women to make their homes and their home towns just as clean and attractive and beautiful as possible. He who fails short in this respect falls short of his duty to God and man, it matters not what else he may do.

Bullet Did Double Service.

Shooting herself a woman killed another person in Philadelphia recently. The bullet passed clean through her body, and killed a man standing behind her. The woman was rushed to a hospital and later arrested for murder.

Alcestee Wasn't There.

Holmes Hilltop Library Canvass

Friday begins the drive for the Holmes' Hilltop Library. There will be a men's committee and a women's committee. They will solicit in pairs The campaign will be from Friday the 16th to Friday the 23rd.

An effort is being made to have an indicater in the front wisdow of the Hilltop Bank, so that persons can keep in touch with the progress of the drive.

Please be ready with your subscription when the committee calls and help to make this a rousing success.

The canvassers will finish their work during the week of March 16th to 23rd, going two by two to every home on the Hilltop. ONE DOLLAR is the share asked for membership in the supporting association of this very valuable community library. Judge Holmes left over 3000 books in his collection, to which will be added books contributed from various organizations and individuals, besides a loan of several hundred volumes from the State Library Department and a reading room in which the best magazines will be found.

A report of progress will be held at a supper meeting on Wednesday night, March 21st, and a final report made on the last night, Friday, March 23d. Anyone wishing to leave their dollar or dollars at the bank or with Mr. Fred Raether, the Fund Treasurer, is gladly permitted to do so. Each of the schools is behind this venture as is also the Hilltop Chamber of Commerce and Librarian Pugh says he will give every assistance he can to help us out. When the solicitors come to your home make them feel welcome and give one dollar for every member of the family or one dollar as a family and feel that your are supporting a WORTHY HILLTOP VENTURE.

Library Committee of men—Rev. R. E. Shields, Rev. R. T. Stimmel, Dr. E. W. Martindale, M. H. Prior, Dr. Howard Whitehead, Carl Hitsch, Ray Haunts, H. M. Gibson, J. W. Worrel, H. G. Deems, A. F. ### HOLMES HILLTOP LIBRARY CANVASS FACTS.

The Canvass will begin Friday, March 16th and run thru Friday, March 23rd.

A house to house canvass will be made of every home on the Hilltop.

The men, under Rev. R. E. Shields, and the women, under Mrs. Dr. C. E. Sharp, as chairman, will do the canvassing.

WE WANT ONE DOLLAR SHARES to the amount of $1,500, which will locate, house and maintain this wonderful Library for one year. Each family should contribute one or more dollars so that together the Association may have sufficient to run the Library without further appeal for a year. The Treasurer is Mr. Fred Raether, Proprietor of the Economy Store.

We are depending on every CANVASSER AND FAMILY TO DO HIS OR HER PART OR THE ENTIRE CANVASS WILL FAIL OF JUST THAT MUCH.

THE LIBRARY ITSELF.

Is the Colonel Holmes Memorial Collection of about 3,200 volumes.

Is worth in money alone close to $10,000.

Will be called the HOLMES HILLTOP LIBRARY.

Is stored at Glenwood Shelter House now.

Will be located in the light, warm and central hall over the CITIZENS TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK at West Broad and S. Park St. (Very central for children!)

Will have well-lighted reading tables, with magazines of finest kind on display every afternoon and evening from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 P. M.

A COMPETENT PAID LIBRARIAN will be in charge.

Books in the Holmes Collection will be supplemented by several hundred loaned by the State Library Department, and books given by individuals and by organizations. One man already has promised a $50.00 Reference Set.

BOOKS MAY BE TAKEN BY ANYONE whether they pay a dollar or not. But the support is by DOLLAR SHARES.

THIS will not in any way embarass the city from establishing a BRANCH on the Hilltop or taking this over as a branch in the future.

It will probably hasten the day for the ENTIRE CITY OF COLUMBUS when branches will be in every section.

THIS IS THE WHOLE SECRET. WE WANT THAT LIBRARY.

Health Hints

By Doctor McFadon.

Imagine two adjoining rooms separated by a cloth partition. One room is filled with pure air (1/3 oxygen), and the other with vitiated air. In less time than you are reading this, much of the oxygen has found its way through the porous partition and exchanged places with the poison of the adjoining room. They mix as readily as do clear and muddy water. Expel the vitiated air from the first room quickly and replace it with pure air and the process is repeated, etc.

This is a very homely illustration of your every day, every minute, breathing. The pure air you breathe in comes in contact with thousands of small vesicles, through the walls of which the oxygen passes and the poison returns ready to be expelled as outgoing breath to this intake of oxygen, we are indebted for life more than we are to the food we eat.

One has only to think of the difference in the character of the ingoing and outgoing breaths to be convinced that the constant exchange is most profitable. Without effort the amount of oxygen inhaled and the amount of poison gas exhaled is very great in a day and the result is continued life.

Even a lazy man is permitted to live many years without effort, and we are all more or less lazy—careless about our breathing.

The man or woman in active pursuits must breathe deeply, and incidentally absorbs more life-giving oxygen. That's why exercise is beneficial. The strength added to the muscles is incidental. The player upon a wind instrument must breathe deeply and is benefited more than he may realize.

Influenced by our environment we daily improve our personal appearance, gait, etc., and we do it without giving it much thought But in the matter of our breathing we are not helped by conventionality, for that does not concern our neighbors. Our personal pride, however, should dictate that we give this extremely profitable matter a passing though occasionally and form the habit of deeper breathing. With the habit formed it becomes as nearly automatic as walking. Inhale while taking four steps and exhale while taking four steps. This is easy enough but you will discover that you have not been doing that. Then later on take six steps against six, etc. Make it incidental, but do it and keep doing it and know that it costs you nothing and nothing can bring greater return.

If we would acquire wealth we must get the thrift habit and follow it up. It may cost sacrifices but we have a right to enjoyment and pleasures as a by-product. If we have a long drive to make the machine must be in order and gasoline must be provided. The cost of maintenance is to be considered and the wear and tear inevitable lessens the value of the machine. It is not so with our breathing (life). The life-giving oxygen is so costless and free that to a certain extent Nature forces it upon us and the more of it we accept the more joy we get out of life and the longer we live. Verily, we commit slow suicide if we do not co-operate with Nature in this. Then when the thus shortened life ceases, shall we call it "God's will?"

Real Estate

Messrs. W. H. Orebaugh & Son expect, about the first of April, to begin the erection of a number of houses on the Hilltop. One of these will be a six room single on North Harris Avenue. Then they will build one on North Ogden, one on North Park and one on North Oakley, each of which will contain six rooms. They will also put in one on Guilford and Broad, and Three in the new Hilltonia Addition on Sullivant Avenue. They expect to follow these with many more later on.

Sullivant Avenue seems to be getting its share at present of the building going on, there being about a dozen houses now under way on that thoroughfare.

---

Mr. C. A. Henderson is about to begin the erection of a large storage building on the rear of his Broad Street business property. It will have an entrance way from the alley west of Highland Avenue and will be about 100-feet long.

---

Messrs. Holder & Mathiasen, real estate and builders, last week report having closed contracts for $27,000 worth of residence property on the Hilltop. One of these was a $11,000 double on North Ogden Avenue for Mrs. Jane Jones, an East Side lady, who expects to make the Hilltop her home. They expect to start breaking ground this week.

---

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Pope, now residing at 87 Lechner Avenue, have awarded the contract to Holder & Mathiasen to build them a $10,000 residence on West First Avenue. We are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Pope from this community.

During the high wind last Monday the awning of Millikin Bros. grocers, was partly torn loose and blown up against the top of the building tore a portion of the tiling at the corner of the roof from its fastenings, causing it to fall to the street; then it was blown against one of the large plate glass window breaking it to pieces. The high wind also did other minor damages at different places on the Hilltop.

Mrs. Nora B. Hite of Columbus and Mr. Oscar Bergum of Wisconsin were united in marriage Thursday evening by Rev. R. E. Shields. The bride wore a very beautiful gown of tan satin Canton Crepe. They will be at home at 38 N. Park after April 1st. Mrs. Bergum is a sister of Mrs. Q. J. Walker, 40 S. Terrace St., having moved here recently from Xenia, Ohio.

---

Mr. W. H. Orebaugh, who recently returned from a trip through the South, stopped over in Washington City on his way home, and on visiting the Treasury Department, had a conversation with Mr. T. F. Athey, who told him that the average daily receipts of that department averaged nearly $20,000,000, and that during the war, from July 1st, 1918, to June 30th, 1919, the receipts amounted to about $59,000,000 daily. Thus it can plainly be seen that one day's receipts would "run our new library for a year or so."

WEST BROAD STREET SCHOOL PARENT TEACHERS ASSOCIATION TO HOLD COMMUNITY ST. PATRICK'S PARTY.

Friday night, March 16th (TOMORROW), the Parent Teachers Association of West Broad Street School will hold a Community St. Patrick's Party at 7:30 o'clock. Irish costumes will be worn by all, both children and adults and a series of games and entertainments will be tinged with "the wearing of the green." Booths in which be displayed items for "food fun and fancy" will be located around the large auditorium. St. Patrick will be present and a squad of mimic-policemen will maintain order and assess any fines for lack of Irish costume or other breaking of the law of Irish fun. There will be booths with sandwiches and coffee, cake and ice-cream, candy, fish-pond, fortune-telling and the "Blarney Stone."

Games will be played in groups by the children and adults. Prizes will be given for the prettiest and funniest costumes. M. W. Seiller, Fred Raether and C. E. Helmbrecht will be the judges. John Atkinson will appear as St. Patrick and the Chief of Police will be Mr. Sam Roberts. Mrs. Richard E. Shields is chairman of the Committee on Arrangement. Tickets will be exchanged at the door for cash tickets to be used at any of the booths. The public is cordially invited. No charge for admission. Proceeds will be used to replete the treasury of the Association.

The Association has contributed the first Hundred Dollars to the Holmes Hilltop Library Fund.

SCOUTS ATTENTION.

All scouts of the Hilltop are requested to report at Hague and Broad Streets at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 17th, to participate in the parade boosting the new Library Fund. Here is a chance for another Community Good Turn.

The Personal Workers' Class of Hoge Memorial Sunday School Class will gather papers, rags and scrap paper March 22nd.

Social Affairs

Illness prevented H. E. French, Chief of Police, from talking to the Parent-Teacher Association of West Broad Street School last Friday evening, but Warden Thomas spoke in his place. He talked on "His Boys and Our Boys" before a large audience of friends and members of the organization.

The Westgate Masonic Chorus rendered several delightful numbers.

Mr. Worrell, President of Hilltop Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Ray Haunts spoke, representing the members of that organization.

Mrs. Enterman, Chairman of Entertainment Committee, had charge of the program.

Mrs. J. W. Bower, President, called attention of all present to the big Irish carnival to be held at the school Friday evening, March 16, at 7:00 o'clock.

The Hilltop Circle of the Child Conservation League met at Hoge Memorial Church Monday at 2:00 P. M. A splendid program was given. A paper on "Overcoming Hereditary Taints by Training and Environment," by Mrs. W. H. Rankin, another splendid one by Mrs. H. G. Geyer on "Illuminating Facts Concerning the Most Subject of Prenatal Influences," one read by Mrs. H. W. Large on "Relative Influence of Heredity and Environment upon Crime and Delinquency."

The entire membership of this circle is urged to attend these meetings and enjoy the full benefits of the circle, by receiving a broader view on child culture. A young lady is in attendance at each meeting to care for the children.

Miss Janice Munyan, 174 South Warren Avenue, entertained her friends at a birthday party Saturday afternoon, March 10th. The guests present were: Clark Garber, Floyd and Lloyd Clark, Charles Sampson, Mary and Ruth Mider, Jack and June Parker, Edna Ruth Morgan, Evelyn Tookey, Ida May Karnes, Tom and Betty Fink, Dorothy Rudock, Anna Raether, Howard Schubert and Eleanor Large.

---

On Wednesday of last week Mrs. John Porter of 77 S. Warren Ave. entertained the members of the Needlecraft Club at a 1:00 o'clock luncheon. Our out-of-town member, Mrs. L. M. Stevenson of Canal Winchester, met with us. The next regular meeting of the club will be with Mrs. L. A. Amarine, 282 N. Terrace St., April 4th.

Church Doings

GLENWOOD METHODIST

Our Evangelistic services will begin next Sunday and continue until Easter Sunday, April 1st. The time is short, so let us make it an intensive campaign for winning souls.

Next Sunday morning Rev. W. P. Castoe of Kenton, Ohio, will preach for us. In the evening the subject will be "Who Is On the Lord's Side?"

March 20, 1893, the first meeting was held looking toward the organising of a Methodist church on the Hilltop. Next Tuesday is the 30th anniversary of that meeting. We will observe the anniversary in connection with our special services. Rev. P. E. White will preach for us in the evening at 7:30. Let everybody who can attend this service come.

Sunday, March 25th, will be Decision Day in Sunday School and Church services. Pray for these services and help some one to decide for Christ.

Epworth League at 6:30. Mid-Winter Institute echoes. Topic: "What Jesus Thought About Service." Young people, let us lay aside our own affairs and assist our pastor in the Revival Services in the next two weeks.

Rev. Castoe will bring his Basket Ball Team with him and they will have a game with our boys at the Shelter House next Saturday evening at 7:30. Everybody is invited.

HOGE MEMORIAL PRESBYTERIAN

10:30 A. M.—Morning Worship and Sermon: "The Spiritual Content of Modern Missions."

7:30 P. M.—Evening Worship and Sermon: "Why Did Jesus Have to Diet?" Have you been worried by the suffering of Christ? Do you wonder at the necessity for death? Is it your idea that God required the death of His own Son? Come and hear this sermon which will impart a new meaning to you of the place of THE CROSS in human life and religion. Special music at each service.

Special Pre-Easter Services will be held at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at 7:30 o'clock, beginning March 27. Special solos Tuesday night, the Boys' Chorus Wednesday night, the Westgate Masonic Male Chorus Thursday night and Miss Jeannette Trone and other special music Friday night. The record, "His Last Week," will be read complete and copies will be sold to members and friends at seven cents per copy, with which to follow the record. Short addresses and spiritual atmosphere. Friday night will be held the Good Friday Communion Service of the church. Every member and all friends are invited to this service of the Lord's Supper.

We give the public a very cordial welcome and assurance of comforting and helpful services. WE WELCOME YOU.

HILL CREST BAPTIST

Morning Service—10:30. Subject: "Simplicity of Jesus."

B. Y. P. U. at 6:15. Intermediate B. Y. P. U. at 6:15.

Evening Service at 7:30.

Don't forget the Men's Community Bible Class at 9:30.

The pastor will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning. The speaker for the evening will be announced later.

Prayer Meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Special evangelistic meetings will begin with Easter Sunday, in charge of Dr. Rittenhouse, pastor of First Baptist Church, Columbus.

---

The Railway Y. M. C. A. Quartette, led by Mr. William Richard, will sing at both the Sunday School and Church Services next Sunday morning.

Morning Sermon — "A Christian Home."

Evening Sermon—"A Little Hebrew Maid Helps An Army Captain."

Everybody welcome to these services.

---

Rev. C. C. Brown, evangelist, of Kingswood, Ky., will begin a fifteen-day revival Sunday morning at the Pilgrim Holiness Church on Cypress Ave. His daughter, Rachel Brown, will play the guitar and sing. John O. Emrick, pastor.

Pelican Pecks

The Peckiest Peck that we ever pecked brought a quick response. Say, boys, take a joke! Take a joke!

We see the Y. M. C. A. drive went over with a bang! Columbus has a reputation for giving, not equalled by many cities in the U. S.

Speaking of putting over drives—how about the Holmes Hilltop Library which we're reading so much about? Boys, put it over big!!

Why is it that water stands in cellars down near Sullivant Avenue for lack of sewerage service. We have it on good authority that sewers are badly needed. Where is our Councilman?

The back of winter seems to be broken. Spring is near with its robins, gardens, grasscutting, pruning and "fever." Let's hope old man "Flu" has done his worst now and is on the run.

One of the worst needed improvements on the Hilltop is a through-street somewhere between West Broad and Sullivant, running East and West which is paved and decent for machines and wagons to travel. Think of it, having to drive back a mile in order to go a block!

We note the transplanting of trees at West Broad Street School. That is saving beauty. And the same week someone with more zeal than sense on West Broad cut down a BEAUTIFUL MAPLE. SHAME!

The Pelican wonders sometimes why boys persist in running over thawed terraces thereby tramping down the fresh grass and ruining the yards of people along most of our streets. Why can not teachers and parents warn children and help keep traffic on the pavements where it belongs?

That Westgate Male Chorus is a credit to the Hilltop. We ought to appreciate it as one of the biggest things for entertainment and pleasure our auburb possesses.

Friendship gardens uncultivated grow weeds of suspicion and neglect.

WHY?

Watt asked why and we have the steam engine. Bell asked why and we have the telephone. Edison asked why and we have the electric light.

Your boy in the primary class demanding to know how and why birds build nests, what the ants do underground, and how the bees make honey, why the trees have leaves, can find the desired information in the Home and School Reference Work.

Upper grade pupils asking what caused Japan to develop so rapidly, or how and why rainfall is so distributed, or how man has solved his transportation problems can find the answers readily and thoroughly.

The High School student investigating the tariff, or parliamentary law, or the leading races of man, will find these and thousands of similar topics in history, science, literature, or government, treated in the Home and School Reference Work.

You will be surprised when you learn how low the price has been fixed for the Home and School Reference Work. You can name your own terms of purchase.

Full information without obligation may be obtained by calling H 4138, or address E. I. Price, 147 S. Terrace Avenue.

TO PENALIZE THE CARELESS

Wisconsin Industrial Commission Would Have Reckless Pay for Damage Caused by Fires.

The justice of penalizing individual carelessness, when it results in fire damage to the property of others, is effectively argued in the following brief bulletin issued by the industrial commission of Wisconsin:

A crook robs a national bank of $6,000,000. The entire police powers of the state and nation are put to work to apprehend him.

A man deliberately sets fire to a grain elevator in which $1,000,000 worth of grain is stored. Some fire marshal's deputy, alone and unaided, investigates this fire in the hope of discovering sufficient evidence to bring the guilty man to trial, perhaps before a jury prejudiced against circumstantial evidence.

A man's sheer carelessness causes a fire which destroys $1,000,000 worth of his neighbor's property. Nothing is done to punish this man; actually a certain amount of misplaced sympathy is wasted on him because of his own loss.

Why this widely different public attitude in these three cases? asks Safeguarding America Against Fire.

The robber can be trusted to put the stolen money into circulation and, from the economic standpoint, the country as a whole will have lost nothing.

In the other two cases $1,000,000 worth of wealth is destroyed and the country is just that much poorer. The people, not insurance companies, will pay for this loss in larger insurance premiums and higher costs of everything. If the fire marshal's deputy is fortunate enough to prove guilt "beyond a reasonable doubt" the man is punished; but nothing is done to the man in the third case; although the effect in the last two cases on the community and country is the same.

It is right that the robber and the incendiary should be punished; it is wrong that the man whose absolute carelessness has caused a like injury should go unpunished. Under the Code Napoleon such a man must reimburse his neighbors for their loss and he insures for such contingency.

GET CLEAN AND STAY CLEAN

Communication to Metropolitan Newspaper Would Seem to Be Applicable to Any Community.

A communication to the Kansas City Star says:

"No time to clean up now," says Dr. E. H. Bullock. When there are piles of rubbish and trash around the city, must we wait until May 1 to dispose of them? Is that modern health theory? Is not prevention the best cure?

Our vacant lots are alive with trash—it blows in our eyes and throats, it is in evidence wherever we go in certain districts. The town is alive with trash now, why wait until May to clean it up? Do we take a bath only once a year? Are we not compelled to wash our faces and hands a dozen times a day for the dirt and soot?

Any time dirt and trash accumulate is clean-up time. You cannot keep up with dirt, unless you clean up as you go along, same as with garbage or any kind of housekeeping.

City of Good Neighbors.

In book II of Mary E. Haviland's "Modern Physiology, Hygiene and Health," we read:

"I suppose no city ever had a more marked character or a greater influence than the city of Athens, which was a center of beauty and culture for the whole ancient world.

"And the reason was that it was a city of good neighbors.

"It is said that every Athenian, when he came of age to vote, took a solemn oath not only never to injure his city in any way, but to serve and work for it so that he might leave it a better, finer city than he found it.

"And the Athenians lived up to this promise so well that even today, after hundreds and hundreds of years, we admire the wonderful city of Athens."

Water Works Makes Money.

Warren's (Ohio) municipal water works showed a balance of more than $90,000 in its treasury for the year of 1922, after all expenses had been paid, a report issued by City Auditor George T. Hecklinger shows. The surplus was turned over to the sinking fund and was used in the redemption of outstanding city bonds.

Unreasonable to Expect.

The late director of the special branch of service at Scotland Yard, Sir Basil Thompson, tells a story apropos of the peculiar reactions of war. It happened at Shoeburyness, where a live shell fell in the mud in the midst of a class of young gunners. "Lie down, gentlemen," shouted the instructor, and no one moved. When the shell had been rendered harmless, he asked why they had not obeyed orders; they might all have been blown to pieces. One of them faltered, "Well, sir, it was so muddy."

The British government is quite anxious to restore the manhood which it lost in the war, and for this reason it has been encouraging the marriage of young widows. Much success has attended this policy, with the widows marrying in a number as high as 2,000 a month. The public policy has been to give a year's pension to every war widow who remarries. The government can well afford to do this, since when the widow marries naturally her pension ceases.—National Tribune.

More Facts About Broadview

NEIGHBORS AND NEIGHBORHOOD

The neighborhood is just about the most important thing for you to consider when purchasing a home site. You will not want to build your home in an addition where all houses are crowded up close together. You will want to be assured that when you build a good house some other fellow will not build a shack, a grocery store or a row of flats next to you.

In Broadview no lots are less than 40 feet frontage, and many are 50 to 100 feet. The entire addition, even Broad Street, is restricted against business of every kind. Nothing but single houses can be built, and they must all be built at least 30 feet from the front lot line. The cost of the single houses is also regulated. In fact, everything possible has been done to make Broadview a community of home owners---a place where you will be proud to live and will always be able to sell at a profit should you desire to do so.

The West Broad Street School, one of the best in the city [the kind of a school you want your children to attend] is only two squares from Broadview. Churches of all denominations and splendid stores are near by.

We will be g d to show you a list of those who have already bought in Broadview and will be your neighbors. Most of them are home owners, and have bought in Broadview because they want something better. Just as soon as we get a few days of good weather and improvement work begins, there will be a grand rush for the remaining lots. The lot you are sure to want may be gone next week, so it would be advisable to get in touch with us at once. We will be on the Addition Saturday afternoon and Sunday and will be glad to show you around.

TIME TO PLAN FOR GARDEN

Not Too Early to Determine Just What to Plant and How It Will Be Laid Out.

Succession of bloom in the flower garden is a most important factor in garden planning. Study the annuals carefully before ordering seed and in laying out your garden to discover which come into bloom first, and which are late bloomers.

Phlox Drummondi and poppies come into bloom within a few weeks after planting. Asters we also know cannot be counted on for a display until the last of the summer. Snapdragons also require a long growing season before they give their best display. Marigolds start blooming when small, especially the French varieties.

It would not be advisable to plant a garden with varieties all of which need three months or more to produce their best display. It also would be equally inadvisable to plant all early flowering sorts, which would bloom a few weeks after planting, and then go to seed. It is a simple matter to study out a collection of annuals which will give blooms practically the whole summer from early June until killing frost.

The annual pinks give fairly early bloom and are lasting. Verbenas, if started early, may be depended on for a long display. Pansies, if started early, will brighten the last of May. Calendulas are reliable all-summer bloomers, especially if given a flying start.

Salvias reach the height of their brilliant scarlet towards the end of summer, but give fine bloom by July from early sown seed.

The flowering tobaccos, Nicotiana, are stately plants for the back of the border, and give a long display. The majestic castor bean, finest of the tropical foliaged annuals, which make a growth of ten feet in a season, ought to be started in pots in the house or a hotbed to get them up in the air by July.

Nasturtiums, both the dwarf and the climbing sorts, start into bloom by the last of June if sown by May 1.

CALLS FOR SELF-SACRIFICE

Improvement of Community Conditions Necessarily Involves More or Less Work and Service.

Work and service always are to be linked up in efforts to improve community conditions and to build a better city. Time that might be employed profitably in one's own business and energy that might be turned to good account in personal affairs must go into these undertakings for the benefit of others, the public generally. The situation is not frequently enough realized, either by those who connect themselves with public benefit efforts or by the public. Often it is the case that a movement laudable and necessary comes to nothing because many of those who start it do not see the work ahead for them if it is to be pushed to success.

Often citizens find fault with a movement and with those who sacrifice their individual interests in connection with it. This condition makes community progress difficult and slow. It makes some of the best citizens hesitate to lend themselves to the most unselfish and public-spirited undertakings.

Doing Away With Ugliness.

Louisvillians seeking an outlet for their civic aspirations might take a hint from the Citizens Anti-Ugly Protective association formed in Kansas City for cleaning-up and beautifying the town. Seven prominent citizens financed the organization, which aims to rid the city of defacements on sidewalks, highways, alleys and buildings.

Tattered placards and out-of-date advertisements already have been removed from walls through the efforts of the new organization. Joseph Meiarath, a retired business man, started the movement by spending money for paid newspaper advertisements, enlisting through this method six other persons of means. The organization then was incorporated.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

BENEFIT IN OWNING HOME

Man With Stake in the Community Cannot Help but Be a Better Citizen.

The great value in owning a home is the new outlook the home owner has on life. Instead of being merely a renter, a more or less dissatisfied member of a large floating population, with the signing of the mortgages he becomes a citizen, a factor in his community, the owner of something in whose growth and development he can take honest pride. The result is that he finds his ambitions clarified and focussed now that he has a definite, tangible object for which to work. He has assumed certain responsibilities, and in their discharge he takes not only interest but genuine pride.

A great business man, on being asked what advice he would give the young man starting out in life, replied "Get in debt." By this he meant that the assumption of financial obligations with a definite object in view furnished the necessary balancing influence which would steady a man and set him a mark to achieve. There is no doubt that the purchase of a home makes a man a better citizen and more ambitious to succeed in his business; it puts him in a class to which it is a privilege to belong—the class which is the responsible element in the community—the great and steady-growing class of home-owning citizens.

TOWN JUDGED BY ITS HOTELS

Point That They Are an Asset or a Detriment Would Seem to Be Well Taken.

One of the western counties, its leading newspaper says, will have completed by the end of 1923 some of the best roads in Kentucky. The result will be increased business. "What," asks the newspaper, "should we do with the added opportunity good roads will create?" The answer is in part as follows: "We should have a campaign to promote courtesy to all who come this way.... Princeton should not allow anyone to enter the city and leave without a desire to return.... His going away dissatisfied will insure against his sending another here." Large cities depend greatly upon the quality of their hotels for popularity. The hotels are not municipal enterprises. They are, if good, assets of the municipality. If they are inadequate in size or in equipment, and if the fare they offer is not up to reasonable requirements, the city suffers severely in reputation. The village tavern which was like a private home accommodating wayfarers has, in most county capitals, given place to a hotel in which there is no visible effort to live up to community standards of kitchen management and household supervision. The result is that travelers, whether "drumming" for mercantile establishments or touring for pleasure, are little attracted to small-town hotels. Small towns and cities cannot compete with large cities in the size and the gilded splendor of their hotels. There should be no effort in that direction. Better a modest hotel, modestly equipped, and a table the guest will remember and compliment, than a pretentious hotel built at ruinous cost, operated at a loss to stockholders whose investment reflects civic pride, not business judgment, and giving the guest nothing to enjoy or recall but indifferent imitation of large city hotels.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MEN'S MEETING.

The regular monthly business meeting and social session of the Men's Community Bible Class of Hilltop Baptist Church will be held in the basement of the church at the corner of Eldon and Steele Avenues, on Tuesday evening, March 27.

A splendid supper will be served at 6:30 P. M., after which the social session will be held. A splendid program has been arranged by the committee and a general good time is anticipated.

All members of the class and all men of the community whether a member of the class or not are cordially invited to be present. Come on men let's make this a real booster meeting.

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Ruth Schultz at the home of Mrs. Forest Wilson, 28 South Wheatland Avenue, Saturday evening, March 17 (St. Patrick's Day.) The hostesses were Mrs. Cored Wendel and Mrs. Wilson. The house was very nicely decorated with Shamrocks and green. About 50 friends and neighbors were present. Miss Schultz received many beautiful presents. Games were played and refreshments were served. All departed at a late hour expressing themselves as highly enjoying the evening and wishing the bride a future happiness.

Margie Smith, 27 South Ogden Ave., was pleasantly surprised on Thursday, March 15, her eighth birthday, by the following friends: Corrine, Helen and Charles Miller, Eloise Baxter, Herbert Jones, Jr., Geraldine Blair, Imogene Hastings, Jennie Armour and Virginia Robinson.

Pelican Pecks

Paint-up Clean-up and Spade-up Week, we suppose, will soon be here. Let's make the Hilltop perfectly respectable by doing our part.

Ole Man Winter has kept us guessing allright. Let's be thankful we don't have twenty feet of snow.

One improvement we have heard of often recently is that homes built for comfort should be built so the sinks in the kitchens are woman-high. "Too often, said our informant, "they are built so low a woman has to break her back to reach the dishes." Might let the ladies help plan that home!!

Now that the Y campaign is over don't forget THE BOY SCOUTS!!

The Hilltop is getting a reputation in other sections of Columbus. We have among other things, the only community newspaper, Male chorus, live schools, good streets, building boom and maybe—a LIBRARY!!

We can't tell where Mr. Wind comes from or where he is going—but look at his footprints after he walks by.

We must have a Library. Come now people have you given your DOLLAR. The Pelican gave his because he believes in giving the kids a chance to read while they have the time.

Another filling-station goes up out near Renners Garage. That Standard Oil Company is as persistent as a New Jersey mosquito!! And their bite hurts too!

They are building more homes. We predict the biggest year in building on the Hilltop that there has ever been. Every new home adds a flock of people to feed, house, school, clothe and keep well. Why shouldn't everybody in business boost our suburb!?

Last but not least—we wonder who'll buy out Dusenbery's masterpiece"

PARKS OF DISTINCT WORTH

Boost Property Value—Wise City Planning Also Factor of Health, Authority Says.

Dr. George F. Kunz of New York, president of the American Scenic and Historical Preservation society, produced a mass of evidence to show how greatly the presence of any beautiful natural feature such as a park increases the value of surrounding property in dollars and cents. After discussing the case of Central park, Doctor Kunz continued:

"If, when the plans for the city of New York above Tenth street were being prepared, there had been a landscape architect, or some one with judgment, he could have used the various ponds for small lakes, he would not have eradicated every hill, but would here and there have given us a small park, and would not have laid out the city on the lines of a checkerboard, with a loss of both beauty and accessibility.

"Instead of giving us a few avenues and many streets, he would have reversed the order and given us many avenues and fewer streets, with the result that traffic would not have been rendered difficult for many years and almost impossible as it is today. Moreover, as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, it would have meant that two or three times as many homes as now would have had sunlight all the day, whereas at the present time in many of the side streets the sun is never seen and the streets are filled with ice, and the death rate of the entire city has been notably increased by the little knowledge shown of what New York was to be in the future."—New York Times.

PLEA FOR WELL-KEPT ROADS

Neglected Streets Not Alone Unhealthful, but Create Bad Impression on the Visitor.

There are 15,450 "incorporated places" in America. Of these 15,450 cities, towns and villages only 2,800 exceed a population of 2,500 people each; yet these 2,800 "urban places" contain 56,000,000 people, while 12,000 "rural places" contain 9,000,000. Nearly all the 9,000,000 residents of the 12,000 "rural places" live on unpaved streets, and the same holds true of a large percentage of the residents of "urban places." There are no statistics to show how many miles of streets there are in the 15,400 "incorporated places," so that we cannot estimate accurately the percentage of unpaved streets.

Even without such statistics to indicate the extent of unpaved streets, it would be evident enough to any one who travels much that most of our small towns are inadequately paved. Mud half the year and dust the other half are characteristics of their streets.

When we grow unduly elated over our progress in paving our highways such facts as these should bring us to earth—yes, literally to earth—to the dirt streets that are typical of most of our small towns and villages and also of many of our larger cities.

What the City Needs.

A revival of morality and old-fashioned honesty is the most urgent need of our American life today.

The explanation offered of the horrible condition in Russia is that men could not keep up with the rapid developments of civilization and, dropping behind the procession, they are slowly reverting to barbarism.

Our trouble in America is that in the midst of the wonderful scientific and mechanical development of 1922 integrity of character is too lightly esteemed and dishonesty in public life is too easily condoned by the voters.

Our municipal voters have quite frequently demonstrated that their standard of accountability has changed but little from that of the men who acclaimed Robin Hood as a hero about five and a half centuries ago. It mattered not to them that he was a thief and an outlaw, so long as he gave to the poor a part of what he stole.—Commercial Bulletin.

Home-Owning Always Worth While.

Owning a home is one of the most satisfactory forms of investment which can possibly be undertaken. As with an investment of any kind, it should be entered into only after due and sufficient thought, and one must be careful not to undertake more than can be performed. Ordinarily, however, the objective to be gained is of sufficient importance to justify considerable effort, and even making great sacrifices to accomplish the ownership of a home will be worth while in the end.

Good for Old Ladies.

The other day a woman, ninety-two years old, went to the Old Ladies' home at Terre Haute. She was so brisk and cheery, despite her deafness, Later she was visited by one of her old neighbors, who asked her how she liked the home.

And this was her answer:

"Well, this is the nicest, friendliest bunch of people I ever met. I think every woman ought to live at an old ladies' home for a time just to learn that every one loved her at sight.

Together with its long years of honorable history, are the factors which have again impressed the public.

We observe that many people are closing out their investments elsewhere and are bringing their money in to this safe harbor. Why not? After all, the little extra profit offered elsewhere is not worth the risk you have to take.

Come with The Buckeye and be safe. Better sleep well with your money earning 5% than to stay awake through worry with your money out in something questionable offering a higher rate.

Nearly everybody one meets on being approached on the subject of the library for the Hilltop, predicts that the campaign, which begins Friday of this week, will be successful. This surely is encouraging, but it behooves every person to do his or her utmost to help put the effort across successfully. It surely can be done, but there must be "push" back of it.

Concrete Old Building Material.

The precedent for the use of concrete is at least 2,000 years old, structures of old Rome having dressed masonry facing on a concrete core. On exposed foundations of many ancient structures may be seen the board marks of forms, just as on concrete buildings erected now in the metropolitan district, says the New York Times. This material, withstanding the ravages of 2,000 years, is easily available in the form of concrete block or tile. Building department lists show nearly 300 manufacturers of concrete units in Brooklyn alone, and there is probably an equal number in Queens.

Costly Eggs.

Up in Allentown, Pa., the other day, I heard a Schwab story, writes a correspondent of The Nation's Business. Charlie has a large up-to-the-minute farm on the outskirts. The townspeople relish his bluff comradery and say that his favorite joke is to tell each and sundry that if ever they need anything in the way of eggs or butter or anything on the farm, just to go and take it. "I'll let you have it at cost," he adds. His friends laugh heartily. "Charlie's eggs," one of them assured me, "cost him at least $1 apiece!"

Then, again, it may be the Near East on account of its constant propinquity to a war.

The 1922 automobile casualty list remarks ought to be pasted on every windshield in town.

Most of the horn blowing is done by those unaccustomed to driving and not unaccustomed to success.

Europe's troubles might be worse. We dream't have to listen to an endless string of American lecturers.

Alexander was lucky. He conquered the world and died before the time came to collect the indemnity.

Progress of the Library Canvass

About $800.00 is the Report from Soliciting Committee Wednesday Evening

Cold Weather the First of the Week Caused Delay at the Start, But Success of the Canvass is Assured

About fifty men and women have been busy all this week calling on homes of Hilltop people to secure their pledge of ONE or more DOLLARS to help place and keep on the Hilltop the 5000 book collection given to the city by Colonel Holmes. To date it seems most homes have either been called on or will be today and tomorrow. The teams report a cordial welcome and in most cases a hearty response. It will take a good strong pull to go over the goal but with the business men back of this venture we believe it can be done. The total reported but incomplete is about eight hundred dollars.

Further report will be given in next week's Hilltop Record.

Canvassers are asked to call Herbert Deems when they wish to report.

We urge all people whether they have been called on or not to respond to the urgent appeal and leave their dollar in the Bank or with Mr. Fred Raether, Treasurer, at the Economy Store.

The Soliciting Committee for the Hilltop Library will meet on next Friday evening, March 23rd, at seven o'clock, at the HILLTOP LUTHERAN CHURCH, to make final report of the week's canvass.

Let every canvasser be present to report and to help in the good time to be enjoyed by all.

---

The Soliciting Committee, for the Holmes Hilltop Library took dinner at six-thirty last Friday evening at Mrs. Dulgar's Restaurant. There were about forty attended. Chairman Shields after asking for short talks by some of the committee members, himself gave an outline of the campaign to be carried on. A general feeling of confidence that the campaign would be a success, and that we would soon have the library in working order, was conspicious throughout the whole evening.

---

Miss Marie Schoonover, 163 N. Warren Ave. visited friends at Lima, O. over the week end.

---

Mrs. M. E. Welch, 293 Midland Avenue, spent the week end with friends in Newark, Ohio.

An Obituary

Mrs. Annie Harper Bishop was born at Richmond, Sussex County, England, November 8, 1846. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Harper and is the last of a family of nine children to pass to the great beyond. On Easter Sunday, April 18, 1878, she was united in marriage with Thomas Bishop. The following year they came to America and settled in Oxford, N. Y. They later moved to Kansas City, Kans., where they made their home permanently, and where Mr. Bishop died on May 17th, 1905. Three children were born to this union, two of whom died in infancy. Her son, J. H. Bishop, is the only surviving member of her family. Mrs. Bishop has been a Christian all her life time, and in her earlier life she was affiliated with the Westbourne Grove Chapel, of London, England, and in this church she was married. Wherever she lived in America she was active in the work of the church. She and her husband were charter members of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Rosedale, Kansas, which place is now a part of Kansas City.

Six years ago she came to Columbus, Ohio, to live with her son, since which time she has been a member of the Glenwood Methodist Episcopal Church. She was a regular attendant at the church services and Sunday School and was a member of the Crego Guild. For some years Mrs. Bishop has been in declining health. She has been confined to her home since November and recently has been failing rapidly. Her death occurred Wednesday night, March 14th, 1923, at the age of 76 years, 4 months and 6 days. She is survived by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bishop, and by two grandsons, Lester and Kenneth.

Funeral services were held in Glenwood Methodist Episcopal Church, Friday afternoon, March 16, 1923, conducted by her pastor, R. T. Stimmel, and burial was in Greenlawn cemetery. Scripture, Proverbs, 31st chapter. Text, Psalm 16:11. In thy presence is fullness of Joy.

Quick action on the part of his parents and physicians, who operated on him, saved the life of Fern Davidson, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Davidson, 469 S. Warren avenue, last week, while eating a piece of jelly roll cake. They were sitting in an automobile in front of a store in Washington, C. H. where his parents had stopped to secure lunch. After all efforts to dislodge the cake from his throat had failed he was rushed to the hospital in that city where a physician undertook to lift it from its lodging place.

The Glenwood Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will observe Founder's Day at the church Friday, March 23d, at 2 P. M. Eight ladies in costume to represent the eight founders of the Foreign Mission Society will be in the receiving line. Mrs. John Wittwer, the District Secretary, will give an address. The Standard Bearers, invited. Bring pennies to the amount King's Heralds and Light Bearers are of your mother's age for the collection. Everybody come.

Health Hints

By Doctor McFadon.

Why fear Tuberculosis? You may say it is in your family, but it was not inherited. You may have inherited a narrow chest, etc. which lessens your power to resist invasion but the disease cannot be inherited. The only way you can contract tuberculosis is by absorbing in the lungs or elsewhere enough of the deadly tubercles to overpower you.

And what is a tubercle" A "tubercle bacillus" is a germ so small that it can be seen only by the aid of the strongest microscope. They cannot exist in healthy tissue or cleanly surroundings but in filth they propagate and multiply with marvelous rapidity. Dust, which we may or may not see may be laden with them and, unconsciously we may breathe air containing them. The result may be infection by some persons who will be their victims, and others, breathing of the same air, will be unharmed.

Why the difference? The absolutely healthy person has no poison or filthy patches in his lungs or elsewhere where the bacilli can thrive and multiply and his healthy tissues generally are a fortification so strong as to defy the invasion of germs. A wealthy man does not fear famine or hard times. A well defended, strong nation, the not necessarily hostile, does not fear trouble from other nations. So, with a healthy person, the enemy (germs) will appear and look him over and, finding no place to camp, will pass on. Or, they may make the attack and be unsuccessful.

There are said to be millions of corpuscles in every drop of our blood. Our vitality and activity depend upon the fighting strength of these corpuscles. If they are healthy we are normal and active. If not, then we are ill and easily conquered.

When a little pure blood and some tubercles are placed together where they can be seen thru a microscope you can see what resembles a fist fight that is as interesting as a boxing match and you will wonder "which will win?" The healthy corpuscles will win but if the blood were in a weakened condition they would lose to the tubercles, the infection would increase and "tuberculosis" would be the result.

The most we need to be concerned about is the quality of our blood the improving of which is a slow process. It must be "here a little and there a little" with constant care that there be steady gain and as few back sets as possible. No intemperance of any sort can be afforded. A bad cold is worse for the blood than many suppose. Verily, the way to avoid "consumption" is to keep fit.

Deaths by Accident on Increase

The accident whereby Eugene Blackwell, aged 9 years, accidently shot and killed his 5 year old brother, Vincent Blackwell, last Friday, at 342 Highland Avenue, where they had been living, produces one more evidence that persons having fire arms in their homes should keep them under lock and key or away from the reach of children or irresponsible persons.

It seems as though the last year has produced a record number of tragic deaths to little children, either by being scalded, burned to death, accidently struck by autos or accidently shot. Small children have no conception of the danger in these and like perils, so then it is up to the older members of the family to assume the responsibility of watching these matters. If a gun must be kept about the house why not under strict lock and key. If carbolic acid or other poison, such as Paris green, etc. better, as soon as through with what you want, ABSOLUTELY DESTROY ALL OF THE BALANCE. What if you DO have to pay for more if you should need it again? That might be far cheaper than taking the risk of "getting the wrong bottle or package" some time. As we read, time after time, of these tragic deaths, especially of some child, we think "How that might have been avoided if extra precaution had been used."

Then again, when we read of such tragic accidents that happened to our own respected townsman, John M. Plaisted, who met his death last Friday by being struck by a truck at Avondale and Broad, we are only impressed more and more of that resolve to practice this slogan:

"When leaving the sidewalk,
By day or by night,
First look to the left
And then to the right."

We have time and time again seen persons, both old and young, step out into the street and start across without even once looking to see if there is anything coming along to their left, and had it not been for the driver of the approaching machine stopping they certainly would have been struck. We have often thought that in these days of innumerable street vehicles of all kinds, would it not be a practical thing to do if a certain special period of time was devoted in our schools to practising caution in crossing the streets, etc., and also some kind of a horse training course might be given to us older folks also, as it would undoubtedly be beneficial to all.

Then how many people, when they alight from a street car, step when going behind it, to cross the street, and look carefully to see if another car or some other vehicle is coming. Habit is a big thing in human life, and our lives are made up very largely by the habits we do in the routine of our daily tasks. Then why not add to habit the great and important factor of caution wherever we are, on the streets or about our homes?

Beta Lambda Class of Glenwood Sunday School will meet Tuesday afternoon March 27, with Mrs. C. W. Walton, 39 Eldon Ave.

A Little Story That's True

We were told of this the other night by one of our H[illegible] business men:

"We received, one time, a bunch of heavy paper board that was thick and of a color resembling sole leather. It was suggested in a joking manner that a bunch of it be sent to a certain local shoe repair man. No sooner was the suggestion made than it was put into action. It was done up into a neat package and addressed to said repair man and marked "Sample Leather from the Hilltop Leather Co." Mr. Repair Man received it, but remained "mum". A short time after one of the senders had occasion to send his shoes to be half soled to Mr. Repair Man, who quietly and directly proceeded to put on each shoe a half sole cut from the "sample leather from the Hilltop Leather Co.s' stock. Mr. Joker paid him the price asked—$1.50—and departed, never "getting next." After wearing the shoes a couple of days, a rain storm came hither. Mr. Joker, accompanied by his newly soled shoes, takes a few perambulations out into the wet streets when—"presto, change," said soles collapse unconditionally. Mr. Joker takes a hoss to Mr. Repair Man, with a big kick, but is politely informed that "I used the leather you sent me from the Hilltop Leather Co." (Exit Mr. Joker.)

Hilltop Deaths

It was with deep regret and sorrow that the many friends and acquaintances of our well known townsman, Mr. John M. Plaisted, of 213 North Hague Avenue, while attempting to board a street car at Avondale and Broad streets, last Friday evening, was struck by a passing truck driven by James Hart, of 311 St. Clair avenue, and died a short time after at Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Mr. Plaisted had been in the employ of the Columbus Railway and Light Co. for a great many years, and had seen that company develop from a line running only on a few of the city's streets to the present large corporation it now is.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Rachel Newbrough Plaisted, at home, a brother, Edward W. Plaisted, of Gorham, Me. and a sister, Mrs. Joseph Stockman, of Sommersworth, N. H. Mr. Plaisted was 71 years old at the time of his death.

The funeral services were held Monday at West Park M. E. Church, with burial in Green Lawn Cemetery.

Mr. Tiffin Williams, 29, carpenter, who made his home with his aunt, Mrs. George Stallings, who resides in Prospect, died from complications last Sunday. The funeral services were held at the residence on Monday, with burial in Galloway, by C. J. Kohn.

---

Mrs. Annie Bishop, 76, who lived with her son, Joseph H. Bishop, 237 Eldon Avenue, died on March 14th. She had been ailing for some time before, but after a fall down stairs dislocating her hip, her death was hastened. The funeral was held at Glenwood Church on Friday. She was a member of the Elder Ladies Class of that Sunday School, which class attended the funeral. Burial took place in Green Lawn, C. J. Kohn officiating.

Is Everybody Musical?

As far as I have observed, most people are musical.

Many like music for music's sake and like any kind of good music, vocal or instrumental. Even the small boy walking along the street, whistling his favorite tune, may attract an appreciative listener to the window.

Music is a part of us. While many people cannot read or play a single note, yet they will be lured by the charm of music that we all feel. Music must have been created with the creation of man, for it is the only universal language and is understood by all people in all nations and in all climes.

Truly it has been said that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." I study, and practice, and trust that I may some day join the ranks of the artists who are helping to spread the gospel of music.—Doris Mary Stewart.

Social Affairs

ST. PATRICK'S PARTY.

The St. Patrick's party given under the auspices of the West Broad Parent-Teachers Association was a big success in every way. A packed auditorium filled every available foot of space and made the evening interesting. Because of this large crowd changes had to be made in the program, but the whole evening was one of real enjoyment for everyone. Noise bothered somewhat the recitations and singing but especially happy was the choice of folk dances by the West Broad school children arranged by Miss Keenan. Irish policemen dressed in great shape added the color to the whole entertainment. Many men and women, boys and girls, came dressed beautifully or comically, as their fancy dictated. Prizes awarded by Messrs. Seiller, Heimbrecht and Raether were given to the following persons: Mrs. Helen Baker Jones, first prize for prettiest costume; Mr. Hulbert Jones, first prize for the man's best looking costume; Mrs. L. H. Truman, second prise; R. E. Shields, booby prize. Little Miss Alice Spencer and little Miss Frazner received prizes among the children Booths handled by sales-ladies from the Parent-Teachers Association were very attractive and sold out completely long before the evening was over. Geo. Matson at the "Blarney Stone" was not only ridiculous, but interesting. Miss Gay Judd as fortune teller, made such a hit with all that the booth could not hold the crowd and could not satisfy all comers during the entire evening. Miss Harriett Judd, principal of the school, spoke very highly of the success of the party. Proceeds will reimburse the treasury.

The committee in charge of the party consisted of the following: Mrs. Richard E. Shields, chairman; Mrs. C. W. Barrel, Mrs. Bower, Mrs. Close, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Hubbert Jones, Mrs. Herron and Mrs. Enterman. Thanks are expressed to all who helped to make it a success.

On Wednesday, March 14, Mrs. Mary Boyles entertained the members of her Sunday School class at the home of Miss Dora Major at 87 Clarendon Ave. All members of the class who were able to attend and several visitors were present. Several members accepted the generosity of the teacher, Mrs. Prior, who volunteered the use of her car to bring any who could not otherwise be present. The day was spent in piecing quilt blocks, which Aunt Mary (as we all love to call her) had prepared and later in the day a devotional hour and several musical selections by Rev. and Mrs. Stimmel were enjoyed. The bountiful dinner given by Mrs. Boyles and prepared and served by Miss Major and Mrs. Marsh was declared by all the guests to be a masterpiece of the culinary art. Those present were Mrs. Mary Boyles, Mrs. Stotlemyer, Mrs. D. J. Marshall, Mrs. M. M. Marshall, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Hyle, Mrs. Compton, Mrs. Daugherty, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. McElrith, Mrs. Bright, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Fulmer, Mrs. Purdum, Mrs. Gould, Mrs. Busher, Mrs. Marsh, Miss Maor, Mrs. Prior. Invited guests were Rev. and Mrs. P. W. Drumm, Rev. and Mrs. Prior, Rev. and Mrs. Stimmel, Mrs. McClain, Mrs. Goddin, Mrs. Westlake and Miss Mellrose.

About thirty of the young friends of Mary Elizabeth Cannon helped her celebrate her tenth birthday March 2, by meeting at her home on Highland Avenue after school on the following Monday and making merry with games and music and lots of childish fun. Supper was served with a birthday candle lighted for each guest's plate and a brightly colored bird perched on each chocolate cup as a favor and a cheerful reminder of the good time. Betty was the pleased recipient of many lovely gifts and as she bade her friends good-night and turned most of them over to be safely delivered at their homes by Grandpa Scott, felt that this is a pretty good old world and realized that one of the loveliest things in its is friendship.

Mrs. T. S. Fox was hostess at a luncheon Tuesday, March 20, at her home on South Eureka Ave., for the members of the patrol of the Ladies Oriental Shrine. Those present were Mrs. C. B. Julien, present High Priestess; Mrs. C. F. Arras and Mrs. J. B. Youngblood, Past High Priestess; Mrs. A. S. Lathem, Captain of Patrol; Meadames Wallin, Springer, Gantz, Mader, McKibben, Miller, Gleasner, Abernathy, Edmonston and the hostess. After lunch a white elephant party was arranged and everyone gave away something they didn't want. At three o'clock the entire party left for the governor's mansion to attend one of the weekly teas Mrs. Donahey has been having for the public.

MEN'S MEETING.

The regular monthly business meeting and social session of the Men's Community Bible Class of Hillcrest Baptist Church will be held in the basement of the church at the corner of Eldon and Steele Avenues, on Tuesday evening, March 27.

A splendid supper will be served at 6:30 P. M., after which the social session will be held. A splendid program has been arranged by the committee and a general good time is anticipated.

All members of the class and all men of the community whether a member of the class or not are cordially invited to be present. Come on men let's make this a real booster meeting.

A miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss Ruth Schultz at the home of Mrs. Forest Wilson, 38 South Wheatland Avenue, Saturday evening, March 17 (St. Patrick's Day.) The hostesses were Mrs. Cored Wendel and Mrs. Wilson. The house was very nicely decorated with Shamrocks and green. About 50 friends and neighbors were present. Miss Schultz received many beautiful presents. Games were played and refreshments were served. All departed at a late hour expressing themselves as highly enjoying the evening and wishing the bride a future happiness.

Margie Smith, 27 South Ogden Ave., was pleasantly surprised on Thursday, March 15, her eighth birthday, by the following friends: Corrine, Helen and Charles Miller, Eloise Baxter, Herbert Jones, Jr., Geraldine Blair, Imogene Hastings, Jennie Armour and Virginia Robinson.

Pelican Pecks

Paint-up Clean-up and Spade-up Week, we suppose, will soon be here. Let's make the Hilltop perfectly respectable by doing our part.

Ole Man Winter has kept us guessing allright. Let's be thankful we don't have twenty feet of snow.

One improvement we have heard of often recently is that homes built for comfort should be built so the sinks in the kitchens are woman-high. "Too often, said our informant, "they are built so low a woman has to break her back to reach the dishes." Might let the ladies help plan that home!!

Now that the Y campaign is over don't forget THE BOY SCOUTS!!

The Hilltop is getting a reputation in other sections of Columbus. We have among other things, the only community newspaper, Male chorus, five schools, good streets, building boom and maybe—a LIBRARY!!

We can't tell where Mr. Wind comes from or where he is going—but look at his footprints after he walks by.

We must have a Library. Come now people have you given your DOLLAR. The Pelican gave his because he believes in giving the kids a chance to read while they have the time.

Another filling-station goes up out near Renners Garage. That Standard Oil Company is as persistent as a New Jersey mosquito!! And their bite hurts too!

They are building more homes. We predict the biggest year in building on the Hilltop that there has ever been. Every new home adds a flock of people to feed, house, school, clothe and keep well. Why shouldn't everybody in business boost our suburb??

Last but not least—we wonder who'll buy out Dusenbery's masterpiece"

—The Pelican

Radical changes in mechanical design are not to be expected in a line of gas appliances which has successfully met every demand of gas experts and users since the beginning of the gas appliance industry—in the early eighties. The principles of Estate construction, developed through years of careful study and experiment, are known to be correct, and present practice has found no way to improve upon them.

TOO FEW OBJECTS OF BEAUTY

Great American Sculptor Criticises Conditions He Says Exist in the Smaller Cities.

Speaking before the Ninth Recreation congress, at Atlantic City, on the subject of "Beauty in the Home Town," Lorado Taft, American sculptor, declared that the reaction of the average American to art is that of the doughboy who said when he saw his first French cathedral:

"Gee, how did all that happen?"

The Chicago sculptor contended that the only objects of beauty the average small town in America possessed were its trees and its girls. After the tourist had been shown the garage, the hotel and the cemetery the points of interest were exhausted, he said.

"What we need as a nation," said Mr. Taft, "is to teach our children to use their hands in delicate and artistic crafts; to give them more creative games. Our ideal today is expressed in the words of the man who said to his small son: 'Johnny, study hard, so some day you won't have to work with your hands.'

"Imagination is cultivated by the lack of the jiggling movie show of the cities; that is why our great poets come from the country or small towns; but the young artist must first have the glimpse, the dream, the vision in more concrete work of art before he can go back to his plow to create."

MOVE FOR "BETTER HOMES"

Regularly Organized Campaign Has Met With Gratifying Success in Securing Support.

There are 31 cities in the state of New York organized for the "Better Homes" campaign. A nation-wide organization has been perfected to bring the better-homes idea to the largest number of American women. There are 20,000,000 women in America whose work lies in their homes. It is to help these women that this campaign is being carried on. It is the ambition of those backing the campaign to make every new home built in the next few years all that the home must be if it is to be worthy the name "home," and to bring about the remodeling of every old house that is ugly, uncomfortable or inconvenient to live in.

Less than 50 per cent of the American people are home owners, and it has been claimed that only 30 per cent of these dwellings come up to the recognized standards for a good home. There has never been so great an interest in the building of new dwellings and improvement of houses already built as shown by the records of this year.

Wanted, a Million Homes.

"We are short about a million homes," declared Herbert Hoover in a recent speech. "In cities such a shortage implies the challenge of congestion. It means that in practically every American city of more than 200,000, from 20 to 30 per cent of the population is adversely affected, and that thousands of families are forced into unsanitary and dangerous quarters. The condition, in turn, means a large increase in rents, a throw-back in human efficiency and that unrest which inevitably results from inhibition of the primal instincts in us all for home ownership. It makes for nomads and vagrants. In rural areas it means aggravation and increase of farm tenantry on one hand, an increase of landlordism on the other hand, and general disturbance to the prosperity and contentment of rural life."

Future American Homes.

The trouble with Americans is that they do not stay long enough in one place to make their homes as beautiful as the colonial homes with the softening effect of age upon them, and the homes of Europe. To be sure we have better plumbing and better ventilation, but most of our homes are garishly new. But who knows what may happen if the "Better Homes" movement goes on? We may have homes that our grandchildren will look forward to as their rightful inheritance with pleasure. At any rate, the present generation and the children of today will enjoy these better homes that have been carefully planned for them.

Exchange of Values.

How long would you live in your community if there were no churches there? If the church helps to make the community, why don't you help to make the church?—Exchange.

Large Wireless Station.

The biggest wireless station in the world—at St. Assisi, about twenty-seven miles from Paris—was recently opened for traffic. The station is equipped with 17 masts, each 800 feet high. Messages sent out experimentally have already been received in China and the Argentine.

Closed the Hotel.

"Home from your summer cottage so soon?"

"Yes, had to come back to get rid of our friends."

SPOTLESS TOWNS IN FLORIDA

State Sets an Example That All Sections of the Country Might Copy With Benefit.

If every town in the South would imitate most of the towns in Florida, the South would become noted throughout the world for the beauty and charm and cleanliness of its towns, declares a writer in the Manufacturers' Record.

Cleanliness, it has been said, is next to Godliness. A dirty individual is neither clean spiritually nor mentally. Dirt makes for ruin physically, mentally, morally. This is as true of a town as of an individual. The dirty town, the town full of rubbish, of untidy houses, of muddy streets or insanitary conditions, is non-progressive materially, morally and educationally. Neither moral nor material advancement flourish in dirty, unkempt dwellings or in unkempt towns.

If any town or city is ambitious for advancement, or if even a few of its men and women are ready to devote their time and energy to the betterment of the community, the surest way to achieve success is to clean up—make back yards and front yards clean, make streets clean and keep them clean, encourage the people, white and black alike, to beautify their homes and their yards, stimulate a love for and a pride in their homes and in their towns, repair the tumble-down yard fences, paint up, make things as clean outside as they should be inside, and then that community will look up mentally, morally and materially.

No community which does not clean up and paint up, which does not do its best to have clean streets and clean yards, has any right to look up and face the world.

So much of the beauty of the world comes to us through the sense of sight that it ought never to be neglected.

The correction of a slight error today may save years of misery later on in life.

All Within the City

BROADVIEW, the new subdivision of exclusive high class home sites, is located two squares West of Hague avenue on Broad Street—right in the path of the rapid growth of the Hilltop section.

Each year sees the class of homes on the Hilltop getting better and better until now there are but few vacant lots in the more desirable section along Broad Street.

The tremendous amount of building during the past few years has caused a very definite demand for large lots, where the better homes could be built with assurance against encroachment of stores, garages, cheap rental properties and other undesirable buildings which always cause a decrease in values of residence property. BROADVIEW meets all of these requirements. The Addition as a whole has not one single objectionable feature. The lots are large (none less than 40 feet) and the entire subdivision even the Broad Street frontage is restricted to single dwellings.

Every lot in BROADVIEW will be supplied with improved street, sewer, water and gas. The proceedings for these improvements are now on their way through City Council and actual work will begin very soon.

BROADVIEW is the place where you will eventus want to live so why not make your selection now. The very lot you are sure to want may be gone next week. You will be truly surprised to learn what a wonderful lot you can get for $600.00 to $1,000.00 and very reasonable terms can be arranged. Liberal discounts for cash.

Helpful Hints for Hilltop Homes

GOOD INVESTMENT FOR CITY

Chamber of Commerce of Lincoln, Neb., Has Introduced New Features of Great Value.

The Lincoln chamber of commerce has a three-fold function. It maintains a club where all kinds of public and private gatherings are held daily. It is the great clearing house of social activity for the whole city. The facilities of a fine and roomy clubhouse are extended to nonmembers for community purposes with complete generosity. The clubhouse, now worth not far from $250,000, will soon be paid for and will be in effect a municipal building. The Lincoln achievement in financing and erecting this building is said to be unique in the history of cities of Lincoln's class.

The second function of the chamber is the massing of civic energy on solution of business, social and industrial problems. In many cities the chambers confine their energies to this kind of work. Lincoln spends not far from $30,000 a year in these activities, including public hospitality, business promotion, general advertising and the encouraging of new industries. The work is done conscientiously by the officers and committeemen. It is the judgment of the leading business men that the results flowing from this work are alone worth more than the entire cost of the organization.

The third activity of the chamber is the maintenance of a traffic bureau. Comparatively few of the members know that back in the club house out of sight and hearing, telephones are ringing almost constantly. They are answered by rate experts who have at their finger tips correct freight schedules on all the commodities handled by Lincoln firms. These experts save large sums to the shippers, the aggregate amounting to between $50,000 and $75,000 every year. This is but a part of the work done by the bureau. The battles conducted by Secretary Whitten to prevent rate discriminations against Lincoln have been the business salvation of the community.—Nebraska State Journal.

Woman's Interest Means Much.

When we speak of home, we must not forget the larger home—the community. We, as mothers, must be interested and take an active part in all that concerns the welfare of the world into which our boys and girls find their way when the doors of the mother home swing out. The environment we create inside our four walls will influence the lives of those children in the days of struggle and effort to find places for themselves in the world. There is no perfect home. Neither will there ever be a perfect community. But if the community atmosphere more nearly approaches that of the best homes, our fears and our doubts would be lessened when our babies grown tall set forth in search of adventure. The woman's interest and influence will go far toward making the community an enlarged and magnified home of which we can and will be proud, and not afraid.

A City Kept Well.

A city is spick and span, well kept, beautiful, when its individual homes are neat and attractive, when its vacant spaces are not eyesores. The city is a collection of details. If these are neglected, the city looks slovenly.

A man may think it makes no difference if he is a little careless around his home, if he lets his lawn become unkempt, if he dumps trash in a vacant lot. But such carelessness on the part of one family may ruin an attractive block, and one slovenly block may hurt a whole neighborhood.

Such matters as cards tacked on poles, advertising signs on boulevards and in residence neighborhoods, weeds and tin cans on vacant lots, may seem small matters in any particular instance. But when such things accumulate they make the city look ragged and run down at the heel.

Paint Your Home.

Paint will do wonders for a home. It brings a refreshing appearance, gives a pleasing touch and is a source of satisfaction to the owner. Probably you have noticed when one home owner paints his dwelling that the painting germ soon inoculates all the other home owners near that property. It's an infection that works for better homes. A few dollars for paint is always a good investment.

Fire Prevention.

Rid your house of all unnecessary storage to prevent fire. Insurance companies claim that most of the residential fires are begun by ignition of cellar or attic storage.

Turkish Women Advancing.

Turkish women, emerging from the seclusion of ages, are about to undertake welfare work in Constantinople. Ten Turkish married women are being trained as nurses, under the auspices of the Red Crescent, and when proficient they will be deputed to make visits in the Turkish quarters of the city. They will see that hygienic conditions are observed, that children are well cared for, and that the family food is properly cooked. The first group of women will be selected from the nobility.

House, Garden Should Accord.

In the development of private gardens it frequently happens that the construction of drives and walks, of walls, terraces, steps and balustrades, of fountains, rills and swimming pools, game courts and other recreational areas; also belvederes or casinos will go on simultaneously with the erection of the residence and related buildings.

It is desirable and strongly advisable in such cases, that the owner, architect and landscape designer have early conferences on the ground so that the resulting work may be satisfying and coherent. A house and its gardens should be suitably married and both should fit naturally into the neighborhood, free from discordant contrasts or ostentation.

BEFORE STARTING TO BUILD

Expert of Federal Department of Commerce Gives Some Good Advice on the Subject.

Nearly every American family should plan to own a home, but the family should first know how to finance a home, in the opinion of Dr. John M. Gries, chief of the building and housing division of the Department of Commerce.

Therefore, as the chief contribution of the Department of Commerce to the nation-wide "Better Homes" week, Doctor Gries gave advice to the American people on "how to finance a home."

Four fundamental ideas should be kept in mind in preparing to buy a home, Doctor Gries believes:

Know exactly what you buy and how to buy it.

Know exactly how you are going to pay for your home.

Beware of how and where you secure loans on your home.

Be sure and ask yourself how much you can afford.

Kansas Builds Floral Roads.

Floral highways are being established in Kansas to the memory of the soldiers who laid down their lives in the Spanish-American war. The memorial highways will be lined on each side with flowers of great range of time and colors, and those who pass and repass along the roads will have brilliant and fragrant reminders that republics are not ungrateful. The boy scouts of the state will plant the seeds. They will take packages of them on every hike and plant them along the roadsides. Preference will be given to flowers that will reseed themselves, so the great bulk of the initial work will not have to be repeated. Of course some of the seed will fall on unfriendly soil, and in such cases the boy scouts will repeat the sowing. Patrols will be organized to inspect the floral lines and keep them in seed.

SEES NO NEED FOR FENCES

At Least They Should Not Obstruct View of Landscape, Says Alfred Hopkins.

Once upon a time when our ancestors spoke of their "defenses" they referred to the great walls and battlements which protected them against warlike neighbors, but neighbors are more friendly nowadays, and the "defenses" have dwindled down to mere "fences." Most people owning detached homes like to have either a fence or a hedge along the boundary line.

There is not so much to learn from European countries with respect to fence design, says Alfred Hopkins, well-known architect, as there is from the American colonial period which was rich in this particular. England has given some excellent examples of the iron fence, but the iron fence has had no great development here.

The tall solid masonry walls of the continental estate are not friendly in America, nor are they desirable here, Mr. Hopkins points out, because we have endless land and comparatively scattered population. The impulse for privacy on the part of the well-to-do is as insistent as ever, but as a general principle, says Mr. Hopkins, a fence which is not absolutely necessary should be done away with, or at least it should not obstruct a view of the landscape.

Merit in Clean Walks.

No day is too good for serious consideration of the obligation resting on conscientious citizens to keep their sidewalks as clean as possible in the months of snow, ice and slush. Men and women may be as badly hurt by falling on their way to or from church as they can be in their business or pranks of the working week, and it is just as irritating to wallow through drifts of melting ice and half-frozen water on Sunday as any other day.

There is real merit in well-kept sidewalks. They are a comfort to many thousands of pedestrians and a credit to householders and all others who have to do the work or get it done. In the large sense, walks clear of snow and ice contribute to the standing of the city which is able to show such proof of good citizenship, and the more difficult weather conditions make this service to the public the higher praise it deserves.

Preserving the Highways.

It is unlawful to cut or injure trees or shrubs within the limits of public highways in Michigan, without a permit from the authorities having jurisdiction over such roads. If any person violates this law by not obtaining the consent of the abutting property owner, in addition to a permit from the highway authorities, he is liable to the abutting property owner for damages. Only by enforcing this roadside tree law can the highways be made attractive.

Telephone Under English Channel.

The recently opened submarine telephone cable between England and the Netherlands has made it possible to communicate directly between the principal cities of these two countries. At the present time there are two circuits working on which it is planned later to superimpose a third circuit by means of the well-known telephone device—originated in the United States—whereby two physical telephone circuits can be made to produce a third "phantom" circuit.

Well-Fed Breeders Produce Better Chicks

A double advantage is secured from giving layers the right feed.
First, the fully-nourished birds produce more eggs at less cost.
Second, eggs from these vigorous birds are more fertile and give bigger hatches of strong husky chicks that will surely live and grow.
So right feeding pays all along the line.
If you want to be sure of the best results—big profits—then feed

Of All Obtainable Kinds Protect Deposits in The Buckeye. All Approved Safeguards Are Employed.

Blanket Bonds of Strong Surety and Insurance Companies protect us against losses through embezzlement, theft, dishonesty, misplacement, forgery, daylight holdup, burglary, messenger holdup, fire, explosion, windstorm, cyclone and tornado. Our registered mail is insured to the full value of its contents. We also have a blanket-insurance policy covering all of our safe deposit boxes.

A continuous daily audit by our Company Auditor and his two assistants quickly detects errors and thereby tends to prevent irregularities. Besides this we have a weekly audit by another committee of three other Directors.

Outside of business hours our records and securities are further protected by modern time locks, electric vault alarms (connected with The American District Telegraph Co.) and two night watchmen. During business hours two police officers in uniform are on duty in our lobby.

These safeguards all cost money but we earn enough to afford them. We would feel negligent without them.

Trees.

Five trees are being cut down for every one grown in New York state. This warning comes from Alexander Macdonald, who devotes his time working for conservation of forests.

In 1850 New York ranked first in lumber production. Now it is twenty-third in line. Western lumber states will have much the same story to report not many years from now, unless more trees are planted.

A treeless America is quite as possible as the extinction of the buffalo and passenger pigeon.—Aurora Beacon-News.

IMPORTANCE OF SMALL TOWN

Financial and Other Values to the Nation Have in a Measure Been Overlooked.

How conscious the small town is becoming of its importance a radio message sent out from the Kansas City Star broadcasting station by the director of economics and social science in a state agricultural college suggests.

Fifty per cent of the purchases of manufactured articles and of the contributors to our scheme of national finance are found in the small communities. It is in the country bank, the small-town bank, that the farmer's financial business is transacted. The money value of the new wealth created by farm production goes first to the country bank, then to the central bank. Candidates for the offices of governor, congressman, senator do not hold the majority of their campaign meetings in the large cities, nor in the country school houses, but in the small towns. Here they assemble the voters who hold the balance of power in the nation. The small community has furnished the city with its leadership and is still continuing to do so.

He does not stop here. "Small town stuff," as he calls it, has dominated the thinking of the world, and he cites in support of his contention the fact that the philosopher Kant was scarcely ever outside of the small town of his birth, and that Millet was of the country and small town. Moreover, Nazareth, out of which it was asked whether any good thing could come, was a small town, and so was Bethlehem.

HILLTOP LIBRARY SURE GO

The Campaign for Funds Successful —A Meeting to Organize the Association Announced for Next Tuesday

From the best report that can thus far be made the Library Drive has netted somewhere around $1400. There is more to come in yet, but until it does, the canvass is not complete and the goal of $1500 has not been reached. Teams are still canvassing and the follow-up work will be made right along now.

The canvassers were very cordially received in a majority of cases and many expressions of good will for the Library were received. Only a few were in any way luke-warm for the project. This speaks more than anything else for the support of the Hilltop for good causes.

It was voted at the meeting for reporting at the Hilltop Lutheran Church on Friday night of last week that the organization meeting of the Hilltop Library Association, of which all contributors are members and have a vote, should be held at the same place, the Hilltop Lutheran Church, corner Terrace Street and W. Broad St., TUESDAY NIGHT, 7:30 P. M., APRIL 3rd. Trustees of the Library will be elected and as soon as they meet and decide the questions relative to the Library, it will be put into final shape for opening to the general public. Let every contributor be on hand.

Mr. L. A. Holmes, son of Colonel Holmes, who gave the Library to the city, was very pleased to learn of the interest in the books and the splendid result which has been achieved.

Within a short time the Library will be in operation and the good of the books given to the children and adults of the Hilltop.

The Library Committee takes this opportunity to thank all contributors and canvassers for their fine efforts in helping put the canvass over. It is only another indication of the value of COMMUNITY CO-OPERATION.

Anyone who has not contributed is asked to bring their dollar to Mr. Fred Raether at the Economy Store or to Mr. Worrell at the Hilltop Bank.

Books will be collected for the Library at an early date.

The campaign for the Library is over—or about over, (there yet being a few scattering persons who wished to subscribe, but asked to be called on a little later). The fact that a sufficient amount of money was subscribed is a glorious victory for the cause; but the campaign carries with it over victorious achievements. There are over three thousand homes on the Hilltop, besides several hundred business concerns. A committee, consisting of about fifty persons, had the task of visiting each one of these places. Then there were a large number of places that had to be visited the second time on account of absence or some other cause the first time. Taking a conservative estimate we would say that at least 3500 visits were made in all. Some of the committees worked in pairs, while others divided their allotted territory and did the job singlehanded. Now, since the task is finished and we are all rejoicing, let's not overlook the one big fact of the campaign that stands out in prominence almost as great as money itself— and that is this. This money was raised by a popular subscription of from twelve to fifteen hundred of our own Hilltop people. This will undoubtedly have a tendency to create a deeper interest in the library amongst our people than if the money had been raised by a dozen or so alone. Now, let's every one of us who have subscribed a dollar or over take this fact home—that we are each one of us a member of the Holmes Hilltop Library Association; and when the committee calls a meeting for forming an organization and choosing officers and trustees, let's all make it a point, if possible, to be there and back that dollar's worth of subscription with five dollar's worth of "boosting."

It is just such stunts as this campaign that we need t ohelp get us together so that we may become acquainted with one another and develop a community spirit all over the Hilltop.

Hilltop Library Notice

Be it known that an organization meeting of the Hilltop Library Association will be held at the Hilltop Lutheran Church, South Terrac and West Broad Streets, Tuesday, April 3rd, at 7:30 p. m.

All contributors are voting members of the Association.

Trustees will be elected and the library will be started.

Rev. R. T. Stimmel,
Dr. E. W. Martindale,
Rev. Richard E Shields, Chr.

Dr. G. R. Robbins returned last week from Chillicothe, where he was engaged in successful evangelistic meetings. The pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church publicly said he had never known larger and more varied results in such a short time. He will baptize 25 Easter and receive 14 by letter and experience. Last Sunday he preached in Cleveland and there received telegrams to lead in evangelistic services in Cincinnati. This invitation was enforced by the Cincinnati Baptist Church Union. Tuesday Dr. Robbins received an invitation from a Baptist Church in Iowa and an urgent invitation from the Baptist Assembly in August at Long Beach, California.

Health Hints

By Doctor McFadon.

Why not have health? Not in the imagination, a la Coue, but yet in the mind—the will. With all the pitfalls that beset us the will must do hourly duty or our health is undermined insidiously and constantly. Our treacherous sense of taste and perverted appetites, somebody's fancy cooking, irregular and go-as-you-please habits in everything, etc., all incline their victim downward (or not upward) at a rate and to an extent that few realize until after years of carelessness reform is most necessary and a fortune would be freely exchanged for a good stomach.

We hear it said that those that are most concerned about themselves have not the best health. That may be true enough but they first lose their health which makes their care necessary. We are not necessarily worrying if we steadfastly grind into our system a few functionals about wholesome foods and ventilation; economy in mental and physical effort and development; discriminative choice between what is worth while or otherwise, etc., all of which have a bearing upon health and which are not more difficult of acquirement than is the development of any phase of character. It is the daily "here a little and there a little" that counts, but it must be exerted in the right direction.

The line of least resistance is to eat what is set before us, but it makes a difference to our bodies whether that be pork, lobster, etc., or mutton, fish or chicken. Or our vegetables may be peeled and fried in grease and thus made to contribute insidiously to our downfall, or they may be better boiled or baked. There is a suggestion here of the responsibility of the cook or butler as well as of the will of the served. This in turn suggests a conference of the two in the right spirit with inevitably salutary results. It is not necessary to be cranky or broken down in health to follow a constructive program like this. The best time to know and do these things is while yet in health for by so doing we are, by better digestion, etc., adding not only years to our lives but life to our years.

Easter Bazaar held at Cussins & Hartsough Saturday, March 31st, by the Philathea Class, Hillcrest Baptist Church.

The Glenwood Women's Foreign Missionary Society will meet at the home of Mrs. C. W. Walton, 39 Eldon Avenue, Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 P. M., April 4th. Study The Mystery Box in the March Friend. Group No. 7 will have charge of program. All ——.

The pastor of the Hilltop Lutheran Church, Rev. J. M. Wenrich, received a good deal of publicity this week because about 450 people were crowded into his church last Sunday evening, besides many being turned away. He preached a Lenten sermon. As he turned to face the congregation to make his announcements after having placed the offering on the altar, a gentleman, dressed in civilian clothes, arose from the front pew, stepped forward, addressed the pastor and asked for the privilege to say a word and turned to the congregation. He stated that he was the spokesman for a great movement and that it had come to their attention that the pastor of this congregation was a fearless preacher of the Gospel. That as four hundred years ago Luther was a fearless preacher of the Gospel, so he was glad to know that there is a Lutheran minister in Columbus who is likewise fearless in his preaching and in recognition of the manner in which he preached the Gospel they had decided to present a Bible and that at Romans, Chapter 12, he would find a gift for himself. Of course everybody thought they were the K. K. K.

Automobile Accidents

While driving west on Sullivent Avenue, last Sunday evening, Mr. H. E. Kinney, 835 S. Wheatland avenue, stopped, in his Ford machine, to wait till an east bound interurban passed him in front of the Home Producer's Milk Co. plant, and while standing there someone in another machine started to go around him but finding he could not do so without running into the approaching car, turned his machine into Mr. Kinney's shoving him into the interurban, which resulted in his machine being badly damaged and Mr. Kinney being cut somewhat by flying glass. The driver of the machine then backed his car out of the jam and hustled away before anyone could get the number of his car. A drive that will do a trick like that, if it were possible to apprehend him, ought to get the full extent of the law. It surely is an unprincipled act for a person to accidentally hit some one with his car then sneak away.

Helen Hastings, the twelve-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hastings, 86 S. Ogden Ave., while on her way home from school Monday noon was struck by an automobile in front of Weber's Confectionery and knocked unconscious. Her left hand was cut so much that it required eight stitches to close up the wound. She was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital for an X-Ray examination of her hand, which is supposed to be fractured in some way. The parties who hit her are said to live in West Jefferson.

The Earl Hopkins Junior Orchestra of this city will give a concert at Glenwood Church, Friday, April 13th, at 8:00 o'clock. Tickets will be on sale this next week. Adults, 25 cents; Children, 15 cents. This is being given under the auspices of the Primary Department. Buy a ticket. Help the kiddies.

Social Affairs

At the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. R. T. Stimmel, pastor of Greenwood Methodist Episcopal church, the marriage of Miss Mary Chloe Custer, 2254 Sheridan street, to Mr. Charles E. Scoles, 34 North Warren avenue, took plate Wednesday, March 21st. Mr. Scoles and his bride will live at 2254 Sheridan street.

The Elite Embroidery Club met at the home of Mrs. John Atkinson, Thursday, March 22. Those present were Mrs. Robert Bigler, Mrs. Oris Jenkins, Mrs. Geo. Ryan, Mrs. Elmer Houdenshelt, Mrs. Ivan Spencer, Mrs. Wm. Spangler, Mrs. Arthur Fosher, Mrs. Oscar Jenkins and Mrs. Orman Spencer. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Fisher.

The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fisher, 275 S. Warren avenue, Thursday, April 5th.

Miss Lorezna Tsegartan of the Y. W. C. A. gave a talk on "Healthy Games and Sports and Proper Foods for Girls and Boys" to the mothers of the Child Conservation League of the Hilltop circle at Hoge Memorial Church Monday afternoon. It was very helpful and much enjoyed, as well as the splendid papers given by Mrs. Fred Postal on "The Girl at the Dawn of Womanhood," and one by Mrs. C. J. Randall on "Preparing a Girl for the Business of Matrimony." To those who have signed to be members of this circle and have had an opportunity to attend put forth every effort, for these meetings are helpful and instructive.

Special attention is called to members of Robert Morris Chapter No. 372, Order of Eastern Star, that the next meeting Tuesday, April 3rd, we will celebrate our ninth anniversary with a party for all and their husbands and sweethearts. Each lady member is urged to come with her husband or sweetheart a basket lunch for two, with her name pinned in same. It will also be in the nature of a hard time party. Come dressed accordingly or be fined. All fines will be sold to the men at 25c. The Chapter will furnish coffee. Also three of our good brothers will appear on a play entitled, "The Wrong Wedding." It will be an evening well spent. The proceeds from fines and box lunches will go to the Eastern Star Building Fund.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sumner gave a party in honor of their daughter Lucille's second birthday March 25, at the home of Mrs. Sumner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Crompton, at 79 South Eureka Avenue. The house was decorated for the occasion. Two large tables were laid, one for the children, which held the beautiful birthday cake which was decorated with Lucille's name and age and candles. At the other table sat all the grown ups, all wishing they were kiddies once more. The evening was enjoyed by music, games, singing and dancing.

Those present were Mrs. Marilla Bratt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frost Bratt, son Chas. Roger, Mr. and Mrs. John Sickles, Mrs. Harry Royse and children, Eleanor and Edward, Mr. and Mrs. Max Bode, Miss Marie Bowser, Mr. and Mrs. David Morrison and children, Alice, Edward and Maerilla Taylor, Miss Jean Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Crompton, Dora, Tom and Jack Crompton, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sumner and children, Lucille and Doreen.

Lucille received many beautiful presents. All left wishing Lucille many more happy birthdays and expressing what an enjoyable time they had.

Plain Houses, Like Dresses, Best.

The greatest compliment that can be paid a house, I think, is to say that it is plain. The finest and most expensive frocks that women wear are plain. The architecture of a home is as much a means of expressing personality as the selection of frocks.—Edward Buehler Delk in a lecture at the New York Art Institute.

ZONING IN INDIANA CAPITAL

Apartments and Hotels Are No Longer to Be Permitted in Sections Allotted to Dwellings.

Indianapolis has decided that there is a place for every type of building, and has passed zoning and height regulations to control development, the investments of its citizens and the health and happiness of its population. A section has been set aside for apartments and hotels, another for business buildings, another for factories and some more for homes of various characters. No building may be erected with an unbroken street elevation of more than 200 feet, which is the maximum height in Washington street, the widest and main business street of the city. Heights on other streets will range up to 180 feet, depending on the width of the street. There will be five such districts in the city, the purpose of this being to spread out the population and obviate the possibilities of traffic problems and congestions, which seem to be one of the great troubles of the older cities of the country. Here are the five districts as designated in the regulations, according to the Agricultural Forum:

(1) Dwelling house, (2) apartment house, (3) business, (4) first industrial and (5) second industrial.

The area requirements are designed to spread out the population, prevent congestion and promote a detached house development.

CALL FOR MORE NUT TREES

According to Chicago Publication, Their Value Has in a Great Degree Been Passed Over.

Some years ago a householder in Portland, Ore., planted eight seedling Persian walnut trees along the street in front of his residence. Now, he has all the nuts his family can use during the year, divides with the boys of the neighborhood on their own terms, and sells what are left for almost enough to pay his taxes.

This tale, vouched for by the president of the American Tree association, is told as a preliminary to a question: Do folks of the Middle West, in planting ornamental trees and shrubs, pay enough attention to fruits and nuts, particularly the latter?

One may doubt it. The climatic zone near the lakes does not favor Persian walnuts or pecans, but the black walnut and hickory do well. They make noble trees, as beautiful as the best, and their nuts, though harder to crack than some, are well worth the trouble. The filbert or hazelnut is a beautiful shrub, and when planted in sunny locations yields well. The beech does not take overwell to civilization and town life, but on large suburban places it should do well, its beauty is of a unique, striking kind, and its curious three-cornered nuts are a joy to the children.

Why not plant nuts?

Easter is the day for Daylight saving. Don't forget to turn your watch. Let's see which way should it go?

Goodness knows, we've drives enough!

Our idea of a real nice president is one who gets into his Yat, takes his Gof Clubs and strolls down the C, stopping at C-cos town long enuf to tap a ball around the green and call it a day! "A man's a man, for 'a that."

Country Needs "Home Towns."

This country needs more men from home towns, men who will sound the advantages of living in the small village, with its little industry, its freedom from annoyances, its comforts, and delights. And this country needs more home towns, attractive enough in every way to keep within them the young men and women who, fired by ambition to become wealthy, finally feel that they must try their luck in our great cities. For it is these home towns which are really the backbone of the country, because in them dwell people who have time to read and think and figure out their duty and obligation to the state and nation; because in them there is a moral atmosphere which breathed by people of ideals leads them to take positions on the great questions of the day invariably in promotion of the true welfare of the people as a whole.

Home towns! Let's have more of them; men from home towns, more of them. The country needs both.—Pennsylvania Grit.

ARRANGE TO PULL TOGETHER

Citizens of Kansas City, Kan., Post All Interests for the Benefit of the Community.

The various improvement associations of Kansas City, Kan., are going at a big task in a big way. The associations represent many separate districts of the city; each has been pulling for this or that improvement here and there. The result has not been satisfactory; it has consisted of a little patching up of different sections in a haphazard fashion.

Now the associations propose to move together. They demonstrated their ability to co-operate when a permanent organization of officers of all the bodies was formed. The idea is a pooling of interests; a united pull to secure benefits, not on one street, not in a district of a few square blocks, but for the entire city. It is realized that an immense undertaking, such as the civic center, is properly a city-wide affair, and that if success is to come in such an effort there must be concerted action.—Kansas City Star.

WARNS OF RAILWAY CROSSING

Detroit Has Adopted a Signal With Three Lights, Which Differs From Other Signs.

To warn motorists at night that they are approaching a railway crossing, as distinguished from a regular

Own Your Home.

Coolidge, in connection with "Homes in America" says:

"... s of so little avail to assert that ... is an inherent right to own prop... unless there is an open opportunity that this right may be enjoyed in a fair degree by all. That which is referred to in such critical terms as capitalism cannot prevail unless it is adapted to the general requirements. Unless it be of the people, it will cease to have a place under our institutions, even as slavery ceased.

"It is time to demonstrate more effectively that property is of the people. It is time to transfer some of the approbation and effort that have gone into the building of public works to the building, ornamenting and owning of private homes by the people at large—attractive, worthy, permanent homes."

Beauty Can Never Be Ignored.

If it were not for the love of beauty, we might all be living in log cabins, slab shanties or sod houses. But there is something in human nature that demands that the thing we call beauty, and from the savage who daubs colored clay on his rawhide tent to the modern man who employs a professional to decorate his palace, there is a desire that his home shall be equipped with more than the mere necessities of life.

The demand for beauty is just as natural as the demand for food, and the person whose surroundings lack beauty is starved intellectually just as surely as the lack of food would starve him physically.—L. T. Frary in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Civic Necessity.

A city without a "city plan" is a city without beauty.

The Sensitive Artist.

"I was busy over my canvas when I heard footsteps in the loose gravel on the bank behind me," said a Brown county artist over the breakfast table at the Percifield hotel, Nashville, not long ago, "and unwilling to be disturbed, I didn't look around. Then a woman's voice said in a kind of a whisper: 'Oh, there's one of those artists!' I kept right on as if I hadn't heard a thing. Soon I heard the click of the camera and I cried out, 'Ouch!' I suppose they tell today of the sensitiveness of artist folk."

URGES NECESSITY OF ZONING

Kansas City Newspaper, in Strong Appeal, Pleads for Passage of Law Commanding It.

Evidence that zoning has come to be an accepted necessity in American cities is found in the act of the Department of Commerce, division of building and housing, preparing a standard law to be used in the framing of state statutes. Such statute or enabling acts are necessary in practically all cases of zoning, since towns and cities do not themselves possess the power to set aside districts or zones for the purpose of maintaining property values and encouraging appropriate building. The necessary authority is found in the police power of the state, and a zoning statute is brought within this power on the ground that zoning has to do with the promotion of "health, safety, morals or the general welfare."

It has not been difficult to establish the legal basis of zoning, but improper framing of some measures dealing with the subject has led to trouble when there came to be appeals to the courts. The model statute provided by the building and housing division ought, therefore, to be of highly valuable service and contribute to the enactment of uniform zoning laws in the various states. Missouri already has zoning statutes, but they confer power only on the larger cities.—Kansas City Star.

RESUME BUILDING OF HOMES

Excellent Sign in American Life Is the Renewed Interest Along That Line.

Home building, which underwent something of a decline during the World war and for a short time thereafter, has become a passion in the United States, judging by figures which are presented to the attention and consideration of the public. From a survey of the situation in the country it is said that about $5,000,000 has been spent for home building this year. Such a colossal enterprise, quite naturally, is worthy of more than mere cursory consideration. It is, to begin with, a most encouraging sign of stability for the nation. America, as a country of home builders and home-owners, need have little worry about its future. This is one of the compelling talking points in connection with discussions of our national position. At least a start has been made in catching up with a condition which, during the war and for many months after the cessation of hostilities, threatened to become most alarming in the nation's affairs. Construction work has progressed to a point during 1922 where it seems there is likely that it will continue. The movement, because of its own weight will continue for some time to come.—Dayton News.

CONCRETE STEPS IN UNITS

Idea Has Been Found to Give Excellent Results, Both as to Looks and Durability.

Reinforced-concrete steps are now being manufactured in units that may be joined in such a manner as to present an appearance of a solid flight of stairs when completed. Each unit consists of a tread, and a riser above it. The steps are reinforced by one-fourth-inch round iron rods, and while constructed strong enough to meet any ordinary requirements, are so light that they may be easily handled by two men. A gritty granite surface is used which makes them practically slip-proof and, at the same time, a careful curing process renders them sufficiently hard to resist abrasion, thus giving the product additional wearing qualities.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Reinforced-Concrete Steps Which Are Manufactured in Units, Showing How the Round Iron Rods Are Placed in the Product.

Guarding Against Fire.

Most fires could be prevented with care. It is the duty of every citizen to exercise such care. In autumn, for instance, when fires are being kindled in homes, factories and apartment houses, there will be many serious fires due to neglect of householders and janitors to make certain their flues are in good order, inflammable rubbish is removed from basements, coal is properly stored, etc. Dampness has rusted many pipes and flues in the course of the summer. Sudden heat and strong drafts will break down these weak spots and break out in flames which may destroy a dwelling or a block. A careful inspection of all flues, pipes and fire boxes will prevent innumerable fires. Each season has its dangers. Overheating in winter is to be guarded against, and summer is a time for extreme caution.

Should Conform to Standard.

With the revival in home construction that has come during the last year the efforts that are being put forth to make these homes better and brighter should not be in vain. Home construction along the right lines means not only added beauty outside and attractiveness within, but additional value as well. A badly designed home in a residential locality is a doubtful investment at best. A good house in the right location built to conform to modern housing standards is almost invariably an excellent one.

Farm Mortgage Many Years Old.

A mortgage for $650 recorded November 8, 1845—nearly seventy-seven years ago—against the Haugen farm in Beech Creek township, Clinton county, has just been satisfied at the office of Register and Recorder P. S. Kift, Lock Haven. The original holder of the mortgage was William G. Jackson, who later became a resident of Nottingham, Va. The amount due was paid within a year after the mortgage was given but the transaction had never been cleared up on the books.—Philadelphia Record.

FRIENDSHIP GROVE NEW IDEA

May Be Carried Out as Easily in Small City as This Man Does on Farm.

A farmer living only a few miles from here has a lot of pleasure and gives many of his friends an enjoyable afternoon or evening by planting a tree for a member of the party. He believes in recognizing the friend before he dies. The wife of this farmer enters into the spirit of tree planting and enjoys having the friends gather at their home and plant a tree for a friend. The occasion not only furnishes the opportunity for good friends to get together and have a good time, but also stimulates tree planting in the community.

The friendship grove makes it easy to honor one's friends. Dwellers on small city lots may say that this cannot be done. There is no reason why it is necessary to use trees. A peony plant named for a friend may not be as stately as a tree, but the glowing flower of the peony will always remind you of the high qualities of the friend. In America friendship groves and gardens will give much happiness and add value to property.—Chicago Evening Post.

CLING TO NATURAL BEAUTY

Too Many Cities Allow Picturesque Spots to Disappear as the Place Grows in Size.

Many a city where natural scenery is interspersed through its residence sections. Fortunately, these hollows were too large and deep to drain and "lay out in town lots." Kansas City also found on her townsite such sections. The real estate world gave them up, and they were turned into parkways. Penn Valley park being mainly a depression is now one of the most picturesque features to be found in any city in America.

Chicago has had nothing to utilize for beauty except her lake, and she is making the most of that, "taking over" practically the whole shore line and amplifying it so that there will be a lake shore park from the river almost to the southern city limits.

St. Louis has preserved in Forest park her finest hill, and the Mississippi river still has many possibilities as a scenic southern limits near the water works.

Every city has to study its topography and develop its natural beauties and to keep them from disappearing.

Beautify Waste Spots.

Borders in the garden and yard are like frames that lend beauty to the picture. In many gardens and lawns there seems to be no space that can be spared for flowers, yet there are walks of cement, brick, or cinders, waste spaces along the alley, or around small buildings which if bordered with some flowers would change the entire appearance of the place.

China asters, old-fashioned pinks, English daisies, forget-me-nots, sweet alyssum, candy tuft and verbenas are good varieties for almost any soil or climate. In places where a taller border would bring out the picture, use sweet william, oriental poppies or the stately hollyhock. Then find a high place for a birdhouse, or plant some shrubs for nesting places.

The true home picture is lacking without the birds and flowers.—Thrift Magazine.

Small Town Holding Its Own.

"I have been in close touch with a sort of employment agency conducted by a western university for its alumni," remarked C. S. Barrett, in an address he delivered at New York. "The most remarkable feature, and one which I understand is general throughout the country, is the discovery that the man of education from the small town is willing to go back home after his schooling is completed and start his work there. Formerly all the young men went to the cities. The lack of employment which started over a year ago stimulated endeavor at home, and while the 'back to the farm' movement may not be in full swing, there is a decided 'back to the home town' trend."

For a City Beautiful.

The proposal to make Indianapolis a city beautiful with flowers, as the Garden Flower society plans, is not an impossible thing, and is an undertaking whose gradual fulfillment should arouse enthusiasm among owners of property. For it is a movement in which any and every one may join, each with no further responsibility than to beautify his own premises.

Prevent Mountain Fire.

A fire covering 1,000 feet of land on a timber-dry mountainside and spreading in the direction of a cabin and a fence banked with dead brush was discovered by Scouts Adrian Winkle and Gordon Porter, of Los Angeles, out from their camp in Bear canyon on a test hike. The boys went into action, dragging away all the brush and making a firebreak. After two hours' work the fire was extinguished. They then hiked to Camp Rincon, where they reported the fire to the ranger before returning to their own camp.

Concentrate on Home.

An American editor says: "All effort, all reasonable expenditure, all devotion and loyalty should be concentrated on making the home worthy of every good instinct, every ambition, every justifiable form of family pride.

So to Speak.

An author, paying his first visit to married acquaintance, asked the name of a sprightly little girl whose winning ways had attracted his attention.

"We call her Lila," said the child's mother.

"That is a good name," remarked the author. "It has been made classic by Charles Lamb."

"Well, to tell the truth," explained the lady, "her name is Cornelia, but [illegible] Lila."

MEETING OF HILLTOP LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Board of Trustees Elected — Library to be Opened Soon as Possible

At the meeting called at the Hilltop Lutheran Church Tuesday night at 7:30 p. m. the [illegible]ation composed of contributors to the Library Canvass elected the Board of Trustees to the Library. Balloting was secret, with nominations from the floor. Out of about 22 names presented the audience elected the following men and women to serve as the first Board of Trustees: Mrs. L. Woodruff, Mrs. O. J. Linville, Mrs. Joseph Bopeley, Demus R. Ulrey, Rev. R. T. Stimmel, M. W. Seiller and Rev. Richard E. Shields. Attorney L. A. Holmes, the donor of the Colonel Holmes collection of books, was elected an Honorary Trustee. Mr. Shields served as chairman of the meeting, Mrs. C. E. Sharp, secretary, and Messrs. Raetner, Prior and Dr. Sharp as tellers.

Mr. Fred Raetner as treasurer of the canvass, reported a total to date of $1669.75 cash, with pledges amounting to more than one hundred dollars to be turned in. This will bring the net amount upwards of $1800 as a final report. All those who have not made their contribution are asked to do so at once to Mr. Raetner at the Economy Store or to Mr. Worrell at the Hilltop Bank.

The trustees were given full power to act in securing and locating the library. They were also to constitute a constitution committee which will report at their suggestion to the association at a future date.

The name voted was THE HOLMES HILLTOP LIBRARY.

The follow-up of the financial canvass will be made by the canvass committee, Herbert G. Deems and Ray Haents, at an early date. Subscribers will save them much effort if they will present their subscription at either the Economy Store or the Hilltop Bank.

Already several written applications for the position as librarian have been received by the trustees.

At an early date books and magazines will be solicited for the library and the Boy Scouts of the Hilltop will collect the same. Announcement will be made of this later.

The officers of the Board of Trustees will be chosen at the organization meeting to be held at an early date.

Great enthusiasm was shown at the organization and election meeting and in spite of the rain the meeting was fairly well attended.

Reports from canvassers at the meting showed a very courteous treatment among the people of the Hilltop and a very lively interest in the new undertaking. Several reported fine sets of books to be given by people interested in the library.

Health Hints

By Doctor McFaden

Did your hand ever go to sleep? And did you send for the doctor? No, you most likely changed your position and the pain ceased. Your condition will have amounted to paralysis if it had been long enough continued, but knowing the cause you removed it. You gave Nature a chance by taking the abnormal pressure off the nerve.

Have you pain in your limbs or feet or toes? The easiest diagnosis of a persistent pain is to call it rheumatism, but the word rheumatism is very much overworked. Why not look for abnormal pressure upon a nerve as you did in the case of your hand and when found remove it and trust Nature for the rest. For pain anywhere, take off the pressure.

The origin of pain may be in a distant part of the body or the cause may be wholly or in part in the habits of the patient. That's why these "hints" are full of advice about diet and living in general. There is much that the patient can and should do for himself.

Sunday was a great day for St. Paul's United Evangelical Church. It began with a sunrise prayer meeting which was fairly well attended and those who were present realized that the risen Christ was in our midst. The Sunday school and preaching services were well attended. The pastor preached a helpful sermon on "The Resurrection" in the morning and a heart-searching sermon on "The General Judgment" in the evening. The Easter offering was gratifying. The large choir under the able leadership of Mr. Reed was at its best, singing to the delight of all several special Easter selections in both services. Mr. Reed sang very effectively "He Giveth His Beloved Sleep," "Come With Us and We Will Do Thee Good."

W. L. Millikin Out for Mayor

Wyatt L. Millikin, a member of the City Council, Saturday, March 31st, announced himself as a candidate for Mayor at the coming election. Mr. Millikin has been for the past four years, an active member of Council, and has taken a very active part in all civic affairs for 25 years. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, having been vice-president thereof. He has been actively identified with various fraternal and social organizations, being a past master of Goodale Masonic Lodge, a member of the Knights Templar, Shrine and Scottish Rite bodies; a charter member of Westwood Lodge, Knights of Pythias, a member of Dramtic Order Knights of Khorassan, Modern Woodmen of America, the Columbus Athletic Club, the Columbus Automobile Club and others.

Mr. Millikin is 47 years of age, and was born on a farm in Madison County, coming to Columbus when he was 20 years old. He is a Democrat and has been identified with the Democratic party all His life.

Mr. Millikin has been urged by many citizens from all sections of the city, both men and women, to permit the use of his name as a candidate for Mayor, and this announcement is his answer, Mr. Millikin said:

"I am for Columbus. I believe in its future. I feel that I am familiar with its needs and aspirations, and if I can be of service to the people of this community I am willing to give my time and best efforts to the city as its Mayor. I am in the race to win

WIDE TASTE FOR GOOD MUSIC

People listen to good music with appreciation and enjoyment as never before. The change that modern taste runs to "jazz" and barbaric melodies is akin to the statement that good books are not read as they once were, says the Toronto Star. Since books and music are to be found everywhere nowadays, there is, naturally, an increased market for stories and musical numbers "of the baser sort," as well as those of high class. The phonograph has introduced the greatest singers of the age and the finest compositions of all time to communities and homes where these would never otherwise have been heard. Tastes for such music have been created and cultivated. And now the radiophone promises to make the best concert music available to "listeners in" all over the country. The public of today has not only appetite for the good music, but a capacity to appreciate the many different kinds of good music, the cosmopolitan taste, which enables an audience to sit down to a musical banquet and enjoy every course.

Courteous manners in little things are an asset worth acquiring. When a customer aproaches, rise and offer a chair. Step aside and let the store's guest pass first into the elevator. These are little things, but they make you and your work finer, writes Elbert Hubbard in an exchange. To give visitors, or to give fresh and flippant answers, even to stupid or impudent people, is a great mistake. Meet rudeness with unfailing politeness and see how much better you feel. Your promise to a customer is your employer's promise. A broken promise always hurts, and it shows weakness in the character of a business organization just as unreliability does in an individual. Most inaccuracies come from not really listening to what is said, or not really seeing what you put down. The chewing of gum, tobacco or paper as a jaw exercise should be eliminated. The world is now pronouncing them vulgar, unbusinesslike, useless and silly. Keep ahead of your employer and of the board of health in this.

Social Affairs

The Personal Workers Bible Class of Hoge Memorial Church held their monthly business and social meeting on Monday night at the church. A large number of enthusiastic members were present to greet the new president, Mrs. Bruce Oyler. Plans were made for further increasing the usefulness of this class of women, which has been a power for good in the church.

The two tiny nieces of the president delightfully entertained the members with recitations and the officers of the class served refreshments, closing a very delightful evening.

Mrs. Margaret A. Alley, 60 Smith Place, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Sydney Alley, to Mr. Edward Ray Fritz, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fritz, 480 S. Ogden avenue. The ceremony was performed Tuesday evening, March 27th, at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. R. D. Morgan, 980 Neil avenue, in the presence of Mrs. Alley and Mr. B. W. Alley, mother and brother of the bride, Miss Mary A. Shade, aunt of the bridegroom, Miss Edith Smock, of New Concord, and Mr. Damon Tedrick. After the nuptial service, the bride and bridegroom were given a miscellaneous shower at the home of the latter's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shade, 559 Brehl avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Fritz will be at home after May 1, at 452 S. Ogden avenue. They are living temporarily with the parents of the bridegroom. The bride is a graduate of North High School, class of 1922.

HILL CREST BAPTIST

E. E. McFarlane, Pastor.

Dr. Rittenhouse has captured the crowd in his evangelistic campaign here that began Monday night and will continue each night until April 14th. He will preach on Sunday at 2:30 p. m. There is no foolishness about Dr. Rittenhouse's methods. He plays no tricks on his congregation; he has no foolish enthusiasm; he is not sensational, but believes and preaches the old-time gospel with great power, carrying his audience with him while he presents Christ in all His beauty. His sermons are the greatest ever preached in Hillcrest Church. Hear him every night except Saturday night at 7:30.

Morning worship 10:30, subject "The Withered Hand." Preaching by Dr. Rittenhouse at 2:30; evening service at 7:30, subject "The Danger of Delay."

FOLLOWING IN OUR FOOTSTEPS

With three times more territory than the United States, Latin America has at present about the same population as the United States in 1900, namely, 80 million. But her foreign commerce today is twice what ours was 20 years ago. In the hundredth year of the independence of the United States we had a population of 50 million and foreign commerce of one and one-half billion dollars. Latin America has just celebrated the centennial of her independence, and her population is 80 millions, with a foreign commerce of five billion dollars, writes Samuel G. Inman in Current History. Can anyone doubt that with more rapid transportation, more scientific machinery and a greater economic efficiency, and with three times the territory, Latin America will make at least the same record in the next 40 years as the United States did from 1860 to 1920? That would mean a population of 160 millions and a foreign commerce exceeding 40 billion dollars in 1960.

One of the victims of fashions on this continent is the egret—our own American bird of beautiful white plumage, called the "aigrette" in the trade. Purveyors of fashion and their women patrons have rolled up a long liability for fairly unspeakable cruelties that have been practiced on the egret in getting the "aigrette" into the society column. But that is all over now, thanks to Uncle Sam and the various sovereign states. The egret has been saved from actual extinction by a happy accident. A man who bought a shooting preserve in South Carolina fortunately found a small colony of egrets, or snowy cranes, on the estate. He protected them jealously, and now the tribe has "come back." A colony of egrets in a South Carolina cypress forest is shown, with admirable life-likeness of detail, in the habitat group of the American Museum of Natural History, New York. It furnishes a picture well worth seeing.

Our arable land, present and potential, fertilized and cultivated like the land of Germany, could provide food and fibers in accordance with our present tastes for about 250,000,000 people, and with a largely vegetable and dairy diet for from 400,000,000 to 600,000,000, so long as the supply of fertilizer held out. Europe, which is comparable with the United States in area, but probably has somewhat greater agricultural resources, had, before the war, a population of about 460,000,000. Probably 100,000,000 of these were fed on imported food. However, if the lands of Russia produced yields like those of western Europe, the continent would have been self-supporting agriculturally.

---

The rise in American crime began in the '90s and increased progressively since then, according to Sir Basil Thomson, the retired genius of Scotland Yard. So the big crime wave of recent years was merely a tidal wave that had been a long time reaching us, meantime gaining momentum. The principle holds good with nearly all our other troubles. The crop grows slowly. We contemplate the harvest and decide it materialized overnight. The seeds were planted long ago. Present conditions are the harvest of many generations, many centuries, many thousands of years of the past.

---

The horse during the last year has lost out a trifle in his race with the auto. There are about 18,853,000 horses on American farms now. That's about 913,000 less than there were two years ago. During those two years the horse has slowly been on the downgrade, in numbers. But auto men needn't chirp, for the horse is vanishing at such a slow rate that it would take over 40 more years to make him extinct. Fear not, horse lovers, Dobbin will be here in multitudes when people discard autos and use airplanes.

MAKING LANGUAGE EFFICIENT

Some efficiency genius has figured out that there would be a great saving of space required by printed matter if silent letters and syllables were eliminated. Printing and paper bills for the country, including newspapers, magazines, books and leaflets, run into huge figures. Why this waste? asks the efficiency man. This is exciting reformed spelling from a new angle, says the Utica Observer-Dispatch. It is making the mechanism for representing sounds meet the same tests as any other mechanical device. Well, then, why not go further and turn scrutiny upon the language itself? Plenty of defects there. One in particular we are bumping up against every day. No personal pronoun in the third person singular that covers both sexes. Rule is to say "he." That's very unsatisfactory, because in plenty of cases either a man or woman might be involved. Someone has proposed, for the possessive, the manufactured word "hiser" for his or her. Sounds funny, doesn't it? You would not want it until others had accepted it. So with other changes. The language, including the spelling, is the possession of all, and making changes means overcoming inertia of a vast solidity.

One method of handling the young generation is to turn it into boy and girl scouts. The boy scouts' national council has been celebrating anniversary week by making an effort to add 100,000 boys to the 400,000 already enrolled, says the New York Evening Post. It would be easy enough to obtain this increase if the organization were thinking merely of numbers, but it would not be the stress it is if it were not more deeply concerned with what it was going to do with the boys when it got them than with getting them. Its central problem is the problem of leadership. Leaders are needed in a far greater degree than boys. If the council could get leaders enough, there would be no difficulty in getting the boys. In calling for 100,000 more boys, therefore, the council is really calling for a considerable number of adults who have the ability to lead boys and the interest to do so. The call is a test of our public spirit.

George Bernard Shaw wrote to a young idol-worshiper who had requested his autograph: "Set fire to your collection of signatures and sit on the top." However, the letter gave the young man the autograph he wanted, so he should be satisfied. Years ago Col. Bob Ingersoll told a reporter: "I never give interviews." The reporter asked why not? Ingersoll told him. So the reporter wrote an interview with Ingersoll on why he refused to interview. Failure sometimes can be transformed into victory, if you can give it the right twist. Study failure, instead of shrinking from it. Extremes meet. Failure often is success wearing a mask.

When will you die? The average length of life in our country now is fifty-six. This is three and a half years more than in 1910 and 15 years more than in 1870. The figures are supplied by Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell university. He says the average life could be prolonged 20 years if all people could learn and profit by what health experts know. Health education has a lot to do with it. In ignorant India the average man is destined to die at twenty-four.

In spite of the fact that 188,597 applications for new patents were received by the national government during the last year there is nothing yet on the market that enables one to gain anything really worth while without working for it.

Diagnosticians are not agreed as to what ails Europe, but are of the one opinion that the case has progressed beyond the point where carrying a buckeye in the pocket would do any good.

China, says a dispatch from there, is waiting for a strong man to appear as a leader. China seems to be, in that respect, in about the same predicament as all other nations.

The assertion that theater owners use sensational pictures to heat the blood of patrons to cut down the fuel bills is interesting, but what sort of pictures do they show during dog days to keep the patrons cool?

A man was arrested on a charge of counterfeiting British currency. Counterfeiting is one of the things about which the Russian and German governments do not have to worry.

The tractor, the milking machine, the electric churn and all the other modern appliances—maybe these have made it compulsory for the farmers to go to the city to find something to do.

The first man has been discovered again, this time down in Patagonia. We wonder whether he rode there from Java in an airplane or on a raft.

HOLDER, the Hilltop man. See me before you buy a home. Hilltop 7019.

GROWING USE OF CONCRETE

The growth of the Portland cement industry in this country is one of the marvels of our industrial development. In 1880, when only 42,000 barrels of cement were produced in the United States. One hundred years later we are delivering an annual production of 100,000,000 barrels. Concrete has indispensible uses for the construction of houses, public buildings, skyscrapers, wharves, grain elevators, dams, bridges, public highways and other structures in which strength and durability must be combined, says the Christian Science Monitor. As lumber becomes scarcer and higher, the increasing demand for cement expands at the rate of millions of barrels each year. Formerly cement was manufactured in certain centers widely separated whence the product had to be shipped at great expense to distant localities. Now the industry has spread until no point is remote from a source of production. Alabama is one of the newer States to enter upon the production of cement, and is already attracting attention as a source to be reckoned with. As hot timber recedes the South is turning to her substitutes—concrete and is preparing to make amends in part of the timber which in the past has been so ruthless in its use and abuse. It is sad to think of the depletion of southern forests, but it is gratifying to note that the Southland is the supplying province of but a small one.

The views of our guest-conductor, Georges Enesco, as to the difference between which modern noise and sound themselves to those who want progress in music as in other arts, and yet do not believe that the torch of a safe, wise and inspiring guidance is borne in the hands of the anarchists. Enesco finds a number of post-war composers attempting to storm and confound the ear with drawing dissonance, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The "noisy" music he compares with the surf that beats on the rocks and sends up spray. "It is in the wind one moment, the next it is gone." Music to have an enduring appeal must have the beauty of form that makes pictorial art, or architecture, or literature immortal. Mankind will not contentedly abide, age after age, with that which speaks for a warped, perverse imagination.

Not only are there a great many writers of real poetry and still more writers of near poetry, but there must be an enormous number of readers who do not turn over the page hastily when they see a poem in a magazine, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. There is no way of getting a census of these poetry readers. But everyone knows the axiom of editorial offices: Give the public what it wants. Magazine editors are printing more poetry and better poetry than they did a few decades back. Some magazines even feature poems instead of sticking them carelessly in odd corners at the end of stories and among advertisements. Hence the logical deduction that verse is now a live and popular subject.

"What are the inventors going to do when everything conceivable gets invented?" asks the Cleveland Plain Dealer. There is no need to worry until after they have invented a fool-proof automobile, a perfectly safe tire that is not known to be loaded, and either a sure cure for baldness or a nonskid toupee.

The United States Coal commission announced that testimony has been produced before it that the price of coal is too high. If they want any more of the same kind of testimony, the last census will give them a line on 110,000,000 expert witnesses.

Intemperance is one of the most serious problems confronting the country, says a college professor. Especially to the girl who had her neck ripped two years ago and is going back to long hair.

Child eleven months old is reported as speaking six languages, though we see nothing remarkable in that. Most any child of that age speaks all languages as well as any one.

Somebody has figured out that the interest on the Tut-Ankh-Amen treasures would have amounted to $480,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 and then some, up to the usual number of paragraphs that have been written about him.

Government salaries are so small in Washington that a competent citizen cannot be expected to take on an official position on anything but a side line.

The film industry takes the business-like position that people will go to see a performer who amuses, even though they do not admire him personally.

An English scientist prophesies a time when it will be possible to circle the globe in 24 hours, which will prove a great boon to the bird who prefers ways to see the dark side.

AN HONEST THIEF

Desk Sergeant—What does the prisoner give as his occupation?

Officer—Says he's a thief.

Desk Sergeant—A thief? Well, he's honest, anyway.

An Epitaph.

Here lies the body of William Jay,
Who died maintaining the right-of-way;
He was dead right as he sped along,
But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong.

Select.

"These are select apples. Twenty-five and 50 cents a dozen."

"Whaddye mean 'select'?"

"If you select them, they're 50 cents a dozen. If I select them they're 25."—Farm Life.

Helping It Out.

"I believe in the office seeking the man."

"Yes, yes, go on."

"But I also believe in letting the office know that you are willing to be sought."

Mixed.

"Jack, dear, I made you believe I wasn't in earnest when I told you I didn't mean what I said, didn't I?"

"I believe so."

"Well, I'll take it all back."—London Tit-Bits.

In Extremis.

Doctor (at bedside)—I fancy he is about ready for the kingdom of heaven.

Ministering Wife—Will you be quiet and let him go good a Republican!—Le Journal Amusant (Paris).

An Optimist.

"Well, he's an optimist, anyhow."

"What's he doing now?"

"Already planning where he'll go fishing when the time for fishing comes."

Unnecessary.

"I never play bridge with my wife."

"Why not?"

"Oh, we've got plenty of other things to wrangle about."

True.

"Pa, does money bring happiness?"

"No, my boy, but mighty few people prefer poverty on that account."

Important Factors in Buying Real Estate!
No. 1

Location OF Broadview

When buying real estate consider location before everything. Bear in mind that the finest residential property is on and adjacent to the main arteries of every city. Picture any American city you have ever visited. It is true of every one of them.

Broadview is located on the south side of West Broad Street, two blocks West of Hague Avenue, directly in the path of the Hilltop's greatest growth. It is in the city.

Chosen for Homes Sites

Here was the former Binns tract, fine land, high, healthy and splendidly located. William Pitkin, Jr., a landscape architect of national reputation was put in charge of it. His instructions were to develop it into a strictly high grade, exclusive subdivision for home owners — a place where anyone in Col. would be proud to live.

This is now Broadview. Study the advantages of this location for your home. Broad Street bounds its north side. Both local and interurban car service is convenient and frequent. Transportation is perfectly cared for.

Pleasant, Comfortable Living

West Broad Street School, new and perfectly equipped, is just two blocks away. Splendid stores and churches of all demonations are within easy walking distance. For the home builder these factors mean much in contributing to pleasant and comfortable living.

In all respects Broadview enjoys an ideal location. In the high, clear air of the Hilltop; in a beautifully laid out and improved section, convenient in every feature, it will be another Indianola, another Beechwald or Glen Echo.

OTHER FACTORS

NEIGHBORHOOD

In selecting a home site you will naturally take a deep interest in your future neighbors. We will be glad to give you a list of those who have already bought in Broadview. We are mighty proud of this list. Most of them are already home owners who desire a better location.

Broadview is carefully restricted against all but single houses, and these are restricted as to price. No business building is permitted, and a 50 foot building line has been established.

IMPROVEMENTS

Broadview is in the city, and proper arrangements have already been made for putting in regular city improvements. Every lot will have sewer, water, gas, street improvements and everything necessary for a fine home section.

VALUES

Values in Broadview are extremely attractive. Payment may be arranged on a liberal basis or a substantial discount allowed for cash.

Hillcrest and Hillcrest Park were sold by Heed & Holton. Shortly after lots there were sold for two and three times the original price.

We will gladly furnish any further information if you will phone us. Or we will send an automobile if you wish to visit Broadview

AN EXPLANATION

"Had you any reason to doubt the girl's honesty?"

"None. While she was with us I missed seven silver spoons, a gold bracelet, a lot of preserves and—"

"That will do. Why did you say you didn't doubt her honesty?"

"Because I didn't think she had any honesty to doubt."

The Usual Golfer's Experience.

"You seem to enjoy golf."

"I do."

"How long have you played?"

"Fifteen years."

"And have you always enjoyed it so?"

"No. It took me fourteen years to make up my mind that I would never be the amateur champion. After that I could settle down and get some fun out of the game."

Practicing What He Preaches.

Minister's daughter (archly)—Now, Cousin George, you must come to church this evening. Father is preaching from the text, "Love Ye One Another."

Cousin George—Really, Mabel. But can't we stay at home and practice while he preaches?

Engaging a Driver.

"How long will it take us to get to the depot?" asked the man of the taxi driver.

"Fifteen minutes," replied the driver.

"All right. I've got thirty-five minutes to spare. Do you think you can get me to the depot without nearing the daylight out of me?"

HE KNOWS

"Who's minding your business while you're away, Mr. Green?"

"The neighbors, as usual."

Tricky.

"Oh, I can't thread this needle, ma." Was little Bessie's cry.
"Just as the thread is going through The needle winks the eye."

Practical Charity.

"Look at that poor stray cat. I'll get it some meat."

"No, wait! I believe in teaching others to help themselves. I'll throw some crumbs to draw the birds and maybe the cat can catch one."

Urgent Business.

Mrs. Gramercy—I didn't think Mr. Needham could afford to have his family go to a fashionable resort for the winter.

Mrs. Park—It was absolutely necessary. The poor woman has two marriageable daughters on her hands.

Warned Him.

"She married him for better or for worse."

"Well?"

"Immediately after the ceremony she served notice on him that if he ever showed any signs of getting worse there would be nothing doing."

Harsh Words.

"I can't use this stuff," said the editor.

"In no way, shape or form?"

"In no way, shape or form would it be a poem. You couldn't even palm it off on an unsuspecting public as free verse."

Not for Children.

Pal—Did you read about that nonagenarians' banquet?

Palaver—Yes. I heard a fellow eighty-nine years old tried to get in and they told him he was too young to go to such things.

Time.

"The boss offered me an interest in the business today."

"He did?"

"Yes, he said that if I didn't take an interest pretty soon he'd fire me."—Kansas Sour Owl.

STILL KNOCKING HIM

Chelly—Let me think a minute.

Peggy—Can you keep it up that long?

Commanding.

Her beauty is commanding;
Of that there is no doubt
But you should hear it order
Her Pa and Ma about.

He Got His.

Mr. Oldbird—My dear Miss Bright, do you think it would ever be possible for you to love a man as—as old as I am?

Miss Bright—Oh, I might; if he were different from you in every other way.

Second-Hand.

She—Johnnie, I hear that your brother has the measles. When are you going to get them?

Johnnie—When he's through with them, I suppose.—Pitt Panther.

Anybody wish to collect spots of historic interest? The government is putting a lot of them on the junk pile and advertising them for sale at auction, says the Los Angeles Times. Among these is the site of old Fort Jackson, near Savannah. This was bought by Thomas Jefferson when he was President. There are eight or ten other offerings of the War department—sites that were once supposed to possess some strategic importance, but are mere burdens under present plans and policies. Uncle Sam wants to cut out the deadwood and may be auctioning off a lot of battered forts before the year is older. Anybody want to buy a well-preserved, trading post, with John Quincy Adams' initials carved in the name?

Matches and careless smokers cause fire losses of nearly $20,000,000 in one year. In announcing this, the National Board of Fire Underwriters says that it may be due to increased use of tobacco by women. Needless to say, the board is composed of men. In handling fire women are at least twice as careful as men, says the Columbus Record. You never see a woman toss a match into a wastebasket after using it. Ma runs around the house "picking up" after careless pa. How often do you see a pa having to "pick up" after a careless ma?

The people in England agree to work Sunday only one day, the survivor can be convicted of murder. So rules the court of criminal appeal in London. It's a fair decision. As the court puts it, "the survivor is guilty of murder because he incited, aided and abetted the other person to take his life. He incited the crime of murder." Here the discussion blends into hypocrisy.

Petrograd now has 600,000 inhabitants. It used to have 2,000,000. The survivors are rugged and hungry. City dwellers in Russia in recent years have been "going back to the land"—many of them in wooden overcoats.

Wireless telephone messages have been sent across the Atlantic. Still, even without that Europe has been able, for the last two or three years, to hear the dinner dishes rattle all the time in the United States.

"Art is trunk," says a learned college professor. We think he has been misquoted. The great truth he must have meant to enunciate is that hunk is an art.

It is said that Paris is trying to bring the hustle back, but before it tackles that job it had better get little things like the reparations question out of the way.

There is always a brighter side. Think how utterly idiotic the repeater gunmaker must be.

Losses From Worthless Investments Felt In Every County In Ohio.

The figures by counties above represent in dollars the amount of money lost through worthless investments, by the people in each county in Ohio during the last several years.

OHIOANS have suffered a loss of $100,000,000 through the purchase of worthless investments or securities that have deteriorated in value during the last few years, according to estimates just made by various state officials. This loss has been proportionately spread over every county in the state, none escaping.

In connection with this loss, it was recently pointed out by Director of Commerce Hoover that Ohioans still need 120,000 homes to house everyone properly in the Buckeye state. If the money that has been lost in worthless investments during the last few years had been put into new homes, rents in Ohio would now be back to pre-war figures and the housing shortage would be materially alleviated, according to James A. Devine, Secretary of the Ohio Building and Loan Association League. In a recent address in Columbus, he pointed out that, while the people of Ohio had been losing $100,000,000 through worthless investments, other Ohioans, with an idea for safe and sane saving, had placed $100,000,000 in building and loan institutions, not a penny of which had been lost to any depositor. He stated that more than 2,000,000 Ohioans were now using these institutions as places of safety for their savings because of the record for security that these institutions have built up during the last 30 years.

State officials believe that ruthless spending, reckless investment and unwise speculation has been greatly curtailed in Ohio during the last year. The failure of many speculative concerns have caused the people to stop and think and, as a result, much money is now finding its way into local financial institutions, so that funds which heretofore were going into wild-cat schemes are now being kept at home for the development of the individual community. Despite the fact that depositors in building and loan institutions in Ohio have not lost a penny in the last decade, the recent legislature has just enacted a law which makes these institutions more secure than ever, so that now they are practically loss-proof, according to leaders in the building and loan business.

Holmes Hilltop Library News

At the organization meeting of the trustees of the Holmes Hilltop Library at the Library Hall over the bank at West Broad and South Park Saturday afternoon of last week the following officers and committees were appointed: D. S. Ulrey, chairman of the board; M. W. Seiler, vice president; Mrs. L. Woodruff, secretary, and Mrs. O. J. Linville, treasurer. Trustees R. E. Shields, R. T. Stimmel and Mrs. Joseph Bopsley were made the executive committee. Mr. L. A. Holmes, donor of the home of his late father, Col. J. T. Holmes, was present and made his informal offer, which was accepted by the trustees and same to be in written form by the signatures of secretary and chairman of the board at the next meeting. Mr. Holmes was notified of his being an honorary trustee. The hall was rented from Mr. J. M. Dinsmore and upon agreement the redecorating and improving of the same for the library was started.

Furniture has been ordered and the books will be moved into place at the earliest possible moment.

The trustees secured Mrs. H. S. Currier of the Hilltop, living on Eldon avenue, as librarian, and her duties will begin at an early date.

Mr. Holmes desired the privilege of supplying at his own expense the most up-to-date cataloguing system to be found for the library. Many other items of business were attended to.

Announcement will be made of the formal opening of the Holmes Hilltop Library in the next issue of the Record.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES?"

A Play Given by the Young Married People's Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Sunday School.

Next Friday night, April 20th, at 8 p. m., a strong cast of characters from the Young Married People's Bible Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church will present their first annual production, a George Broadhurst Farce-Comedy, entitled "What Happened to Jones?" The play has been given in New York City a number of seasons and still has great drawing power. It is a $25.00 royalty play with more Laughs to the square inch than any play you may have seen in a long age.

The class has secured the West High School auditorium in which to give it. The Robbins-Greiser School of Music will furnish music with their talented orchestra and every member of the Y. M. P. Bible Class is working hard to make it a big success. The proceeds will be used for the new building at Hoge Memorial Church.

The play is a general mixup in identification between a salesman and the Bishop of Ballarat, who is expected on a visit to his brother, the college professor.

There is a touching love story threading its way through the entire play which makes it doubly appealing. More than to conditions of mistaken identity and mixing of prominent characters are the witticisms of an escaped lunatic who thinks he is an Indian and the antics and brevity of English of the Swedish Maid, Helma, Ebenezer Goodly, the professor of anatomy, and Jones take a very active and leading part. Charles W. Barrel plays the part of Jones and Mr. Hubbert Compton of Fort Hayes plays the part of Ebenezer, the professor.

The play has been very much discussed and will prove a drawing attraction not only for its very intricate acting and mix-up of character, but also for its subtler moments of close delineation of farcical human entanglements.

Those taking part in the play are: Mrs. H. Compton, Mrs. R. E. Shields, Mrs. C. Bercaw, Mrs. D. U. Kreager, Mrs. A. Rhinehart, Mrs. I. Spencer, Mr. Hubert Compton, officer at Fort Hayes, Mr. O. E. Spencer, Mr. George W. Matson, Mr. Phil Cunningham, Mr. Hayden Jones, Mr. San. Roberts, Mr. Charles W. Barrell.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Young Married People's Class at 35 cents for adults and 20 cents for children. The whole family will enjoy and laugh at this very amusing comedy.

West High Auditorium, Friday, April 20, 8 p. m.

That the Hilltop is bound to be known as one of the city's finest residence sections is evidenced in several ways. One of these is the great amount of home owners that makes up its population. A large majority of the houses built last year and those being built this year, as fast as completed are occupied by families who are working and striving to pay for that little home, "and are just counting the years" when it will all be paid for and no more will the renting inconveniences stare them in the face.

Then again, the Hilltop is surely highly favored with a large accumulation of public-spirited citizens, both men and women. The recent campaign to put the library proposition across proved that fact. And right here it might be said that we believe that campaign did a world of good in getting many of our people in touch with others, whom they probably have never met before.

With the rapid sale of lots in the new Broadview addition on the south side of West Broad Sreet, and the opening up of the Haldy tract on the north side of West Broad, one is reminded that within a short time the Hilltop proper will be extended west to the Big Four railroad tracks. And it is not at all unlikely that before many years Broad Street will be built up clear to Rome as thickly as North High Street is almost to Worthington. Then, with the rapid building up of the southern section along Sullivant Avenue, the Hilltop will see its southern boundary extending south clear to Mound Street—quite a city itself.

Sullivant Avenue seems to be in the lead along the building line just at present—there being over a score of houses now under construction on that thoroughfare, and the prospects of many more being started in the immediate future will make it one of the busiest sreets on the Hilltop.

Blanche and Francis Rings, both pupils of the Robbins-Greiser School of Music, delighted the girls of the Y. W. C. A. at the West High School on Friday afternoon, with two musical programs.

Woman Home Missionary Society of Glenwood Church will meet on Thursday, April 19, at the church. This is mite box offering and each member is urged to attend and bring a guest.

Health Hints

By Doctor McFadon.

Is it constipation? You say "No, I avoid constipation by taking ——, a mild, harmless laxative."

Yes, you eat to keep up your strength, then waste the energy and tax the alimentary process unnecessarily. You don't conduct your business that way. If you had an engineer who would waste your fuel and wear out your machinery like that, you would soon discharge him. You look for leaks in your business, why not in your body. If you would continue to waste your fuel indefinitely your business would be wrecked and so will your health for food is fuel and if we are careless as to its quantity and quality we commit slow suicide. Nature is patient but she will resent indefinite injury.

While proper diet is important in preventing constipation, there are other fundamental causes that should be considered. You may hope to remove stored-up poison by laxative medicines and are partially successful, but scientists tell us that Nature intends that one-third of the accumulated poison should be eliminated thru the skin and one-third thru the lungs by the breath, leaving only one-third for the bowels and kidneys.

Now, if we are remiss in bathing and otherwise keeping the skin active and are satisfied with shallow breathing, too much of this excretory work is left for the bowels and kidneys and they become diseased from overwork. I believe that with proper bathing and breathing and dieting there would be very little bowel and kidney trouble.

But, how many of us do the best we know? How many would do better if we knew better? We like our ease. We cater to our tastes and perverted appetites and it all shortens our lives and makes business for the doctors. Some one has well said that "Half we eat keeps us alive and the other half kills us off before our time."

We neglect many matters which we know to be important. That's why, for psychological reasons, we celebrate certain days and have good Language weeks in school and religious revivals when we all know they should be continuous, and why not do our best spelling every day in the year and always? If the necessity for special seasons and drives is growing upon us, then it would seem that we are becoming nationally weaker. We are too prone to follow the line of least resistance and are the victims of environment and conventionality.

We have notable examples of men like Horace Fletcher, who, having lost health, used their will power and regained it even late in life. But it is better to retain it than to have to regain it.

Quarter Sale at Haunts's Grocery and Meat Market, both stores. Watch for bills.

---

While some of the solicitors for the Holmes Hilltop Library were telling of happenings on their various routes a few nights ago, one of them said that a boy about eight or ten years old asked him what kind of books they were going to have in the library, and informed him that if they were going to have those "sob" kind of stories he did not want anything to do with it.

---

It will not be long until tourist campers will begin to occupy the Municipal Camping Ground at the foot of Glenwood Park. We hope the promised improvements will be forthcoming by the time the season opens up.

The enthusiasms of young men are one of the most splendid spectacles life affords. When they are linked to patriotic ideals they are things that only fools or knaves would scoff at, says the Natal Advertiser. Yet there is no other arena in which men should hasten as slowly as in the political world. Youth and enthusiasm (they do not always go together, for there are sometimes gray heads on green shoulders) are things that time remorselessly corrects. They are at best but an angle from which the involved and intricate political structure can be viewed; and those who see the structure from the angle of youth today see it tomorrow from the correcting vantage point of maturer middle age. The middle age angle is perhaps only a compromise between the rival ones of youth's enthusiasms and the reaction of old age. But, in politics at least, the compromise angle is the most likely in the long run to be the right one.

Athletic sports are still new to France, but art there is old and mature and has been woven into the national fabric. Football, lawn tennis, running, etc., have been embraced by the Gaul with enthusiasm, but he has not for that reason abandoned his delight in the fine arts and is not ready to sacrifice the latter for the pleasures of physical prowess, says the New Orleans Times-Picayune. This we deduce from the plans just perfected for celebration of the coming olympiad, which will be held in France next year. In ancient Greece, despite a national reverence for athletics, art was given recognition during the Olympic festivities and France now proposes for the first time to revive that admirable custom. In addition to the many forms of athletics for which high honors will be awarded, the French nation proposes to hold contests in the five fine arts—architecture, sculpture, painting, music and literature.

Pelican Pecks

The Pelican ran across this in a weekly journal and passes it on for the benefit of the Hilltop police force:

William McAdoo, Chief City Magistrate, New York: My friend, the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, recently returned from Japan, brought back with him the following traffic rules issued in English by the Police Department of Tokyo:

"1) At the rise of the hand of policeman stop rapidly.

"2) Do not pass him or otherwise disrespect him.

"3) When a passenger of the foot hove in sight tootle the horn, trumpet at him melodiously at first, but if he still obstacle your passage, tootle him with vigor and express by word of the mouth the warning, 'Hi, Hi.'

"4) Beware the wandering horse, that he shall not take fright as you pass him by. Do not explode an exhaust blow at him. Go soothingly by.

"5) Give big space to the festive dog that shall sport in the roadway.

"6) Avoid entanglement of dogs with the wheel spokes.

"7) Go soothingly on the grease, mud and sveet, the skid demon.

"8) Press the brake of the foot as you roll around the corner to save collapse and tie up."

Pelicans like frogs! Here is the Pelican's safest description quoted as clipped:

"The Auburn Chapel Bell" pleasantly reminds us of the Norwegian's classic description of the frog. "The Chapel Bell" charges that the Chicago Board of Education caused the essay to be immortalized in type. The essay runs: "What a wonderful bird the frog are! When he hop he fly, almost! When he stand he sit, almost! He ain't got no sense, hardly! He ain't got no tail, either! He a fish, and yet he not a fish."

The management of the Friends' Rescue Home on North Hague Ave., are planning to observe their Eighteenth Anniversary on April 20th. Besides a program, Mr. C. W. Butler, of Cleveland, will be the speaker. In the history of the Home's work up to January 1st, 1923, 1,085 girls have been helped in this institution. 65 per cent of these have turned out to be good citizens. In January, 1922, the home was severely damaged by fire which handicapped the work greatly, and caused a great deal of extra expense. This with other debts that have not yet been entirely paid off on the purchase of the Home property, is quite a burden. The management is asking for dollar donations from their friends that this indebtedness might be wiped out at this time. There is perhaps no more worthy cause one could give to than this institution which is helping to lift up fallen girls.

EASY TO HAVE FINE GARDEN

Some Attractive Features Outlined Here—Campfire Site Is One of the Best Put Forward.

The wild grapevine is invaluable for covering a fence or old stump with a veil of beauty, and while its blossoms are not conspicuous, they are wonderfully fragrant, perfuming the air for a distance. The fruit is a favorite of birds.

Another feature that will make a private garden more attractive is a campfire site, an idea which Jens Jensen has popularized. Before the days of flint and tinder, Indians guarded their campfires day and night to prevent them from going out; and old camp sites show the hearths used for this purpose. They are oval or round depressions, paved with stones. Such a hearth is a suitable location in your garden, where a fire may be built without injury to grass or shrubs, will be a rallying point in the outdoor living room after the sun has gone down. Skillful management will make it keep mosquitoes at a distance in midsummer, and when the evening air has grown chill, the campfire will prolong the season of enjoyment out of doors.

Who would not consider a garden with attractions such as have been described a valuable addition to a home? Such a garden is within the power of any one who controls a back yard where shrubs will grow; and it may be brought about at a surprisingly small expense, provided the owner lends his mind to the task and does not demand three-year results for one month's labor.

BUILD HOUSE LARGE ENOUGH

When Planning Home It Is Imperative That There Should Be an Eye on the Future.

If in building a home one cannot build it large enough to accommodate a family of the size he expects eventually to have occupy it, it is not a difficult matter to so plan that an additional room, or several of them, may be added later.

One of the easiest ways to increase the size of a house is by the addition of a wing in the form of an L, or by the building of two such wings. This latter arrangement is particularly good, as it balances the house and gives a semi-inclosed area at the back which may be converted into an attractive patio.

If the house is a one-story affair it is only necessary to provide a hallway from which stairs may later ascend, and then, as the family increases, to add a second story. But this latter method is usually not so good. If it is the intention to have a two or three-story house it is better to start out with it, even though it may be small, and then add to it as desired. This is well accomplished by leaving the second story unfinished.—Kansas City Star.

That Backyard Garden.

The backyard garden, which has been walled in with trees and shrubs, a lattice or a fence, to obtain privacy and to keep out unpleasant views, and which has been planted with flowers, either in a border or in formal beds, will be a pleasant place, indeed, in which to pass a summer afternoon or evening.

It will be still more charming if a birds' corner is provided to attract migrants in their season and such permanent guests as our latitude affords. Let us encourage song birds that stay the season through. The brown thrasher and cat bird are the most melodious and the scarlet tanager and oriole the most decorative and perhaps the rarest, while robins, crows, meadow larks, flickers, various species of woodpeckers and a score of other kinds of birds are quite as plentiful as sparrows if one does but invite them.

Home Comes First.

The possession of a home, and the thought and interest centered upon a home make for contentment, peace and thrift, and all the qualities that make the ideal citizen.

Money spent on the home is the greatest investment, spend a little more to keep intact that greatest of divine institutions, remembering also that beauty and cost are not synonyms and that it is possible to create a harmonious environment with a moderate outlay, providing one is willing to make the necessary effort to cultivate a discriminating taste.

Through the magnitude of its influence in the formation of character—the home rules the life of a community and a country. Better homes make better children, better children make better citizens and better citizens a better nation. Neglect of home is criminal—a neglect of country.

Planning the Garden.

Any one with a knowledge of the principles of composition and balance, some familiarity with planting, such as is desired to reproduce, and a good catalogue to give descriptions can make up a planting list without fear that it will not look well. It is difficult indeed to devise a shrubbery planting that will not look better than what preceded it; and it is always possible to shift shrubs around. So start out fearlessly, confident that the further you go in study and experience the greater your pleasure.

MAKE USE OF SHRUBBERY

Back Yard May Be Made a Thing of Beauty by the Judicious Use of Trees and Vines.

Step into your back yard and look in six directions—north, east, south, west, up and down. You are fortunately situated if there is in more than one of these directions a view that cannot be improved. The view up is likely to be charming, and the view down, if you have a good lawn, will be. But in the other four directions, it is likely there are pictures which you would not care to have framed on the walls of your living room.

Where this is the case, the elimination of these views is the first object of garden planning. The boundaries of the private area must be determined. Allow for a vegetable garden, either within this area, or adjoining it, in a location which enjoys the maximum of sun possible. The service area for domestic uses must also be set aside unless the premises are too limited for that. And when this is done, plantings to screen the private area from the outside world, or such of it as may be undesirable to the view, may be planned.

Usually shrubbery with a few trees for accents and shade will furnish the most pleasing boundary planting. But where space is much confined lattice or board fences, to be covered with vines or even left uncovered, may be used to advantage. Use the fence if shrubbery threatens to encroach upon the flower borders or central lawn; for the chief interest of the garden will not be found in the trees and shrubs; it will be in the flowers, and the activities which may be enjoyed on the lawn.

Removal of Soot.

The Federal Fuel Administration board suggests the following plan for removal of soot: The fire is put into good condition with a substantial body of hot fuel. Common salt thoroughly dried is then thrown or sprinkled onto the incandescent fuel bed in a quantity depending entirely on the size of the furnace. In case of a house-heating furnace one pound at a time is ample, in the case of a larger power plant boiler, four or five scoopfuls may be required. The dampers are kept open so as to maintain the furnace temperature, and the salt is allowed to remain until the fumes have entirely disappeared.

Immediately upon charging with salt, the furnace becomes filled with dense white fumes which may require as much as half an hour to entirely disappear. If results are not secured on the first application it should be repeated as many times as necessary.

Once the heating surface is thoroughly cleaned a small application every few days is usually sufficient to keep it so.

I'm building a garage

(Says Bill the Builder)—and I'll be gum swizzled if I'll park Henry under a tree for another night's lodging. Henry is a good, faithful steed, but he gets rheumatism in his universal joints from exposure to the night air. So it's a swell room with private bath and all modern conveniences for Henry, and I saved the price of two new tires and a wash and polish, because I bought my lumber from

"Neighborhood" OF Broadview

Important Factors in Buying Real Estate! No. 2

Study location before everything when buying real estate. Broadview is on West Broad Street and in the city. Everywhere in America the same thing is true—the finest residential property is on and adjacent to the principle arteries of transportation.

On the south side of West Broad, two blocks beyond Hague Avenue, Broadview is in the direct path of the Hilltops greatest growth. High and Healthy; it will be another Indianola, Pexaley or Glen Echo.

Heed & Holton have never in their history sold a subdivision without city improvements. Broadview will have every improvement the city can give, done under regular city supervision and procedure. Every lot will have sewer, water, gas and improved street.

Lots in Broadview have not an equal in Columbus for value. Liberal terms, may be arranged especially for early purchasers. A substantial discount will be allowed for cash.

You will be proud to live in Broadview. Picture in your mind the high, clear air of the Hilltop, a district of winding boulevards and green parks, and new homes among growing elm trees.

Pleasant families will live in Broadview—neighbors you will like and enjoy a community interest with. Well removed from the smoke and grime of downtown sections, you will yet be living within the city with direct transportation in West Broad Street by auto, city and interurban lines.

Broadview Specially Planned

At the very beginning of Broadview it was determined that it should be one of the most attractive residence sections of Columbus. A nationally known architect was given full charge of laying out this superbly located property. He has done his work well.

Next all lots were carefully restricted. Only single houses can be built and these are regulated as to cost. There is a 30-foot building line on all lots. You would not want to build your home and have a shack, a garage, or a row of flats next to or even near you.

Community Life Complete

Community life in Broadview will be complete, too, for there are churches of every denomination within easy walking distance, splendid stores conveniently at hand, and West Broad Street School, one of the city's newest and finest, is just two blocks away.

We have a list of those who have already bought in Broadview. We are proud of this list and will be pleased to show it to you. Most of these folks, who will be your neighbors, already own homes but want something better. Broadview fulfills their desires completely, as it will yours.

Come out to Broadview Saturday or Sunday. Our representatives will meet you; or we'll send an auto any week-day.

Pointed Paragraphs

WASTAGE IN MANY LINES

Figures do not lie. Statisticians, however, will figure, and by figures it is possible to prove almost anything, says the Insurance World. One of them has been sitting up nights and as a result of his burning the midnight oil has finally arrived at the startling conclusion that 225,000 man years have been spent, wasted, frittered away during the course of the current year through strikes alone. We presume, knowing not to the contrary, that he has figured on the basis of an eight-hour day. We are now living in the year 1923. Some few of us will probably live to see the year 2000. To realize, however, what 225,000 years means is beyond human comprehension. How many hours a day are wasted by men engaged in the insurance business? How many eight-hour day years have been spent foolishly? What might have been accomplished if every insurance man were to devote eight honest-to-goodness hours, six days every week, to development of the business? We are not sufficient of a statistician to work out the answer. We will not even hazard a guess. Every call, however, every interview, has a potential value, which it is possible to ascertain from individual experience. Figure it out for yourself, and see how many eight-hour day years you have wasted.

Of the Pan-Hispanic movement little is known outside a narrow circle in North America—we know too little of our neighbors, writes David Y. Thomas in the North American Review. If the "economic interpretation of history" is the correct one, then the Pan-Hispanic movement seems utterly hopeless, for the economic interests common to Spain and her former colonies are very, very small. But some day we shall learn that economic determinants are more powerful among some people than among others. That they are powerful in the United States is beyond dispute, that they are not equally powerful in Latin America seems also beyond dispute. "Blood is thicker than water" is an expression with which Americans are familiar. Some day, perhaps, we shall learn that spiritual ties of blood and culture are stronger than bonds forged of gold. Pan-America has not arrived. Before it does we may have to change our attitude on some questions.

Mah jongg, the Chinese game of chance played with domino-shaped pieces of ivory and bamboo—is threatening to take the place of the card game, bridge. One reason for mah jongg's popularity is its cost. A standard set sells from $18.74 up into the hundreds. Americans usually buy things because they are extremely cheap or very expensive. Any business man who has been through several panics and booms knows this. We are a nation of extremists. Some one must be making a big clean-up selling mah jongg sets. Yet the game is thousands of years old. It finally occurred to a resourceful brain to market it. World is full of opportunities, waiting to be discovered.

There are no dull subjects in this world to write about, but the world is full of mighty dull writers, says George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post. Young writers, seeking a market, can save themselves a lot of time and effort by knowing that this is the acid test in the general magazine business: "Is it interesting?" All other qualifications are secondary. That's why so many badly written stories get into print. They're interesting, in the opinion of the editors—who average just as dull as the writers and readers.

Somebody urges a national system of finger-prints—finger-prints for everybody. It would furnish a comfortable job for the finger-print expert and some other bureaucrats. But again the ghost of old dead Russia lifts a bony forefinger and says: "Beware of bureaucracies!"

Statistics show that the per capita consumption of eggs in the United States is one-half of an egg a day. Just possibly that is where the hens get their idea that they are giving us an even break.

A man held at Ellis Island speaks no language that immigration interpreters can understand. Let him in—he'll soon get a job as a train announcer or a street car conductor.

We were proud of the fact that five-sixths of the world's motorcars were owned in the United States, until we noted that 12,000 were killed in this country by automobiles last year.

But in charging women smokers with the increase in loss from fires, due to matches and smoking, the underwriters overlook the fact that most other causes showed increases, too.

Physiologists say that the right ear is more efficient than the left. It is evident that Nature did not anticipate the telephone.

A prominent hatter says the high silk hat is doomed. As far as most of us are concerned, it always was.

"You can't eat cotton in the state," says the Galveston News. We suppose it is always better boiled or fried.

A FAMILY WEAKNESS

"You are descended from the Pilgrim Fathers?"

"I am, sir," replied the impecunious citizen. "My ancestors came to this country 302 years ago and it's my firm belief that none of their descendants has ever accumulated enough money to make the return trip."

Gave Parents Good Laugh.

A. N. R. writes that this took place the other day at his family table:

Son (aged 7½)—Dad, which is the oldest language?

Dad—Sanscrit, as far as I know.

Son (after brief pause)—Mother, I know which is the oldest language.

Mother—Good for you, what is it?

Son—Transcript.—Boston Evening Transcript.

The Proof.

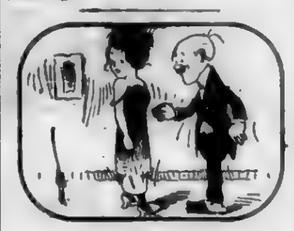
Paying Teller—But, madam, you will have to be identified before I can cash this check for you.



Fair Caller (blushing furiously)—Oh, I just hate to do it, and George would be dreadfully angry, but I have a love letter here which describes me fully, if you care to see it.

Quick Thinking.

Gordon Gin—Speaking of scandal, the last time I saw Miss Billings she wasn't able to walk.

Mr. Billings (who has overheard him)—What do you mean, sir!

Gordon Gin (hastily)—Er—she was too young—you see it was twenty years ago!

ART

"Mabel's face looks drawn tonight."

"I should say it looks painted instead of drawn."

Very Comforting.

"If money is really vocal,
Then I'll say," quoth Harry Hupp.
"It's an optimistic talker,
For it cheers a fellow up."

Wifely Optimism.

Hub—When I see all those bills et, tired of living. Do you think time will ever come when we shall out of debt?

Wife (cheerfully)—Why not, dear, you know you are carrying an exceptionally large life insurance.—Boston Evening Transcript.

News of Interest — KERR'S

REMOVAL SALE

STARTS SATURDAY

We are going to consolidate our two stores, moving the Hilltop Branch (W. Broad, corner Oakley) to the Main Store at the corner of W. Broad and Grubb Streets. Our object is to be able to sell "lifetime" furniture still cheaper by eliminating the expense of two stores, and to give our customers the advantage of a much greater selection all under one roof.

The Hilltop Store will close April 30th. We are going to sell every piece of furniture in that store to avoid the expense of moving. We have slashed the prices to where people cannot resist buying if they are in need of furniture or rugs this year. The terms of this phenomenal sale must be cash or C. O. D. and delivery must be made at once.

Building and loan associations everywhere are always glad to talk over any person's building problems. It has been the experience of the building association that in nine cases out of ten the various association officers will be familiar with the locality or even the street on which the prospective home builder contemplates putting up his home. This knowledge comes from having made many loans in various sections, and this makes the officers competent to advise whether certain types of houses would be the best.

Holmes Hilltop Library News

We are informed that the formal opening of the Holmes Hilltop Library will take place on Tuesday, May 8th. The management expect to have a program to be followed by a social hour. The program will be published later.

Work of redecorating the room and getting everything in first-class shape is going right along. As soon as all is ready to receive them, the books will be moved and put in their proper places by a first-class system.

Mrs. H. S. Cuvelier, of Kildon avenue, has been chosen as the librarian, and expects to be on duty at the opening.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES"

The Young Married People's Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church will present the comedy, "What Happened to Jones," at the West High School Auditorium on Central Avenue Friday (tomorrow) night, at 8 p. m., April 20th.

This is a play by George Broadhurst and is said to be one of the funniest plays every written by that author. The plot includes a mistake between a salesman and a Bishop from Balarat in Australia, who is expected in America to visit a sister, the wife of the college professor. The general mixup which takes place is full of fun and the predicaments into which all of the caste fall will make the sober laugh with glee.

Jones is played by Mr. Chas. Barrell and the part of the Bishop of Balarat is taken by Phil. Cunningham, and the parts played by the ladies are generously distributed among several excellent character delineators from the class.

Tickets are 35 cents for adults and 20 cents for children. The play is a royalty play, which has run for several seasons in New York City, and should give satisfaction.

Tickets may be secured from the class members or at the door Friday night.

If you want to sell or buy Hilltop property, call Mrs. Hill, 94 Whitethorne Ave.

Seiller's Profit Sharing Sale starts Friday, April 20th, and ends Monday, April 30th.

The Beta Lambda class of Glenwood Sunday School will meet Tuesday evening, April 24th, in the basement of the church.

Mr. Mac Orebaugh of Greenfield, Ohio, visited with Mrs. M. G. Geyer, 252 Burgess Avenue, Tuesday morning.

The art of fire prevention is largely a matter of good housekeeping.

According to the Underwriters' Laboratories of Chicago, 75 per cent of all fires occur in the home. There is one fire every minute of the day and night in the United States. Last year fire destroyed property worth $600,000,000, and there were 35,000 lives lost.

Ignorance and carelessness are the main causes of most fires, it is pointed out by the Underwriters' Laboratories. Simple precautions that should be taken to reduce the number of fires are:

Do not allow rubbish to accumulate in attics, closets and odd corners. Be careful where you keep oil and oily or greasy rags. Place ashes in metal containers. Use fireproof roofing on houses. Have chimneys inspected and kept free from soot. Avoid use of gas connections with rubber tubing, and exercise care in use of electrical devices.

Due to the increasing use of soft coal large numbers of shingle roof and defective flue fires are being reported from all parts of the country. Then, too, the accumulation of soot on heating surfaces reduces the value of the fuel, and frequently clogs the flues and starts fires.

Health Hints

By Doctor McFadon.

Do you know how to relax? If not, then you do not get the full benefit of your exercise. There are athletes who relax properly and are long-lived and others that are short-lived, mainly because they do not relax as they should. We see people beautiful in hard muscles. They would better be able to show soft pliable muscles between strokes, which some cannot do.

I once saw an exhibition of great strength and large muscles on the stage. The man's pale, sallow complexion attracted my attention and I hunted him up after the show. I found his muscles very hard and he could not relax them. He was muscle bound. I did not see nor hear of him afterward, but I am guessing that he was one of the short lived athletes. His exercising may not have been overdone, but his relaxing was underdone.

It is a fact that the blood cannot flow freely through a tensed muscle, but in the short period of relaxation which should follow, it rushes through the recently cramped blood vessels and makes up for lost time. We gain the strength that is beneficial to all parts of the body when we are relaxed, and only then. In like manner children do their growing while asleep. Our food stimulates and strengthens us by day and, if properly relaxed we make good our losses during sleep. Here is a good argument for laughter, mirth and light entertainment in the evening.

Social Affairs

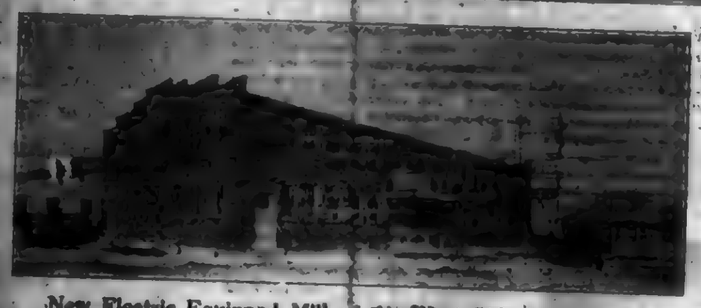
The members of Mr. Butler's Sunday School class and their friends were entertained with a surprise birthday party in honor of Joe Wyman, at his home last week. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Roller, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hooker and daughter, Rev. and Mrs. Stimmel, Walter Edwards, Henry Keller, Helen Stahl, Ruth Merriman, Ruth Curran and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wyman.



Mrs. Swigert's Sunday School class held a meeting in the form of a "Kid Party" at the home of Marie Sinn, 131 Eldon Avenue, Tuesday evening, April 17. An enjoyable time was reported.

The members of the Sons of St. George and the Ladies Aid planned a most pleasant surprise on Mrs. Tom Crompton, Saturday evening, April 7th, in honor of his birthday. They met at the corner of Eureka and Broad streets and went to his home at 79 S. Eureka avenue. They crept cautiously up to the door and went in singing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," surrounding him as he sat smoking his pipe of peace in front of the fire. Mr. Tomlinson kept the crowd entertained by calling on different ones for songs, readings, dances, and music. Luncheon was served by the ladies. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Cook, Miss Hazel Cook, Miss Bessie Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pounds, Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson, Mr. and Mrs. Meese, Mr. and Mrs. Cartmell, Betty Cartmell, Mr. and Mrs. Max Bode, Mrs. Ruth Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Addison and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Royse, Miss Marie Bowsher, Mr. Alex McKenzie and two children, Mr. and Mrs. David Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Summer and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Crompton, Jack and Dora Crompton. They departed at a late hour, wishing Mr. Tom Crompton many happy birthdays. Ask him if he was surprised and how it is to be a jolly good fellow.

A very jolly crowd spent Saturday evening at the home of Wilbur Gaffin, 975 Whitethorne Avenue, in honor of Mr. Gaffin's 25th birthday. Very delicious refreshments were served and all wished Mr. Gaffin many more birthdays and asked him to have a birthday every month instead of once a year. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Gaffin, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jester, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Hughes, Mrs. Nellie Keagy, Miss Nellie Keagy, Doris Jester, Kenneth and Frederick Wiggins and Baby Gaffin.

Thursday, April 12th, a bridal shower was given at the home of Miss Ruth Merriman, 134 South Eureka, in honor of Mrs. Kenneth Dickerson (Sarah Westlake). Color scheme of pink and white was carried in the living room and dining room. The centerpiece for the table was a miniature house all lit up by candle light. Those present were Mrs. E. T. Stimmel, Miss May Haas, Mrs. Martha Rucker, Mrs. M. W. Westlake, Mrs. Joseph Wyman, Miss Maxine Matthews, Miss Frieda Schaffer, Miss Edith Sawyer, Miss Helen Stahl, Mrs. W. K. Merriman, Mr. Willard Jones, Herschell Ferguson, Artie Crabb, Walter Edwards, Carl Rucker, Joseph Wyman, Mr. W. K. Merriman. The guests of honor: Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dickerson and the hostess. The guests departed at a late hour wishing the happy couple as long and happy married life.

The regular meeting of Robert Morris Social Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Fishbaugh, 283 South Terrace, Thursday afternoon, April 26th, at 2 p. m. All members of Robert Morris Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, invited.

Everyone invited to the Bake Sale at Seiller's. Ladies' Aid Society of Hoge Memorial Church, April 21st, Saturday, all day.

Stanley W. Colburn, Assessor, 11th Ward, will receive your personal tax returns after April 2, 1923, at his home, 304 Midland Ave., after 5 p. m., any day. Will be at Hilltop Engine House, corner Wheatland Ave. and W. Broad St. the following dates: Saturdays, April 21, 28, 2 to 8 p.m. April 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 5 to 8 p.m. Monday, April 30, all day.

Note—Mrs. Colburn will also take care of those at the house while I am at the Engine House. Come early and avoid last minute rush.

A MAGNET FOR SORROW

"Is it your practice to go about looking for trouble?"

"No," replied Mr. Grumpson. "It has been my experience that if a person will stand in one place long enough, and look as if he had no friends and no influence, trouble will just naturally gravitate to him."

Poor Chance for Him.

She—What would your father do if I told him I wanted to marry you?

He—He'd refer the matter to me.

She (hopefully)—And what would you do?

He—I'd refer the matter to Mr. Smart, who proposed to me and was accepted while you were trying to make up your mind.

DOING AWAY WITH UGLINESS

Citizens of Kansas City Have the Right Idea in Influencing the Taste of the Public.

Speaking of city beautification, a coordinate subject with city improvements on a $100,000,000 scale, it is interesting to note that Kansas City has a "Citizens' Anti-Ugly Association." Its object is to keep the town upraised up. It calls attention to things that ought to be done to make Kansas City prettier and the things that ought not to be done that will make it less pretty than it is.

It is greatly interested in zoning and in lesser esthetic regulations such as those that affect billboards, weeds, tree pruning, and Topsy-like sheep architecture that "just growed" without planning.

Its main influence at first is propagandist. Precept and preaching is the idea; but ordinances are also an aim.

There is much in persuading the public taste; and a single object lesson in beauty is worth a hundred sermons. In our own humble opinion if you want an appreciation of beauty in city planning and building, show a bit of it accomplished—and there'll be a demand for more.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Two Points to Remember.

If trees and shrubs are to be planted, they must be considered from two standpoints—the space they occupy on the ground, or plan; and their outline against the sky, or elevation. In this study artistic skill is called into play to create the best possible effects. The contour should be studied with a view to blotting out unpleasant views and allowing glimpses of pleasant ones, at the same time avoiding monotonous and poorly balanced effects. Shrubbery borders always have irregular outlines except where the shrubs are to be clipped to formal hedge effects; and the arrangement of these outlines requires careful study. The shrubs should be selected so that those in front reach the ground with their foliage, concealing the unsightly bare stems of more upright and taller varieties. And excellent effects may be obtained by grouping with respect to flowering season and winter appearance; and even with respect to the color of foliage, as great variation exists in the greens.

Pride in "Home Town."

It will always be a fact that a man's home town, the town that by has helped to make, to develop, and beautify, is to him all he thinks it is. To others to whom he may be describing it, he may seem to draw on his imagination; to the man who has no sentiment he may seem to be overenthusiastic, but really he isn't. He has cause for satisfaction, for gratification, if his efforts to promote his home town have produced results that conduce to the contentment and happiness of all who live in it.

Luminous House Numbers.

One of the most disconcerting experiences of the city dweller is that of searching in the dark for a house number. If the hour is late, the situation is especially embarrassing, for the innocent visitor is liable to be mistaken for a prowler.

But thanks to science, the old days are past, and the time is not far distant when probably every city house will be numbered with figures which are easily readable on the darkest night and at a considerable distance.

A Chicago concern has adapted the use of luminous radium to house numbering signs, and the idea is being received with great favor by the public. The first cost is reasonable, and there is no upkeep cost, the sign being self-luminous and requiring no attention. The product is guaranteed to show light in the dark for five years, although the actual life is much longer.

Plant at Once.

To make sure that the planting of shrubs, trees and plants is well begun, we must go back to the time when the delivery man brings in that interesting looking box or bale and you begin to open it with ill-concealed excitement. If nursery stock is not to be planted at once it is better to leave it in its package after partially opening it and wetting the roots thoroughly. If several days must intervene before it can be planted, it is advisable to "heel" it; trees and shrubs, that is, dig a temporary trench and cover the roots thoroughly, so that the air will not reach them. Remember that the natural place for roots is in the ground, and the shorter the time between digging in the nursery and replanting in the yard the better. When possible, the beds for shrubs and flowers should be prepared well in advance in order to allow the soil to settle.

Plant Trees Now.

With the gigantic road-building program before the states, plans should certainly be made now for tree-lined approaches to every town. First impressions are everything with an individual, and so with a community. It is all very well to put up the welcoming sign at either end of the town limits but why not look the part with some inviting trees? The American Tree Association is making every true planter a member. Why not have the entire community join in this tree-planting movement?

That man who has invented an automobile with legs might now get busy trying to produce one that also has a horse.

Although more or less pessimistic, the millennium probably means the day when Europe settles down and goes to work.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES?"

A Play Given by the Young Married People's Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Sunday School.

There is a touching love story threading its way through the entire play which makes it doubly appealing. More than to conditions of mistaken identity and mixing of prominent characters are the witticisms of an escaped lunatic who thinks he is an Indian and the antics and brevity of English of the Swedish Maid, Helma, Ebenezer Goodly, the professor of anatomy, and Jones take a very active and leading part. Charles W. Barrel plays the part of Jones and Mr. Hubbert Compton of Fort Hayes plays the part of Ebenezer, the professor.

The play is a general mixup in identification between a salesman and the Bishop of Ballarat, who is expected on a visit to his brother, the college professor.

The class has secured the West High School auditorium in which to give it. The Robbins-Greiser School of Music will furnish music with their talented orchestra and every member of the Y. M. P. Bible Class is working hard to make it a big success. The proceeds will be used for the new building at Hoge Memorial Church.

Those taking part in the play are: Mrs. H. Compton, Mrs. R. E. Shields, Mrs. C. Bercaw, Mrs. D. U. Kreager, Mrs. A. Rhinehart, Mrs. I. Spencer, Mr. Hubert Compton, officer at Fort Hayes, Mr. O. E. Spencer, Mr. George W. Matson, Mr. Phil Cunningham, Mr. Hayden Jones, Mr. Sam Roberts, Mr. Charles W. Barrell.

The play has been very much discussed and will prove a drawing attraction not only for its very intricate acting and mix-up of character, but also for its subtler moments of close delineation of farcical human entanglements.

West High Auditorium, Friday, April 20, 8 p. m.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Young Married People's Class at 35 cents for adults and 20 cents for children. The whole family will enjoy and laugh at this very amusing comedy.

HOME-OWNERS ARE PROTECTED

Legislature Enacts Law to Safeguard Small Savers.

"WILDCATTERS" ARE HIT AGAIN

General Assembly Takes Quick Action Against Promoters Who Attempt to Invade Home Building Field—New Law Further Strengthens Building and Loan Institutions.

Columbus, O. — (Special.) — Homeowners still have first place in the thoughts of Ohio's law-makers. This was evidenced when members of both houses of the 88th general assembly passed almost unanimously the King bill, which provides additional safeguards for the two million and a half Ohioans who are depositors and borrowers in Ohio building and loan associations. Despite the fact that depositors in building and loan associations in Ohio, according to evidence presented to members of the legislature, have not lost a penny in any building and loan institution during the last decade, the building and loan men in Ohio asked the legislature for a new building and loan law in order to further strengthen the safety of their institutions.

The appalling losses suffered by the people of Ohio during the last several years through investment in worthless securities was first brought to light by the officers of the state association of the building and loan men. As a result of the fight conducted by the building and loan men for safe and sane investing, Ohioans have been saved many millions of dollars. However, when the spot-light of publicity was thrown upon the fake stock salesman, promoters in various parts of the state then turned their attention to the organization of promotional building and loan companies. The building and loan men, however, were fast as prompt in fighting irregularities in their own business as they were in picking flaws in the various stock-selling and promotional investment companies.

CHARLES G. KING,
Author of the New Ring law.

The new bill just passed by the legislature prohibits the organization of building and loan companies through promotional methods and does not permit the charging of a membership fee in connection with the organization of these institutions. The new building and loan law is now known as the King bill, because of its introduction by Representative Charles G. King of Massillon.

"The fake stock salesman has been preying upon practically every class of individual in the state for the last five years and finally he turned to the home-owner and the prospective home-owner," declared James A. Devine, secretary of the Ohio Building Association League. He told members of the legislature that the record of building and loan companies had been such during the last 30 years that it was very easy for unscrupulous salesman to go out and sell stock to the unsuspecting public in promotional building and loan companies.

Mr. Devine, in commenting on the new building and loan law, declared that the legislature had made it impossible for promoters to fleece the people of Ohio out of millions of dollars through the sale of promotional building and loan stock. "If we had permitted promoters to flood the state with hastily organized building and loan companies, we might have had a serious situation," declared Mr. Devine. He said the new building and loan law made the old-line building and loan companies practically loan-proof.

The new law gives the superintendent of building and loan institutions the power and right to say when and where a new building and loan company shall be organized and each institution can be organized only where there is a very definite need for such an organization. There are now more than 300 building and loan institutions in Ohio, everyone of which, according to the last report made by the superintendent of building and loan associations, is in good shape.

POINT FOR HOME BUILDERS

"Waste" for Which There Is No Necessity, and Which It Is Easy to Eliminate.

You have observed homes nearing completion and noted unused lumber lengths, studs, joists, flooring, bricks, short ends strewn "helter skelter" around the house and lot. These "left overs" usually provide the home owner with kindling wood for several years to come. At $80 per thousand feet this makes mighty expensive fuel. Sometimes this waste amounts to as much as the first year's interest on the home building investment. In nearly all cases this waste is unjustified. If the home is yours, you pay for it.

Another important source of waste is the unnecessary use of elaborate finish and expensive equipment in small homes. You can select a type wholly out of comparison, so far as expense is concerned, with the cost of the home. You can build an extravagant, complicated roof, you can overload your home with unnecessary meaningless details, such as monstrous brackets, wide, projecting eaves, heavy cornices and "frilly" things which have the appearance of being fillers or "stuck on" in an attempt to secure architectural effects.

Much of this has little or no architectural merit, renders no service, detracts from the beauty of the home, and certainly piles up the total costs to unjustified amounts. Details of this character and special equipment frequently require special knives and extra mill work.

"Extras" are things which many home builders can do without and in no way interfere with the beauty, service or comfort of the home. It is worth while to remember these things and see that your home plans are designed to eliminate waste.

A Good Phrase.

This phrase I saw:
In all things I
Observe the law.

Betwixt and Between.

"Well, well, if it isn't you, Mrs. Tremenny! And how have you been all this time?"

"Sure, I'm like the average—seldom sick and never well."—Life.

Heavy Solution.

"Harkins thinks he is a man of weight."

"That's natural enough for he surrounds a big opinion of himself."

HUT TREES HAVE REAL VALUE

No Argument of Value Can Be Advanced Why These Species Should Not Be Planted.

For roadside planting many of the best authorities urge the use of nut trees, as combining the elements of shade tree beauty with those of crop-producing utility, writes Charles Lathrop Pack in "Trees as Good Citizens," which goes into every phase of tree planting. They argue that for size, attractiveness, and purely ornamental effect some members of the nut group are among the most desirable of American trees and that they excel most other trees of hardwood timber value in rapid growth, length of life and resistance to insects and disease.

With this blend of the artistic and the practical, the advocates of this type of planting are constantly gaining new followers, and the growing of nut trees along the highways is steadily becoming more frequent.

Perhaps the first objection offered when this type is suggested is the likelihood of raids on the nut crop by people passing along the highway. The simplest reply is, even in the event of complete loss of the crop, the property owner is as well off as he would have been with unproductive species.

His highway has the benefit of the shade, the landscape has had the added beauty and picturesqueness provided by magnificent trees, and the farm has the increased value that comes from these advantages. To carry the reply still further, it may be pointed out that complete loss is neither necessary nor probable.

WHAT CITY PLANNING MEANS

Carefully Worked Out, It Is to the Advantage of Every Dweller in the Community.

Before the days of the elevator and the steel frame, when the city population was only a small fraction of the population of the country, before the days of the automobile and noisy garage, dwellers in cities could live in comparative peace with only the common-law protection against a bone factory. The ever-increasing rapidity of growth of modern cities in all countries, the mighty changes of the last forty years, have continued to make city planning a necessity.

City planning is using thought for the morrow so that streets, parks, public places and public buildings shall be in the right place and be adequate for the needs of the future. City planning is more than this, for it includes the regulation of the use of land privately owned by zoning ordinances.

The term "zoning" has come to be used to mean the regulation of buildings in a city. It signifies such regulation of the height, area and use of buildings as will protect each landowner from the impairment of his share of light and access as will protect his city from unnecessary noises, the mere from unpleasant smells, and his eyes from offensive sights.

Selfish Citizens.

There are in both towns and cities men who will not go along unless they can see some special personal benefit to accrue from the efforts they are asked to make. In towns this sort of citizen is sometimes a distinct liability and has to be made over into an asset; in cities, however, he can frequently be ignored, and is unless politics is so rotten that he has to be given a share. In both towns and cities this sort of chap is sometimes shrewd, crafty, and boisterous enough to get his chestnuts pulled out of the fire for him, and in the larger cities to assume leadership and control the situation, as is the case in New York city. Some one has said, it takes all kinds of people to make a world, and this is true of cities and towns which go to make up the world.—Exchange.

Utilizing Shade Trees.

Europe has realized and utilized the beauty of shade trees to an extent undreamed of in the United States. While most of the streets laid out in the Middle Ages are too narrow to permit planting, many the beautiful boulevards may have two, four and sometimes six rows along the entire length. Country roads are invariably lined with arching shade trees, which add greatly to comfort and scenery for the pedestrian or motorist. Looking across gardenlike fields one sees parallel rows of trees and knows that they mark another road, or possibly a canal. In a few places dense evergreens are used, so darkening the road as to make it necessary to use automobile lights even at noon on a bright day.

Trees on Country Roads.

Dwellers in towns and cities are not the only persons with a definite duty as to the planting of shade trees. Rural communities also have a responsibility in this respect, since shade is as necessary to country roads as to city streets. The farmer certainly deserves as much as the urbanite in the way of beauty, health and comfort.

And Well Worth While.

If a little town could be interested in making itself beautiful, that alone would keep it busy 24 hours a day.

Competent Witness.

Judge—You are charged with arson.

Prisoner—Call my wife. She can testify that I never started a fire when I've been married to her.

The Radio Scores.

Improvements OF Broadview

Important Factors in Buying Real Estate!
No. 3

LOCATION

Broadview, on West Broad St., just two blocks west of Hague Ave., lies in the high, healthy air of the Hilltop, and in the direct path of that section's greatest growth. Well removed from the smoke and grime of downtown districts, it is yet within the city, with direct and speedy transportation, by auto and by local and interurban cars, in West Broad Street.

Beyond question Broadview is one of the finest located subdivisions, from the standpoint of both home builder and investor, that has ever been offered the people of Columbus.

NEIGHBORHOOD

If you like Beechwold, Glen Echo or Bexley, you will like Broadview. It will be a community of fine people with a community interest in the section where they live. We have a list of those who have already purchased home sites. We will be proud to show it to you.

Remember that this will be a carefully restricted neighborhood with nothing but single houses of a certain standard permitted, but with West Broad Street School, churches of all denominations and splendid stores all within easy walking distance.

Subdivision property, be it ever so well located, cannot greatly increase in value without city improvements. Residence property gains value according to how badly people want to live on it and this demand naturally does not exist until improvements are in and civilized life possible.

Heed and Holton have always held to a definite policy - to offer only well located property with city improvements. Broadview, located on West Broad Street, two blocks west of Hague, is certainly well located. Moreover it is within the city and will have every improvement the city can provide, put in under regular city supervision and procedure. Every lot will have sewer, water, gas, improved street and everything necessary to comfortable city life.

Such a division as Broadview, laid out with beautiful, winding drives and boulevards, dotted with parks and carefully restricted in every respect, will be the Hilltop's finest residential section. These superbly located lots, with city improvements, will draw home seekers and home builders from every section of Columbus.

Many have already bought in Broadview at the first opportunity, in fact, because they knew that it was offered by Heed and Holton and protected by the Heed and Holton policy which has made money for every client this firm has ever had.

From a value standpoint lots in Broadview are a certain and profitable investment. Very easy terms may be arrangement for payment and a liberal discount is allowed for cash.

"Home Town" With the Resident [illegible] for a

In the smoking compartment of a pullman not very long ago a gentleman told his fellow travelers a great many good things about his home town. Indeed, he told so many that one of his fellow travelers thought he would visit that town and, if he found it as represented, would move his business there. In due season the traveler did visit that town and on returning to his city office observed that the representative of the town whom he had met on the train "had drawn on his imagination tremendously." He may have and he may not have—it all depends on viewpoint.

To the resident it may have been an ideal town; to the stranger it may have lacked many things he regarded as essential. To the resident, substantial well-to-do people living in comfortable homes with plenty of breathing space about them, having gardens and shrubbery, with a community center building, and just enough industry to give opportunity for livelihood, it may have been desirable. On the other hand, its unpaved streets, lack of street cars, theaters, and so on, may have stamped the town to the city man as undesirable for home or business. The one lived there, perhaps all his life; while the other could only exist there without the excitements and pleasures to which he had been accustomed, though in the great city where he lived he did not know even his next door neighbor.

But beyond these things there may have been other reasons, and one of them may be this—the resident had helped make the town what it is; the other had no sentiment in the matter whatsoever, simply a cold calculated estimate. Men who create take pride in their creations. Good home-makers are generally good town-makers, because they want good homes in good towns. They have public spirit, civic pride, and loyalty, because when men work together for the common good they stick together for greater progress. Men in small towns know what they have accomplished; those who live in large cities have to guess at what they have done—too many find little opportunity to do anything—so engrossed are they with their own private business. There's a reason why the one has sentiment while the other has none.—Grit.

TREES THE REAL BEAUTIFIER

Their Presence or Absence Makes All the Difference to the Appearance of City's Streets.

No other feature does so much to give the home a well-dressed appearance as the presence of trees. Whether it be the stately mansion, with its broad sweep of spacious lawn, or the modest residence on the 40-foot lot, the graceful foliage of trees or shrubs is necessary to produce the homelike charm. If there is room for many trees, this room should be used.

Let it be remembered that in beautifying the home with trees the outlay is to be regarded as an investment, pure and simple; an investment in beauty, in health, in comfort and, finally, in cash value. Any one of these would make the investment worth while.

This principle applies to communities as well as to the individual homes. The visitor to town or city gains his first and most lasting impression from the presence or absence of shade trees. The community with streets bare and bleak and shadeless is dismissed as an undesirable place in which to live. Shaded streets and tree-clad lawns have a charm which often proves the deciding factor in influencing the home seeker in his choice of a place of residence.—"Trees Are Good Citizens," by C. L. Pack.

Avoiding Plague of Rats.

The bad results of carelessness in leaving breaks in the basement walls of a building originally intended to be rat proof are shown in a case recently reported to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. In the course of a rat campaign in Portland, Ore., in which the rodent-control men from the department were backed by the city bureau of health and the chamber of commerce, a building with unrepaired breaks of this sort was visited. The owner was advised to clean up all the rubbish in his basement, repair the breaks in the cement wall, use barium carbonate on Hamburg steak to poison the rats, and also to set some traps. A few days later it was learned that in removing the trash three rat nests were uncovered, one of which contained fifteen young. Thirty six adult rats were found dead the morning after the poison was spread.

Town Forests a Blessing.

The memorial town forest is one of the greatest blessings that can come to any New England community. No town is too poor to have its forest park, donated by public-spirited citizens and developing into a source of direct profit to the town, observes the New England Homestead. Much of the local tax can be paid out of the revenue from the town's memorial forest, as the generations go on. Many a farmer will gladly donate to the town waste land or sprout land that may be worse than useless to him but joined with other tracts can be transformed into a good thing for the community. Other farmers and citizens will give more valuable land, or standing wood, or cash with which to help add to the town forest. A map of it, with names of donors or memorials, printed in the town report, will add to the public interest.

The Flower Beds.

Use discretion in laying out your beds and in selecting the plants. Keep the flowers along the borders. Don't clutter up a beautiful expanse of soft bluegrass lawn with round or square beds.

Select the flower seed so that you will have blossoms throughout the summer. There are flowers that are constant bloomers and you can select the others so that one kind will follow another. Of course, the flower beds should be used in connection with shrubs.—Farm Life.

WINNING PARSON'S FEE, MAYBE

"What is it, dear?" asked her girl friend, finding her in tears.

"W-why," she sobbed, "I t-told Jack, after he proposed, to go into the library and see papa."

"What of that?"

"Why, they started playing cards and now he goes to see papa every night."

The Process.

"How long did you work on that speech?

"Several weeks."

"I didn't know it took so long to prepare a political address."

"Ordinarily it doesn't but there are times in the career of a public man when he has to submit his views to a number of influential voters before he passes them on to the common people."

New Disease Found.

A dejected-looking World war veteran applied for assistance at the Pittsburgh chapter of the American Red Cross not long ago, saying he was ill.

"What does the doctor say is the matter?" he was asked.

"I dunno just what it is," replied the applicant, "but he says it's 'formation of the diagnosis.'"

His Explanation.

Teacher—When you drink something hot and then drink something cold, what happens?

Bright Boy—It makes your teeth hurt.

Teacher—How do you explain that?

Bright Boy—I guess it's because your fillings expand.

TRIBUTE TO A SPORTSMAN

Visitor—Are there any fish in this stream?

Country Boy—There was yesterday. But since you've been walkin' up an' down with that fancy fishin' outfit I shouldn't be surprised if they had all jumped for the river an' hid.

A Warning.

You have only one life on this earth,
So be careful with this'n;
Ten seconds are all that it takes
To stop, look and listen!

Some Start the Same Day.

"How long have the Younglings been married?"

"I don't know. They quarrel morning, noon and night."

"That has no particular bearing on the length of time that has elapsed since their wedding day."

The Old Sermon Problem.

"That's what I call a finished sermon," said a lady to her husband as they wended their way home from church.

"Yes," was the reply; "but do you know, I thought it never would be."—Everybody's Magazine.

The Effect of Environment.

"It's a strange thing about a telephone booth."

"Well?"

"A man who is truthful most of the time will shut himself up in one of those compartments and immediately become a facile liar."

Why He Wanted Sweden.

Barrister (suffering from brain fag)—I wish I lived in Sweden; divorces are almost unknown there.

Friend—Perfectly natural, my dear fellow—[illegible] land of safety matches, what?—London Tit-Bits.

A Living.

"Yes, Harold has decided to earn his living by writing."

"Eat so? What's he writing?"

"Letters; first to his father. Then when the old man's broke he'll start on his friends."

No second-Hand Stuff for Her.

Betty on a visit to her aunt, being offered for her lunch some fragments left over from Sunday dinner, politely declined. "Why, dear, don't you like turkey?" inquired her aunt.

"Only when it's new," said Betty.

THAT'S FAIR

He—Come on dear, let's kiss and make up.

She—All right, I'll go and make up, and you kiss yourself good-bye.

"Constable, I don't believe I was going more than 30 miles an hour."

"I timed ye."

"With that tin watch?"

"Yes."

"I refuse to accept such evidence."

"Mebby you do. It's mighty popular with the judge, though."

Too Old to Kiss.

The caller, who was neither youthful nor of prepossessing appearance, anxious to gain the confidence of the son of the house, remarked pleasantly, "Why, Bobbie, how grown up you are! But still, you are not too old to kiss, are you?"

"No," said Bobby, with conviction, "but you are."

Local Spirit.

"I understand Crimson Gulch is going to build a new jail."

"Yes," replied Cactus Joe. "The first proposition was to build a new hotel, but we decided that if there was to be any further housing accommodations they ought to be for the benefit of our own citizens."—Washington Star.

Disarming Suspicion.

"The dealer made you pay more than this picture is worth," comments the artist.

"I know it," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I'm selling him a piece of property, and I want to convey the impression that I am guileless and easy."—Washington Star.

Met His Choice.

A Scottish minister, marrying a couple of his rustic parishioners, was disconcerted by the bridegroom's answer when asked if he was willing to take the woman for his wedded wife.

"Aye, I'm willin'," was the reply, "but I'd rather have her sister."

And Then You May.

Mr. Slough (at the wheel)—Don't you feel a little chilly? Don't you think you had better have something around you?

Miss Quicke—Well, wait till we get a little farther out into the country, George.

Helpful Ailment.

"Your friend Bagley is quite witty, even though he does stammer."

"Even though he does? Man alive, that's the very reason he's witty; his affliction gives him plenty of time to think up good repartee."—Boston Evening Transcript.

"HOME TOWn" WORTH WHILE

Where the Citizens Pull Together on All Things That Will Benefit the Community.

The real home town, on the broad, helpful basis, isn't far to seek.

There are many of them here, at home, as elsewhere—towns of community interest, where the people pull together on all worthy lines, such as the Hartwell (Ga.) Sun describes in the following paragraph:

"Our town is the town of happiness. We strive for something more than business. We strive for friendliness, one with another, which makes life worth while. We have a family circle in which every inhabitant counts one. Our motto is 'One for All and All for One.' And we want to play the same game with our neighbors everywhere. Life is the game of brotherhood, and our town is building on that basis."

There could be no better basis upon which to build; for, by striving for something more than business, business itself is served and benefited.

The motto, "One for All, and All for One," takes in all that contributes to the growth and prosperity of the real, home town—the "town of happiness."

The best advertisement any town could have is to say of it: "The people pull together there."

That is the real, progressive home town.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOUSE SHOULD BE INSULATED

From the Standpoint of Health and Comfort, Proceeding Ought to Be Considered Imperative.

Besides being a most effective insulation, some materials act as a substitute for lumber in outside sheathing, as a plaster base and as an interior finish for rooms. Taking into account the materials displaced, eliminated and reduced, there are many cases in which the cost of insulation is fully offset and the home with insulation can be built as cheaply as one without it.

An important advantage of insulating houses, not expressed in dollars and cents, is the uniformity of temperature they maintain. Obviously, if the walls and roof offer effective resistance to the escape of heat, the temperature of the room must remain more nearly constant than when heat is rapidly passing through the walls. Uniform temperature means comfort in every part of the room without the necessity of "tagging" the radiator.

Uniform temperature prevents illness and gives comfort. It is obvious that properly insulated buildings providing such economies and comforts during the winter months will prove exceptionally cool in the hot months of the year, as insulation effects a more evenly regulated temperature, keeping the heat out in summer as it keeps the heat inside in the winter.

Failure to insulate a house, built at this time, is wasteful and inefficient.

Father Makes 'Em.

Tutor—Of course, I admit your son is extravagant, but you must make allowances. He's young.

The Father—That's all right! But the more allowances I make the quicker he spends 'em.

When Truth Will Out.

Mrs. Hee—Some women can never believe a word their husbands say.

Mrs. Wye—Well, I'm not quite so badly off as that—my husband talks in his sleep occasionally.

Stop, Look and Listen.

Subbubs—I've started riding into town in my car. Got tired of missing the train.

Townley—Well, look out that the train misses you.

Love.

Criss—So you and Jack don't speak. What's the trouble?

Chris—We had a dreadful quarrel about which loved the other most.

A Remedy.

Patient—Doctor, what'll I take to cure my blepharomania?

Doctor (after deep thought)—Don't take anything, and you'll be cured.

We kindly ask that persons rendering communications for publication, please put name and address to same. We will not publish name unless requested to.

LADIES, buy your Spring coat, Suit or Dress at Seiller's. You'll save money.

Social Affairs

Miss Marie Kent, 1432 Midland Avenue, was hostess to a birthday party Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4:30, being hostess' eighth birthday. Refreshments were served. The hostess received many beautiful presents. Those present were Emma Jean Nelson, Donald Baker, Ruth and Martha Jane Humphrey, Helen Moorman, Helen Zitrick, Roscoe Kent, Gretchen Donley and the hostess.

The ladies of the Eldon Ave. Club surprised Mrs. R. C. Millikin with a bountiful birthday dinner on Saturday noon, April 5th. Covers were laid for sixteen. Many useful kitchen articles were showered upon her and grand time was enjoyed by all.

Follow the crowd to Seiller's Remodeling Sale.

Mrs. James Howell, 494 Hamilton Avenue, assisted by Mrs. Frank Elder, entertained with a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. C. L. Fippin, a recent bride, on Saturday evening, April 5th. Mr. and Mrs. Fippin are at home at 408 South Harris Avenue. Those present were: Mrs. George Billups, Mrs. Allen Peck, Mrs. R. A. Billups, Mrs. Emma Fippin, Mrs. David Limle, Mrs. Howard Pennell, Mrs. Ralph Armbruster, Mrs. Carl Duffy, Mrs. George Stratton, Miss Beatrice Stratton, Mrs. Ed. McGinn, Mrs. Harold Cochran, Mrs. Laura Gerrich, Mrs. Eben Schwartzwalder, Miss Alice Booth, Miss Ottilia Koetz, Miss Enna Burns, Mrs. Carl Schodorf, Mrs. Mae Burke, Mrs. D. Lloyd Walters, Mrs. William Roach, Miss Antionette Liger, and Miss Louise Goodall of Edgewood, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Emma Fippin, 285 South Hague Avenue, entertained as a week end guest Miss Louise Goodall of Edgewood, Pittsburgh, Pa. Miss Goodall was enroute to Cincinnati, where she will attend a teachers' convention.

The following pupils of the Robbins-Greiser School of Music will be presented in a recital at the school, 67 Midland Avenue, on Tuesday evening, April 15th: Violin, Ernest Stevens, Virginia Pressler, James Homer and Paul Zellers; elocution—Anna Raether, Ruth Jones and Marie Kent; piano—Arthur Waltner, Thel. Pressler, Gertrude Corrigan, Ruth Walpole and Grace and Jessie Pinsenschaum. Miss Thelma Engard, advanced pupil of Miss Robbins and Blanche Ringa, piano pupil of Miss Greiser, and also elocution pupil of the school, will assist and give some pleasing numbers at the close of the recital.

Mrs. C. F. Harper entertained on Monday evening from 7 to 10 in honor of her daughter, Wanda's 14th birthday. The color scheme of pink and white was tastefully carried out with birthday cake, ice cream and candy. Twenty-three of her schoolmates were present to enjoy the happy affair spent with games and music, each wishing her many more happy birthdays to come. Those present were: Irene Skipper, Eleanor Hughes, Mary Anna Beighley, Ruth Harper, Ada Young, Eva Young, Thelma Pressler, Virginia Pressler, Margaret Weaver, Jean Randall, Elizabeth Stahl, Jaunita Keasey, Lona Elsey, Louise Wormes, Louise Henry, Helen Marie Perry, Martha M. ### HIGHLAND PARENT-TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

The program for the meeting of the Highland P. T. A., to be held Thursday evening, April 10, at 7:30 o'clock, will be in charge of the fathers and sons. That means that all the boys of the school are to bring their fathers and the fathers are to bring the mothers and in that way make it a happy, enthusiastic gathering. For the pleasure of those who attend, Mr. John F. Carlisle will speak, the Boys Glee Club will sing, Mr. O. C. Montgomery will speak as the representative of the fathers, and Gerald Wilson and Clare Carpenter will represent the sons. Everyone is invited and all those who have children in Highland Avenue School are especially urged to be present. Remember the time, Thursday evening of this week at 7:30 o'clock.

HEALTH HINTS

O. E. McFADON

BACTERIA

Long ago our idea of sanitation and hygiene was to eliminate all bacteria from our bodies. This false notion still lingers in many minds. We thought of bacteria much as some are impressed by newspapers. The many reports of crimes and criminals look like the decadence of modern society. We don't think of the millions of honest-to-goodness people whose acts do not make news. The newspaper people know what we want and what we'll pay for. We know that there are good and bad bacteria and that the useful ones, in relation to the harmful, are about as 20 to 1. Both are necessary and the problem is to maintain the proper relation.

Pasteur, Metchnikoff and others have taught us to use the good bacteria to destroy the bad. Many are so small as to be invisible with the strongest microscopes. The more one learns about them the more the wonder grows,—reminding of somebody's remark, "The more we find out the more we don't know." Bacteriology is important part of modern science education and thousands of students are busy with the subject. The biggest job of bacteria is to produce decay. They are great scavengers. They dispose of dead things to help the living. They rot the dead leaves of the forest and change them into another form which will produce richer vegetation. Bacteria is necessary in our digestion. Their absence from the digestive tract causes acute indigestion. Milk is the ideal medium for bacteria which play an important part in the making of butter and cheese. Buttermilk and cottage cheese abound in bacteria which are especially helpful and are anti-putrefactive.

Chickens have been kept under strictly sterile conditions that failed to grow, then, fed on the same food under normal conditions, grew normally. We have the declarations of scientists that these infinitesimal organisms are as essential to animal and plant life as are air and water. Pasteurized milk and other commercial products are claimed to be treated bacterially. There are concerns that supply bacteria in certain forms that will attract the necessary nitrogen from the air to the roots of plants and thus promote their rapid growth. Sanitary city water supply plants are a big illustration of what bacterial treatment can do for man's comfort. Sewage disposal plants are another concrete example. And in many such ways bacteriology is of sanitary and commercial importance.

The Junior Queen Esther Society of Glenwood M. E. Church will entertain their mothers and guests with a banquet at the church on Monday evening, April 14th, at 6:30 o'clock. The mothers are urged to come. Miss Mary Kline, the district superintendent of Young People's Work, will give a short talk. This is the annual mite box opening. Girls, do not forget your mite-boxes.

[illegible] BE SOUGHT FOR HILLTOP FILM HOUSE

[illegible] naming of the new Hilltop picture theater will, by the decision of the management, be left exclusively to residents of the Hilltop. Considerable interest has been shown by the papers following the announcement that there will be a fine new theater at the corner of Oakley and West [illegible] Streets, with a seating capacity between 500 and 600, to project the best films that the market affords. Work on the new theater has been going along for several weeks and it will be finished around April 20. As an inducement for suggestions for a suitable name, prizes will be awarded for the [illegible] best names selected. First prize, $25 in gold; second, $15; third, fourth, $5; fifth, $5; sixth, $5; seventh, eight passes, (two each); ninth, six passes; ninth, four passes, tenth, two passes. The judges of contest are prominent Columbus [illegible] and business men. They are [illegible] Millikin, of the Millikin Hardware Co.; M. H. Prior, of the Prior Hardware Co.; Milton Westlake, commissioner; D. B. Ulrey, attorney; Hartsough, of the Cussins-Hartsough Co., and the management of the new theater, Ted Pekras and [illegible] Pekras.

Only residents of the Hilltop are eligible. Suggestions must be mailed prior to Friday, April 11, the contest positively closing Saturday, April 12. Address all correspondence to New Hilltop Theater Contest, 2357 West Broad Street. The winners will be announced in the newspapers Wednesday, April 16. Contestants are limited to one suggestion only, and it should be accompanied by their full name and address.

Gloria Swanson in her late success, "The Humming Bird," is announced as the opening production.

One of the biggest Quarter Sales ever attempted will be held at Hauntz Grocery and Meat Market next Saturday and Monday. There will be everything in their lines at great bargains. Watch for their bills.

A HOME FOR LOLO

By HELEN WAITE MUNRO

(©, 1924, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

In Mrs. Jones' rooming house matters went on like clockwork. All was peace and comfort, from the attic room reserved for the family to the backyard kennel where Duster, the dog, made his headquarters.

This until the day when the dozen or so quiet, law-abiding tenants were drawn together into a criminal band, defying the law and hiding their deeds under cover of silence and darkness.

It started just after supper one night when a terrible blizzard kept everyone from venturing out. The back doorbell rang sharply. Ethan Jones opened the door, letting in a swirl of fine snow and icy air. But no person was there. Nothing but a bulky bundle which was leaned against the door in such a manner that it came rolling in.

"Here's Mrs. Lasalle's laundry," Ethan called. "What'll I do with it?"

"Put it on the stairs," Mrs. Jones told him.

"I'll get it. How much is it?" Mrs. Lasalle came bustling down the stairs. "Why, that isn't my laundry!"

Just then from the very heart of the bundle came a loud wail, and from the two women and Ethan shrieks that brought every other member of the household quickly to the kitchen.

"It's alive!" shrieked Mrs. Lasalle and Mrs. Jones in chorus.

They all stood about, eying the bundle in astonishment—a big circle of them. There were Mr. and Mrs. McArthur, who had hurriedly left a most tasty boiled dinner; young Mr. and Mrs. Coburn, just come in from their work; Mr. and Mrs. Morey, the former, as usual, eating [illegible], and the latter with [illegible] pencil in her hair; Miss Lasalle, with a book under her arm, rushing from her room to see what it was all about; and Mr. Jones himself, blinking away the remnants of sleep from his eyes, for he was a night worker and had just finished his daytime rest.

But no one touched the bundle.

Then down the back stairs came the heavy clump-clump of Mr. Lasalle descending.

"What's all this racket?" he demanded in his bluff, hearty voice. Then in quick comprehension:

"Why, folks, there's a young one done up in that. Get it out, quick. You don't want it to smother, do you?"

As he spoke he picked up the bundle and carefully unrolled the old bedquilt which formed the wrapping. To their astonished eyes was disclosed a tiny girl, perhaps a year old. Her reddish-gold hair clung about her face in moist ringlets, her plump neck emerged from a faded blue cotton dress and her big brown eyes gazed about wonderingly. As they watched, the tiny face broke into delightful baby smiles which captured the entire group on the instant. Eying one another impartially, she introduced herself.

"'Lo! 'Lo!" she said, reaching out hands in greeting.

"The darling!" chorused all the women, each one trying to take her from the fatherly arms that held her.

"She's saying 'hello'!" Ethan shouted excitedly.

"Smart little shaver!" chorused all the men.

"They must have thought this was the Children's Home that's just across the street," announced Mr. Jones.

"Her folks must have been terrible hard up," Mrs. Lasalle put in. "See what thin clothes she has on! Now I wonder if that sweater I'm knitting for my grandson wouldn't just fit her?"

"I've yards of new outing flannel," Mrs. Jones said, "and it won't take any time to make her some nice warm underwear."

"Rompers!" Mrs. Morey squealed. "I'll make her some cunning little ones."

"Hold on!" Mr. Lasalle put in. "If this child was supposed to be in the Children's Home we'll have to notify the authorities. We're defying the law if we don't."

But no one seemed to care to be the one to make this move. Five minutes passed, ten, then half an hour. The baby was fed, was wrapped in Mrs. Jones' warm King Tut bathrobe, was cuddled by every member of the party. And every moment that passed made [illegible]der to think of turning the dainty l[illegible] away from a real home int[illegible] a capital H.

Fin[illegible]re in the quietness of the Jones' [illegible] the criminal compact was ma[illegible] the child was to remain, the ward of the whole household. The utmost care would be required to keep this law-defying act from being known outside. If Mr. Jones had callers the child was to belong to one of the others. They agreed to call her "Lolo," as those syllables were so frequently on her lips.

So several days went by, Lolo becoming more and more the sunshine of the big household.

Then one fateful morning a man appeared—a quiet, inoffensive man. He was looking for a room, he explained, and stepped quickly inside in the midst of Mrs. Jones' explanation that rooms for single men could be obtained next door.

"Ah!" he said, after thanking her, "I see you have a child in the house. How old is it?"

[illegible]ngs to the lady upstairs," [illegible]ed.

[illegible]ed figure could be [illegible]gh the upstairs ban[illegible] [illegible]anger front of him, she forced [illegible] toward the door.

Upstairs, Mrs. McArthur, [illegible] danger, grabbed the baby from [illegible] rear.

"It's time for its nap," she called down to Mrs. Jones. "It mustn't [illegible]ake for that. It wouldn't do."

That night there was another conference in the Jones' kitchen. The very air seemed charged with suspicion. The strange man had obtained a room next door, and from his window, all that afternoon, he had been watching the Jones' house. Undoubtedly he was some wicked relative of the child—possibly even its father. At any time he was likely to force his way into the house and no mere vacuum cleaner would prevent his whisking away the little one. And the law! How could it protect the child while they were hiding their acts from it!

Slowly the conviction grew that [illegible] the safety of their charge they must explain matters to the authorities. Reluctantly Mr. Jones called up the chief of police and told the story.

"They'll be here in ten minutes," he announced, somberly.

It was an anxious ten minutes, while little Lolo passed from one to another, looking wonderingly into their sorrowful faces.

The doorbell! Ethan's feet fairly dragged as he went to answer it. No blue-coated officer followed him back, however, but the stranger of the morning, the light of victory on his face.

The doorbell again! Two burly officers, rather puzzled as to what they had come for.

Strangely, the man of the morning took charge of affairs and told a story that made those present stare in astonishment. Then Mr. Jones presented their side of the case. And the officers, beaming with satisfaction, started back for headquarters, saying that they were not needed here.

For the stranger, a detective, had made it clear that the tiny Lolo was the child of the Wellingtons of Chicago. She had been kidnaped and held for ransom, but by the most careful trailing he had followed her here. The abductors, finding him so close on the scent, had taken this [illegible] rid of her [illegible] way of getting [illegible]ney. The frantic mother would feel everlasting gratitude to those who had so lovingly cared for her. The millionaire father, as soon as the child was placed safely in his arms, would willingly send a check for the full amount of the immense reward offered to the first person who notified the police of her whereabouts.

"To whom shall we make out the check?" he inquired as, after broadcasting the joyful news over the telephone, he prepared to depart, with the nurse he had summoned to care for the little one on the quick trip home.

"Make it out to me," Mr. Jones told him capably, "and I'll see that it is divided equally among these people."

Mrs. Jones wiped the tears from her eyes as she tucked the warm coat she had made tightly around little Lolo.

"But however big the check is," she sniffed, "it won't make up for what her being here would mean to us."

And every member of the household in the Jones' rooming house nodded sorrowful assent.

Remove the Cause

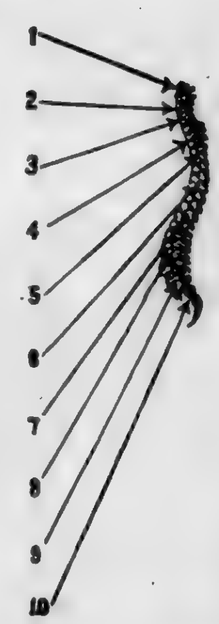
1. Slight subluxations at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, vertigo, insomnia, wry neck, facial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, etc.

2. A slight subluxation of a vertebra in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, dizziness, bleeding from nose, disorder of gums, catarrh, etc.

3. The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein subluxations will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism of the arms and shoulders, hay fever, writers' cramp, etc.

4. A vertebral subluxation at this point causes so-called nervousness, heart disease, asthma, pneumonia, tuberculosis, difficult breathing, other lung troubles, etc.

5. Stomach and liver troubles, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called, are caused by subluxations in this part of the spine, sometimes so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.



6. Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccoughs, worms, etc.

7. Bright's disease, diabetes, floating kidney, skin disease, boils, erruptions and other diseases, so-called, are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.

8. Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, etc., follow Chiropractic adjustments at this point.

9. Why have so-called constipation, rectal troubles, sciatica, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?

10. A slight slippage of one or both innominate bones will likewise produce so-called sciatica, together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

Beef for 5,000 People Roasted by Electricity

A new and unusual application of electric heating was made recently when electrically barbecued beef was served to five thousand people at the annual round up and celebration at Ephrata, Washington. We learn from Electrical World that four steers weighing about two thousand pounds each were dressed and prepared for the barbecue and roasted in a large electrically-heated pit built especially for the occasion. The improvised oven was 32 feet long, 4 feet wide and 6 feet deep. Twelve heating elements each of 3 kilowatt capacity and consisting of about 150 feet of No. 14 iron wire were placed one foot above the bottom of the pit. Sheet-iron heat deflectors were placed one foot above the heating elements, and a foot and a half above the deflectors were placed iron bars to hold the beef. Thermostatic control was provided to maintain an even heat in the pit.

The meat was first roasted at a temperature of 550 degrees for two hours. The heat was then reduced to 350 degrees and maintained at this point for four hours. For the next six hours the temperature ranged from 250 degrees to 300 degrees. At midnight the meat had been roasting for twelve hours, and the temperature was then reduced to 200 degrees and held there for twelve hours until the time of the barbecue.

Albumen From the Lupin Seed Makes Good Food

Not only in the Mediterranean region, but also along the western coast of America there grow freely tall, handsome spikes of blue-white or yellow flowers that form entrancing bits of color in the landscape during the season for blossoming, and are not infrequently used as a garden flower. It is the lupin, which belongs to the family of leguminous vegetables to which mankind owes so much, and which includes beans and peas as well as peanuts.

As in other members of the family the fruit of the lupin consists of seed-bearing pods, but no attempt has been made to use them either for forage or for human food until recently. It is now announced that by a German process, the Pohl method of extraction, said to be quite inexpensive, the seeds can be made to yield an uncommonly high percentage of albumen, which, added to rye or other flour, makes an extremely nutritious food.

This new bread is likewise admirably fitted to form part of a diet of certain (presumably diabetic) patients because of the small amount of starch it contains.—Literary Digest.

Percales 17c; Percales 22c. Seiller's. 25c Everette Shirtings 18c. Seiller's.

Ingenious Diving Suit

Improvising a diving apparatus from an old household hot-water tank, fifteen years of rubber tubing, a length of heavy chain and a discarded beer pump, Walter Merwin of Perth Amboy, N. J., has become a successful commercial diver, according to Popular Science Monthly.

Merwin is the submarine member of a firm that salvages metal junk from vessels about to be scrapped. He asserts he can make deep dives with his homemade suit, and that the outfit is perfectly safe.

She Had Heard Comments

At a private entertainment a guest had just risen from the piano.

"Would you like to be able to sing and play as I do, dear?" she asked a five-year-old miss.

"No, ma'am."

"And why not?"

"'Cause," explained the little girl, "I wouldn't like to have people say such horrid things about me."

No Babies Wanted

The small girl met the doctor near her home.

"You brought a little baby next door, didn't you?" she inquired.

"Yes," he answered; "shall I bring one to your house?"

"No, thanks," came the prompt reply. "Why, we've scarcely time even to wash the dog."

Gee but They Go Deep

Pat visited the dentist with his jaw very much swollen from a tooth he desired to have pulled. But when the suffering man got into the chair and saw the gleaming pair of forceps approaching his face he refused to open his mouth.

The dentist quietly told his assistant to prick the patient with a pin, and when Pat opened his mouth to yell the dentist seized the tooth and out it came.

"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?" the dentist asked, smilingly.

"Well, no," replied Pat, hesitatingly, as if doubting the truthfulness of his admission. "But," he added, placing his hand on the spot where the boy had pricked him, "but little did I think the roots would reach down like that."

The Tallest Dwarf

Angry Visitor—I call this a downright swindle! You advertise on your bills "The Most Remarkable Dwarf in the World," and he turns out to be five feet five inches high.

Bland Showman—Exactly, sir. That's what's so remarkable about him. He's the tallest dwarf on record.

Oil to Protect Tracks

To stop rust on railroad tracks and make the steel fixtures last as long as the chemically treated ties, an eastern road has worked out a plan of oiling its rails, track bolts, tie plates, and other fittings of like character. The cost of putting on this coating is not high, and the saving effected on any one item of the track structure is said to justify the practice.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Social Affairs

Robert Morris Chapter No. 272, O. E. S., met with the spirit of good fellowship running rampant in their midst Tuesday evening for the regular meeting and for the conferring of the degrees by our pro tems. The pro tems. did their work in such a manner, it was hard to sit on the side lines and believe it was their first time to exemplify the work, it was very impressive and beautiful. And also proves, no matter how well we do a thing, there are always others who can do just as well. Two very inspiring solos were rendered by Mrs. Phoebe Jerman and Mrs. Beatrice Willits. Mrs. Paul Barnes gave a splendid report on the progress made by the committee in charge of the concert to be given at Memorial Hall on April 30 and May 1 for the building fund of West Gate Temple. While we have set our aim high, with the aid of our members and friends, we are going to reach it, our goal being $5000. Mrs. Martha Williams, our very competent chairman of social committee, reported there would be "eats" at our next meeting, which met with hearty applause when Level Chapter of Hilliards has very graciously consented to put on the initiatory work. Assistant Matron Rachel Drye, in her sweet, gracious way, thanked Worthy Matron Lula Constans for the courtesy extended her by allowing her to sit in the east during the conferring of the degrees. Clarence Williams and Wm. Hughes, past patrons, commended the pro tems and officers, and both remarked, it was very beneficial for the officers to step up. We closed after which there was much handshaking and laughter and at last as we parted to go our various ways, we felt it was good for us to have come and very wonderful to so "love one another."

"The Spark Plug Group" of the Glenwood Epworth League will present "The Old School at Hickory Holler" in the church basement, Tuesday evening, May 6th, at 8:00 o'clock. Admission—Adults 25c, children 15c.

On Tuesday evening the members of St. Paul's C. E. gave a surprise birthday party honoring Miss Hazel Brown. The basement was beautifully decorated in pale pink and green. The evening passed all too quickly in the games which had been carefully planned. A gift was presented Miss Brown as a token of remembrance from the society and at a late hour the party broke up, all wishing Miss Brown many happy returns of the day.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Glenwood M. E. Church will hold their regular monthly business meeting in the church parlor Thursday, May 1, at 2 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Raines announce the marriage of their son Harold to Miss Dorothy Downing on January 30, 1924. They are residing with the groom's parents at 101 No. Powell Avenue.

Mrs. Ralph Bieber, 116 Eldon Ave., entertained the Iwanta Club with an Easter party Thursday, April 17th. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Evans, 25 So. Terrace.

The Elite Embroidery Club met at the home of Mrs. John W. Rees, 206 North Warren Avenue, on Thursday, April 17th. The following answered to roll call with a favorite recipe: Mrs. Wm. Spangler, Mrs. Arthur Fisher, Mrs. Orman Spencer, Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt, the hostess and her sister, Mrs. Erie Jacobs as a guest. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Spangler, 86 N. Powell Ave.

Mystery, Magic, Romance Before Old Fireplace

What a spot of joy and creature comfort is the fireplace during cold spells! Time was when the open fire was a very important factor in the heating of homes in these northern parts; but the furnace, with its hot air, hot water and steam, more efficient and infinitely more prosaic, has put the fireplace in the background for utilitarian purposes.

The passing of the fireplace is to be regretted. Too frequently the modern home does not have this adjunct of comfort. It isn't really needed, so why have it? That's the American spirit of the practical carried to an excess. The fireplace isn't actually required for heating purposes, although it is a mighty aid in carrying the peak load when the mercury drops down to 30 degrees below. But are we to have only what we actually need?

Sitting up in front of a sizzling radiator or over a register which belches forth its heated air is not to be compared with lounging before an open fire with a good book, to doze or read as desire prompts. There is mystery, there is magic in the open fire. There is a heightening of creature comfort to the point where it has curiously odd and satisfying mental effect.

Let the storm rage outside, let the northern blasts assail window and door, but here we have our answer right before our eyes, and not brought up to us through secretive pipes, which are no more romantic than a water main. No, give us a cold wave, an open fire and a good book and we ask no odds of the most favored in southern climes.—St. Albans Messenger.

Production of Rosin Is One of Oldest Industries

Production of turpentine and rosin is one of the oldest industries of America, records of exports dating as far back as 1662, showing these to have been among the first products exported by the early colonists. While they were originally used in shipbuilding for caulking wooden vessels and protecting rope rigging, thus gaining their name of "naval stores," chemistry has developed an amazing number of uses for rosin and turpentine, making them indispensable in a large number of important industries. Soap manufacture leads in consumption of rosin, with surfacing of writing and printing paper ranking second. Rosin is also extensively used in the manufacture of varnishes, water-proofing compounds, roofing materials, leather dressings, lubricants, waxes, linoleum and electric insulation. Turpentine is an important industrial factor as a thinner for paint, solvent for inks, waxes, rubber and water-proofing compounds, as well as in chemical and pharmaceutical combinations.

Bond Issued in 1865

An eastern financial journal has brought to light an interesting bond. It is dated 1865 and was issued on a horse car line. The bond is for $1,000 and is carrying its third set of coupons, having been twice extended from its original maturity in 1890. Although the property has long ago been abandoned the bond is still "going" at four per cent and is an underlying lien of the New York city railways. It has paid $3,280 in direct interest. If all interest payments had been promptly reinvested at five per cent, the original investment in 1865 would have returned almost $25,000 up to the present time. From 1865 to 1900 the bond carried seven per cent interest, but since that year it has been reduced to four.

Not Worth It

A little boy was given $5 by his uncle. He had heard that a certain make of car is very cheap and he wrote to the factory for one. They were so amused that they asked him to visit them. He and took him to the factory.

"Go round," said the manager, having taken the money, "and choose the car you like best."

He wandered around, looking at the various specimens.

"Well?" said the manager, after he had made a thorough inspection.

"Please, I'd like my $5 back," said the boy.

No Demand

An elderly man approached the president of a big New York firm and asked for a job. The president, himself no youth, looked the applicant over thoughtfully and finally said: "Sorry, sir, but I can't use you. You appear to be more than thirty."

"Don't you want a man of some sense?" asked the applicant.

"Personally, yes. But I have stockholders and a board of directors to consider. The cry, you see, is all for ginger, vim, pep. There seems to be no demand for sense."

Would They Stay?

"Who's in that henhouse?" shouted the brute owner, on hearing a noise in the night, he rushed out and aimed a shotgun at the door. "Speak, or I'll shoot!"

"Ain't nobody in here," responded a faint and trembling voice from the inside. "Ain't nobody, sah, 'cept six or eight chickens!"—Exchange.

Quoted largely from Horace Fletcher.

OPTIMISM PESSIMISM

"Answer not a fool according to his folly lest thou be like unto him."

"He that hath no rule over his own spirit is like a city that is broken down and is without walls."

"A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver."

"He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity."

"Happiness is a by-product; is the evidence and fruit of growth; is the greatest thing in the world, but, if sought aright, is easier than not."

"Anger and worry are like echoes; they do not exist till called for and the louder we call the greater the response. Leave them alone and they do not exist."

"Forethought (optimism) invites success, is constructive, is a producer, is life."

"Fear thought (pessimism) invites failure, is destructive, is a consumer, is poison."

The optimist says, "All can be well and shall be."

The pessimist says, "All is ill." Our adversary would create fear in us.

The one who controls his temper is always the superior.

He who loses his temper is defeated already.

"Appreciation of God is the measure of one's possibilities of growth and the key to power and happiness."

"Egotism is separation from God. Selfishness its fruit."

Policeman Troy C. Stewart, shot early Tuesday morning by a negro he sought to arrest, died at 8:30 Tuesday night at White Cross Hospital. His death was the second resulting from a wave of gun-using which swept over some colored residents of the city Monday night and Tuesday. Mr. Stewart has lived on the Hilltop for three years, and his home at the time of his death was at 43 South Park Avenue. He began service on the Columbus police force on the 10th of October, 1923, and had been serving on the vice squad since the first of the year. He is survived by his widow and a 16 months old daughter, besides his father and mother at Ripley, W. Va., and two brothers, Crayton in Columbus and Thau Stewart in Dunbar, W. Va. He was a member of the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias Lodges. The body will be taken to Evans, W. Va., where the funeral services will be held Sunday, C. J. Kohn being the undertaker.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church will meet in the church parlors May 1st at 2 P. M. Mrs. O. V. Metzger, Mrs. Josephine Nowell, Mrs. Fannie Ogg, Mrs. W. H. Palmer and Mrs. Samuel Pool will be assisting hostesses. All ladies of the church are welcome.

Mr. Harry M. Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Drake, 217 Belvidere Ave., and Miss Bernice Stephenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Stephenson, were married at the home of the bride's parents, 549 South Guilford Avenue, on Saturday, April 19th, at 2:30 P. M. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Moshier, pastor of the Friends' Church in Mt. Gilead, Ohio, in the presence of about 75 relatives and friends. Mr. Jonathan Drake, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and Miss Maude Stephenson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Immediately after the ceremony the newly wedded couple left for Portsmouth, Ohio, in a brand new Chevrolet car, to spend a few days. We learn that the supply of gas in their machine became exhausted a few miles this side of Portsmouth and they had to be towed in.

CLAY BIRD SHOOT

The Hilltop Gun Club held its regular weekly "Twilight Shoot" Tuesday evening at 6 P. ### Carrier Pigeon Acts as Blackmailer's Aid

The legend of the carrier pigeon is one of gallantry, of romance, of succor to beauty in distress, of information between lovers, of comfort to beleaguered cities, of dauntless heart and cleaving wing through high adventure and deadly peril.

When one thinks of the praises and honors that have been won by that excellent bird ever since ancient man learned to turn its priceless accomplishment to his own service, one shudders at the thought of what our "practical" criminal classes would do to the homer's reputation if they found it possible to use the bird for nefarious purposes.

Fortunately there are obstacles to the use of homing pigeons as blackmail collectors, as a young man in Queens discovered to his cost. The bird that he, by way of a "practical joke," had caused to be delivered to a prosperous citizen of his acquaintance, with an anonymous demand for $1,000, was trailed by detectives to its purchaser and the blighted joker was arrested. If he had seen himself in imagination as the suddenly affluent pioneer of a new and winged get-rich-quick system, his ... shattered. The ... charged with ... as a mater... but without ... action.—New ...

Gold in Mission Altar Proves Old Mines Existed

Perhaps the most concrete evidence today, pointing to the reality of the legends of early civilization in the Southwest is the altar of San Xavier mission, conducted at the present time by Catholic sisters for the relief of the sick and needy among the Indians. For several hundred years the mission was a cathedral and it is situated a few miles outside of the city of Tucson, Aria. The altar is inlaid with virgin gold, and pure gold was beaten into the masonry and decorations of the chancel when it was constructed early in the Seventeenth century.

The records of the mission, which have been carefully kept for generations, show that the gold was brought by Indians from the Canada del Oro, where it was mined under the direction of Spanish priests. In fact, the old trail by which the precious metal was transported on mules' backs still exists and leads directly from the cathedral into Canada del Oro and then loses itself in desert wastes.

The Apaches attacked the mission about one hundred years ago and drove away the priests. For several years the Indian tribes used the building as a stable, but they did not touch the altar of gold. It is believed that they had no interest in gold intrinsically, for their medicine men are thought to have had, even at that late date, complete information about rich deposits of desert gold.—New York Tribune.

Obtain Paint Remover by Processing Corncobs

Furfural is the aldehyde of furfuran and is obtained from the processing of corncobs. The corncobs and water are placed in an autoclave and steam at about 180 pounds pressure is admitted and the mixture is permitted to digest for about two hours, after which the furfural is blown off by steam, condensed and collected. The furfural is then separated from the water by distillation. The yield is about 120 pounds of furfural from one ton of corncobs, or approximately 6 per cent.

Furfural has an agreeable odor and boils at a temperature above 100 degrees C. Its boiling point is the same as that of turpentine. This makes furfural a much less dangerous substance than some of the solvents that are used in paint and varnish removers. It also obviates the necessity of weighting the solvent with wax, as it evaporates slowly enough to do its work thoroughly. Furthermore, it does not injure the surface underneath. When smeared over a surface it evaporates after a while, but it shows a tendency to form drops. This disadvantage may be removed by the addition of 20 per cent of solvent naphtha. By the addition of wood oil the viscosity of the furfural is increased.—Scientific American.

Magic Healing as It Is Practiced in India

It is hard in India to draw the line between folklore and religion. It is at best very misty. The malefic powers seem to be stronger than the benignant, as is the case with most of the earlier faiths. A small instance or two must suffice.

We were sitting in the uplands, on some rocks covered with the glorious plants of the wild peony. These are lovely even when the flowers are gone and only the carved leaves remain and the massive seed vessels, full of seeds of pure rose embedded in milky white. They waved about us as I listened—and heard this tale and many more.

A memsahib had to discharge a servant, and he thought he owed his discharge to the butler. Soon after the butler complained of sores on his feet, small, raw holes, which would not get better, do what he would. At last he could not walk. The European doctor came, but could not help with all his medicines, dearly as they are prized by the natives. It was clear then to the butler that this was a case for the jadughar—the wonder-worker. He came and put ointment on the feet. No result. It was then evident that his was a true case of jadu—magic. All the household assembled and jadu of the strongest was made and enlightenment besought. It came. The jadughar said he must dig in the garden. Objection was made by the powers of the house, but they yielded eventually, and, unhesitating, the man chose a spot and dug. And lo! a lump of sun-baked clay roughly shaped in the image of a man, and into the feet were thrust large thorns inscribed with strange characters. The butler said the jadu was for him and that now his feet would immediately heal. They did.

I have heard of many cases like this. If this was a healing, I think one must also adm... it was faith-harming. —L. Adams Beck in Asia Magazine.

A colored mammy came into the office of the estate for which she worked to receive her monthly wages. As she could not write, she always made her mark on the receipt—the usual cross. But on this occasion she made a circle.

"What's the matter, Linda?" the man asked. "Why don't you make a cross as usual?"

"Why," Linda explained earnestly, "Ah done got married yesterday an' changed mah name."—Dry Goods Economist.

Church at Ft. Randall Built by U. S. Soldiers

Fort Randall, South Dakota, has a church called a "mystery church." The church, concerning the erection of which all records were believed lost, was built in 1875. Its material was chalk rock, quarried out of the hills two miles south of the fort by soldiers of the first United States infantry, stationed at the fort at that time.

The central portion of the building was intended for the use of the second I. O. O. F. lodge organized in the territory, and made up of soldiers. The east wing was the church and the west wing the post library. The building was used in this manner until the fort was abandoned in 1892.

The church was well furnished, all the pews being two and one-half-inch black walnut. There was a large organ and a large bell that could be heard for miles. All this was bought by the soldiers and citizens employed at the fort. The organ is still at the fort in the commanding officer's house, which is still standing intact. The walls of the old church building are still standing. Hundreds of names are written on the insides of the walls and carved on the outsides.—Detroit News.

Celts Visited Iceland Years Before Norsemen

So far as known, when the Northmen visited Iceland in the Ninth century, they found no trace of an aboriginal race. However, the island had been previously inhabited by Celts, who settled there before 900 A. D. Some Icelandic historians claim that the Celtic colonists were still living on the island when the Scandinavians arrived. But the question is disputed and the general belief is that these Celtic settlers had disappeared before Iceland was discovered by the Norsemen in 860. In any event, books, crosiers and other articles found by the early Scandinavians prove that Irish monks had made an attempt to colonize the island.

The real history of Iceland dates from about 870, when large numbers of Norsemen began to settle there owing to political disturbances in Scandinavia. Only about one-fourth of Iceland is inhabitable and the entire population is only about 85,000.—Detroit News.

When Ice Explodes

While gathering certain data on the Upper Missouri river in South Dakota, a scientist attached to one of the government bureaus reported a curious phenomenon that sometimes occurs in that region. It was in December. About noon one day there came to the scientist's ears a heavy report, audible for miles, that led him to remark that a blowout must have occurred on the river. On returning to the place where he had crossed in the morning he found an irregular hole, covering a space 100 feet square, in the solid ice, which averaged 26 inches in thickness. The theory is that such blowouts result from imprisoned air gradually accumulating in a favorable spot, where it is subjected to tremendous pressure by the force of the river current.

Met Misfortune With True American Spirit

They had shut off the largest oil well in America three days before. There were not enough pipe lines to handle the flow. It had filled a 1,000-barrel tank in 20 minutes; then, to prove that its performance was no flash production freak, had filled three more tanks in exactly one hour. When we arrived the monster was still, but preparations were being made to open it up, writes Max Bently in Harper's.

They opened it up cautiously when they were ready. They thought they were ready. The driller waved an imperious signal. The chief roughneck on the rig swung a lever.

"Stand back, everybody!"

Gas, faintly blue and transparent, sprayed thinly from the flow pipe. With an ear-filling roar the oil came. A six-inch stream shot from the pipe against the splash box. The pipe trembled, buckled, reared backward. Then as we looked, rooted to the spot, came disaster. The top of the well blew off. Through every obstacle that man had assembled the ruthless monster tore its way to freedom. A jet-black stream leaped cleanly upward until it attained a height of 200 feet. As the oil began falling the deep green of the pine trees was blotted away. On the instant they were turned a greasy black and their befouled branches literally rained oil.

The owner of the largest oil well in America had watched the proceedings from a convenient hillside. Sitting loosely in his saddle, hat pulled down, he had idly overseen the preparations. It meant a lot to him to save that well, but he gave no sign. He could only lose; it is to his everlasting credit that, losing, he lost cleanly and gamely.

Made Stable in Cellar for His "Nice Mules"

William Conquest so loves his two mules that he keeps them in the cellar of his house at Queens boulevard and Tremble street, Winfield. Queens and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals worried about them so that Conquest was taken before Magistrate Doyle in the Flushing court, says the New York Herald-Tribune. L. Ray, an officer of the society, said that somewhere in the case there was undoubtedly cruelty to animals, but Conquest said not.

"They are nice mules," he said, "and they have a good time in the cellar. They like to stay there. Every time I put them in the stable they are uncomfortable, and as soon as I leave the door open they go back to the cellar."

"Why not put them in your dining room?" asked the magistrate.

"Well, I might," said Conquest. "They're nice mules. But they prefer the cellar."

"But the officer says their health is endangered," said the magistrate.

"You can't hurt a mule," said Conquest. "They're just mules. They haven't any health. Mules don't get sick. They're just mules until they die."

As no evidence was offered to show that the mules were other than frisky and happy, the magistrate dismissed the charge. He directed the officer, however, to keep an eye on the mules and see how they were treated.

One of the Reefs

Mrs. Richard C. Cabot of Boston, the society leader who conducts a course in "human relations" in a fashionable girls' school, said at a dinner party:

"The object of my course is to bring about happy marriages, and I have been very successful, indeed. I point out the reefs on which the marriages are often wrecked.

"A man," Mrs. Cabot went on, "said to a group of women at a tea:

" 'Before I was married I could never save a cent.'

"The women above their teacups exchanged triumphant smiles.

"'I managed to keep out of debt, though,' the man added."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Operates Itself

Operating without human control, halting while minor difficulties are adjusted, and stopping altogether if something goes seriously wrong, a new electric power station at Searsburg, Vt., embodies astonishing mechanical intelligence, says Popular Science Monthly.

The turbine of the plant drives a generator with a capacity of 6,500 horsepower. The only help from human beings is occasional inspection, lubrication and regulation of the governor mechanism. The turbine starts when sufficient water arrives, and shuts down when the flow falls below an efficient limit.

Fifth Reel

A friend who had been reading about a well-known director's divorce case, thinking to set himself in strong with the director, ventured to say some uncomplimentary things about the wife, whereon, to his surprise, the director replied: "Man, she's an angel!"

"But," stammered the friend, "I thought—"

"She's an angel," continued the director, "because she was always up in the air, she was always harping and she never had anything to wear."

Matter of Judgment

Success is gauged by a person's judgment percentage. If your judgment is 90 per cent good, it won't be long before you'll get ahead; if your judgment is 90 per cent bad, you'll continue to be in debt and work for the other fellow. Ever think of it that way?—Enterprise Ledger.

TRAP SHOOT

Great interest was shown at the regular "Twilight Shoot" of the Hilltop Gun Club, held Tuesday evening, April 29th, at 6 o'clock, on their West Broad Street grounds Eighteen keen eyed "Nimrods" ran up the following scores out of 25 targets each: Mr. Thompson broke 22, Marion 17, Groff 22, O. Voss 12, H. F. Hessler 22, Dew 22, Elder 16, Shrum 15, C. Voss 18, H. Hessler 21, Beaver 24, G. Deem 21, Herron 22, Linville 16, K. Thompson 24. The features of the evening's shoot were the tie score of 24 each made by M. K. Thompson and "Daddy" Beaver and the spectacular run of 22 straight made G .M. Dew.

Miss Cloris "Glory" Aiken, the Sunshine Girl of the Argonne, who is to speak, sing and play her guitar at the Glenwood Church Sunday evening, May 4th, at 7:30, served two years in the Argonne sector with our overseas forces. When the Armistice was signed, she remained with the boys, realizing that they needed cheering as never before. Miss Aiken's story of the making of the first doughnut for the soldiers is very interesting. Her singing of her original "Taps" is beautiful. The service in the Glenwood Church is her only appearance on the Hilltop during special services in Columbus churches. For nearly a year, she has been speaking to packed audiences in other cities. There will be no admission charged for this service.

Glenwood Women's Foreign Missionary Society will meet at the home of Mrs. C. F. Prior, 101 Eldon Ave., Wednesday, May 7th, at 2 P. M. Mrs. P. W. Drumf's group will have charge of the program. ### His Chance Next

"There are some ungodly young men over in that corner having fun with the girls," announced the preacher solemnly as he paused in the middle of his sermon and pointed accusingly in the direction of the graceless youths.

"When they get done," he continued ponderously, "perhaps they will give me a chance."

And he could not understand why the congregation smiled.

A Condition

The stern parent was interviewing his daughter's suitor who was asking her hand in matrimony.

"She tells me s.e loves you," returned the girl's father, "but that is not all. Do you think you can afford to pay for all the little luxuries that she is accustomed to?"

"Why—er—yes—that is, if she'll do without the necessities, I can," replied the young man reflectively.

Oxygen Blowpipe Used for Breaking Up Metal

The breaking up of large, solid masses of iron or steel, for the purpose of remelting, has heretofore been such a slow and costly operation as to be seldom indulged in, and many blocks of metal of this kind have therefore been abandoned as worse than worthless. The oxygen blowpipe, a cheap and simple apparatus and quick in operation, has wonderfully changed all this, says the Compressed Air magazine.

For example, we can have a cylindrical mass of metal, technically known as a "ladle set," more than six feet in diameter, of equal length, and weighing more than forty-five tons. A most hopeless case. A long piece of one-quarter-inch iron pipe is connected by flexible hose with a "bottle" of oxygen. The free end of the pipe is made red hot and the oxygen slowly and carefully turned on. The end of the pipe begins to burn with intense heat and when thrust against the block it begins to bore a hole right into the mass to a depth of three feet or more. The hole will be, say, an inch in diameter, and the molten metal will flow out of it in a little stream. In this way a considerable number of holes are quickly burned. These are charged with gelignite and fired all at once after the block has been placed in a special pit.

Thus is obtained a mass of pieces that are generally as small as required.

American Girls Easily Best Dancers in World

"The American girl makes the best dancer in the world, bar none."

That is the sweeping statement made by Miss Fawn Gray of New York, herself a dancer, who has just completed a "round-the-world" trip, during which she studied dancing in various cities, according to the New York World.

"Next to the American girl comes the English girl for all-around dancing," continued Miss Gray. "I danced in London, in Paris, at Monte Carlo and at Deauville, and, strangely enough, there was more real competition in London than at any other place. In Berlin the girls are a little too stiff for graceful dancing.

"You'd imagine that the French girls would be the most graceful and accomplished in showing off their dresses, wouldn't you? Well, while I was there a competition was held to decide the best manikin in Paris, and it was won by an American girl."

Miss Gray visited Honolulu on her trip, and while there danced Hawaiian dances in competition with real Hawaiians.

"I won all three of the contests in which I took part," she concluded, "so that alone would tend to bear out my contention that the American girl is the best dancer in the world, now wouldn't it?"

Scientist Says Frozen Air Makes Blue Sky

The blue color of the atmosphere is caused by a stratum of frozen, crystalline nitrogen in extremely high altitudes, according to theories recently put forward by Dr. L. Vegard of Paris. The aurora borealis and zodiacal light are attributed by him to the same cause.

Doctor Vegard asserts there is some point in the upper atmosphere where the temperature must fall as low as 350 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. If so, nitrogen, the main constituent of air, must freeze, even as snow is formed in an ordinary wintry atmosphere. The resulting nitrogen frost is likely to remain in a dispersed state. Doctor Vegard also assumes that it is electrically charged.

Inasmuch as the atmosphere is shallower near the poles than at the equator, the air-frost would approach the earth more closely in polar latitudes. More light disturbances would therefore occur in such regions.

The presence of nitrogen at such great altitudes as must be necessary to get temperatures as low as 350 degrees below zero is accounted for by Doctor Vegard by the repellent effect of the electrical charges which these particles are assumed by him to carry. Doctor Vegard suggests that this outer shell of nitrogen frost-cloud may act also as an envelope for the atmosphere and prevent it from diffusing into space.

Scientists Unable to Agree on Origin of Oil

The question of the origin of petroleum is very complex. In many cases we have reason to believe that the petroleum was not formed in the strata in which we find it. The bulk of the oil of a field may have been produced under fairly uniform conditions; but each minor occurrence may also have passed through its own history of production and development under special local conditions. As regards parent material or materials, we have only suppositions.

The oils—as distinct from petroleum—we commonly deal with are all of organic origin, vegetable or animal. Petroleum may have the same origin, and of late the view has been gaining ground that the occurrences of petroleum and coal are interrelated. But the advocates of an animal origin of petroleum have by no means given in; the possibility of an inorganic origin also continues to find support, and the great variety of petroleum suggests various parent materials and modes of production. At present there is no agreement, not even on essential points.—From Engineering.

To Get Rid of a Bore

One of the amusing and original characters in Paris is M. Sacha Guitry, who made his fame as actor and playwright, and who has increased it by the oddities of his temperament. He is a witty, versatile and quick-minded man and is naturally inclined to be impatient with bores. Recently there was one who plagued him with unnecessary calls. One day he burst in on Guitry, who greeted him warmly, though that morning the appearance of the man put him more "on edge" than ever.

"Just in time," said Guitry. "I want you to see a new conjuring trick I have thought out," and he grabbed the unsuspecting visitor's hat and exclaimed, "Watch!"

Then Guitry poured a jugful of water into the hat. The owner of it got up in alarm.

"There now," exclaimed Guitry petulantly, "you've made me forget my trick!"

The "trick," however, is reported to have worked admirably. The same visitor has not troubled M. Guitry since.—From Sketch.

Defining Poetry

Here is Stephane Mallarme's reply to a query made by Vogue in 1886 as to the definition of poetry:

"Poetry is the expression in the language of mankind, brought back to its essential rhythm, of the mysterious meaning of the aspects of existence; it gives authenticity to our sojourn on earth and constitutes its sole spiritual task."

Jean Moreas replied to the inquiry with twelve interrogation marks, Pasteur excused himself, Joseph Caraguel wrote that "poetry is the art of saying banalities in an eccentric way," and an unknown writer called poetry "the attempt to express the indefinable."—From Le Figaro, Paris.

Taking a Chance

"Want to take a chanst?" asked a producing manager of Yorick Hamm, the eminent comedian. "I can use you in a show, but I can't pay salaries until we see whether the show is a winner."

"How's a fella gonna live meanwhile?"

"That's the chanst I'm offering. In Act II we eat a meal on the stage. It's a bedroom farce with sixteen beds. That solves your rooming problem. All you gotta dig up is breakfast, and if you sleep all day you won't need any."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Couldn't Use It

"My beau is in the candy business," simpered Samuella. "He brings me oodles of bonbons."

"Mine is a florist," chirped Johnetta. "He simply overwhelms me with the finest posies."

Haroldine was silent.

"What line is your young man in, dearie?" asked the others in chorus.

"Tar roofing."

Arizona's Diamond Hoax

One of the greatest mining hoaxes ever perpetrated was the alleged discovery in 1872 of a diamond field in the northeastern part of the territory of Arizona.

Two men of the names of Arnold and Slack were supposed to be the discoverers, and magnificent-looking rough diamonds and rough rubies which it is said they had picked up in the Arizona field were exhibited in San Francisco. A company with a capital of $10,000,000 was organized in San Francisco, and the list of stockholders included a number of large mining investors.

The fraud was exposed by Clarence King, United States geologist, who showed that the stones exhibited were from Africa and Brazil, and upon visiting the Arizona field, saw at once that it was not a diamond-bearing country.—Detroit News.

Spiders Slaves to Ants

Green tree ants, which, it is said, make spiders their captives, and force them to spin webs with which leaves are bound together for their nests, were found in large numbers on an expedition into tropical Queensland, Australia, by Capt. C. H. Wilkins, who was collecting natural history specimens for the British museum. Captain Wilkins was unable to substantiate this story by personal observation, but obtained some of the ants for a more detailed study.—London Times.

Not Worth It

On the stand in Traffic court was a wealthy merchant. He had been arrested for speeding. To hear him tell it to the judge he drove the car as a careful mother pushes along a baby carriage, never exceeding four miles an hour.

"Huh," said an acquaintance after listening to his testimony. "I wouldn't go on the stand and make myself out an old woman just to save $5."

Altogether Different

"Women change their minds?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "When we were married Henrietta made me promise not to stay out late, and now she's indignant if I don't go to all kinds of parties and stay up till 1 o'clock in the morning."—Washington Star.

Gloves Collected

An American woman of some prominence who is traveling in Europe has started collecting gloves which have been kissed by kings. She herself has been presented on several occasions to kings who have placed the royal and courtly kiss on her gloved fingers. From others who have had similar experiences she will "beg, buy or borrow" the gloves for her collection.

Oil is being used to prevent sand from being drifted by the wind across the tracks of the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company and impeding or even preventing traffic. Dunes near the tracks in the Columbia river valley are sprayed with crude petroleum which has been heated so as to secure the required fluidity. A thin layer of asphaltic material then forms on the sand and so prevents the drifting of the surface. One application serves for at least a year and in some locations for as many as two or three.

More Autos in Europe

The use of motor vehicles is increasing as rapidly in other countries as in the United States. The development has progressed most rapidly in the English-speaking countries. Great Britain has 655,818, Canada 642,571 and Australia 180,540. France stands next to the British empire, with 460,000.

French chemists have perfected new methods of identifying pictures, according to the American Chemical society. They use groups of red, blue, green or white light to light the picture, and they examine the suspected canvas, with the spectrometer. This puts in relief the retouchings, scrapings and changed signatures which constitute a false picture. By employing the ultra-violet ray they make the zinc white and certain varnishes stand out by fluorescence. By scraping off small amounts of paint they have made spectrographic analysis and have been able to determine, for example, in a false Renoir, the presence of a cadmium yellow, when Renoir only used chrome yellow.

When Asquith Laughed

Mr. Asquith was addressing a political meeting one day when someone in the audience made a very personal remark concerning Mrs. Asquith.

"Who said that?" demanded the speaker angrily.

There was a sudden silence. Then a man in the rear stood up and pointing to a farmer wearing a dilapidated straw hat, shouted: "It was him wi' the coo's breakfast on his head."

The reply was altogether too much for Mr. Asquith, and he had to join in the general roar of laughter.—Boston Transcript.

Ceylon's Tea Exports

Total exports from Ceylon of both black and green tea during 1923 were 183,501,928 pounds, as against 171,382,349 pounds in 1922. The exports were, however, approximately 6,000,000 pounds below the average for the last ten years. The United Kingdom was by far the leading importer of Ceylon tea, taking 121,010,033 pounds in 1923, against 117,281,922 pounds in the previous year. The United States was the second largest purchaser of tea, taking 14,056,508 pounds during 1923, an increase of 750,000 pounds over 1922 imports of Ceylon tea.

Elephants Increasing

The elephant is a very useful animal, both for draft purposes and for ivory. A few years ago 70,000 were slaughtered annually for their tusks, so that it seemed as though there was a good chance of the big animals becoming extinct. Wise laws, however, have checked the destruction so that the number is increasing. The war gave the elephants their chance and the British authorities in East Africa have also protected them. South of Zambesi the elephant is virtually extinct and the Cape market for ivory has ceased to exist. At present Mozambique is the center of the ivory trade. Oddly enough the Portuguese, through whose hands it comes, send nearly all the ivory across to Bombay, where it is sorted and cut and dispatched to the European markets. The world's supply of real elephant ivory is now about 250 tons a year.—Scientific American.

Winter Wheat in France

If experiments now being made in Brittany are satisfactory, France will soon be growing American wheat. Brittany, one of the important wheat-growing districts of France, needs hardier and sturdier wheat. The crops there have been good only every other year and with the co-operation of the French government officials, experiments have been made in testing samples of hard winter wheat. These samples, supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture, were from the state of Washington, which has about the same climate as Brittany.

Furnishing Store 2518 W. Broad

Not only in the Mediterranean region, but also along the western coast of America, there grow freely tall, handsome spikes of blue-white or yellow flowers that form entrancing bits of color in the landscape during the season for blossoming, and are not infrequently used as a garden flower.

It is the lupin, which belongs to the family of leguminous vegetables, to which mankind owes much, and which includes beans and peas as well as peanuts, says the Literary Digest.

As in other members of the family the fruit of the lupin consists of seed-bearing pods, but no attempt has been made to use them either for forage or for human food until recently, says the Detroit News. It is now announced that by a German process, the Pohl method of extraction, said to be quite inexpensive, the seeds can be made to yield an uncommonly high percentage of albumen, which, added to rye or other flour, makes an extremely nutritious food.

This new bread is likewise admirably fitted to form part of a diet of certain (presumably diabetic) patients because of the small amount of starch contained.

Added to Dictionary

The word [illegible] is finally [illegible] its way to the scholarly dictionary, where it is defined as "a form of syncopated music played in discordant tones on various instruments, as the banjo, saxophone, trombone, flageolet, drum and piano." But this definition is incomplete. In the jazz band there are kettle-drums, cow-bells, kitchen pans, tin whistles, baby's rattles, etc. The "music" is full of shrieks, screams, moans and explosions. The leader usually adopts a suitable idiotic attitude. With cap set on one side of his head he prances around, rolls his eyes and twists his face into all kinds of simian contortions. The inspiration for all this was found among excited savages.

Like Time and Tide

An elderly woman, who has lived most of her life at Franklin, but who now lives with a son at Chicago, has been obtaining much enjoyment from his radio receiving set.

Early every morning she tunes in, and listens to programs of music, weather forecasts, and other such matter thrust over the broadcasters. Recently she tuned into a station that was broadcasting recipes. One of the recipes started out as if it might be good.

"Just wait a minute, will you, till I get pencil and paper?" she asked. [illegible] came to a moment later the station was signing off—[illegible] News.

Scientific Interest in Excavations at Kish

In a letter to the London Times of January 22, Professor Langdon, writing from Mesopotamia, gives an account of the results to date of this season's excavations at Kish. Among an amount of pearl and limestone inlaid work discovered in a mound constructed entirely of plano-convex bricks, characteristic of the oldest Sumerian architecture, was a rectangular tablet of slate which shows a king of Kish smiting his Sumerian enemies. Their closely shaven heads, cheeks and upper lips, but long beards, indicate a date earlier than Ur-Lagash, c. 3100 B. C. Taken with other pearl heads found here, this disposes of the theory that the Semites occupied Kish in the prehistoric period. The discovery north of Inghara of two large Sumerian buildings in a state of complete preservation has made possible the preparation of the only known plan of a large Sumerian palace. Below the plano-convex brick pavement, which cannot be later than 3100 B. C., was an accumulated deposit of 15 feet, representing at least 1500 to 2000 years' previous occupation, and therefore going back to about 5000 B. C. A complete sequence of pottery from the earliest Sumerian period down to Nebuchadnezzar has been established, and a series of fine copper implements has been found. The general result of the excavations brings into prominence the enormous extent of the ruins, which, if grouped contiguously, would cover 120 acres, the very great antiquity of the site, and the priority of the Sumerians.

Baked Peas Good, but Can't Supersede Beans

I like baked peas; we have them once a month, says Arthur Staples, in the Lewiston (Me.) Journal. They are not as good as baked beans that you can eat twenty times a month and have brand new flour times a month in a bean pot all your own. We are not raising good baked-bean experts nowadays. They must use reasonably new beans—old beans are never so good—and they ought to be baked until they just about burst their sides with richness.

I like to see them roll out so that they gleam in the candlelight like rubies on a string. They ought to swim about like bubbles in the golden fatness, and the pork ought to look like the covers of an old book, ruddy-brown and aged with beauty.

Baked peas are done exactly like baked beans, pork and all, baked in the pot and brown as berries—though just which berry is "brown" is difficult to say.

There is another dish that my mother used to make. She used to take apples and peel, quarter and core them, put in a certain amount of brown sugar and some other things and put the whole in a bean pot. Bake them in a slow oven—she used to bake them in the old brick oven with its slowing heat that lasted for many hours. When they come out they are like a jelly. The substance is as red as the cheek of a Baldwin. My wife has tried it, but it seems hardly as good as it used to be.

New Process Hastens Marketing of Oranges

An orange may be inwardly ripe when outwardly green, and if allowed to yellow on the trees the marketing may be delayed four to six weeks and consequently a less favorable price may be obtained.

This green condition gives the satsuma orange grower more concern than others. Satsumas are raised in upper Florida, lower Alabama and lower Mississippi. Normally they are gathered about October 15, but they can be harvested earlier when artificial processes of coloring are used to get away from the persistent greenness of skin.

The United States Department of Agriculture has worked out a process for coloring oranges without harming the fruit, says the Scientific American. The process consists of inclosing the oranges in airtight rooms and subjecting them to fumes of kerosene stoves or to gasoline engine exhaust. The fumes given off destroy the green chlorophyll so that the yellow of the orange shows up.

It requires about four days to bring out the yellow of the oranges by this process. This is better than waiting four or six weeks for the fruit to ripen on the trees, running the risk of frost or storm damage and facing the probability of a lower market when the oranges are ultimately harvested.

Nile Irrigation

The phenomenon of the overflowing of the Nile occurs regularly every year, and lasts from the 15th of June to the 17th of September. After this period the river gradually subsides, leaving a rich alluvial deposit for some six miles on each side of the stream. A rise of 16 cubits is necessary to furnish the proper irrigation. An excessive rise of the river means great loss of crops and property, and sometimes of human life; while the failure of a few feet may occasion almost a famine during the ensuing year. In 1829 the Nile rose 26 cubits, and caused the death of 80,000 persons by drowning, as well as the destruction of a great amount of property. The average rise at Thebes is 40 feet; at Cairo, 27 feet.—Kansas City Star.

Belgian Education

To train Belgian young men for service in the Congo as physicians, technical men and administrative officers a "Colonial university" has been established at Antwerp by the Belgian government. This university has been developed through the successful work of a high school of commerce, which was founded two years ago by the commission for relief in Belgium and the city of Antwerp, to train boys for colonial service. This school was converted into a university last November and it is now known as "l'Universite Coloniale." It had three schools devoted respectively to political and administrative science, tropical medicine and natural sciences.—School Life.

Herons Prey on Trout

Many trout in the Musselshell region of Montana have been destroyed by the blue heron, which stands in the riffles of a stream and spears fish all day long, according to J. B. Benham, forest ranger. He recommends the killing of herons to preserve the trout.

The destruction of trout by the blue heron also was called to the attention of Minnesota sportsmen last summer. Conservationists, however, are not unanimous in their approval of an "open season" on blue heron, and the birds are protected by law.

Consumption of Copper

World consumption of copper for eight months last year gave an estimated annual rate of 2,750,000,000 pounds.

Experienced

"I see ye advertise for a tailor," began a Scot, applying to a London firm.

"A ladies' tailor. This is a ladies' tailoring establishment."

"I ken that."

"Which is a particular line, my man. Many a tailor, and a good tailor, falters there. Now have you ever had any experience at dressmaking?"

"No, but I've worked on kilts."

Short and Sweet

The talk had turned on the subject of theatrical first nights and speeches at the fall of the curtain.

"I have had four plays produced," a playwright exclaimed, "and when I say authors should not make speeches, I know what I am talking about. But if you must speak, let your speech be as short as possible. I only once made a speech during those four unforgetable occasions, and it contained four words."

"What were they?" he was asked.

"'And boo to you,'" he replied.

Social Affairs

A surprise party was given last Wednesday evening by Mrs. C. J. Suver at her home on Steele Ave., the occasion being the joint birthdays of her husband and little daughter Anita Jean. At 6:30 the guests were called to the dining room where there was displayed a long table decorated with roses and two huge birthday cakes with candles. All were bountifully served and at a late hour the guests returned to their homes, wishing Mr. Suver and daughter many more happy returns. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Suver of Galloway, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Tharp, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Bliss Brown and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Wheeler and daughters Vera Louise and Edna Burdine, Mr. and Mrs. George Suver and son Billy, Leroy Suver, Milton Ward, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Suver and daughtar Anita Jean.

A birthday party was given by the Jolly Ladies' Club in honor of Mrs. Emmery Bender at her home, 104 S. Warren Ave., Saturday night, May 3. A beautiful cedar chest was presented to her. The evening soon passed and games and music were enjoyed by all. A delightful lunch was served and all parted by wishing her many more happy birthdays at a late hour. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Warman, Mr. and Mrs. William Bragg, Mrs. Harn, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Wilson and sons Gerald and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cherrington and children, Stanley, Jr., and Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Boyd and son Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cathern and sons Donald, Robert and Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harper, Mrs. Sells, Miss Nomia Graves, Mr. John Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Emmery Bender and son Russell.

The annual entertainment of West Broad Street School will be given in the auditorium Friday afternoon and evening, May 16. The program is in two parts, the first consisting of music by the kindergarten orchestra and the school orchestra, and a play by pupils of the 4th grades. The second part stresses the Flag, its beginning and its meaning today. Living pictures illustrating some of the crises of our history will be shown. The school chorus will furnish music for this part. The Virginia reel, the minuet and an Indian dance will also be given.

A birthday surprise party was given at the home of Miss Frances Layne, 180 South Burgess Avenue, on the evening of April 28th. Decorations were in pink and blue. Music, games and dancing were enjoyed by the guests, after which refreshments were served. In a guessing contest, Mildred Williams won first prize, and Lewis Swarts, second. Miss Layne received many beautiful presents. Those present were: Trione Browne, Hazel McLees, Mildred Williams, Kathryn Morgan, Maybert Stevenson, Doris Frankbonner, Marie Buell, and Frances Doris Layne. Lewis Swarts, Don Mitchell, Maurice Jones, Fred Knight, Kenneth Barker, Denver Freeman, Clare Ward, Bob Dye, Fred Heyl, and George Layne.

Are you coming to the song festival at Highland Avenue School Friday night, May 9th, at 7:30 o'clock. You will surely miss a great treat if you are not there. It will be the regular May meeting of the Highland Parent-Teacher Association and since this is Music Week an unusually attractive and pleasing musical program has been arranged. There will be an old folks' concert, some community singing, and some special attractions, any one of which will be worth far more than the fifteen cents which is to be charged as admission. Do come and bring your friends.

Mrs. George W. Ryan, 201 North Ogden Avenue, entertained The Elite Embroidery Club Thursday, May 1st. Those present were Mrs. Ivan Spencer, Mrs. Albert Jordan, Mrs. Wm. Spangler, Mrs. Dewey Creager, Mrs. John Rees and Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt.

Group No. 3 of Glenwood Ladies' Aid will hold a Bake Sale at Seiller's Store, Saturday, May 10th. All members are expected to respond.

The regular meeting of Glenwood Home Missionary Society will be held Thursday, May 22nd, instead of May 15th.

W. M. Brown, proprietor of the confectionery and grocery store at 262 Sullivant Ave., was robbed of $55 in front of his place of business at 10:45 o'clock Saturday night by two armed men, one white and the other a negro. They also took Brown's memorandum book, containing $200 in bills, which they threw away before examining it closely and which he recovered later. After going through their victim's pockets, the bandits ordered Brown to keep his hands above his head and keep on walking. He did so, but upon reaching two houses near by, ran between them, evading the thugs, who escaped.

Hilltop Deaths

John P. Johnson, 71, of 29 North Wheatland Ave., former carpenter contractor, died of cancer Sunday at his home. He was a charter member of West Gate Lodge of Masons and a member of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church. About a year ago he moved to his present address from 97 N. Terrace Street. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary A. Johnson; one daughter, Mrs. Lellah Cooley; one grandson, Harold Cooley of Detroit, and four brothers. Funeral services were held at 2 P. M. Tuesday at the residence. Burial took place in Green Lawn Cemetery by C. J. Kohn, undertaker. Rev. Shields had charge of the services. Mr. Johnson has been a resident on the Hilltop for many years, having come here from the southern part of Ohio, and was well known.

Jacob White, 74, died Sunday of paralysis at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clara Cline, 95 S. Harris Ave. He was a retired farmer. Besides his daughter, one son, Frank G. of Dennison, and one brother, survive. The body was sent to Bidwell, Ohio, for funeral and burial by C. J. Kohn, undertaker.

I wish to sincerely thank neighbors and friends for their kindness shown, and for floral offerings during the sickness and death of my wife, Jennie Lawrence Glass, also Mr. and Mrs. Lanthorn, Rev. Wesley Hatcher, singers; Mrs. Scharenburganels, Mrs. Bratt, Doddington Lumber Co. and Undertakers Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Kohn for their service.

THOMAS B. GLASS.

We desire to thank our many friends who so kindly assisted us during our sad bereavement in the loss of our dear husband, father and brother, Troy C. Stewart, and for the many beautiful floral offerings. Also the city officials for their courtesy, and Rev. McFarlane for his comforting words, and Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Kohn for their efficient services.

Mrs. Susan Stewart and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Crayton Stewart and family.

PULL—BANG!!

The Hilltop Gun Club gang, ganged up a crowd of sixteen shooters on Tuesday evening at their grounds on West Broad Street for their regular weekly practice "shoot." 25 targets were shot at by each of the following shooters: Mr. Webster broke 24, Beaver, Sr., 21, Groff 21, Merion 16, Edler 20, Shrum 15, Herron 22, Deam 19, Woodard 18, Clevenger 20, Beaver, Jr., 15, Bennett 17, Horton 22, Linville 12, Voss 16, Eierman 12; Linville shooting 16-go gun. Ray Haunts absent on account of cold feet. Pink Reuner ditto.

CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL

Just before leaving St. Petersburg we had the opportunity of attending a Confederate Memorial service held by the Confederate Veterans and the United Daughters of Confederacy at the Southern Methodist Church. The church altar was a bower of beauty, the railing literally covered with pink, red and white oleanders, combined with small Confederate flags, with now and then a bouquet of scarlet Nibiscus. Even the reserved seats, had like decorations at each end. A large Confederate flag with three bars, one of white, between two or red, with thirteen stars in a circle on a field of blue, was stretched across the center of the pipe organ, with an American flag above and on either side of it. The G. A. R. and the Woman's Relief Corps were invited to occupy seats with the Confederate organizations. The crowd was small, just a sprinkling of aged veterans of both armies, a few women wearing the badge of their orders and a score or two sympathisers and friends. After a song and prayer, an oration was read and Dr. Walker, the pastor of the church, gave a brief address. He said his father was a Confederate soldier and that the fallen heroes, whose memory we commemorate, sacrificed, bled and died for a conviction of right. He was glad for a united country and the feeling of brotherhood that prevailed. Seeing our Relief Corps badge, a lady invited us to ride with her to Greenwood Cemetery. Here there are two monuments, much alike, standing not far apart, one erected to the fallen heroes of the Union, the other to the honored dead of the Confederacy. The Confederate monument was draped with two flags, the Union with one. New Confederate flags were in evidence, those at the graves of our Union dead, so faded, that scarcely a trace of color was left. They had evidently been placed there on Decoration Day last year and new ones will take their place May 30. Flowers were placed on all the graves of the soldiers of both armies. The ceremony around the Confederate mound was a song, a prayer, the sounding of taps by Scout Boys and the benediction.

The city honored the day with a lavish display of flags on the streets and even hotels and cafeterias had the U. S. flags on their tables. While it brought back many sad memories of war, it was interesting to me and thinking it might be to you, dear reader, we pass it on.

M. M. MARSHALL.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Evangelist John Trager of Philadelphia, Pa., began a series of revival services with God's Holiness Mission at Rich and McDowall Streets last Sunday. Services will continue every night at 7:45 P. M. and next Sunday at 11 A. M., 3:30 and 7:30 P. M. Mr. Trager preaches the real old-time gospel, like our forefathers used to enjoy. He states that before his true conversion he lived a very rough life and his motto is, "No place and no care too hard for Jesus." He has preached the gospel in 16 states in this country with success. The meetings thus far have met with good attendance and interest and a number of professions have been made. All who enjoy the old-time gospel will receive a season of refreshing in these services. Good singing, special messages in song. Everybody welcome. Rev. H. C. Hensiee, pastor. "Don't miss this great gospel feast."

Real Meaning of Words Used Almost Every Day

When a person is in an unhappy predicament—"between the devil and the deep sea"—he is sometimes said to be "between Scylla and Charybdis." According to a Greek legend, these were two monsters, one of which lurked on each side of a narrow sea passage. In steering his vessel in such a way as to escape one the unlucky mariner fell into the clutches of the other.

There are two words—panic and hygienic—which we use almost every day. "Panic" is a sudden, unreasoning fear of something. It is derived from the name of the god of shepherds—Pan—whose presence as he lurked invisible amongst the thickets or reeds, made itself felt by mortals, and suddenly smote them with a fear so acute that they fled from the unseen. "Hygienic" is derived from the name of the goddess of health—Hygeia.

How many people realize when they speak of putting an animal into a lethal chamber that the name comes from Lethe—a river on the borders of Hades—whose waters brought forgetfulness to whoever drank of them? And when they describe something as being in a state of "chaos" do they ever think that they are naming the first of all the old heathen gods—Chaos—who ruled over confusion before any other gods existed?

"Under his aegis" is another phrase often used. "Aegis" was the name of the shield of the goddess of wisdom, Minerva, and is used to indicate what the shield afforded—protection.

Nicknames Represent Character of Cities

Unfortunate is the city which in its career has not been dubbed by some nickname or other. Some of the nicknames of cities express admiration, some are frankly deprecatory, others are facetious, and all represent in some measure the character of the city.

New York city is blessed with many nicknames, for whatever may be its virtues or its vices, no one will deny that it has character and distinction. Perhaps it is best known as the "Empire City," a sobriquet clearly earned by its premier position in the United States, its wealth, its population, its enterprise and its influence in the empire of the Western world.

"Gotham," a name first applied humorously by Washington Irving, comes next. It is an allusion to that older Gotham, the extraordinary stupidity of whose citizens won them the ironic appellation of "The Wise Men of Gotham."

Much-abused Brooklyn is pretentiously called "The City of Churches," but is also known as "New York's Bedroom."

Stephen Girard

Stephen Girard (1750-1831) was an American merchant and philanthropist, born at Bordeaux, France. He was greatly interested in the first United States bank, which he made one of the soundest financial institutions in America. During the War of 1812 he was the chief financial support of the government. On the rechartering of the second United States bank, 1816, he became one of its principal stockholders and directors, and exercised a dominant control over its policy for many years. He left almost his entire fortune of $7,500,000 in public benefactions, chief of which was Girard college, in the regulations for the control and management of which he incorporated his ideas as to freedom of thought and religious belief.

To Cement Agate Ware

The old cement made by mixing litharge with glycerin is as good as any for mending holes in kettles, pans, water pipes, etc. The litharge and glycerin should be kept separate until needed, and only as much as is required at the time should be mixed, as the mixture soon hardens. This kind of hard putty is also useful for puttying the glass in aquariums, mending auto radiators, fixing burners to kerosene lamps and doing similar repairs where a hard and resistant cement is required. Litharge is a reddish powder which can be bought at any drug store; it is an oxide of lead—"red lead."

Miracles on Every Side

When the Greek religion began to pass away Greece was a land of miracles. Everything that happened was regarded as a miracle.

There were winking pictures, sweating statues, statues that wept and shed tears, paintings that could blush, statues that would brandish spears and swords, images that talked, images that bled real blood from wounds and numberless statues and shrines which healed wounds and made the blind see and the deaf hear.

The tools with which the mythical Trojan horse was made were on exhibition as was the spear of Achilles.

Twins Never Parted

A curious record of coincidence is reported from Devonshire (Eng.) concerning twin brothers, born in 1651, near Barnstaple, in that county. When they were twelve years old the twins were apprenticed to a miller. They are still millers and are still working side by side.

The brothers married on the same day and lived in adjoining houses. Each had ten children; one, three boys and seven girls; the other three girls and seven boys. For fifty-seven years both twins have attended the same church, regarded as important the same Sunday school and neither has ever missed a Sunday.

Missing the Sights

Senator Underwood said in a discussion of spiritualism at a dinner party: "There is one sure thing about the spirits raised by Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle—they talk in a light way about heaven.

"The details that these spirits give us remind me of the little girl who, rummaging in a drawer, exclaimed: "There! Grandma's gone to heaven without her spectacles!"—Los Angeles Times.

Seen and Heard

Usher—Pardon me for disturbing you, mister, but your snoring is waking up the rest of the congregation.

Out of Proportion

A spider enlarged to the size of a cat would be helpless, even if the relative proportions of all its parts were retained. Its legs would bend and break under the weight of its body because the muscular strength would have increased only as the square of the muscles' dimensions, while the body's weight would have increased as the cube of its parts. The fly with its relatively powerful legs easily walks upward over a vertical wall. Make it 100, or even 50 times as large, and its muscles could not begin to hold it in this way against the force of gravity.

Trouser "Galluses"

"Galluses" is an old word fast disappearing from use. It is now seldom heard except among old people or in backward districts. The word is a corruption of "gallowses," which is still used in parts of Scotland for "suspenders." "Gallowses" is only another form of "gallows," a framework for hanging criminals. It seems that our forefathers put criminals and trousers in the same category, the gallows being the common fate of both. Although "galluses" is [illegible] considered dialectic, it was formerly used by many writers of repute.

Annuities Were Issued in Early Babylonian Times

Historically annuities antedate life insurance by far. It is thought that the great development of banking facilities in Assyria and Babylonia must have provided annuities. The first definite mention of them, however, was 40 B. C. in Rome, and is of such a character as to justify a belief that they had been long in use.

In the Middle ages, kingdoms, municipalities and bankers obtained money by selling annuities for life or terms of years. It is said that England's national existence during the wars of William of Orange was largely maintained through the money obtained by selling annuities. At first the values of such contracts were determined without scientific calculation; after a while the Northampton mortality table was compiled and used as a basis, and later the Carlisle table, but both these bases were far too favorable to the annuities.

Several British companies took advantage of the very low price at which their government granted annuities and purchased many on the lives of sturdy farmers, but payable to their corporate selves, and thus made large profits. In 1819 an English actuary warned the government that it was losing £8,000 a month, but he was not heeded until 1827, when another actuary announced that the government was losing £4,000 a week, and then the sale of annuities was stopped after an estimated total loss of £25,000,000.—World's Work.

Why Blinks Had to Reach Home on Schedule Time

Promptly as the office clock struck five Blinks with unusual rapidity prepared to start for home.

As he hustled into his overcoat and made for the door his desk mate raised a surprised head. "What!" he said, "in a hurry again tonight? It's six nights now you've rushed home like this and haven't waited for a soda at the old stand. I'm beginning to think, I've offended you, or something like that."

"No," Blinks laughed. "You haven't hurt my sensitive soul, but the fact is this, we've got a cook up at the house now, and while the missus didn't mind my rolling in late the cook won't stay unless I arrive every evening on time."

The Old Almanac

Advertisement was not always the chief function of almanacs. They were first of all, calendars of the days and months, the changes of the moon, and of other astronomical happenings. They supplied a widespread demand for weather lore, its truth or untruth being of minor consideration. To that were added literary and informative features. "Poor Richard" enjoyed wide popularity and was famous by reason of his homely wisdom. Last, but not least, it held high place as the family joke book, the excellence of its witticisms being often proved by their longevity. In many a backwoods pioneer home the annual almanac was the sole literary refuge, taking the place of all other books, and never, perhaps, was any other book or periodical so read, re-read and digested.

Have to Let Himself In

Bridget and Michael had been married barely three months, and already Michael had on two occasions arrived home in the early hours of the morning. This did not suit Bridget, as on each occasion she had to come down to admit him.

Michael was looking forward to spending the evening of this particular day in having a "few sociable ones with the boys," and this Bridget knew.

"Now, look here," she said to her husband at the breakfast table, "it was two o'clock the following morning when ye came home the other night a bit since. It was two o'clock the following morning when ye came home last night. But I want to be telling ye that if it's two o'clock in the morning when ye come home tonight—or any other night in the morning—you'll have to get up and let yourself in!"

Navajo Monument in Northwestern Arizona

The Navajo national monument is within the great and little known Navajo Indian reservation in northeastern Arizona. It comprises tracts of land, each of which contains the ruins of a remarkable prehistoric cave pueblo or cliff dwelling in a good state of preservation. These are known as Betatakin (the Navajo name of side-hill house), Kitsil (meaning broken pottery) and inscription house. The latter ruin derives its name from an inscription scratched into the clay plaster of a wall. It reads: "8-hapeiro Ano-Dom 1661."

Betatakin is situated at an elevation of 7,000 feet in a great cave 450 feet long, with a maximum depth of 150 feet, in the side of a soft, red sandstone cliff, which forms the walls of a most picturesque and beautiful canyon, says the Detroit News. The cave roof projects far out over the village, which originally contained 120 rooms and occupied every foot of building space, but is so high that swirling storms have caused shrubbery to grow up to the very foundations of the ancient homes.

Kitsil is the largest of the cave pueblos and is appropriately named, as the open spaces between the apartments are strewn with broken pottery of the finest type produced by the ancient cliff dwellers. The village completely fills a cave 350 feet long and 80 feet deep. There are 148 rooms in all. Similar circular ceremonial chambers or kivas at the front of the cave and below the level of its floor indicate that the tribe occupying it was different from the clan that lived at Betatakin, as in the latter there are no rooms of this type. Kitsil is situated in a wooded canyon, the walls of which are warmly colored.

Dairymen of Jutland Find Co-operation Pays

Randers is a city of 37,000 inhabitants situated in the east central part of Jutland, writes E. F. Frazier in the Southern Workman. The co-operative dairy located there is an excellent example of how producers and consumers can meet in co-operative enterprises.

This dairy was established in 1918. At present it receives about 11,000,000 pounds of milk from 400 members living within a radius of between six and seven miles of the city. Each member pays an entrance fee of $10 per cow. The society owns 12 retail stores in the city and supplies 12 besides its own. Besides the annual dividend from the surplus each member receives three-fifths of a cent more per kilogram (2.2 pounds) than is offered by the privately owned dairies. The dairy supplies 65 per cent of the city's consumption, besides exporting 2,000 pounds of cream and 8,000 pounds of butter daily to be sold in its stores in England. In 1922 the society was able to pay its members a dividend of 17 cents on each 100 pounds of milk brought to the dairy.

By such an organization of production the smallest producer is afforded the same advantages as the largest, and all consumers are guaranteed a standard product.

Suited the President

President Coolidge's economy in words continues to furnish good copy. Here is the latest:

At a recent political pow-wow a newspaper editor sat next to Mr. Coolidge. After carrying on a one-sided conversation for a while he began to grow restless under the President's monosyllables. "Mr. President," he said, "I think it is time I was giving some one else the opportunity to talk with you; I'd better move on."

Without turning his head the President in an undertone commanded: "Stay where you are!" Having got used to his conversational partner he had no intention of breaking in another.—Portland Oregonian.

Lee Statue Gigantic

The height of the Goddess of Liberty is 111 feet; 151.41 feet to the extremity of the torch. The figure of General Lee on Stone mountain is to be 140 feet from the top of his hat to the bottom of the horse's hoofs. It is said that a man standing on the general's shoulder would need a stepladder to reach his ear. The sculptor says: "The distance from the horse's knees to the top of General Lee's hat is 120 feet. The depth of the relief on the extreme point will be about 20 feet, while the average depth of stone to be removed over the whole surface—300-odd feet in length, by about 200 in height—will be about 4 feet."

Ancient Books Show Surgery an Old Art

The practice of surgery goes back as far as the time when man first began to hurt himself or to be hurt by others. Medicine and surgery were flourishing in the Orient some four centuries B. C. Accounts in ancient books tell of more than a hundred instruments of steel, 14 varieties of bandages, splints made of bamboo, the sewing of cuts on the head and face; and there was even an operation for remaking the nose by using a piece of skin of the cheek for that purpose. So it would seem that the Hindu had a more thorough acquaintance with the science than one looking back over the faraway centuries would at first suspect.

The figures of patients undergoing operations are carved on Egyptian monuments and among the antiquities of that people are such instruments as lancets, probes, knives and forceps. In passing it may be remarked that the latest centuries need not take credit to themselves for the invention of artificial teeth, for that triumph of the dentists' art has been found in [illegible].

The surgical skill of the Orient seems to have been bottled up for a time, or, at least it was in no hurry to cross over to Europe, where for a long period the barber was the only surgeon. The lives of two of England's greatest kings might have been saved for longer usefulness had a little wisdom been shown in their treatment. Henry V died of a malady which could have been cured by the knife; Richard the Lion Hearted met his death from a wound in the shoulder caused by an arrow which an ignorant surgeon aggravated by twisting about in his efforts to remove, thus inducing blood poison.

Make Today Count as No Previous One Ever Did

Make this resolution every morning: I will play the life game today as I have never played it before. I will play it with more energy, more determination. I will play it with firmer decision, with better judgment. But while I will try not to make so many mistakes, I will not be so cautious as not to act at all, for I know that he who hesitates in irresolution or wavers is lost. I am going to make myself felt today as never before. I am going to fling my life into my work with all the energy I can master. I am resolved not to grope along in a pigsyune way any more. I am going to put some more dare into my efforts. I am going to take more chances because I know that people with vigorous initiative can afford to make more mistakes than the hesitators, the waverers, the balancers. I am going to make this day count as no previous day of my life has counted.—Inspiration.

Sunrise in the Tropics

No one who has ever seen a tropical sunrise will forget it; from darkness the world bursts into light. The sun on the Amazon usually rises without clouds and floods everything with radiance; the sunsets are sometimes beautiful, but there are seldom clouds, and the color effects are not as fine as in northern climes.

The banks of the river are full of interest to the canoe voyager, who has every opportunity for observation, as one always paddles close to the shore. Draperies of flowing vines sweep the canoe; at times in some little bay, where the current has no influence, great masses of water plants are in full bloom, bright tillandsias perch in the branches above his head, and orchids look out from the branches, or many times swing in midair. Large patches of "aninga," which looks like a tall-stemmed, giant calla lily, full of the great white flowers, make beautiful pictures and over all is a bright blue sky with the cool breeze, which from nine till four always draws up the river.

Composition of Celluloid

Celluloid is an artificial substance made by mixing gun camphor, gun cotton and other substances and then subjecting them to hydraulic pressure. A kind of celluloid was made in 1856 at Birmingham, England, but the invention of ordinary celluloid is usually credited to John W. Hyatt of Newark, N. J., who with his brother developed an important industry. The exact process of celluloid manufacture is a trade secret. One method is roughly as follows: Dry guncotton is well washed and dried and ground fine under water, after which the water is removed and the mass subjected to great pressure. Then camphor and coloring matter are added. Celluloid is used as a substitute for ivory, bone, hard rubber, coral, leather and many other substances. It is not explosive, but easily lighted and burns rapidly.

Airedale and Airedale Terrier

The name "Airedale" is only a shortened form for "Airedale terrier." The tendency now is to drop the superfluous word "terrier" when speaking of this dog. The Airedale terrier was originally bred about 60 or 70 years ago in the valley of the Aire, Yorkshire, England. Hence its name. The breed was obtained by various crosses between the bull terrier, the border terrier, the otter hound and other breeds. The Airedale is one of the largest of the terriers. It has pendulous ears, a black, tan or dark, rough-haired coat, and usually weighs from 40 to 50 pounds. The Airedale should not be confused with the Irish terrier, which is a smaller dog somewhat resembling it in general appearance.

Skirts Constitute Real Peril to Their Wearers

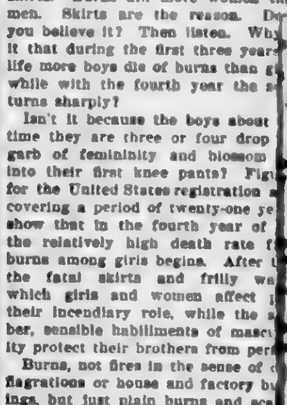
"Safety first" may mean knicker bockers for women. On the other hand, it may merely mean asbestos skirts. Burns kill more women than men. Skirts are the reason. Don't you believe it? Then listen. Why it that during the first three years life more boys die of burns than g while with the fourth year the turns sharply?



Isn't it because the boys about time they are three or four drop garb of femininity and blossom into their first knee pants? ### Origin of Adam's Apple

The Adam's apple, which is a projection or enlargement on the forepart of the throat, received its name from the old absurd belief that when Eve gave Adam the forbidden fruit, which was supposedly an apple, a portion of it lodged in his throat. This theory was all the more plausible from the fact that the Adam's apple is visible on men but rarely noticeable on women, and then usually only late in life. According to the superstition the lump caused by this piece of apple in Adam's throat was transmitted to his descendants and became a characteristic of the human race. The projection is produced by the thyroid cartilage of the larynx.

Cause of Petrifaction

This process is called petrifaction. When wood or the carcass of an animal apparently turns to stone we say it petrifies. The word "petrify" itself means turning to or making into stone. It is from the Latin "petra," a rock or stone, and "facio," to make or to do. But the fact is, organic matter does not actually turn into stone. This is what really occurs: Water containing dissolved minerals, such as calcium carbonate and silica, infiltrates through the organic matter. Particle by particle, as time passes by, the calcium carbonate or silica takes the place of the organic matter. After many years, perhaps hundreds or thousands, it seems that the wood or animal has turned to stone, for often the original form and structure are retained in the process. The organic matter really only acts as a mold while the stone is being formed from the minerals in the infiltrating water.

Desert Showers Count

The effect of a single shower on the southern margin of the Chilean desert is noted by Charles Darwin: "The farmers, who plant corn near the sea coast, where the atmosphere is more humid, taking advantage of this shower, would break up the ground; after a second they would put the seed in; and if a third shower should fall, they would reap a good harvest in the spring. It was interesting to watch the effect of this trifling amount of moisture. Twelve hours afterward the ground appeared as dry as ever; yet, after an interval of ten days all the hills were faintly tinged with green patches; the grass being sparingly scattered in hairlike fibers a full inch in length. Before this shower every part of the surface was bare as on a high road."—From Desert Trails of Atacama, by Isaiah Bowman.

Egyptian Water Clocks

Casts of two ancient Egyptian water clocks have just been presented by the Egyptian government to the Science museum, South Kensington, London, England. One of the clocks comes from Karnak, and dates from the reign of Amenhotep II, 1,400 years before Christ. The other is from Edfu, in the Ptolemaic epoch. From an examination of these clocks and the scale of measurements recorded on each, it appears that the "hour" of that remote period was a variable length, being one-twelfth of the length of the day or night of the particular time of the year. A study of these ancient timepieces is regarded as important in the comparison of astronomical observations.

Missing the Sights

Senator Underwood said in a discussion of spiritualism at a dinner party: "There is one sure thing about the spirits raised by Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle—they talk in a light way about heaven.

"The details that these spirits give us remind me of the little girl who, rummaging in a drawer, exclaimed: "There! Grandma's gone to heaven without her spectacles!"—Los Angeles Times.

Overheard

Usher—Pardon me for disturbing you, mister, but your snoring is waking up the rest of the congregation.

Out of Proportion

A spider enlarged to the size of a cat would be helpless, even if the relative proportions of all its parts were retained. Its legs would bend and break under the weight of its body because the muscular strength would have increased only as the square of the muscles' dimensions, while the body's weight would have increased as the cube of its parts. The fly with its relatively powerful legs easily walks upward over a vertical wall. Make it 100, or even 50 times as large, and its muscles could not begin to hold it in this way against the force of gravity.

Trouser "Galluses"

"Galluses" is an old word fast disappearing from use. It is now seldom heard except among old people or in backward districts. The word is a corruption of "gallowses," which is still used in parts of Scotland for "suspenders." "Gallowses" is only another form of "gallows," a framework for hanging criminals. It seems that our forefathers put criminals and trousers in the same category, the gallows being the common fate of both. Although "galluses" is [illegible] dialectic, it was formerly used by many writers of repute.

Insects Walk on Water

By virtue of their lightness, combined with a peculiar construction of the feet which keeps them from becoming wet, water spiders and a number of other insects are able to walk readily over sheets of water, supported by the surface tension of the latter. This tension acts practically the same as a stretched elastic membrane. It is sufficiently strong for these creatures, but it is practically negligible so far as heavier ones are concerned. So long as the feet and other portions of the bodies of water insects remain perfectly dry they are as safe on the surface of water as they would be on terra firma, but let them once get wet and this same membrane will quickly prove their undoing.—The Pathfinder.

Native African Language

The natives of Africa speak three languages—Negroid, Hottentot-Bushman and Hamitic. The Hamitic language, to which ancient Egyptian belonged, is spoken in northern Africa. The Hottentot-Bushman is spoken by the dwarf and pigmy tribes in the central part of the continent. The remainder of the natives speak what is known as the Negroid tongue. All these overlap one another and it cannot be said that all the tribes of central Africa speak any one language. These three languages represent many dialects and seem to be distinct from all other systems of speech. At least no close relation can be discovered between them and other languages.

INTRODUCING

TIGER FOOT CORD TIRES

For the first time in Columbus Tiger Foot Cords are being offered at these amazingly low prices.

Tiger Foot Cords are made of the very best materials obtainable.

Tiger Foot Cords are made by highly paid workmen who are impressed with the fact that Quality is the first and most important consideration.

Tiger Foot Cords are great big oversize tires with a tread so tough that 15,000 and 20,000 miles of satisfactory service is nothing unusual.

Tiger Foot Cords are fully guaranteed by the factory and I will personally make a satisfactory adjustment on any Tiger Foot Cord Tire that should fail to give perfect satisfaction.

Tiger Foot Cords may be purchased from any of the Hilltop Merchants listed below or from me at my residence.

Suited the President

President Coolidge's economy in words continues to furnish good copy. Here is the latest:

At a recent political pow-wow a newspaper editor sat next to Mr. Coolidge. After carrying on a one-sided conversation for a while he began to grow restless under the President's monosyllables. "Mr. President," he said, "I think it is time I was giving some one else the opportunity to talk with you; I'd better move on."

Without turning his head the President in an undertone commanded:

"Stay where you are!" Having got used to his conversational partner he had no intention of breaking in another.—Portland Oregonian.

Have to Let Himself In

Bridget and Michael had been married barely three months, and already Michael had on two occasions arrived home in the early hours of the morning. This did not suit Bridget, as on each occasion she had to come down to admit him.

Michael was looking forward to spending the evening of this particular day in having a "few sociable ones with the boys," and this Bridget knew.

"Now, look here," she said to her husband at the breakfast table, "it was two o'clock the following morning when ye came home the other night a bit since. It was two o'clock the following morning when ye came home last night. But I want to be telling ye that if it's two o'clock in the morning when ye come home tonight—or any other night in the morning—you'll have to get up and let yourself in!"

Lee Statue Gigantic

The height of the Goddess of Liberty is 111 feet; 151.41 feet to the extremity of the torch. The figure of General Lee on Stone mountain is to be 140 feet from the top of his hat to the bottom of the horse's hoofs. It is said that a man standing on the general's shoulder would need a stepladder to reach his ear. The sculptor says: "The distance from the horse's knees to the top of General Lee's hat is 120 feet. The depth of the relief on the extreme point will be about 20 feet, while the average depth of stone to be removed over the whole surface—300-odd feet long, by about 200 in height—will be about 4 feet."

New Westgate Addition

With the selection of sites for a new West High School, containing 10 acres, and a new city park of 14 acres in the Westgate addition, lying between Broad Street and Sullivant Avenue west of Hague Ave., work in the opening of this tract is being advanced by the Johnson-Pavey Realty Co. For more than 75 years this property was controlled by the Hussey family, and as it was the old family homestead, no development was permitted, despite its nearness to the city. Since passing out of the control of the Hussey estate it has been made available to the city planning commission for park development and the board of education for the site of the new high school. These two public acquisitions have taken 24 acres. The balance of the tract has been plated into a highly restricted residence section ,made up of 828 building lots, none with a street frontage of less than 40 feet. While the planning commission suggested that the restrictions prohibit the building of any residence within 25 feet of the lot line, the realtors finally fixed the limit at 30 feet, making uniform beauty of building sites all the more certain. Members of the planning commission believe that Westgate Park, when fully developed, will become one of the finest beauty spots in the city because of the natural charm furnished by the woods and brooks in the piece selected.

HIS FIRST EXPERIENCEE

There was a big man on the Hilltop,
Who was closing his store for the day.
When he heard from behind a voice not kind,
Stick 'em up and don't delay.

He is big, fat and healthy,
But the little gun got his goat.
His hands went up in a hurry,
And his heart went to his throat.

On Saturday when he closes up,
When he turns to lock his door,
He'll think what happened a week ago
And not back the door.

There are people who say what they would do,
And blow it all over town,
But when it comes to face that gun,
They'll all do just like Brown.

Social Affairs

Mrs. Martha Houck, 61 S. Hague Ave., entertained in her home, Mothers' Day, her son, Mr. Gilbert Houck and family, 3782 N. High St., and her daughter, Mrs. Adell Thompson, Newark; Mrs. Adine Beinhower and husband, Newark; Mrs. Lida Dairs and husband from Johnstown, and a friend, Miss Bertha Miles, Johnstown. Mrs. Houck celebrated her 79th birthday anniversary in March.

---

Mrs. G. A. Payne, 157 S. Eureka Ave., was hostess to members of the Hilltop Embroidery Club Wednesday, May 7th, at their regular meeting. Those present were Mrs. T. S. Fox, Mrs. L. M. Seiller, Mrs. P. G. Gantz, Mrs. W. K. Merriman, Mrs. G. W. Matson, Mrs. R. C. Milliken, Mrs. C. J. Randall, Mrs. John T. Evans, Mrs. Denny Wells and the hostess, Mrs. G. A. Payne.

The date of the next regular meeting will be May 21st. Regular business will be dispensed with and the husbands and families of the members will be entertained with a hot picnic supper at the Storage Dam.

Mr. and Mrs. John Knierin, 175 Clarendon Ave., entertained 35 guests at dinner last Sunday, May 11th, in honor of their silver wedding anniversary.

---

A very pleasant evening was spent last Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meael Fearing (Edna Stoops), 502 S. Hague Ave., it being their 12th wedding anniversary. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion and many old time friends remembered them with gifts, which were of silk and linen. Among those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Southward, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sheron (Cora Stoops), and Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Bishop (Ethel Stoops), Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garriety, Mr. and Mrs. John Sheron, Mrs. Sam Stephenson, Mrs. Meral Fry, Mrs. E Murphy, Mary Jane Sheron, Madge Bishop, James Bishop, Ruth Murphy Ethel and Jay Fearing, host and hostess.

---

The Sunset Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. C. H. Campbell, 35 North Burgess Avenue, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. T. R. Fletcher was assisting hostess.

---

A joint meeting of the Hilltop Circle and Northern Circle, Child Conservation League, will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Postle, 300 Oakland Park, Thursday, May 22nd. Mr. Fred Postle will be speaker for the afternoon. Members of the Hilltop Circle will leave Hilltop at 10 o'clock, and a potluck luncheon will be served on arrival. For further particulars call Mrs. L. A. Warner.

---

The music and dramatic departments of Highland Junior High School will present a program in the auditorium of the West Broad Street School Friday evening, May 23, 1924, at 8:00 o'clock. This will include music by the school orchestra, the boys' glee club, which has been asked to sing at several civic and social meetings recently, and the girls' glee club. In addition to the music, the 9A Dramatics Class will give two plays, "Training Mary" and "The Neighbors."

---

Robert Morris Social Club, Order of Eastern Star, will meet Thursday, May 22nd, at 2 o'clock, with Mrs. Margaret Jennings, 2206 Summit St. Mrs. Margaret Bosson and Mrs. Carrie Ports will be assisting hostesses. All members of Chapter cordially invited.

---

Plates were laid for 80 when the members and husbands of the Social Club of Robert Morris Chapter, O. E. S., was entertained with a 6 o'clock dinner. The room was beautifully decorated with a profusion of spring flowers and the tables were a delight to the eye, with pink decorations, lighted pink candles and laden with delicious food, which denoted much time and thought spent by the committees. After an interval of pleasant conversation and sociability, we were entertained and highly amused by a black face troupe of our own talent, composed of Minnie Mye, Grace Hoover, Margaret Close, Clara McGlinchey and Phebe Jerman. Their tytpical melodies, dances, songs, string music and nonsense can't be beat, and we considered it a privilege to witness such an exhibition; and last, but not least, a song by Mrs. Ely which we enjoyed hugely. To know how pleasant this evening was spent, you would have to have been there. Moral—"Members, come join our social club."

This Year's Chautauqua

Seventeen star events, including two plays, a concert by Elsie Baker, celebrated Victor contralto, "An Evening in Hawaii" and a strong array of lectures, are included in the Redpath Chautauqua program which is to be offered on the Hilltop July 27 to Aug. 4, inclusive. The DiGiogio Orchestra of Minneapolis has the distinction of launching the 1924 program. The week's closing number will be Vierra's Hawaiians, a company that is sure to be popular with chautauqua fans. The style review to be offered by Miss Evelyn Hansen, who used living models in her presentation of the latest creations, is destined to make a strong appeal. Another unusual feature will be the lecture demonstration by E. R. Root, in which he handles a swarm of 10,000 bees on the chautauqua platform. "Give and Take," the comedy-drama in which Louis Mann and George Sidney starred recently in New York and Chicago, is to be presented on chautauqua's second night, with a Broadway cast. A second play, "The Meanest Man in the World," is scheduled for the fifth night's program. These comedies have enjoyed long runs in the larger cities, and it is to the credit of the Redpath management that they have been secured for this community. Other program features will be announced as chautauqua approaches. In the meantime this community is planning to sidetrack all other events for a big chautauqua week.

D. M. WEBB'S NEW LOCATION

After doing business on the Hilltop for the past three years Donald M. Webb has again opened his Hilltop Insurance Agency at 2389 W. Broad, just the third door another location east of the Hilltop Bank. Mr. Webb's former office was located at the N. W. Cor. of Oakley and Broad. After the building was sold Mr. Webb was compelled to find which was impossible at that time. Now that he has found a new location he has secured the services of the competent former Corporal W. E. Dolby who resides at 136 S. Richardson Ave, as manager of the office. Mr. Dolby, who served with the Columbus Police Force for 25 years, so efficiently, has decided that he can serve the Hilltop people just as efficiently on all insurance matters. He wishes to meet his old friends as well as new ones at his office.

Franklin's Thrift

We hear a great deal of Benjamin Franklin as the great exponent of thrift, remarks the Kansas City Star. Historians recall, however, that the great scientist-statesman was not always thrifty enough. In his refusal to patent his famous stove, he was wasteful of his own and the public's profit. He wished his idea to be given free to the world, and so did not protect his invention; an Englishman made some changes for the worse in the Franklin fireplace, secured a patent on it, and reaped a fortune from the sales.

Fear Alligator's Tail

In several of the southern states alligator farms are maintained for the purpose of using the hides for shoes and other leather articles. It is said that the keepers of these creatures are more in fear of their tails than their teeth. When attacking an enemy an alligator will try to strike first with its powerful tail before using its great teeth.

Preparations for the State and National Prohibition conventions are as follows: On the evening of June 4th a combined meeting of the State and National convention in Chamber of Commerce auditorium. The National convention proper will convene in Memorial Hall on June 5th. Mayor Thomas is scheduled to give the address of welcome on the part of the city and Dr. Aaron S. Watkins the address of welcome on the part of the state. Former Presidential Candidates, Joshua Levering, Silas C. Swallow and Dr. Aaron S. Watkins will be heard. Thursday evening mass meeting in Memorial Hall. Hon. Charles H. Randall, former Prohibition party congressman from California, and Clinton N. Howard, "The Little Giant" of Rochester, N. Y., will be heard. Friday morning adoption of platform and nomination of candidates for president and vice president will follow. A mass meeting will be held Friday evening. Addresses will be given by the nominees for president and vice president. Dr. A. P. Gouthey of Seattle, Washington, will give the closing address.

Store and Shop Notes

Mr. G. T. Cooper, Brunswick dealer, will, in the near future, move into his new room being fitted up in the new Rivoli Theater Building, at the corner of Broad and Oakley. It is a dandy room and will make an exceptionally good place for Mr. Cooper to display his beautiful line of Brunswicks. Since Mr. Cooper embarked in that business on the Hilltop he has built up a business that not only he himself, but our whole community, should take pride in.

---

The closing out sale of Cussins & Hartsough Dry Goods and Shoe Store has been a big drawing card not only for Hilltop people, but to people living in other parts of the city also. Folks have heard of the great bargains they were offering and have been taking advantage of the same.

---

Mr. M. H. Prior, who is conducting a hardware store recently opened up on North High Street near Olentangy Park, reports everything to be going O. K. up there.

---

Mr. M. W. Seiller has been remodeling his store to a large extent in order to give more room and better facilities for handling his largely increased business.

---

Mr. Colburn, who recently opened up a grocery and meat market at the corner of Sullivant Avenue and Columbia Avenue, has one of the prettiest stores on the Hilltop and we bespeak for him a growing business.

---

The team of Haunts Grocers of the Hilltop bowling League took first place in the season's contest which recently ended.

Hilltop Deaths

Word was received Wednesday morning of the death of Miss Jennie Hart, sister of Mr. Elmer Hart. For many years Miss Hart taught in the primary department of Glenwood Sunday School, of which church she was a member. On account of her illness for the last few years, she was confined to her home, 55 West Lane Avenue. Funeral arrangements at this writing have not been completed.

Origin of Adam's Apple

The Adam's apple, which is a projection or enlargement on the forepart of the throat, received its name from the old absurd belief that when Eve gave Adam the forbidden fruit, which was supposedly an apple, a portion of it lodged in his throat. This theory was all the more plausible from the fact that the Adam's apple is visible on men but rarely noticeable on women, and then usually only late in life. According to the superstition the lump caused by this piece of apple in Adam's throat was transmitted to his descendants and became a characteristic of the human race. The projection is produced by the thyroid cartilage of the larynx.

Chess Tournament No Place for "Rooters"

Chess is one game, or sport, where the rooter is conspicuous by his absence. The stickler for golf etiquette, who frowns if a robin chirps while some one is attempting to putt, would be considered a noisy nuisance at a chess tournament. A gallery of silent spectators may stand at a respectful distance from two masters of the game, but those of the gallery must keep quiet. If an important move is made—one that appears to have peculiar significance in regard to the outcome of the contest—there must be no cheering. Even nodding approval is barred if the nod will cause the collar to rattle.

Chess masters regard their pieces by the hour. Minutes will pass while all of the possibilities and eventualities are considered from every angle. There must be absolute quiet, for chess is a game for thinkers, and thinkers cannot be disturbed without serious consequences to their train of thought. The escaping of a sigh seems as loud as the exhaust of a locomotive. The dropping of a pin would be regarded as an outright violation of the code of ethics. Chess is a game where concentration rises to sublime heights and where silence is obligatory if not golden. Municipal authorities who have established quiet zones and then been at a loss to know how to maintain quiet in them might learn something from a chess tournament. Place a group of chess players in each zone. —Washington Star.

Get Beautiful Effects From Lighted Marble

When an official of the United States bureau of standards was making an inspection of indoor lighting arrangements as used in Europe he was surprised to find an old church in Italy in which the daylight was filtered through thin slabs of delicate tinted marble. The effect was a surprisingly beautiful one and one not easily duplicated by our makers of ornamental glassware, as there is a peculiar charm about the natural coloring of some of the Italian marbles, writes the Washington Star.

However, the marble must be so thin for such a purpose that it could not form a commercial substitute for window panes or for use in electric light fixtures. Now a French investigator has found that such marble slabs can be used in much greater thickness if they are polished on both sides and then saturated with paraffin or shellac. By giving them such a treatment he has been able to obtain beautiful effects in illuminating corridors by the light of tungsten lamps concealed behind the marble walls of the hallways. The loss of light is said to be only about 20 per cent (or no more than with most of the milky glassware used in fixtures), and as the whole plate of marble glows the effect is surprisingly charming and unusual.

Cause of Petrifaction

This process is called petrifaction. When wood or the carcass of an animal apparently turns to stone we say it petrifies. The word "petrify" itself means turning to or making into stone. It is from the Latin "petra," a rock or stone, and "facio," to make or to do. But the fact is, organic matter does not actually turn into stone. This is what really occurs: Water containing dissolved minerals, such as calcium carbonate and silica, infiltrates through the organic matter. Particle by particle, as time passes by, the calcium carbonate or silica takes the place of the organic matter. After many years, perhaps hundreds or thousands, it seems that the wood or animal has turned to stone, for often the original form and structure are retained in the process. The organic matter really only acts as a mold while the stone is being formed from the minerals in the infiltrating water.

Desert Showers Count

The effect of a single shower on the southern margin of the Chilean desert is noted by Charles Darwin: "The farmers, who plant corn near the sea coast, where the atmosphere is more humid, taking advantage of this shower, would break up the ground; after a second they would put the seed in; and if a third shower should fall, they would reap a good harvest in the spring. It was interesting to watch the effect of this trifling amount of moisture. Twelve hours afterward the ground appeared as dry as ever; yet, after an interval of ten days all the hills were faintly tinged with green patches; the grass being sparingly scattered in hairlike fibers a full inch in length. Before this shower every part of the surface was bare as on a high road."—From Desert Trails of Atacama, by Isaiah Bowman.

Egyptian Water Clocks

Casts of two ancient Egyptian water clocks have just been presented by the Egyptian government to the Science museum, South Kensington, London, England. One of the clocks comes from Karnak, and dates from the reign of Amenhotep II, 1,400 years before Christ. The other is from Edfu, in the Ptolemaic epoch. From an examination of these clocks and the scale of measurements recorded on each, it appears that the "hour" of that remote period was a variable length, being one-twelfth of the length of the day or night of the particular time of the year. A study of these ancient timepieces is regarded as important in the comparison of astronomical observations.

Gorilla Not Ferocious Animal Long Pictured

Apparently the gorilla has been a much maligned beast. The old stories of his ferocity must have been all wrong, for now we are told on what seems to be indubitable authority that these biggest of apes are most sensitive creatures, and that the difficulty hitherto experienced in keeping them alive when captives was due to failure to treat them with the delicate consideration, without which they soon die of broken hearts.

What they really want is to be loved. Without that they fall into a lethargy of despair that passes for stupidity, but when the recipients of tender and delicate attentions they reveal the intelligence to be expected of man's nearest relations.

As Dr. Hornaday countenances these new characteristics of the gorilla nature, they cannot be ascribed to the ingenuity of overzealous press agents, as they are tempted to suspect who rather enjoyed—when at a safe distance—hearing about gun barrels broken over hairy arms, the threatening clash of monstrous teeth in preparation for attacks on lions and the beating of resonant breasts in the working of murderous rage.

But perhaps gorillas have changed and deteriorated since Du Chaillu's day. That bold traveler and fine writer did not see them as pretty pets for ladies or as sufferers from any angioneuroses.—New York Times.

Rhinoceros Can Scent Enemy Two Miles Off

Many animals give off scent through their feet. The bloodhound can "scent" his object many hours after it has passed.

Scent depends a great deal on atmospheric condition; on a sharp, dry day it does not "lay." On a muggy, still day, however, even human beings will scent a fox, as their odor sticks to surrounding objects, such as bushes and hedges.

Elephants have a wonderful sense of smell, either from breath or body, but the keenest-scented animal is undoubtedly the rhinoceros. One big-game hunter has stated that in favorable conditions this animal can "wind" a man for two miles. This may be considered a tall order, but in Africa the atmosphere is wonderfully clear.

What is the explanation of dogs and cats finding their way back to their original homes after being taken many miles away? The explanation is believed to be "ether." Scent is conveyed to animals "on the wind" by this means.—Exchange.

April Fool

Many attempts have been made to account for "All Fool's day" or "April Fool day." The most satisfactory explanation seems to be as follows: Before the English changed their calendar in 1752 the legal year began March 25 instead of January 1. Most all of the feast days and festivals were originally celebrated eight days. April 1 was the octave or eighth day after New Year's day, March 25. It was therefore the day on which the New Year festivals reached the highest point and ended. The Roman festival known as the "Feast of Fools" on February 17 may have influenced April Fool, because on that day the Romans also played tricks and practical jokes. The Hindus have a spring festival on March 31. Some have tried to connect "All Fool's day" with the mock trial of Christ, but the connection is probably only imaginary.

Playtime Important

It is only for the sake of the free life that material competence and knowledge of fact are worth attaining. Facts for a living creature are only instruments; his play-life is his true life. On his working days, when he is attentive to matter, he is only his own servant, preparing the feast. He becomes his own master in his holidays and in his sportive passions. Among these must be counted literature and philosophy, and so much of love, religion and patriotism as is not an effort to survive materially. In such enthusiasms there is much asseveration; but what they attest is really not the character of the external facts concerned, but only the spiritual uses to which the spirit turns them.—G. Santayana in Yale Review.

Sheep in America

Sheep were unknown in the domesticated state in America until after the Spanish conquest. The beginning of the sheep industry in the New World dates back to the time of Cortes and his conquest of Mexico in the early part of the Sixteenth century. Nearly all Mexican sheep can be traced to early Castile breeds. This is also the source of the early sheep in the western part of the United States. It is believed that the English colonists first brought sheep to Virginia in 1609. originally all sheep probably came from Asia, but American breeds all sprang from stock imported from Europe.

When Forks Were New

The present-day fork, with its four prongs, was not developed until after 1725, and as late as the period of George III the wife of a gentleman in waiting to the king, about 1788, wrote that silver forks were used only by the nobility and foreign ambassadors, and that, since they had but three prongs, the knives were made broad-ended, so that one might use them to eat peas and catch fruit juices. It seems that the use of the dessert spoon was unknown at that time.

Venetian Mirror Makers Once Had World Monopoly

In picturesque Venice, the center of the arts during the Middle ages, a few clever experimenters rediscovered the old secrets of mirror making and even improved upon the ancient masterpieces. They made an amalgam of lead and tin with which they "silvered" their mirrors, and conquered the attention of all Europe, and the other parts of the world then commercially known.

Venetian mirrors were almost priceless, so highly were they esteemed. Vincent de Beauvais, writing in 1260, declared that the mirror of glass and lead was a marvel and the best of all. Kings tried to make arrangements through special emissaries and ambassadors to have mirror makers come to their courts—but in vain. The Venetian doges proclaimed a law that any glass maker carrying his art into a foreign state should be forced to return; if he did not, his closest relatives were arrested and imprisoned as hostages.

Should he still remain at the court of a foreign king, special agents were sent to kill him and destroy his establishment. This state of affairs lasted until the reign of Louis XIV of France, when Colbert, the famous minister, began to break up the Venetian monopoly of mirror making. In the face of all the disastrous laws of Italy, he imported twenty artisans from the mirror guild of Venice, and established them in Paris, in the Faubourg St. Antoine, where they enjoyed the protection and patronage of the king.

Thus was the mirror industry firmly established in France. Later on, when it was safe, these artisans were distributed to other parts of the kingdom, and several manufactories started in the provinces.

Creature of Mystery Found in Ant Colony

The most mysterious personage in a colony of African driver ants is a creature perhaps an inch and a half long and three-quarters of an inch high. It is not an ant. In fact, so far as science is concerned, says Prof. R. L. Garner in the Century magazine, it is as yet unclassified.

In comparison with the ants, continues Professor Garner, it is enormous. The creature—there is only one to a colony—looks for all the world like a tiny elephant in a circus parade as it lumbers along in the rear part of the line of march. Its body is about as thick as your finger, and its legs are proportionately heavy and help to increase the resemblance to an elephant. There is always a bodyguard five or six deep round it as it marches.

The thing is hardly a prisoner, for it has never been found anywhere except in a column of driver ants. What its sex is is doubtful. Several of the driver ants were taken to Germany a few years ago and examined, but no important knowledge was gained. Personally I have never captured one of the creatures, but I strongly suspect that it is really the queen of the colony. For in all species of the hymenoptera, which includes ants, the queen appears to be an anomalous creature, many times larger than the other members of the colony and always different in form.

"Palatinate"

This term is a survival of feudal times. In the days when a man's house was actually his castle which he had to defend by force of arms, kings were not anxious to assume responsibility. Therefore they found it convenient to assign their adherents to districts, giving each the power to be master, collect taxes, and administer justice as he saw fit. The term "palatinate" was appropriately applied to such a holding as it comes from the same Latin root word as "palace" and "castle." Three hundred years ago palatinates were common. Many English counties have been palatinates and this form of governorship was common over here. For instance, Maryland was the palatinate of the Calvert family, Maine the palatinate of Ferdinando Gorges, etc. The Bavarian palatinate is the only territory of any importance which has retained the term.

Made Name as Sculptor

Clark Mills was an American sculptor, born in Onondaga county, N. Y., December 1, 1815. He died January 12, 1883. In 1848, when he was on the eve of leaving for Europe to study the art of sculpture, he received a commission to erect an equestrian statue of General Jackson. According to the story, Mills had never even seen an equestrian statue. He, however, set to work, designed his model and then found it necessary to learn the art of bronze casting, inasmuch as there was no one in this country prepared to mold his figure in bronze. The statue of General Jackson by Mills is in Lafayette square, Washington, and a replica is in New Orleans.

Not Such a Bargain

A gentleman at a country fair was solicited by a lady attending one of the booths to buy something. He gallantly replied that what he would care to buy he feared would not be for sale—a lock of her hair. To his amusement and delight, she quickly cut off the coveted curl and smilingly received the price offered—$10. The proud purchaser was exhibiting his toy by the remark: "She rather got the best of the deal, for to my certain knowledge, she only paid $4 for the hole wig."

Many Uses Are Made of Centrifugal Force

When you get rid of the water in a mop by twirling it round you make use of one of the most important mechanical forces. Centrifugal force, as it is called (it is pronounced "sen-trifugal," by the way), drives the water from the mop just as it drove the stone that killed Goliath from David's sling.

An object, once set in motion, wants to continue traveling in the same direction, and resists any attempt to change this direction.

A stone tied to a piece of string and whirled in a circle pulls harder the faster it is whirled. If the string breaks, the stone will continue to travel in the direction it was moving at the instant the string broke; it would travel in a straight line were it not for the pull of the earth, which finally brings the stone to the ground.

When turning a corner on a bicycle you instinctively lean inward; if you didn't centrifugal force would upset you.

A motorcar turning a corner at high speed would run on the two outside wheels, and the inside wheels would be lifted from the ground. Cars turning corners quickly are often shown in drawings with the outside wheels clear of the ground, which is quite wrong.

Many uses are made of centrifugal force; the modern cream separator collects the fat particles from the milk by its action.

The little governer that regulates the speed of a gramophone depends on it.

And the ever-popular "roulette wheel" flings off its occupants by this force.

Residents of St. Kilda Rely on Birds for Food

St. Kilda, fifty miles west of the Outer Hebrides, is only three miles long and two miles broad, and, being very rocky, its inhabitants have to be pretty wide awake to make a living. To a great extent they depend upon sea birds for their food supply, and one fowler has been known to catch 620 birds in a single day.

The fowler sets out with a long deal pole, nine or ten feet long, with a horsehair noose at the end camouflaged by gannets' quills. Puffins are numerous on the island, and the fowler creeps as near the birds as possible without giving them the alarm, thrusts forth his rod along the ground, works the noose close to an unsuspecting puffin, and very dextrously drops the noose over the bird's head and secures it.

The birds are treated much like herrings, except that they need a preliminary plucking. When that is done they are split open, kippered and hung in long strings across the cottage ceiling. In this way they will keep for an indefinite period, and provide a puffin breakfast at a moment's notice.

Garden Moles

The chief food of ordinary garden moles is composed of earthworms, grubs, caterpillars and insects of various kinds. In captivity moles have been known to eat birds, mice and other flesh. During the summer these little animals burrow about in the light topsoil searching for food. They go deeper in winter and hibernate, or at least live in a semi-dormant state. Although moles do considerable damage by upheaving the ground in lawns and gardens, they partly recompense for this harm by destroying insects which prey upon the roots of plants. The eyes of the moles are very small and sunken, being almost hidden in the soft fur. It is now believed that the eyes of garden moles are degenerate and serve practically no use as organs of sight. Moles seldom come to the surface of the ground except at noontime. This habit has often been observed, but never adequately explained.—The Pathfinder.

Famous Egyptian Statue Was Originally Monolith

The statue of Memnon is situated near Thebes in Egypt. It is sixty feet in height, and commonly known as the "Vocal Memnon." It stands on the left bank of the Nile, and with its companion was erected in honor of Amenoph III of the Eighteenth dynasty, in front of his now vanished temple. It was originally a monolith, but, having been overthrown either by Cambyses or by the earthquake of 27 B. C., the upper part was restored by means of sandstone blocks. According to ancient tradition, this statue when first touched by the rays of the rising sun, emitted a musical tone, like the snapping of a harp-string, which the imaginative Greeks concluded was the voice of Memnon greeting his mother Eos (the dawn). Strabo, who visited this statue about 18 B. C., was the first to mention it.

"These sounds . . . were said to be produced either by a priest hidden in the Colossus or by the expansion of fissured portions under the influence of the sun's rays. Though many celebrated persons of antiquity —such as Strabo, Aelius, Gallus and Hadrian—testified as to hearing this peculiar music, its particular character and cause have never been satisfactorily explained."—Vincent's "Actual Africa."

She Distrusted Real Motive of Boy's Visit

In the family that had moved next door to the Smiths was a boy about seven years old. The Smiths had a little girl, Virginia, just the same age. Everyone expected the two children to become playmates at once, but almost a week passed before they noticed each other. Then the boy came over to play with Virginia. Virginia, however, immediately went into the house.

"Why, what's the matter, Virginia?" her mother asked. "I thought you had been wanting to play with the new boy."

"Well, I did at first," Virginia admitted, "but I don't care so much about it now, at least, not today."

"Why don't you want to play with him?" mother asked.

"Oh, mamma!" Virginia exclaimed. "He's had a whole week to come over here and hasn't done it. Now I've got a nickel to spend for candy and I don't care whether he comes or not!"—Exchange.

China Wood Oil From Nuts

Tung or China wood oil is an important raw material in the manufacture of varnishes, wall paints and enamels, and is largely used by the linoleum and printing ink industries.

It is nearly colorless, quick drying, elastic, and very tough. The oil is pressed from a nut that grows on tung trees of two species which are hardy, deciduous, and about 20 feet high.

In China it is used chiefly to preserve the thousands of boats that ply the waterways of that country.

For transport, the oil is put in baskets lined with 16 thicknesses of varnished paper, each holding about 120 pounds of oil. These baskets are brought to a small city or market place in the interior, where they are purchased by representatives of exporters.—Detroit News.

How Many Is a Few?

"An editorial under the caption of 'How many is a few?' recalls to my mind an incident of my boyhood," writes a resident of Buena Vista, Colo., to the Pathfinder. "I was assisting my father, who was a minister in the Congregational church, in excavating a well, my duties being to turn the windlass which drew the buckets of dirt to the surface. I called father's attention to the fact that it was almost quitting time and he remarked that he would take out a few more buckets. I asked him how many a few was. He replied that 'according to the Bible a few meant eight.' Accordingly, we took out eight more buckets of dirt, and the same evening I asked him where he obtained the information as to a few meaning eight. For answer he referred me to I Peter 3:20 where, in speaking of the ark, it states a "few, that is, eight souls, were saved by water.'"

Dry-Clean White Dogs

One of the serious objections many persons have to owning a white-haired dog is the trouble of keeping him clean, but the truth is that a white dog is just as easy to keep clean as a dog of any other color, but not by constant washing. The whole secret of keeping a white dog clean is to groom him thoroughly every day. Continuous washings ruin the texture of the dog's hair. To make a white dog look really smart, give him a dry shampoo. Rub him all over with a lump of ordinary whiting or chalk. When he is caked with the powder and looks as if he had been dipped in a bag of flour, brush him vigorously so that all the loose powder will be shaken out and you will find that he will look cleaner than he would if you had given him a wet bath.

Plains of Abraham

The heights near Quebec overlooking the St. Lawrence river took their name from Abraham Martin, a Canadian pioneer of Scotch descent who was a pilot on the St. Lawrence in the time of Samuel Champlain, founder of the city. By a deed authorized by Champlain himself Abraham Martin, who was affectionately known as "Maitre Abraham," obtained a homestead on the heights of Quebec. His herds of sheep and cattle grazed on the tableland along the St. Lawrence which became known among the inhabitants of the town as the Plains of Abraham. In 1908 part of the Heights of Abraham were converted into a Canadian national park.

Some Arizona Flowers

Arizona deserts have their own flowers. In places the supply is abundant, the growth large, the flowers when in bloom of marked beauty, the big yucca and the sotol, both members of the lily family, showing beautiful bloom on tall and stately stalks.

One of the interesting desert growths is the water cactus, so named because of its great stalk, from 8 to 10 feet high and as large in circumference as a barrel. It has a heavy pulpy covering from which it is possible to squeeze goodly amounts of water. Indians and travelers are quick to turn to the cactus when water supplies are short.—Columbus Dispatch.

New Mexico Boasts Four Stages of Civilization

Four stages of civilization have existed in New Mexico. The present or American; back of this the Spanish, which came with the Spaniards in 1540. When they came they found the civilization of the Pueblo Indian, with at least seventy villages, cultivated fields and extensive irrigation. Coexistent with them were a prehistoric race, living in well-built cities, with houses of stone, some of them four stories high, and they were cultivating irrigated fields. Their ditches and irrigated works were as well laid out as if run by modern engineers. They have entirely disappeared and we know only that they were here for an unknown period, beginning at least 1,000 years ago.

All that remains are the mighty ruins, some are in cities down on the plains and others are cliff dwellings, where houses are built on the cliffs, and some were cave dwellings. One building at Pueblo Bonito, which is one of the earliest apartment houses, had four stories and covered a greater area than the capitol at Washington.

Today, remarks Adventure magazine, the traveler can see at one time the nomadic Indian, the pueblo dweller, the Spanish occupation and the present Anglo-American development.

Middle Ages Heroine Had Practical Mind

One of several fortresses formerly owned by Lord Castletown's ancestors is Morett castle, now a ruin, but at one time a place of immense strength. Concerning this his lordship tells a grim story in his book, "Ego." The castle was besieged by the Irish, and the owner was unluckily captured in a sortie. He was brought up by his captors outside the walls and a parley demanded. His wife came on the battlements, and the enemy herald announced that unless the fortress was surrendered within an hour her husband would be hanged. "Give me time to think it over," requested the lady. "One hour," said the Irish. "One hour will do," replied the lady. At the appointed time both sides returned, the lady on the battlements, the prisoner with a cord round his neck and surrounded by his guard. "I have decided," she said. "I can always get another husband, but never another Morett. You can hang your prisoner." Which they promptly did.

First Divorce Court

The first divorce court in England was instituted in 1858. The court consisted of three judges. At the first sitting five marriages were dissolved, and in the first year of the court's operation 38 divorces were granted out of 238 petitions. From the time of the Reformation up to 1858 there had been but 317 divorces in England, granted by acts of parliament. Until the passing of the divorce act in 1858 the theory in English law regarding divorce was the same as that of the Roman Catholic church, although in practice this rule was not strictly adhered to, and wealthy and influential persons, through parliament, secured freedom from galling ties. The divorce act provided that the wronged husband could be released from his obligation to an unfaithful wife, but gave no such recourse to an injured wife, unless the husband's offense in this direction was aggravated by other offenses.

Forethought

The small boy entered the shoemaker's shop, and, unwrapping a small parcel, produced a size 11 shoe, very much the worse for wear.

The shoemaker took it from him, and, after looking at it, asked:

"Well, what do you want me to do with this? It doesn't want mending, does it?"

"Yes," said the boy: "that's father's slipper, and there's a nail sticking up in it. I want you to put it right before he notices it."

"You're a kind little boy," said the old man, beaming. "You must be fond of your father."

"Taint that quite," replied the small boy calmly. "You see, the nail's sticking right through the sole, and this is the slipper father spanks me with."

Tracing Surnames

Surnames offer a most convenient method of recalling forgotten trades. Who would guess that Thacker or Thackeray was the man who thatched the roof with straw; that Tyler was the one who tiled it, or Slater, he who roofed with slate? A few other names, as Collier, the charcoal burner; Chandler, the candle maker, and Fuller, the cloth cleaner, will show how numerous were the ancient crafts. Blacksmith has no equivalent among English names, unless it be the abbreviated Smith, though in German there is Klingensmith, the "clanging smith." But the horseshoer was a Farrier, dropped in our dictionaries but retained in the directories.

Our Wills

Our wills are queer things. They are like plaster of paris; for after they have been melted into liquid form they tend to "set." They do thus preserve the contour of that about which they have been molded. If it is a good cast, well enough; we make a cast for a permanent possession. Here it is—fixed and final! Is the lethargy of a standard pattern, no matter how excellent it may have been at one time, to prevent any future change and growth?—The Living Church.

All reading notices, news items, communications and want ads for the Hilltop Record MUST be in this office not later than 11 o'clock Wednesday a. m. to insure publication in that week's issue.

Social Affairs

Saturday afternoon a delightful hike was taken by Miss Priest's Sunday School class of Glenwood M. E. Church. Those present were Thelma Allen, Mabel Adair, Lucile Elliot, Dorothy Prior, Dorothy Payne, Dorothy Harrison, Geraldine Elliot, Irene Priest and Esther Owen. They were accompanied by three boys (at least in appearance) Louie Hamilton, Eddie Catten and Bob Slyh. A delightful time was had by all. The rain that began to fall just as they were ready to eat and which fell all the way home, only added to the fun. Most arrived home without mishap. Geraldine E. met with a slight accident (ask her what). Lucile E. seemed to have eaten too much while, if you wish an example of a vision and a sight, you should have seen Dorothy Prior's hair before and after the event. D. Harrison and E. Owen had some unique spring hats consisting of a candy box with a ribbon tying under chin.

BANG! BANG!! BANG!!!

Here are the echoes from the Hilltop Gun Club regular Tuesday evening twilight trap shoot. In spite of the very inclement weather about 20 "keen-eyed nimrods" gathered around a roaring bonfire at their West Broad Street shooting grounds and indulged in their favorite sport, breaking flying clay targets, each of the following shooters shot at 25 targets: Mr. Edler broke 18, Hess 20, Shrum 14, Clevenger 20, Beaver Jr. 15, Beaver Sr. 20, Horton 21, Herron 19, Hessler Sr. 20, Woodward 17, Bennett 19, Linville 13, Orr 10, Hessler Jr. 21, Butt 14. Several lady visitors were present, as well as a few "up-town" shooters ,and a very enjoyable evening was reported by all.

The regular meeting of the Hilltop Improvement Association was held in their hall, 1284 So. Park Avenue, on Tuesday evening, May 20. A large number were present and a great deal of business was gone over and plans laid for future work. Twenty-two applications were received and elected to membership. The subject of a picnic for the Hilltop and vicinity was brought up and the following committee was appointed to arrange details: W. L. Milliken, chairman, Jack Schank, A. F. Elliott, H. G. Butler, W. E. Dolby and two others to be appointed later. Steps were taken to have a free concert for the Hilltop in one of the auditoriums, the evening of June 3. Further notice of same will be published in next week's issue of the Record.

The new Church of God building at the corner of Pomoia Street and South Park Avenue is fast nearing completion. Several "bees" have been held in which the members and friends have taken part, to lay floor, grade the yard, and clean up generally Dedication services are to be held on June 1st and a week's meeting to follow. All are cordially invited.

Store and Shop Notes

Hilltop Building and Loan Association by action of their board of directors has made Harley D. Culp secretary and general manager, succeeding J. W. Dinsmore as manager. Mr. Dinsmore still remains as active president, but owing to the increased business, which has doubled in the last year, it was necessary to have on active secretary. Mr. Culp was for over 20 years an official of the City National Bank of this city, one of our largest financial institutions. Having spent his life in the financial field he is well qualified for the work.

Ray Haunts tells us that some of the members of the shooting club have been soliciting S. W. Renner and himself to come out and shoot with them, and in reply wants us to state that when those "gun club fellars" become improved enough to get in their (Haunts and Renner) class, they'll think the matter over, and maybe consider a challenge. So it looks like the gun club boys will have to "practice a bit."

John Burrough's School will entertain parents and friends with "Midsummer Eve," by the primary pupils, under the direction of Mrs. Luella Ater, and "A Rustic Minstrel" by the sixth grade dramatic class, under the direction of Miss Mary A. Phelan, on the evenings of May 23 and 29, at 8 o'clock. A matinee for the children will be given on Wednesday afternoon. The proceeds from the entertainment will be used toward the purchase of a curtain for the auditorium.

Helen Myers, student of the Wynter's School of Expression, will give an entertainment Friday evening, May 23rd, 7:30, at the U. B. Church. There will be music on the program.

Bridal Customs of Old Land of Egypt

Brides of ancient Egypt prepared for the wedding my dyeing their finger and toe nails with "hinna." Baths in perfumed oils and painting of eyebrows were also part of milady's toilet. Men and women alike went barefooted; sandals came later. A girl was usually betrothed at an early age. Her chief importance after marriage was to look after her husband's animals when she was not caring for her children. There has always been an exchange of money between the families of bride and groom. In lower Egypt today the prospective groom pays two-thirds of an agreed sum and the remainder in the event of divorce. Out of this initial payment the bride's family supplies her dowry.

It is said it was an Egyptian woman who first slipped the wedding ring from the second to the third finger of her left hand because she believed that an artery located there led directly to the heart. Beautiful hair has always been coveted. The headdresses of the daughters of rich soldiers, physicians and others were more varied than those of today. Linen was the favorite dress material of those people for centuries, wool being considered unclean.

For weddings and other ceremonies a gold thread border was interwoven at the hem and about the neck of dresses. Falling draperies served as sleeves. In order to keep property in the family and prevent scattering of large estates, brothers and sisters or uncles and nieces often intermarried. This custom is still practiced in some districts of the country.

HIGHLAND SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT

It is hoped that a large audience will greet the pupils of Highland Junior High School at West Broad St. School when they appear in several musical numbers and two plays Friday evening, May 23. Much time has been spent in preparation for the event so that a worthwhile and enjoyable program may be given. The program will begin with several selections by the school orchestra. This music will be followed by a one-act play, "Training Mary," in which the following members of the 9-A class will take part: Lucille Elliott, Edith Gibson, Pauline Rector, Alice Welling, Gerald De Rolph and Kenneth Kidd.

Three songs, "Starry Night," "O Swallow Swift," and "Come Join the Dance," will be sung by the Girls' Glee Club. The Boys' Glee Club will sing "Strephon and Phyllis," "Old Black Joe," and the Lever Song and both clubs will sing Largo. The second play is entitled "The Neighbors" and it will be played by Lilda Uhl, Gladys Hoffman, Estelle McMaken, Doris Stewart, Ruth Beckett, Anna Belle Kaiser, William Montgomery and Roger Logan. Tickets for the entertainment are being sold by the pupils of the school for 25 cents.

Banks Long Known

Few things play a more important part in our lives today than the system of banking.

The word bank originally meant a tradesman's stall, and the first bank in anything like the modern sense existed about 2,700 years ago, says London Tit-Bits. We learn about this bank from clay tablets discovered near Babylon. Apparently the first firm of bankers was that of Egibi & Son, who flourished in Babylon about 600 or 700 B. C.

The early Chinese were in the habit of issuing paper money—indeed, they got into difficulties by issuing too much. There was a bank in China about A. D. 1000.

Cracks in Furniture

Ugly cracks in furniture may be easily filled in with beeswax so that the marks will hardly show. Slightly soften the beeswax until it becomes pliable, then press it firmly into the cracks and smooth the surface with a thin knife. Sandpeper the surrounding wood and work some dust into the beeswax. This gives it a wood finish and when it is varnished the cracks will have disappeared.

Danger in Reading on Conveyance in Motion

Abstaining from reading in the subway is one way to prolong life, according to Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, commissioner of public health for New York city. Take a look around any subway car, he says. Scarcely one person in five is not reading. Almost as many newspapers as passengers enter at each station. These papers are read closely, painstakingly, by the holder, sitting, standing or wavering with the motion of the car.

"Every time the train lurches or jerks many tiny muscles are kept busy adjusting the eyes to the vibration," he explained to the New York Times. "This is why it is injurious to use the eyes on a conveyance in motion. Also, the lighting is apt to be extremely poor. If this sort of thing is kept up eye strain and possibly nerve strain will result. Blurred vision may follow; and in the course of years the eyesight may be seriously impaired.

"But the actual injury to the eyes is not the whole story. Few persons realize how the eyes are tied up with the rest of the body and the rest of the body on them. Eye strain will start the vicious circle. It induces fatigue, possibly a headache, and lowers general vitality and efficiency. If people would only look out for such seemingly minor details as these they would raise the general health standard and might even add years to their lives."

Big Man Takes Chances Picking on Little One

There is an old western saying that "Mr. Colt has made all men equal"; something the Constitution couldn't do.

The best application of this aphorism I ever heard was when word was brought to a small man that an enemy, six feet two and weighing about a hundred and eighty pounds, had registered a vow to knock him down the next time he saw him and stamp out his teeth with the steel-shod heels of his cowboy boots. The little man, unperturbed, looked up at the messenger.

"You like So-and-So?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Good friend of his?"

"Yes. . . . What're you driving at?"

"Well, tell him he's done the most dangerous thing a man can do—he's threatened a little man. Tell him the next time to pick out a man exactly his own size. More big men have died because they've threatened little men than from any other cause."—Strathers Hunt in the Saturday Evening Post.

Cause of Echo

An echo is the repetition of a sound due to its reflection from some distant surface, such as from a building, cliff, cloud or body of water. It must be remembered that sound is transmitted by means of waves through the air. Sound travels very slowly in comparison with light or radio waves. In ordinary air sound waves travel at the rate of about 1,000 feet a second. Now suppose a person is standing 1,000 feet from a reflecting surface such as a hill or cliff. It will take the sound waves set in motion by his voice one second to reach the cliff and it will require the same length of time for the reflecting sound waves to return to the human ear. Therefore two seconds will elapse between the time he shouts and the time he hears the echo of his voice. Repeated echoes are due either to independent deflections of sound from bodies at different distances or to successive reflections.

Billions of Buttons

There are 20,000,000,000 buttons manufactured in this country annually, and the industry has grown to such proportions that it equals, in dollars invested, and value of products, the cutlery industry or the manufacture of oilcloths and linoleum. America has almost a monopoly on the manufacture of vegetable ivory buttons, which are made in enormous quantities from the togua nut. This nut grows plentifully in the northern part of South America and in Panama, and provides the greater part of the buttons used in men's clothing. If all the buttons made in a year in the United States were distributed equally among the population each man, woman and child would receive 182, with a few thousand left over for good measure.

"Seward's Folly"

Probably the phrase "Seward's Folly" applied to Alaska will indicate as well as any words can the attitude of the people toward the purchase of Alaska. American histories fail to emphasize the fact that this government purchased the territory called Alaska as an appreciation of the support which Russia gave to the federal government during the Civil war. It seemingly was an unwise investment, for at the time of the purchase the public was not aware of the enormous mineral wealth to be found in the territory.

Atlantic Airflights

The first Transatlantic flight was made by the United States naval seaplane NC-4, in charge of Lieut. Com. A. C. Read. The other members of the crew were Lieuts. E. F. Stone and Walter Hinton, Radio Operator Ensign H. C. Rodd, Engineer Chief Machinist's Mate E. S. Rhoades. All were Americans. The flight began on May 8, 1919, and ended May 31. The total flying time from Rockaway, N. Y., to Plymouth, England, was 57 hours and 10 minutes.

Good Paint Costs Nothing

A freshly painted house, barn or garage gives an air of prosperity and well being which increases the amount you can get on a sale, and proves the truth of the old saying——"Good paint costs nothing."

The past several weeks have been too wet and cold to warrant the application of paint. We are sure to have some warm dry weather before the air is filled with flies, and the myriads of insects at the beginning of Summer.

Get our prices on DEAN & BARRY High Grade Paint and be prepared to take advantage of these bright days that are bound to come.

You can do no better than paint now.

Odd Materials Used by Birds to Build Nests

When the material which a bird ordinarily uses for building its nest is lacking it will adapt anything handy to its purpose, with results that are sometimes distinctly odd. Some years ago a telephone subscriber at Simla, India, ringing up for a required number, was answered from four different offices at once.

What had happened was this: a crow had built its nest at the central office, where four wires converged, and used the clippings and bits of wire for the purpose, with the result that it established complete electrical communication between all four lines.

Equally odd was the performance of a cormorant. It may be remembered that some years ago H. M. S. Sybille was wrecked off Lambert's bay on the southwest coast of Africa. A party of ship's officers went to visit the wreck in the following spring, and found that in the lookout on the masthead a cormorant had built a nest in which were five eggs. The nest was made of odds and ends of steel wire and rope from the rigging of the wreck, and was lined with seaweed. Nest and eggs were taken, and are now in a museum.

Art of Diamond Cutting Originated in France

The art of diamond cutting dates from the end of the Fifteenth century. Formerly diamonds were set in their natural state, after having been cleaned, or else were cut in a very rude and imperfect manner. But in 1546 a young gentleman of Bruges, named Louis van Berghem, by rubbing a couple of diamonds together, observed that they attrited and polished their surfaces reciprocally, and that the artificial facets thus formed acquired an extraordinary splendor. This observation was the starting point of the diamond cutting and polishing industry, which was almost exclusively localized in Amsterdam, the Detroit News remarks.

It is recorded that Berghem made the first trial of his improved mode of cutting in 1575 on three large rough stones which were confided to his care by Charles the Bold, duke of Burgundy. The new industry was greatly encouraged by Cardinal Mazarin, who caused the diamonds in the French crown to be recut, whence they obtained the name of the twelve Mazarins.

Mummies Don't Last

Many persons are curious to know what a mummy looks like after it is unwrapped. Recently at the Cleveland Museum of Art a mummy case which had been on exhibition since 1914 was opened and the numerous bandages covering the remains were unwound. Nothing was found inside but a skeleton and some cheap blue porcelain beads that had evidently once formed a string. Not only the flesh had disappeared but time had disjointed the bones. There was a strong odor of balsam. The mummy was that of Senbi, a king's scribe, who died in the Twelfth Egyptian dynasty, some four thousand years ago. It was found in Egypt. Senbi was of mixed Egyptian and Asiatic blood and died about the age of thirty-five.

African "Conjuring"

On the west coast of Africa natives of the "bush" claim to have two souls. One animates the person's human body, the other takes on the "were (wer) shape," by means of a magic draft handed down through the ages. In that land evil spirits lurk in the rocks, trees and the rivers. Here the Goddess Nimm (great oval-shaped rock in a river) keeps her vigil and dples out revenge or help to the supplicant at her shrine. Sixty per cent of the deaths in West Africa are believed to be due to witchcraft or sorcery. From these ancestors our southern negro inherits his belief in the power of the voodoo, and his "conjuring" practices are a direct throwback to the "bush" folk.—New York Times.

Vishnu

In Hindu mythology Vishnu is the second god of the "trimurti," or trinity, in which he figures as the preserver of the universe. His friendship for man was manifested in his avatars, or incarnations, which according to some authorities number ten, and according to others twenty-two. Of these avatars the two principal ones were the seventh, as Rama, the hero of the Ramayans, and the eighth, as Krishna, the hero of the Mahabharata. Vishnu is generally represented as a dark-blue man, having four arms, and is worshiped chiefly by the middle classes. He originally figured as a sun-god in the oldest Vedas, but gradually increased in importance until in the later Purana he became the supreme deity.—Kansas City Star.

Pearls in History

Few jewels have played a more conspicuous part in history than the pearl. Pliny thought it was a drop of dew swallowed by the oyster, while the American savage believed that it was made of sunbeams and petrified dewdrops. The manner in which the real jewel is born is anything but poetic. A grain of sand irritates the sensitive oyster and the mollusk proceeds to smooth it by depositing around it layer after layer of the nacre with which his shell is lined. In the South Kensington museum there is a pearl two inches deep and two and a half inches in diameter. Think of the long process and the discomfort of the creature which produced it.

Good and Bad Luck Connected With Cats

Many are the superstitions connected with the sleek domestic cat. Even cat haters will not turn the purring black tom from their doors, for they know the good luck he brings; nor will they dare to illtreat him because of the bad luck that will inevitably follow.

Should he saunter across her path as she leaves the church on her wedding day, rubbing his head against her satin gown, the bride, however much she may dislike him and however grimy he may be, will welcome his attentions and rejoice at the happy omen of good luck in store for her.

Another cat superstition is that he must not approach a sleeping babe's cot or there will be trouble, and another that if a cat sneezes some one in the house will be ill.

To dream of a cat means that one's friends are false. Treachery is afoot. But if the animal is yet a young and playful kitten the meaning is reversed and powerful friends are watching over the dreamer.

Those who believe the superstition that the spirits of witches dwell in black cats should be very careful to resist the temptation of throwing water over the night warblers on the roofs; for it is said that witches in the shape of black cats roam over the housetops. It is truly dangerous to offend a witch—seven years' bad luck!

Real Petrified Forest in Northern Arizona

The petrified national forest, one of the twenty-nine national monuments established by presidential proclamation, is the only region of hundreds of places in the Southwest in which silicified wood occurs in such abundance as to deserve the name of a petrified forest. It is located in northern Arizona south of the town of Adamana on the Santa Fe railroad and was designated as a national monument in 1906.

There are three principal groups or forests in which trees or blocks of the petrified wood lie scattered about in profusion. Many tree trunks exceed 100 feet in length and cross sections reveal the fact that these trees, which are cedars, did not grow there, but probably beside an inland sea, and upon falling became water logged on the bottom at this point. During decomposition the cell structure of the wood was entirely replaced by silica derived from sandstone in the surrounding land.

The state of mineralization in which much of the wood exists almost places it with gems or precious stones. Not only are chalcedony, opals and agates found but many trees approach the condition of jasper and onyx.

Cemetery Lots

A difference is usually made in cemetery lots in which burials have been made and those in which burials have not been made. Cemetery lots, though real estate, are generally exempted from taxation. The purpose of this exemption is chiefly to secure burial places from sale for nonpayment of taxes. In the majority of states a burial lot in which burials have been made cannot be seised or sold for debts of the owner. If an owner executes a mortgage upon it the transaction is usually held void on grounds of public policy. However, cemetery lots in which burials have not been made may be bought and sold subject to the laws of ordinary real estate transactions, provided no special regulations of the community or state alter the general rule.

Freemasonry

There is no evidence that the order has been in existence for more than a few hundred years. As now organized the fraternity dates from 1717 when four lodges of London met and formed a grand lodge. A few lodges can be traced about 100 years before 1717. Previous to that there is no record of the order. Historians of the subject say that in a general way the Masonic lodges can be traced from the stone mason lodges, survivals of the guilds which built churches, cathedrals and bridges in the Middle ages. Stories that the order has had an uninterrupted existence since the days of the flood, since the time of Isis and Osiris in Egypt or since the building of Solomon's temple are mere myths and are not considered as part of the real history of Freemasonry.

No Cold-Weather Bird

The ruby-throated humming bird, which is the only species of humming bird found north of Florida and east of the Mississippi, spends the winter in subtropical regions such as Florida, Mexico and Central America. Altogether there are about 200 known species of humming birds in North and South America, although only 18 different species are inhabitants of the United States. The ruby-throated humming bird is of a bright shining green color with a beautiful ruby-red throat. It is devoid of song, its only noise being a little squeak without definite tone which the bird utters while draining the nectar from flowers.

Pulverized Coal

Railroads in Australia are experimenting with pulverized coal for their locomotives. Engines have been equipped with special devices and the first trials have proved quite satisfactory. A soft brown coal is used and by pulverizing it this fuel will develop heat in greater quantities than when burned in its natural state, and likewise a tender can carry more, and the wants will be less.

Samoan Women Happy and Not Overworked

The life of a Samoan woman is pleasant. She is neither overworked nor savagely treated, says Edward A. Salisbury, in Adventure Magazine. From her earliest childhood she is trained in the intricacies of the siva-siva, and all her life the dance is a source of pleasure to her.

Samoan women will always dance for you if you ask them, and they show by their smiles and songs how much they delight in granting the request. In their girlhood they deck themselves with flowers and garlands of leaves and are fond of coquetry, but, unlike their Polynesian sisters of the Marquesas and Society islands, they are chaste.

Before the coming of the Americans with new medical theories, the life of an infant was doubtful, and even now the old customs are carried out in some villages, it is said. The new-born child was laid on its back and three flat stones were laid around the head. To make the baby beautiful the family thought it was necessary to flatten the forehead and nose. Nothing is uglier, they feel, than our hideous, pointed "canoe noses." The baby was fed with filtered coconut juice for three days, while a "wise woman" tested the mother's milk. Often the child died.

Spices in Demand in Early Days of History

The tantalizing flavor and piquant qualities of spices have made them sought after from the earliest days of mankind, and an adjunct to civilization at all periods.

In the early days of history spices were worth fabulous sums, owing to the difficulty of obtaining them and the high cost of transportation.

When Alaric the Goth conquered Rome in 410 A. D., says the New York World, he asked as a ransom 3,000 pounds of pepper, then worth more than its weight in gold.

The first organization of dealers, it is said, was the "fraternity of peppers," and it was in the Fourteenth century that the name was changed to the "guild of grocers," which depicted on its coat of arms six cloves.

Venice at its height traded in spices to the amount of $10,000,000 annually, and it vied with Portugal in securing cargoes from far eastern ports. Columbus was bound for the spices of the East when he chanced upon a new continent, and Vasco da Gama, the famous sea fighter, made one of his most important voyages to secure a cargo of pepper, cinnamon and ginger from India.

Light and Dark Stars

Two hundred millions of millions of miles away is a star called Algol. It is the second brightest star in the constellation of Perseus and it has the curious habit of varying in brightness at regular intervals.

After much research we know now that Algol consists of two stars—one bright, the other dark, says London Tit-Bits. They are each about a million miles in diameter and about two million miles apart. They revolve around one another and when the dark star is between us and the bright one the light we receive from the latter diminishes.

There are several other stars of the Algol type, and it is simply through our researches that we are aware that there exist in the heavens dark stars—stars which give no light at all and are in themselves totally invisible.

How many there may be we do not know, for it is only by their eclipsing bright stars that we can recognize them at all.

Had Guest Puzzled

An English nobleman bought one of the old historic coaching taverns. It was filled with relics and he announced his intention of operating it both as a museum and as an inn. But the first customer in gave him a rude jar. This man had been served with an ancient slice of cheese between two musty slices of bread. Whereupon he called for the proprietor and inquired: "Is this a sandwich or an antique?"

Where She Figured

The children of the Pittman family were, according to their respective accounts, all first in something at school. Tommy was first in reading, Alice was first in arithmetic, Sammy in sports, and so on. Janet alone remained silent.

"Well, Janet, how about you?" her uncle asked. "Aren't you first in anything?"

"Um," said Janet. "I am first out of the building when the bell rings."

Cowpoke

She was apparently a Frenchwoman who spoke Russian or vice versa, and when she visited the home office she produced her passport over and over again in the course of her conversation with several porters and messengers.

Eventually they found a man who in 1919 had been transferred from the French to the north Russian front. After a long conversation intelligence came to this man. Stopping the woman's conversation with one hand, he beckoned to his colleagues with the other.

"Lady wants a house or a small flat," he said.

A Home first!

A REAL home is the very foundation of a happy life. You will never be satisfied nor contented, you will never feel that you are making genuine progress, until you have a home of your own. Your wife wants it; your children want it — you want it. Let a home be the first thing you have.

Building a home is not a heavy undertaking today. It is the best investment you can make — and the best asset you can have. The business world and the social world show more favor to the home-owners.

If it is a question of finances or a question of plans, whatever the difficulty confronting you, your building material dealer can also be of much assistance to you. He knows building and building conditions thoroughly, because that is his daily business. He is right here at home, and his desire is to give you such good service that you will be glad to see him every day.

Variety of Particles Gathered by the Eye

Few people have never experienced the pain or discomfort that comes of getting dust particles or other foreign bodies in the eyes. Few, it is safe to say, realize the true source of some of these irritating obstructions.

Tell the average person it is possible to collect in the eyes the dust of a falling star and you will probably be disbelieved. Yet microscopic examination has shown this to be a fact. When a meteor reaches our atmosphere it discharges heavy vapors, which condense into myriads of minute particles, any one of which may lodge in the eye that is gazing skyward.

Volcanic eruption may cause discomfort in a similar fashion. Lava flowing from an active crater gives off clouds of vapor containing microscopic particles that make their way round the world in the upper air currents, ultimately to fall in showers upon the earth, where wide-open eyes may easily collect them.

Again, the great deserts contribute largely to the number of foreign bodies gathered in this way. Sandstorms do not cease from troubling immediately they subside. Their particles are borne by the winds the world over, many of them finding lodgment in our eyes, as the microscope has repeatedly proved.

Pollen from the big pine forests of Canada may affect us in like manner, while an even more strange, though not less potent, cause of this special form of irritation is the scales of butterflies' wings, shed as a rule during the first flights after emerging from the pupa.

The sources and variety of things gathered in the eyes during a normal lifetime are, in fact, amazing and form an astounding commentary on the disintegrating forces unceasingly at work in the universe.

Explaining the Real Function of the Mind

Mind was not created for the sake of discovering the absolute truth. The absolute truth has its own intangible reality, and scorns to be known. The function of mind is rather to increase the wealth of the universe in the spiritual dimension by adding appearance to substance and passion to necessity, and by creating all those private perspectives, and those emotions of wonder, adventure, curiosity, and laughter which omniscience would exclude. If omniscience were alone respectable, creation would have been a mistake. The single duty of all creatures would then be to repair that creative error by abolishing their several senses and desires and becoming indistinguishable from one another and from nothing at all; and if all creation could attain to this sort of salvation, the absolute substance, in whose honor all else had been abandoned, would become unconscious. The time will doubtless come for each of us, if not for the universe at large, to cease from care; but our passage through life will have added a marvelous episode to the tale of things; and our distinction and glory, as well as our sorrow, will have lain in being something in particular, and in knowing what it is.—G. Santayana in Yale Review.

Place at the Top

Andrew Carnegie said: "I would not give a fig for the young man in business who does not already see himself a partner or the head of the firm." Do not rest for a moment in your thought of yourself as a head clerk, foreman or manager, in any concern, no matter how big it is. Say to yourself each day, "My place is at the top." Be king in your dreams. Vow that you will reach the position you long to attain with untarnished reputation, and make no other vow to distract your attention. No matter what business you may be in, your prime ambition should be to attain high water marks. The love of excellence is the star that leads the world onward.—Inspiration.

Getting Pointers

An elderly colored man had been noticed hanging around the seal tank in the zoological park of a Southern city. He appeared to be worried. The superintendent didn't know what he was up to and was rather afraid that the man intended to commit suicide. Finally the superintendent asked him point-blank what it was all about.

"I don't mean no harm whatever, boss," was the earnest reply. "But I needs some pointers and I needs them bad. You see, suh, I jest jined a lodge and I been elected grand keeper of the seal."

Land of Many Tongues

Switzerland, unlike most countries, has no one official language. By the federal constitution German, French and Italian are recognized as "national languages," and debates in the federal legislature may be carried on in any of the three. According to a 1910 census, 2,594,200 people in Switzerland spoke German; 793,200, French, and 802,500, Italian. More than 40,000 spoke Romansch, which is derived from the Latin, but the tongue has no official recognition.

Ants' "Home-Brew"

Ants manufacture their own home-brew in their digestive canal by the action of yeasts on the milky juices which they extract from aphids or plant lice, which they keep for that purpose, according to Prof. Paul Lindner, chief of the fermenting industry institute in Berlin.

Get Loans From "Aunt"

In Paris and other big French cities the pawnbroker is called "my aunt." In France one needn't blush in doing business with the pawnbroker, for he is the state; that is, the government conducts the pawnbroking business. It does it very well, too, if I am to believe the testimony of some Americans who have "traded" with "My Aunt" while awaiting delayed remittances from home. "My Aunt" has had a good year's business. She does little business nowadays with the workingman, for he is always in work. The center of poverty has moved. It is the white-collar brigade which, unable to make both ends meet, resorts to "My Aunt." Oddly enough, "My Aunt's" shop in Paris is on "the Hill of Piety." Not a misprint for pity.—A. R. L., in World Traveler Magazine.

Straw Hat Feature of Schoolboys at Harrow

A visit to the famous "Hill" of Harrow, on which stands a steeple which can be seen for miles, and a school which is famous all over the world, makes the total stranger gasp with astonishment. In all weathers the Hill is "alive" with straw hats at certain hours. These hats are the famous Harrovian straw, with a shape and texture which belong to the Harrovian and "to no other file."

The straw hat is as completely "the thing" at Harrow as the topper is at Eton and Westminster. It fits only where it touches and requires an elastic to keep it from careering down the High street on a windy day. This elastic is invariably worn under the bump at the back of the head and never under the chin, says London Answers.

In wet weather the hat gets very sloppy and acts as a sort of watershed, giving the Harrovian the appearance of being surrounded by a miniature cataract. However, the straw-hat trade would suffer if this headgear were abolished, as there are 600 or 700 boys in the great school, and a straw tile does not last very long—especially on the head of a schoolboy.

Comfort for the Bald

Bald people usually bemoan the loss of their hair and sigh for the locks which have gone forever, but there is at least one advantage which comes from baldness.

For example, have you ever met a bald man who was consumptive? It has been found that bald men are peculiarly immune from this disease. One doctor has said that out of 5,000 consumptive patients not a single one was bald.

Baldness is sometimes caused by bad dieting; but more frequently by letting the cold and damp penetrate to the roots of the hair. A man will emerge from a barber's shop with his hair wet even on the coldest day.

Excessive exercise is likely to bring on baldness. Athletes become overheated and, when they cool off, their scalp becomes chilled.

Social Affairs

A banquet was given at Magley's Wednesday evening, May 21st, by Ray G. Haunts, in honor of the Haunts Builders Bowling Team, winners of the championship this year in the Hilltop Bowling League. The bowlers whose fine work won this generous recognition from Mr. Haunts, were Ernest and John Mueller, J. Elliott, Charles W. Lentz and Mr. William Mayer, captain. The officers of the Hilltop League, Blaine Frazell, Thomas Jones and William Peart were also guests of Mr. Haunts, as was also Mr. Edward Gettrost. A bountiful feast, speeches and songs made the evening memorable.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rust entertained Friday evening, May 23rd, the Gibson Park Place Club. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Slack, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Garling, Mr. and Mrs. William Haines and son George, Mr. and Mrs. Mar. Fossler and daughter Maxine, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Senter, son and daughter, Mr. Seth Bowers and son Russell and daughters Lucile and Dorothy, Mr. Wm. Tyler, Miss Loretta Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Seiller and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Violet and daughter. Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Gyer, and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hughes and son and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rust. The evening was spent in music and guessing contest, Mrs. Max. Fossler coming off with first prize in guessing contest. Solo by Mr. S. S. Bowers accompanied by Mrs. Wilbet Gyer; violin and piano duet by Mrs. Haines and Mrs. Fossler; solo by Mr. Haines accompanied by Mrs. Haines; violin solos by Robert Senter accompanied by Mrs. Fossler; piano solo by Loretta Tyler. Dainty refreshments were served. All returned at a late hour declaring an enjoyable evening.

Westwood Temple 469, Pythian Sisters, celebrated the sixth anniversary Tuesday evening, May 27, with a fine pot luck supper, which was enjoyed by about 125 members and visitors, and the supper was praised by all. A pretty featur ewas two birthday cakes with six candles in the temple colors, which was presented by Mrs. Levi Johnston and Mrs. Nettie Dickerson. The two long tables were very attractively decorated with baskets of flowers and pink candles. After supper the regular meeting was called to order and two candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the order. The special guests were Mrs. Jennie Shiflett, Grand Chief of Ohio; Past Grand Chief Ida McKinney; State Press Correspondent Mae Carnahan. The officers and members presented Mr. L. Baird, Mrs. W. E. Dolby and Mrs. Dickinson with very pretty and appropriate presents in appreciation of their faithful service. They were taken by surprise but expressed their thanks in well chosen words. The temple has had a very prosperous year and now has a membership of over 250. Tempie was closed in due form and wishing Westwood many more happy birthdays.

A musical entertainment will be given in the John Burroughs School auditorium, Sullivant Avenue, Tuesday evening, June 3, at 7:30 P. M., by the Orchestra and Concert Co. of The Ohio Penitentiary under the auspices of the Hilltop Improvement Association.

There will be no admission charge and all people of the Hilltop and vicinity are urged to be present. Further announcements of the Hilltop picnic will be made at this meeting.

Wet weather did not dampen the interest of the members of the Hilltop Gun Club on Tuesday, high score honor being carried away by Mr. Bennett, who accepted 25 chances without a wobble. The following is the score: Hesler Jr. 20, out of 25; Groff 23, Clevenger 22, Deem 19, O. Voss 18, Hesler Sr. 18, Bennett 25, Thompson 22 Shrum 14, Edler 20, C. Voss 19, Linville 14, Herron 19, Horton 19.

The deft hurled at the members of the Hilltop Gun Club by Haunts and Renner which appeared in a recent issue of the Hilltop Record, has been the cause of much comment among the members. Some are in favor of issuing a challenge to the two, while others look with suspicion upon their reported score, however the bars are down, and the members feel that they can at least make it interesting for them and hereby call their bluff.
H. H. Herron, W. C. Horton.

Mrs. Lawrence N. Earle, 324 North Burgess Avenue, spent last week in Toledo as delegate from Sunset Literary Club to convention of Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Sarah Maddox, 71, wife of Thomas W. Maddox, 155 S. Warren Avenue, died Thursday, May 22, at her home. Death was due to paralysis. Funeral was Saturday at the residence. Burial in Green Lawn Cemetery by C. J. Kohn. She leaves her husband, one son, Lawrence, four daughters, Mrs. Alice Randall, Mrs. Mabel Wallace, Mrs. Clara Emery and Mrs. Sarah Johnson, 10 grandchildren. Rev. R. E. Shields officiated.

George A. Mitchell, 79, of 309 Midland Avenue, died Sunday at his home. He had been ill several months. He was a veteran of the Civil War. He leaves his wife, Susan. The body was sent to Bethany, Ill., for burial.

Richard Hamlett, 51, colored, 285 S. Wheatland Avenue, died Saturday at his residence of nephritis. He leaves his widow. Funeral was Wednesday at 1:30 at Wheatland Avenue M. E. Church. Burial in Green Lawn Cemetery.

The Glenwood Home Missionary Society held their regular monthly meeting in the church on Thursday afternoon, May 22nd. It took the form of a Missionary tea to which all the ladies of th cehurch were invited. The president, Mrs. M. W. Legg, presided and also had charge of the program which preceeded the business meeting. The devotional service, conducted by Mrs. E. Gillilan, was impressive and helpful. Mrs. C. F. Prior in a most interesting way reviewed the chapter of our study book. The two solos by Mrs. Prescott Gillilan added much to the program. Miss Bernolia Woodyard, who won in two of the story-telling contests of the Foreign Missionary Society was present and gave her story "What was left." It is a beautiful story given in a very pleasing manner and we hope she may be successful in the other contests that are to follow. At the business meeting after the reading of the minutes by the secretary, the president called for reports from the secretaries of the different departments. Mrs. J. H. Bishop reported for the Junior Queen Esthers 46 paid up members with 32 new ones this year. At the district meeting held at Third Ave. on May 14th this Junior Society stood highest in regard to dues and pledges paid.

IN MEMORIAM

Whereas, it has pleased the Great Architect of the Universe, to call from our midst our esteemed brother, John P. Johnson, 29 North Wheatland Ave., from his labor here below to his eternal rest. He died May 5, 1924, being seventy-one years, and six months old. He was raised a Master Mason at Amesville Lodge and was also a member of Albany Lodge and Paramuthia Lodge, all of Athens County, Ohio. He became a charter member of Westgate Lodge, No. 623, Columbus, Ohio, in 1913. His body has been returned to earth from which it came and in the solitude of the grave it will mingle with its kindred dust. May we imitate our good brother in his unfeigned piety to God and his fidelity to his trust. With his widow and relatives we are deeply stricken with the loss they have sustained.

Resolved, that we, the members of Westgate Lodge, sincerely sympathize with the widow and other relatives and may the love and care of our heavenly Father guide and protect them through life.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be placed in the minutes of our lodge, a copy to the family and to be printed in the Hilltop Record.

Committee—G. W. Peters, John W. Morgan, H. C. Biddle.

Mrs. S. J. Hanawalt, who has charge of our Home Guards, deserves much credit for the work done this year. Their pledge is paid and membership increased. Mrs. Wm. Kennedy, secretary of Evangelism, told of the help the cottage prayer meetings and Bible study classes had been to her department. Our very efficient treasurer, Mrs. J. I. Hartsough, reported all dues paid by Nov. 1st and pledges paid to date. The national president of our society said in one of her addresses that she had the greatest respect for the genius of hard work and perseverance. These are two characteristics of our secretary of supplies Mrs. E. W. Martindale. For by continued hard work throughout the year she will have a fine report to make. To date the amount is $475.00.

Church Meeting Announcements

The nation will stop its work tomorrow, to stand by while patriotic organizations decorate the graves of our fallen soldiery. Time has taken its toll of the veterans of the Civil War and Spanish-American War, while insidious diseases have wrought havoc with veterans of the World War who came home. These rest beside their comrades who fell in battle. Our community should unite in making this a day to honor each fallen hero and to cultivate such a patriotic spirit as shall make the nation safe from foreign foes as well as safe from disloyal citizens who violate its laws.

ST JOHN'S EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN

Church service at 10:30.

The women of St. John's hold their monthly bake sale next Saturday at the Economy, Mr. Fred Raether, proprietor.

St. John's Brotherhood will meet on Tuesday evening next, June 3, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Gangloff of Pittsburg will deliver a short address.

The Junior Mission Band invites the public to its closing meeting for the season in the Sunday School rooms on Thursday evening, June 5th, at 7:30 o'clock. Mesdames Howard and Wolfe and Miss Raether in charge.

HOGE MEMORIAL PRESBYTERIAN

10:30 A. M.—Morning worship and sermon: "Redemption and Life." Special Chorus Choir music.

6:30 P. M.—Christian Endeavor Society meets. All young people are cordially invited.

7:30 P. M.—Another one of those happy hour services with sermon: "The Most Obscure Book in the Bible." We have been having fine evening audiences, come out and enjoy these services.

BURGESS AVE. M. B. CHURCH

Preaching at 10:30, "The Watchman"; at 7:30, "The Cloak of Charity." Junior Endeavor at 3 o'clock; Intermediate at 6:30; Senior at 6:30. Children's Day service a week from Sunday night. The annual Home Coming and the third Anniversary of the Dedication of the Church will be observed two weeks from Sunday with an all day meeting.

GLENWOOD METHODIST

Morning service 10:30—"The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper." Baptism and reception of members.

Evening service 7:30—"Singing the Gospel Message." The evening meeting will open with a song service. How the singing of Gospel songs has led folk to accept Christ will be the them of the evening.

The Epworth League of Glenwood M. E. Church held it Annual Election of Officers last Friday evening at the church. The following were elected to serve the League for the coming year: W. W. Weatherman, president; Cleo Kramer, first vice-president; Edeth Sawyer, assistant vice-president; Margaret Huffman, second vice-president; Irene Snider, assistant vice-president; Dorothy Prior, third vice-president; Goldie Six, assistant vice-president; Shipley McIntosh, fourth vice-president; Jane Shanley, Dorothy Wells, Oscar Nader, assistant vice-presidents; Truth Daniels, secretary; Ernest Martindale, treasurer; Velma Currier, pianist; Robert Hughes, chorister. These officers are soon to b einstalled and will take over the work for the coming year.

Mrs. C. E. Sheron gave a wonderful report for Mothers' Jewels. 202 members enrolled, 107 new this year and dues all paid. The enrollment of so many little "Jewels" is like a beautiful promise for the future of our society. For lack of time the reports from the district meeting at Third Avenue was omitted except to report that two of our members had been made district officers, Mrs. William Kennedy and Mrs. M. L. Stevenson. At the close the hostesses, Mesdames Six and Seiler served tea and cakes in the large class room which had been made very inviting with chairs, tables and beautiful flowers.

HILL CREST BAPTIST

Morning worship 10:30. Subject—"Jesus' Disclosure of His Own Personality."

Preaching service 7:30. Subject—"The Greatness of Jesus."

Miss Dorthy Horton will give a recital at the church Monday evening, June 2nd.

The pastor is attending The Northern Baptist Convention at Milwaukee this week. Rev. Harold Smith of Granville will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning and evening.

Our organist, Mrs. Clyde Moore, will give her organ recital at this church, Tuesday evening, June 10th.

THE HILLTOP LUTHERAN

10:30 and 7:30—Preaching service.

ST. PAUL'S UNITED EVANGELICAL CHURCH

Preaching at 10:15. Theme—"Storms and Their Antidote."

Instead of regular Junior meetings during the summer months a Mission Band meeting will be held at 9 a. m. the first Wednesday of each month. The June meeting will be held the first Wednesday after school closes.

Senior C. E. at 6:30. Topic—"In His Steps. How Jesus Faced Duty." Matt. 3, 15; Jno. 9, 4; Lu. 22, 42. (Consecration meeting.)

Preaching at 7:30. Theme—"Bible Repentance."

HILLTOP CHURCH OF CHRIST

Hilltop Church of Christ, South Burgess and Olive Streets. J. N. Johnston, Minister; Jesse P. Miller, Superintendent of Sunday School.

A. M. sermon—"Meditation."

P. M. sermon—"The Natural and Spiritual Man."

Children's Day, June 15th. A splendid program is being planned for this date. The committee on arrangements is planning to have every member of the Sunday School present including the Cradle Roll and Home Department members.

The men are also expected to play their part in the program as well as the children and here in what is expected of them:

Every man who is a member of the Men's Bible Class and the owner of an automobile is expected to gas up, oil up, get shaved on Saturday night and be at the church with his auto at 8 o'clock sharp Sunday morning, where you will receive instructions on your part of the program for the day. Should you feel you would like to have advance instructions, you will please telephone C. F. Bigham, Hilltop 448-J (chairman Committee on Transportation).

HIGHLAND AVE. FRIEND

Morning—"Abiding in Christ."
Evening—"Emancipation."

Mixed Quartette will sing in the morning service, and Male Quartette in the evening, with special song service in the evening. You will enjoy the service with us.

ST. PAUL EVANGELICAL

Mrs. Anna Chambers of 36 South Warren Avenue had as her guest last Friday Mrs. Carrie Dresbach of Circleville.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Glenwood M. E. Church will hold an all-day sewing and pot-luck dinner at the home of Mrs. H. W. Lowrie, 276 Eldon Ave., Thursday, June 5. Also the regular monthly business meeting. A good attendance is desired.

Seiller's gigantic unloading sale of Spring merchandise now on.

The Hilltop Church of God will dedicate their new church on June 1st on the corner of So. Park Avenue and Olive Street. Rev. F. G. Smith of Anderson, Ind., editor of the Gospel Trumpet, will speak. Services as follows. Sunday School 9:30; preaching at 10:30, 2:30 and 7:30. Following the opening Sunday will be a week of special evangelistic services by Rev. R. O. Marsh of Union City, Ind. You are cordially invited.

Over 500 people were served at the dinner given by the Young Married People's Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church last Saturday night. Remarks on every hand indicated that people surely received their money's worth in food for 35 cents. The dinner was served between the hours of 5 and 8:30 and no one had to wait a minute for service in the new church-house. Children played in the gymnasium while their parents were busy and the whole evening was very enjoyable to all.

Seiller's gigantic unloading sale of Spring merchandise now on.

ANNOUNCEMENT

TO HILLTOP FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS:

An infant has been planted on the threshold of this community, and not unlike any other infant, upon your encouragement and support, will depend largely whether it will become an asset or a liability.

This story has reference to the new Lumber yard that is now being equipped and stocked, located at North Eureka Avenue and Pennsylvania Railroad Crossing.

Good grades of Lumber, at fair prices, and with courteous treatment, will be the first three planks in our platform, and like the three political parties, will constitute every construction of public opinion.

We will also handle COAL in connection. The kind that will give you the complete comfort of your home, and a warm heart. "UREKA BLOCK, Call for it.

Good Paint Costs Nothing

A freshly painted house, barn or gargae gives an air of prosperity and well being which increases the amount you can get on a sale, and proves the truth of the old saying——"Good paint costs nothing."

The past several weeks have been too wet and cold to warrant the application of paint. We are sure to have some warm dry weather before the air is filled with flies, and the myriads of insects at the beginning of Summer.

Get our prices on DEAN & BARRY High Grade Paint and be prepared to take advantage of these bright days that are bound to come.

You can do no better than paint now.

Bermuda Described as an Earthly Paradise

When one is planning a trip to Bermuda, about the first thing one hears is the remark generally attributed to Mark Twain, that the voyage to Bermuda is like going through hell to get to heaven. That depends on the weather on the Atlantic. Whatever exception the Atlantic may interpose to the first part of Mark Twain's epigram, no one will ever quarrel with his description of the islands, once they are safely reached.

Those who gather their impressions of the general appearance of Bermuda from colored-picture post cards are grossly deceived, because there are only two colors in the islands, green and white, says a Bermuda letter to the Brooklyn Eagle. The artist who colors the post cards represents the buildings as pink, red and orange, and a roof here of red, a blue one there and a yellow in another place, whereas every building on the islands, with one or two exceptions, is not only white, but whitewashed, from the foundation walls to the ridge poles on the roof.

The first view one gets of the islands, when the steamer stops at St. David's Head to take on the pilot, is a rolling mass of dark green, covered with a stunted growth of trees, studded with numerous white buildings, all rising from a sea of azure, such as is always found when there is coral underneath.

Fine Architecture in Picturesque Old City

On the bumpy, incredibly leisurely line from Chartres to Rouen is the city of Dreux, by no means unknown to architects, and quite deserving of a visit from them, if only for its old houses and its four notable "monuments historiques," says a writer in Scribner's Magazine. Of these latter, the superb belfry of the old hotel de ville stands forth as one of the finest in France. From the east its well proportioned profile is in harmony with the simplicity of that facade, and from the west, towering up at the end of the Grande Rue, there is just that wise choice of ornament to endow it with a restrained richness and a sense of excellent scale. The Gothic tracery patterns are especially free and lovely.

A good small's journey away is the yellow stone form of the Eglise St. Pierre, a product of those interesting periods when the late Gothic and the early Renaissance arts were mingling together. One of the towers is complete, very clear cut and fine, while the other for some reason was stopped abruptly, and remains untouched and unadorned, presenting a strange outline of unfinished piers against the sky.

Of an entirely different character is the Echo des Jeunes Filles, alias the Tribunal of Commerce, alias the Hotel de Dieu, a thirteenth century block of stone and brick, capped by a huge blue slate roof and sporting a curious iron ribbed rose window. The simplicity of its mass is very splendid; but this seems insufficient to attract any "ohs" or "ahs" from passing tourists.

Avoiding Foot Troubles

"Go to the dentist or your feet will ache."

"People always wonder if I am serious when I tell them this," said Mr. Dixon-Payne, education organizer at the School of Chiropody, to a writer in London Tit-Bits, "but if cavities in the teeth are neglected the joints of the whole body, particularly the joints of the foot, are affected. Only 25 per cent of the 27,000 girls employed by one firm who come before me for inspection have perfect feet.

"Shoes are not alone the cause of foot suffering. Stockings are often to blame. They are either too long or too tight.

"But the habit of wearing low-heeled shoes one day and Louis heels the next has an injurious effect on the feet. A woman's shoes should have the same heel level and thus the muscles would not be harmed."

American Firearm

The Kentucky rifle, Colt's revolver and volcanic or repeating rifle of the Winchester type are the most distinctly American firearms. The rifle was evolved from inaccurate "boar" rifles brought over by Swiss and German gunsmiths about 1680. These men were fine workmen. For the most part they settled in Lancaster and Bucks counties, Pennsylvania, where among hunters and Indian fighters they at once found ready sale for all the arms they could produce. Working in small crossroads shops, they made entirely by hand, from iron mined and melted in a most primitive way nearby, such modifications of their own "boar" guns as demands required.

Miss Leota Williams of 295 Clarendon Avenue entertained the following at a week-end party at Liberty Hall, Buckeye Lake. Misses Vesta Hanstein, Dorothy Holliday, Clara Trost, and Mrs. Estell Gifford; Messrs, Wm. Thompson, Wilbur Beltz, Estell Gifford, Edward Sheehy and Ralph Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Farley of Detroit, Mich., are guests of Mr. Farley's sister, Mrs. Frank Marlowe of 277 N. Ogden Avenue.

A quiet wedding took place Monday at high noon at 37 N. Burgess Avenue, the home of the officiating minister, Rev. P. W. Dramm. The contracting parties were Mr. Lemuel Gregg, a prominent young man of West Jefferson, and Miss Helen Heath, the accomplished daughter of Mr. Frank Heath, also of West Jefferson. They were accompanied by Mr. Herbert Gregg, a brother of the groom and Miss Jennie Heath, a cousin of the bride. They left immediately after the ceremony for Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will make their home in West Jefferson. A host of friends wish them a happy and prosperous life.

Miss Helen Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Myers of 78 No. Burgess Avenue, and a member of the graduating class this year of the Wynters School of Expression, will give a recital at Glenwood M. E. Church on Friday evening, June 6th, at 8:00. Don't forget that you have this marked up on your calendar.

Hugh E. Rankin and Miss Dorris Frettinger, both of Columbus, were united in marriage at the Glenwood personage on Saturday afternoon, May 31st. Rev. R. T. Stimmel officiated.

The ladies of the Personal Workers' Bible Class of Hoge Memorial Church gave a dinner Monday evening, June 2, in the Church-house for the members of the Men's Bible Class and their wives, and the husbands of the members of the Ladies' class. About 50 guests partook of the bountiful chicken dinner and all returned to their homes feeling that it was good to have been there.

Mrs. Wm. R. Gilbert, 318 N. Burgess Avenue, entertained Wednesday with a dinner party at the Chittenden honoring Mrs. Glenna Rice Henry and her daughter Martha of So. Vienna. Covers were laid for Mrs. Henry, Martha Henry, Mrs. Chamberlain, Miss Florence Henry, foreign secretary Y. M. C. A., Miss Mildred Gilbert and the hostess. Mrs. Chamberlain, 505 Linwood Avenue, entertained at Keith's the guests of the dinner party.

Miss Cloris Aiken, "The Sunshine Girl of the Argonne," Mrs. R. H. Sweetzer and Miss Hazel Kirk were luncheon guests of Hazel Brown at the Nookery on Friday of last week. Following a Pocket Testament League service at Fort Hayes on Thursday evening in which 143 soldiers were presented with Testaments, Miss Aiken was a dinner guest at the Nookery, accompanied by Captain John O. Lindquist, chaplain at Fort Hayes, and D. R. Falkenberg, of the Business Men's Council of the Pocket Testament League.

Rev. R. T. Stimmel solemnized the marriage last Saturday evening of Miss Eloise Terbrueggen of West 5th Avenue to Dr. Clarence Fitzpatrick of Wellston, Ohio. The bride is a former student of O. S. U.

A party of fifteen, from Springfield, the former home of the bride and the bridegroom attended the wedding of Miss Thelma L. Dye and Mr. Kenneth S. Conn, Tuesday at 12:30 at the Glenwood M. E. Church and the reception following for relatives and out-of-town guests at the residence of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Dye, 132 Midland Avenue. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. R. T. Stimmel in the presence of fifty guests. Music was by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heintz. Miss Thelma Curfman was maid of honor and Mr. Edwin Dye, brother of the bride, was best man. After a two weeks' lake trip, Mr. and Mrs. Conn will go to South Bend, Ind., to reside. Mr. Conn, a former Ohio State man and a member of Chi Phi fraternity, is sports editor on the South Bend Tribune. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Conn, live in Oakland, California. The bride is a graduate of the Springfield high school, class of 1921.

Mrs. P. W. Drumm returned home Monday evening after spending the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Aaron Peters, of Pleasantville, Ohio.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFadon

The difference between "the great unwashed" and the rest of us is not necessarily one of cleanliness, but rather of character. The people which we would symbolize by the bath, are self-respecting, cultured people who, by reason of their environment, and perhaps heredity, are capable of refined impulses and instincts far beyond the commonplace. It would take more than a Turkish bath and a new suit to make one of the so-called "unwashed" comfortable and at home in the presence of people of real culture. Marriages are disastrous where such differences exist between the parties.

The salutary effect of the daily bath is largely psyiological. The proper care of the skin means much to the body but it is also "the boundary of one's personality." The skin is involved and has much to do with our feelings and general well being.

A cold bath in the morning increases our supply of energy and gives us a good start for the day. A bath after the day's work is the line of demarcation between business and social life. The old man is discarded for a time and re-creation takes place, all of which conduces to improvement in personality and self-respect.

The kind of bath and its technique are to be adopted and adapted by the individual. Up to middle life the cold plunge is most salutary. The middle aged and older will get good results from the cold sponge and dry rub. When bathing is not convenient a dry rough rub is a fair substitute. The best time for a hot bath is at retiring time. All baths are better followed by brisk rubbing.

The writer has many times cured a fresh cold by a hot bath at night, a sweat of several hours in porous blankets, and a cold bath in the morning. People who bathe daily seldom take cold.

As a curative agent, local applications are good. A dash of cold water in the face for fainting, swooning or general depression. Hot and cold applications on the head and back of neck for headache, continued hot applications for sprains, etc., are effective though simple. The desired effect, always, is improved or changed circulation of blood. A flow of blood is the only healer.

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 49 S. Terrace, Hilltop 2362-W.

HILLTOP CHAUTAUQUA

PULL! BANG!! DEAD!!!

This was the most frequent expression heard at the regular Tuesday evening "twilight shoot" at the traps of the Hilltop Gun Club, exceptionally high grade scores were made by the real sportsmen who turned out in the stormy weather to take a shot at the flying "clay ducks" under almost real shooting conditions, the following shooters shot at 25 targets: Mr. Edler broke 16, Watts 13, Hessler Sr. 18, McCallen 20, Groff 21, Bennett 21, Deem 19, C. Voss 22, Shrum 18, O. Voss 16, Hessler Jr. 21, Herron 22. The Hi-Guns of the evening were C. Voss and Herron who tied with 22 each.

Mr. J. Mark McMasters, Mr. A. A. Heyl and daughter Elisabeth, all of 339 South Hague Avenue, motored to West Liberty, Ohio, last Friday, where Mr. Heyl took part in the Memorial exercises at Fair View Cemetery. They also called on friends in Bellefontaine.

Early in July Miss Aiken will start on a tour of the United States, travelling with her evangelistic party in the Cadillac Sedan, funds for the purchase of which came as a direct answer to prayer for means of travel to carry the gospel message to isolated lumber camps, labor camps and convict camps.

Hilltop Deaths

John Henry Miller, aged 62, butcher and stock dealer, former resident of Groveport, died at his home, 266 Yale Avenue, Wednesday morning, May 26, after a lingering illness from diabetis. He leaves besides his widow, three daughters, two sons, mother, three brothers and a host of friends. Funeral services were held at the Presbyterian Church in Groveport on Saturday at 10:00 a. m. under auspices of Groveport Lodge of I. O. O. F. Interment made at Jefferson Cemetery in charge of Hilltop Undertaking Co.

Mrs. A. M. Michaelis, aged 89 years, well known by all old residents, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Leonard Baird, 154 North Burgess Avenue, of infirmities of age. She was the widow of the late Herman Lewis Michaelis, who died about seven years ago. She had lived on the Hilltop for over 50 years. She leaves three sons and two daughters. The funeral services were held at the residence Monday, with burial in Green Lawn Cemetery by C. J. Kohn. Rev. Wenrich officiated.

Ralph W. Hoon, aged 38, died May 29th of paralysis. He was connected with the Ringling Bros. Circus. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hoon, three brothers and one sister. The funeral was from the residence, 384 South Harris, Saturday. Burial in Green Lawn Cemetery by C. J. Kohn.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors, friends and Westwood Pythian Sisters for their help and kindness during the sickness and death of our mother, Mrs. Amelia M. Michaelis, and for the beautiful floral offerings, Rev. J. W. Wenrich for his consoling words, C. J. Kohn, undertaker, for his excellent service.

Imagination Stirred by Problems of Great Spaces

I have no doubt star gazing is a fine occupation, for it leads you within the borders of the unattainable. But map gazing, to which I became addicted early, brings the problems of the great spaces of the earth into stimulating and directive contact with some curiosity and gives an honest precision to one's imaginative faculty, writes Joseph Conrad in the National Geographic Magazine.

And the honest maps of the Nineteenth century nourished in me a passionate interest in the truth of geographical facts and a desire for precise knowledge which was extended later to other subjects.

From the middle of the Eighteenth century on, the business of map making had been growing into an honest occupation, registering the hard-won knowledge, but also, in a scientific spirit, recording the geographical ignorances of its time.

And it was Africa, the continent out of which the Romans used to say some new thing was always coming, that got cleared of the dull imaginary wonders of the Dark ages, which were replaced by exciting spaces of white paper. Regions unknown! My imagination could depict to itself those worthy, adventurous men nibbling at the edges, attacking from north and south and east and west, conquering a bit of truth here and a bit of truth there and sometimes swallowed up by the mystery their hearts were so persistently set on unveiling.

"Brush" Used for Removing Deposits From Ship's Hull

It is reported that an Australian company has introduced in England an ingenious method of cleaning the outside of the hull of a ship. The invention has been in successful operation for a number of years in Australia and has been tried at Southampton and Plymouth.

The apparatus is mounted upon a suitable frame, which can be suspended from the side of a boat. It consists of a cylindrical brush about five or six feet in length, held in a framework which also supports an electric motor and a propeller. The purpose of the propeller is to keep the brush pressed against the side of the ship. The case carrying the apparatus contains also a four-cylinder petroleum motor directly coupled to a dynamo. The current produced serves to raise and lower the carrying frame as well as to drive the propeller and brush. As the appliance operates under water the motor and gearing are inclosed in a water-tight box. The machine is capable of removing the thickest deposits and can thoroughly clean the hull of an 8,000-ton ship in from six to seven hours.

Flea's Wonderful Eyesight

Fleas have far better sight than men. A German scientist who has been investigating fleas makes this disclosure, saying their sight is so sharp that when a man is sleeping at night under a blanket in a darkened room his body glows to a flea as brightly as a red-hot stove appears to a man in a darkened room.

Man is far behind many animals in both sight and hearing, the scientist finds; the human ear catches only a small percentage of the myriad tone waves and as human eyes do not react to ultra-violet beams much is lost to man which reaches eyes of a lower order.

Earwig Becomes Nuisance

The European earwig, introduced to this country from Europe where it is very common, has multiplied here so rapidly that it has become quite a pest, especially in Washington, Oregon and Rhode Island. The Department of Agriculture is experimenting with two parasites of the earwig with a view of checking the spread of the nuisance to other parts of the country. Chickens devour earwigs ravenously, but the insects are so hidden during the day that fowls can hardly be considered as an important factor in controlling them. Toads eat them rapidly. Poison baits and sprays furnish other means of control.

Bone Weights Differ

As a result of weighing the various parts of 100 skeletons, Dr. H. W. Ingalls of Western Reserve university declared the bones of the right arm and leg, probably because of more frequent use, are heavier than those of the left. According to Prof. W. G. Waterman of Northwestern university, the same kind of flowers which grew during the last glacial age some 50,000 years ago, are still to be found in a small park near Logan Pass, Mont., where they were left by the ice.

Duck Had Free Ride

When Allen Barker of Nashua, N. H., went to his garage to get his machine, he saw a large white duck perched on the bumper. Barker recalled that late the night before while returning from Lowell, something white, resembling a piece of paper, struck the front of the machine about ten miles from Nashua. Believing that the paper would blow off, he continued home. The duck was none the worse for the trip.

BUILDING your home is the most important thing in your life. It means more to you and your family than almost anything else.

You want a good many other things—an automobile, a piano, and so forth. But get your home first. Look about you and you will see that the folks who built their homes first have been able to get the other things they wanted and are happy. Why? Because it is the greatest economy in the world to own your home. And it is the most comfortable feeling you can have. It is something that shows for your work.

This is the home building year. Now is the time to complete your plans and start construction. Talk to your dealer about the matter. He is right here on the ground; this is his home; his ambition is to give you such advice and service that you will be glad you dealt with him.

"Shirt of Nessus" Told of in Old Fable

"The shirt of Nessus" is a phrase used to describe the tortures of remorse. According to one version of an ancient legend it was a gorgeous, gold-embroidered garment given to the wife of Hercules by a centaur who hated him. With it he gave the advice that if ever she found her husband's affection waning she should persuade him to don the shirt, when his love for her would return.

Years passed, and Hercules, after the fickle fashion of mythical heroes, grew tired of his wife. She thereupon bethought herself of the centaur's gift, which she begged her husband to wear, says London Tit-Bits. He put it on, only to find that it burned and tortured him, and finally caused his death, for he built a great funeral pyre, laid himself upon it and bribed a friend to fire it rather than endure the ferments of the shirt, which clung to his body and could not be removed.

A centaur was a legendary creature with the body of a horse and the arms and head of a man. Therefore if we say of a horseman that he sits his horse like a centaur we mean that he rides so perfectly that he and the animal seem to be one.

Studies of varying velocity of earthquake tremors passing through the interior of the globe led Professor Wiechert of Holland to conclude that the earth consists of a central core of iron or steel, about 5,000 miles in diameter, surrounded by a stony shell nearly 1,800 miles in thickness. Between the outer solid rind and the inner layer of rock covering the metallic core, he claims there is a layer of liquid or plastic material a little less than 30 miles below the earth's surface.

Can't Classify Bacteria

Scientists are still trying to determine whether bacteria are animals or plants. When these ubiquitous organisms were first discovered they were described as animalcules. The layman still insists on calling them "bugs." Haeckel once proposed placing them along with lower plants and animals difficult to classify in a new classification, "protista." The new tendency is to assign these micro-organisms to the plant world. They resemble some of the algae in form, mode of reproduction and absence of a definite nucleus; yet those which possess flagella show points of resemblance with some of the protozoa. Bacteria closely resemble plants from the chemical standpoint in possessing marked chemo-synthetic power in nitrogen metabolism, leading to the production of such complex compounds as amino-acids and purins from no other source of nitrogen than ammonia.

Courtesy

Courtesy is the one medium of exchange that is always accepted at par by the people of every country on the globe. Courtesy radiates a spirit of good feeling and suggests that we are not working entirely for the material returns of work, but for the pleasure of friendly human association as well. Life is not too short and we are never too busy to be courteous. Courtesy is the outward expression of an inward consideration for others, and is always an effective lubricant that smooths business and social relationships, eliminating friction.—Trolley Items.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Glenwood M. E. Church will hold an all-day sewing and pot-luck dinner at the home of Mrs. H. W. Lowrie, 276 Eldon Ave., Thursday, June 5. Also the regular monthly business meeting. A good attendance is desired.

Secret Service Tells How to Detect "Raised" Bills

The raising of United States currency above its face value by unscrupulous individuals has become so general during the past few years that the secret service has issued a general warning to all who handle large sums of money to give close watch to all currency accepted. Hotels, banks and merchants are generally the ones who receive most of the raised money.

Ninety per cent of the money in circulation in the United States is in the form of federal reserve bank notes. Ninety-five per cent of the raised currency in circulation is in these same notes. Crooks succeed in changing the figures and the letters, but they can't change the portraits. If bank tellers, department store cashiers, railroad ticket sellers and others who handle large sums of money would memorize the portraits which appear on the different denominations of federal reserve bank notes there would be very little passing of raised currency. This ought to be easy because the portraits which appear on these bills are ones which everyone remembers from school days. They are: On the $1 federal reserve bank note, Washington; on the $2, Jefferson; $5, Lincoln; $10, Jackson; $20, Cleveland; $50, Grant; $100, Franklin.

Lives of High and Low Influenced by Figures

A book published recently draws attention to a remarkable table that Beddoe, the poisoner, compiled, showing how the number 13 influenced him all through his life.

Murderers seem to be particularly subject to the malign influence of figures. Crippen's unlucky number was 48, and Charles Peace, was oddly influenced by 7.

The Bible is full of references to the potency of certain figures, notably 3 and 7, while both Oliver Cromwell and Napoleon had sincere convictions regarding the luck-bringing propensities of certain numerals.

In connection with this superstition there is the well-authenticated story that the famous Italian charlatan, Count Cagliostro, based his famous prediction concerning Marie Antoinette's execution and Josephine's elevation to empress by a calculation based on the number of letters in their names.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Ivory Famine

The elephant is a very useful animal, both for draft purposes and for ivory. A few years ago 70,000 were slaughtered annually for their tusks so that it seemed as though there was a good chance of the big animal's becoming extinct. Wise laws, however, have checked the destruction so that the number is increasing. The war gave the elephants their chance and the British authorities in East Africa have also protected them. South of Kumbosi the elephant is virtually extinct and the Cape market for ivory has ceased to exist. At present Mozambique is the center of the ivory trade. Oddly enough, the Portuguese, through whose hands it comes, send nearly all the ivory across to Bombay, where it is sorted and cut and dispatched to the European markets. The world's supply of real elephant ivory is now about 230 tons a year.—Washington Post.

The Radiometer

An instrument by which radiant heat and light may be directly converted into mechanical energy is an invention of Sir William Crookes. It consists of an exhausted globe of glass in which is a needle support carrying a rotating four-disk vane, the faces being blackened on one side. Placed in a field of light, the blackened side of each disk absorbs more of the radiant energy than the other side, and the molecules of residual air that strike it are thus given greater energy. The resulting pressure does not become quickly equalized for the two sides, as would be the case in air of the ordinary density, hence the vane rotates. An adaptation of the Crookes radiometer has been devised by Nichols of sufficient sensitiveness to detect the radiant heat of some of the fixed stars.

Speech of Wild Beasts

All wild animals have a language of their own and the only persons who can train and handle the beasts successfully are men and women who have learned their language and give it constant study. Such is the opinion of Otto Seiler-Jackson, who has just completed twenty-five years of service as a trainer of man-eating animals and is now exhibiting his educated tigers in a Berlin circus.

Scientific Facts

Prof. W. F. Watson of Athens, Ga., claims to have taken the eyes of insects and made minute lenses through which he has made photographs of various objects, thereby throwing new light on insect vision. Commenting on insulin used in the treatment of diabetes, H. A. Shonle and J. H. Waldo of Indianapolis said that this product has yet to be obtained in pure and isolated state.

Explained

Farmer (showing friend over the farm)—How many sheep would you guess were in that flock?

Visitor (considers a moment and ventures)—About 500.

"Absolutely correct! How did you guess at it?"

"Well, I just counted the legs and divided the number by four."—Good Hardware.

Osage Indians Tallest of Tribes of North America

Missouri, unlike many other states, never had a large number of Indians. Indian tribes, or warlike chiefs of ability. The Osage Indians were the only tribe peculiar to and historically native in Missouri. The "Missouris," who took their name from the river, were living there when Marquette and Joliet made their famous trip in 1673, but they had originally gone there from the vicinity of Green Bay, Wis. They were never a strong tribe, writes Raymond W. Thorp in "Adventure."

Other Indian tribes in Missouri came late, as the Sauks, Foxes and Delawares. These originated east of the Mississippi and settled in Missouri during the Spanish period.

The Osages were the distinctive Indians of Missouri, and well might the state be proud of them. The great artist, Catlin, states that the Osages were "the tallest race of men in North America, either of red or white skins." Few Osage braves were under six feet in height, many were six feet six inches, and some were seven feet tall. They were well proportioned and good looking, and in movement they were quick and graceful. In war and the chase they equaled any. Although living close to the white man for decades they late retained their primitive customs and dress.

First Almanacs Not the Bulky Thing Now Issued

What would the American colonists of 300 years ago think of the output today of calendars and almanacs? If piled on top of one another they would probably reach to the moon each year, says Esther Singleton in the Antiquarian of New York. The almanac, which is a compendium of useful information, is now a bulky volume issued by several firms and newspapers, but had its origin in very small beginnings. Samuel Danforth seems to have started the fashion in 1648, when John Eliot was beginning to preach to the Indians, and the settlers, menaced by the Pequots, lived with a Bible in one hand and a "blunderbus" in the other.

The first almanacs were very small and printed in the finest type, now so faded that it is difficult to read them, even with the aid of a magnifying glass. But an original copy will speak of many things to one fortunate enough to handle it, and carry a Twentieth-century antiquarian back to the days when America was very young indeed. These almanacs were first of all "astronomical" and full of calculations useful to the vicinity where they were printed. Gradually "lighter" features were added, culminating in the wit and wisdom, satire and philosophy of Benjamin Franklin in 1733.

Source of Mississippi

Henry Rowe Schoolcraft, American traveler and ethnologist, believed that in the discovery of Lake Itasca, Minn., he had reached the extreme head of the Mississippi river. He published his discovery to the world, and it was generally accepted on his authority. Lake Itasca was, and is, laid down in maps as the source of the Father of Waters.

In 1881 Capt. Willard Glazier organized an expedition to proceed to the headwaters of the Mississippi. The result was the discovery of a body of water lying immediately south of Lake Itasca and emptying into the latter through a perennial stream, the mouth of which was entirely concealed by a dense growth of lake vegetation and fallen trees.

This body of water is now known as Lake Glazier and the discoverer claimed for it that it was the primal reservoir, or ultimate source, of the Mississippi river.—Detroit News.

Good Deed for That Day

Miss Muff was one of those kind-hearted spinsters who, having nothing else to do in life, make themselves, sometimes, rather objectionable in the process of carrying out their kindhearted whims.

"Have you done your good deed today?" asked Miss Muff one day as she came upon a very diminutive boy weeping.

"Yes, I did it before breakfast. I gave my brother a thrashing before breakfast, and I blacked his eye so he couldn't go to school."

"But I don't call that a good deed," said Miss Muff.

"What?" exclaimed the scout. "Didn't I tell you he couldn't go to school?" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Midget Electric Motor

Ivan T. Nedland of Hillsboro, N. D., is the inventor and maker of what is said to be the smallest electric motor in the world. It is less than a quarter of an inch in length, but perfect in all details and operates faultlessly. About six years ago Mr. Nedland made and exhibited the smallest steam engine in the world that operated perfectly.

Bronze Statue Mystery to Pioneer of Oregon Trail

"It's a small world after all," said Ezra Meeker, oldest living pioneer of the Oregon trail, as he gazed the other day on a bronze statue of himself that was uncovered in a small art shop in Vienna and brought to this country by A. Weil, an Englishman.

The romance and mystery surrounding the statue were heightened by Mr. Meeker's declaration that he had not posed for the piece, did not know it was in existence and could not offer an explanation for its presence so far away from the Old West in which he spent his early days.

"There are my eyes," said the pioneer as he examined the base of the miniature statue with a magnifying glass. "Look how that horn turns down; how well I remember that."

He found that even the improvised cloth food bin, used in going over the plateer trails, was depicted true to life. The statue itself is Mr. Meeker in miniature. The broad-brimmed hat, the beaded Indian vest, even the gauntlets, the pioneer recognized at a glance.

Mr. Weil was unable to satisfy Mr. Meeker's curiosity regarding the original of the statue. The method of casting bronze in Austria is familiar to Mr. Weil, he said, and could not be duplicated easily outside of the country. Mr. Weil is sure it was produced in Vienna. The sculptor's name, inscribed on the base, is O. Curts, but the name does not offer any clew to the origin of the piece.

Stock for Indian Arrow Required to Be Perfect

Every plains teepee had hanging in it a bunch of slender sticks seasoning for arrows.

If particular in the materials for his bow the brave was even more so where arrow stock was concerned. Any available hardwood, if straight and free from knots, served. When seasoned, the shaft was meticulously scraped and smoothed and feathered with various pinions. The Arapahoes and Cheyenne usually used those of the wild turkey, softened in tepid water, split and glued with a glue made from a large muscle at the back of the neck of the buffalo, writes Frank H. Huston, in "Adventure."

The glue was less susceptible to climatic variations than any other used by the tribes. The final touch was given by placing an individual mark upon the shaft to identify the person who made the kill, whether of human or brute game.

Heads were made from flint, obsidian, odd bits of iron and even old barrel hoops, until, toward the last of the bow and arrow days, traders carried in iron ones made in eastern and English manufacturing towns, shipped in barrels.

Spain's Gift to Britain

Spain has recently made England a present of a model of the Santa Maria, the ship in which Columbus sailed to America, and the gift recalls others given at various times by one country to another.

Everybody has heard of the famous Liberty statue in New York. This was presented to America by France in 1884.

Some years ago the French government presented a Sevres vase to the British museum. It is a magnificent specimen and very valuable.

Ancient weapons, such as guns, swords and so on, are fairly common gifts from one country to another. That which is known as "Queen Elizabeth's pocket pistol" was a gift to Great Britain from the Netherlands. It was cast as long ago as 1544.—London Tit-Bits.

Detecting the Bogus

French chemists have perfected new methods of identifying pictures, according to the American Chemical society. They use groups of red, blue, green or white light to light the picture, and they examine the suspected canvas with the spectrometer. This puts in relief the retouchings, scrapings and changed signatures which constitute a false picture. By employing the ultra-violet ray they make the zinc white and certain varnishes stand out by fluorescence. By scraping off small amounts of paint they have made spectrographic analyses and have been able to determine, for example, in a false Renoir, the presence of a cadmium yellow, when Renoir only used chrome yellow.

English Writer Extols the Monkey as a Pet

In the Eighteenth century monkeys were fashionable pets, and I predict that the fashion will be revived, says a London Daily Graphic writer.

I have kept a monkey as a pet for four months now. He is on excellent terms with the dog and the cat, and he is quite as well behaved as either. He is sentimental—not, indeed, with the pure domestic affection of the dog, but in a selfish and vampirish way.

He is the only animal that understands, and practices humbug. He will look at you from inside his cage with soulful eyes, and if you let him out on your return late at night, confident that it is pure affection for you that makes him look like that, he will lead you a dance and force you to rouse the house in order to get him back into his cage.

Most monkeys suitable as pets come from near the equator, and have to be kept warm on winter nights and a good fire made up for them. They should be nicely tucked in on a shelf in the cage, and, in a journalist's house, at any rate, they will then sleep conveniently late in the morning.

Keyhole in Demand

Peter was no different from other boys. Sometimes when his sister's friend would call he would entertain him in the drawing-room until Dolly came downstairs.

One night the young man asked the youngster if he ever peeped through the keyhole while he and the boy's sister were in the drawing-room.

With a sudden burst of candor, Peter answered: "Sure, when mother isn't there first!"—Boston Post.

Trustees of Church Insure Pastor's Life

A new idea in church building finance made its appearance in Rochester, N. Y., recently when the trustees of the Baptist temple, who are putting up a combined church and office building in that city, insured the life and health of their pastor, the Rev. Clinton Wunder, for $100,000 for the benefit of the church, the premium to be paid out of the building fund.

Success of the undertaking depends so much upon the Rev. Wunder's energy, initiative and devotion, the trustees explained, that his death or disability would be an irreparable blow to it, and the insurance is taken out to protect the plan so far as money can do it.

The policy calls for fifteen payments. In the event of the pastor's total disability the church will receive $3,000 a year; in case of the death it will receive the full amount of $100,000.

At the expiration of twelve years, if the church desires to surrender the policy, it will have $50,000 in cash to apply on the payment of its second mortgage bonds, which become due at that time. The premium will amount to approximately $4,000 a year.

Birds May Share Fate of Antelope and Bison

America's effort to preserve her game bird supply has proved a complete failure, according to T. Gilbert Pearson, president of National Association of Audubon Societies. He says that many species of birds are declining so rapidly that they are as sure to pass as have the antelope and bison.

"Some time ago," said Mr. Pearson, "Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborne, head of the American Museum of Natural History, issued a widely quoted statement that the animal kingdom is tottering. He said that nothing in the history of creation has paralleled the ravages of the fur and hide trade, which threatens the entire vertebrate kingdom, and he added that final cause of the close of the age of mammals can only be arrested through the creation of sound sentiment and education of the women and children.

"In the same manner the bird kingdom is tottering and will fall unless the National Association of Audubon Societies keeps up its work of arresting the destruction of birds."

Shaking Mop Out Window

In a loud voice she was telling a friend in the subway of a slumming trip she had recently made. "And do you know, my dear," she said, "the people are too lazy to dispose of rubbish in the proper way. They fling it from the windows into the street. It's all your life's worth to walk down there after dark. It's a wonder some one wouldn't teach them better."

"There's a law against it, of course," the friend agreed. "But even people who know also break it. Up where I live it is a common sight to see housewives shaking mops out of the windows over the sidewalks, and that's only one step away, don't you think?"

But the loud-speaking one suddenly became silent. The shot had gone home.—New York Sun and Globe.

Bread Baked 4,400 Years Ago Found on the Nile

A loaf of brown "famine" bread sold during the Peninsular war has been presented to Coventry City Guild museum, together with a small and faded notebook in which the owner wrote that he intended to keep the bread as a memento of the high price of corn at that time.

But this loaf is now when compared with others that have been discovered at different times. Few people, for instance, would care to put their teeth into the loaf which is still preserved at Ambaston, Derbyshire. It is 700 years old, and was given to the Soar family with a grant of land by King John.

Several years ago, a French explorer found an Assyrian loaf, which, it was estimated, had been baked in the year 560 B. C., and was, therefore, about 2,500 years old. In shape it resembled a bun. It was discovered, wrapped in a cloth, in an ancient tomb where it had probably been put by the superstitious Assyrians to be used as food by the dead person during his journey to another world.

Many years ago an oven was found at Pompeii, containing several loaves, slightly charred, but all bearing the bakers' name. What is easily the oldest loaf in existence, however, is the one discovered by an Egyptian explorer on the banks of the Nile in 1905. It was baked in the year 2600 B. C., and is, therefore, over 4,400 years old. —London Answers.

Star's Admirer Given Shock by Her Manager

A touring company was going the round of some of the provincial towns, and everywhere the audience waxed enthusiastic over the juvenile lady.

One evening a youthful admirer sought the manager, a tall, fine-looking man, and endeavored to obtain an introduction to the fascinating little lady. He had, he said, admired her acting very much.

"It must be very pleasant to know her," he suggested. "No doubt you who see her so often are very fond of her?"

"Yes," admitted the manager, "I suppose I am rather fond of her."

"Perhaps you've known her for some time?" ventured the other.

"Yes, quite a long time," answered the manager.

"But it can't be so very long," protested the admirer; "why, she's little more than a girl."

Then suddenly a horrible suspicion came to him, and he stammered: "You—you're not her husband, are you?"

"No, oh, no," said the manager, with an amused smile; "only her son."

Petain Grows Roses

Marshal Petain, one of the outstanding figures of the World war, has been awarded a medal by the French Agricultural society for developing a new species of blue roses. This rose, it was said, may be kept flowering for weeks. The marshal bought an abandoned farm on the Riviera, southeastern France, just after the war and his success with roses has been phenomenal. Perfume makers are organizing to market the Petain brands.

Indians' Steam Bath

The sweat bath has been used by the Sioux and other Indians of the Northwest for generations. The framework of the bath closet is made of limber willow sticks, over which are thrown blankets and skins anchored with heavy stones.

In a hole in the center of the bath are white-hot stones, on which the bather splashes cold water to make steam. Periodically he drinks cold water to induce perspiration. In the meantime the bather lashes his body with a bundle of tightly-bound straw.

After thirty minutes of this he runs to a stream and plunges into the cold water. For soap the Indian uses fine mud at the bottom of the stream. A twenty-minute running completes the semi-weekly bath, says Chief Buffalo Child Long Lance in the Master magazine.

Explaining Battleground

"Boy, is this the field on which the great battle was fought?" asked the tourist.

"No, sir; that be at the top of the hill," replied the native boy.

"Dear, dear!" exclaimed the tourist; "that must be a mile away. Why didn't they fight it in this field?"

"I suppose because this 'ere field belongs to Farmer Johnson. He never would lend his field for anything, not even for the village sports."

Civil Improvement Is Object of "Rotarians"

The Rotarians are members of the Rotary club, which was formed in Chicago in 1908 by four men—a coal dealer, mining operator, merchant tailor and lawyer. "Rotary" was chosen for the name of the club because the members met in "rotation" at their places of business. Civil improvement was the object of the club and the motto adopted is: "Service above self—He profits most who serves best." Other clubs were soon organized in other cities and in 1910 a convention was held in Chicago at which a national association of Rotary clubs was formed. Two years later in order to include clubs from foreign countries the association was made international. At the beginning of 1928 the membership of the association totaled over 98,000. Membership in a local club is restricted to one man from each business or profession. A new club must start with not less than 15 or more than 25 members. The clubs are grouped in districts, each district electing a governor to represent it on the international board, which meets in Chicago every 60 days. The Rotarian, a monthly published at Chicago, is the official publication of the organization.

Famous Old City

Venice ranks high among Italian cities in its supply of picturesque nicknames. The commercial center of the world in the Middle ages, Venice has been known as "The Bride of the Adriatic" and the "Queen of the Adriatic." To this day tribute is paid by Venice with elaborate ceremonies to the Adriatic, whose placid waters take the place of streets and bear upon their bosom the trade and life of the city. Venice is known also as "The City of St. Mark," after its patron saint, and as "The City of the Lion," an allusion to the great winged lion in front of the cathedral, holding in its paws the gospel of St. Mark.

Anthracite Substitute

Construction of an oven that turns lignite into a substance with heating properties similar to anthracite has resulted from experiments conducted by the bureau of mines co-operating with the University of North Dakota and the Canadian government. Four years ago congress appropriated $100,000 to carry on our experiments. Lignite char should be available in periods of hard-coal famine that may occur in the future.

Built Own Guillotine

Isidor Hespel, nicknamed "the jackal," was for many years the executioner in the French penal settlement at Cayenne, French Guiana. Recently he killed a convict in a quarrel and was himself sentenced to be beheaded. Not having much confidence in his successor he petitioned to be allowed to build his own guillotine, which favor the government granted.

Sewer Relief Must Come

There will be an open meeting on June 17th of the Hilltop Improvement Association at their room over the Building & Loan Association office on South Park Avenue, to take up the matter of sewer improvement on the Hilltop.

Here's some of the old story that has been told over and over again, so that it's almost known by heart by most of our folks: Sunday it rained, and rained hard. Result: About seven feet of water in the basement of Burgess Avenue Church. Nearly two feet deep in the basement of John Burroughs School. A regular lake all along Sullivant from near Hague Avenue on Sullivant for several squares east blocking all street car traffic for a large part of the day. Hague Avenue cut off from travel along most of it the biggest part of the day. Scores and scores of cellars flooded, some to the depth of four or five feet. Lawns, gardens and flower beds ruined and other damage to private property which cannot be enumerated. Do we need relief from this? Well, be at the citizens' meeting on South Park Avenue next Tuesday evening and help relief along. There will also be a mass meeting Monday evening, June 23, at Burgess Avenue U. B. Church, corner Sullivant and Burgess, at 7:30 o'clock.

About 125 citizens of the Hilltop, mostly in the neighborhood of Sullivent Avenue, where the flooded conditions have been telling to such an extent that it has become unbearable, attended City Council meeting in a body last Monday evening and demanded action on sewer relief, and that right soon. After being heard, they were promised, by Engineer Simpson that plans for taking care of the storm sewer problems would be ready in 30 days.

Next Tuesday evneing an open meeting has been called at the rooms of the Hilltop Improvement Association on South Park Avenue, over the Building and Loan office, and every person interested should not fail to be ther ewith both feet and prepare to make himself heard if he has anything to offer for the good of this problem. If this affair can be hurried along by concerted action on the part of our citizens let's hurry it with all our might. So, be there.

FLOOD SUFFERERS

There will be a mass meeting of residents of the Hilltop at the Burgess Avenue U. B. Church, corner Sullivant and Burgess, Monday night, June 23, at 7:30, for the purpos eof discussing plans for the elimination of FLOOD WATER.

Complimenting Miss Delle Engelke, a bride-elect, Mrs. Cora Stoops Sheron, 67 South Eureka Avenue, was hostess at a dinner Monday evening. Table decorations were carried out in pink and white colors of the Eldorado Club from the Y. W. C. A. of which Miss Engelke is a member. A large basket of pink and white peonies adorned the center of the table, at each end a candlelabra was placed in which were three pink candles. The table was not complete until a miniature bride and groom found their way to the head of the table where Miss Delce was seated. Toasts were given between courses by Mrs. Ethel Jewel, Mrs. Veba Houser and Mrs. C. Sheron to the new bride-to-be.

After partaking of the good dinner all entered the living room and the regular business meeting of the club was started, only to be interrupted by a loud ring of the door bell, a messenger announced a Special Delivery for Miss Engelke. A large basket filled with packages all wrapped and tied in pink and white. Gifts from the club girls. Opening each package with nervous fingers the end was finally reached and the business meeting continued to the end. Miss Engelke is a twin daughter of Mrs. Alice Bartleson, 674 Livingston Ave., and will be married to Mr. Clifford Deir, son of R. Lane, 703 Wager St. the wedding taking place Saturday evening, June 14th. Among those as dinner guests were Mrs. Evelyn Swain, Mrs. Loretta Isreal, Mrs. Irene Reitzel, Mrs. Velva Houser, Mrs. Ethel Jewel, Mrs. Martha Lind, Miss Delouris Engleke, Miss Mertie Gwinn, Miss Gladys Elsile, Miss Beteruce Richards, Miss Philoma Clark, Miss Clara Herbts, Miss Ada Roush, Miss Marie Hughes, Miss Delce Engleke, the hostess and her family, Mr. C. E. Sheron and daughter, Mary Jane. The next meeting of the club will be held at the Y. W. C. A. Camp Wildwood with Miss Ada Roush as hostess.

The annual outing of the Columbus Retail Grocers Association at Olentangy Park, on June 18th, promises to be the largest in point of attendance that that association has ever held. The vice president, Mr. Ray G. Hauntz, of the Haunts Groceries on the Hilltop, states that they are expecting fully 35,000 in attendance that day. Prizes to the amount of $1500.00 will be given. A large street parade, consisting of beautifully decorated floats and automobiles will start at 9 o'clock in the morning. There will also be a beauty contest at the bathing beach, and a minstrel show composed of talent from that association in the evening. All groceries belonging to that association will be closed all day Wednesday.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFadon

A century ago protein was just protein. It was thought to be a scarce article and yet very necessary. Meat was the best known source but meat was expensive. Milk and the white of egg were known to contain protein, but they too were expensive. Gelatine, extracted from bones was found a practical source of protein, but scientific developments disclosed the fact that two of the 18 amino acids of protein were absent from gelatine, and this limited its usefulness, but in reality the deficiency is easily made up by the use of protein from other sources.

And the science of nutrition has been evolutionized (or revolutionized) the same as radio-acticity has revolutionized our conceptions of matter. Only a few years ago the chemists told us that the smallest portion of matter was the atom. Now they tell us that each atom comprises millions of electrons, and that, in reality, a hard piece of steel has more air space than solid matter. And likewise the scientists would keep us dizzy with their revelations in nutrition, of which those about protein are simply illustrative.

But most of us humans would be pleased to leave the discussion of "amino acids" to scientists such as Dr. Osborne and Prof. Mendel, and do as common mortals did a century ago—just think of protein as protein and not be discriminative as to just what kind we are getting since there are now so many known sources.

It is true enough that protein is very valuable in food for young and old, for it builds and repairs—builds for the young and repairs later in life. The concern of those in middle and after life is not to get too much of it, for it is the excess of protein that causes rheumatism, gout and other such troubles. Rather take your excesses from the carbo-hydrates (fruits and vegetables).

The following list of common foods is graded as to its protein content. The most pronounced sources of protein being toward the top and the least at the bottom.

Protein—White of egg, cod fish, cottage chesee, veal, most fish, lean beef, skim milk, most meats, most fowl, chicken, whole egg, cheese, lentils, peas, beans, yolk of egg, most nuts, cream soups, peanuts, most vegetables, bread, whole milk, potatoes, doughnuts, fat meats, fruits, most pies, butter, cream, sugar.

Social Affairs

Forty-five attended the Hilltop Child Conservation picnic dinner at the new home of Mrs. J. V. Witter, the retiring secretary, at Grove City last Saturday. At the business meeting the following new officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. F. L. Bradfute; vice president, Mrs. M. D. Hohenstein; secretary, Mrs. C. W. Rucker; treasurer, Mrs. P. M. Donovan. The Circle reports the presentation to the Holmes Hilltop Library of 21 books for children. This was the last regular meeting until the September meeting.

The third group of Ladies' Aid, Glenwood M. E. Church, will meet with Mrs. Parrett, 2600 West Broad Street, on next Tuesday, June 17, at 2 P. M. All members please come.

Mrs. E. B. Hooper, 2725 West Broad Street, will be hostess to the Women's Home Missionary Society, on June 19, at 2 o'clock. Miss Martindale, from the Effie Eddington School, El Paso, Texas, will give a talk. This is time for the annual election of officers.

Mrs. E. E. Shafter, 88 Belmont Ave., will entertain the members of the Hilltop Embroidery Club to a one o'clock luncheon at the Greystone Tea Room, North High Street, Wednesday, June 18th.

The last of a series of recitals given by pupils of the Robbins-Greiser School of Music, will be held on Monday, June 16th, at the Hillcrest Baptist Church, corner W. Broad St. and Eldon Avenue. The public will be welcome. Following the closing of a most successful school year, Miss Robbins and Miss Greiser will go to Asbury Park, New Jersey, for the summer.

Mrs. Charles R. Hughes entertained about 30 guests with a card party at her new home, 1765 Sullivant Avenue. After the games a lunch of sandwiches, salad, ice cream with angel food cake were served. Then the guests enjoyed several songs and dance numbers by Virginia Macklin and Betty Finke, both pupils of Marie Sanda. The house was decorated with pink and white peonies.

Did you hear a loud noise on South Richardson Avenue Monday night, June 9th? If so it was the choir of the Hilltop Church of Christ belling Mr. and Mrs. Tom Crompton, who had just returned from their honeymoon. Mrs. Crompton was formerly known as Miss Thelma Keber, who is a member of the choir. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Reed and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thompson and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bratt and son, Mrs. Bigham and daughter, Yolanda, Mrs. T. R. King, Mrs. W. C. Atkins, Mrs. R. E. Saylor, Mrs. L. Hauser, Misses Norma, Mary and Helen Johnston, Miss Jessie Lagg, Miss Corine Fisher, Miss Edyth Whittington, Miss Ethel Mankin, Miss Florence E. Woods, Mr. Percy Weatherwax, Mr. O. D. Steele, Mr. C. A. Cady and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kober and family. After wishing Mr. and Mrs. Crompton a long and successful journey on the sea of matrimony, the guests departed, taking their musical instruments with them.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Clark Brittin, 19 West Woodruff Avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter Isabel to Mr. John Milton Markeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Markeson of Camp Chase. The bride is secretary in the Crellen Realty Co.. Mr. Markeson is with the Baldwin Realty Co. He is superintendent of the Rome Methodist Church and captain of the Boy Scout unit of that district.

HILLTOP BUSINESS CHANGES

By Tor O'Hill

For the past two months have you kept apace
Of the number of changes having taken place
'Mongst business firms right here on the Hill?
And this is not all, for others, still
Will be changing places, or moving about—
Some coming in, but not many out.

Prior, of "Hardware for Hardwear" fame
On the Hilltop will no longer remain;
He's running a store up north—on High;
As you go to the Park you'll pass it by.

The building where Cussins and Hartsough's store
Has been doing business ten years or more,
Was recently leased for a picture show,
So Cussins and Hartsough had to go.
They quietly performed the strenuous feat
Of moving their stock across the street.
And with them during this moving whirl
Went Miss Zeller the "Beauty Shop Girl."
And at this place, as you enter the door
Is the new Floral Shop of Miss Marie Hoar.

Now, Cooper, of the Brunswick Music Store,
From his former place, is east one door—
A dandy room in the Rivoli Block,
Where movie patrons soon will flock.

Mitchell, the barber, having quit the "biz."
"Sites for Lights" popped that room of his.
And moved his stock, with auto and cart—
(With the latter, Cliff. Rice took active part.)

The new block of Bents—The Hilltop Supply,
And the oil filling station on the corner close by,
Have at that locality altered the view,
And helped it look more business-like, too.

Seiller, the hustling dry goods man,
Who is boosting the Hilltop all he can,
Has added more room to the size of his store
By building it north twenty feet, or more.
And back of his building, the alley across
The New Hilltop Garage of King & Moss

Donald M. Webb, who has insurance to sell,
With Dolby—you know them both quite well,
Is now on West Broad—twenty-three-eighty-nine,
Equipped to accommodate you in that line.

The Eureka Avenue Lumber "Co."
Was started about a month ago,
With a full line of coal and builder's supplies,
Over where the Panhandle Railroad lies.

Hammon, the "Just-Rite Bakery" man,
With his dough and mixer his oven and pan,
Has forsaken the room in the old frame house,
For a room in the new block built by Krause.

The Hilltop Battery Service Store
Is not at 14 South Park any more.
But located further out Broad St.—West.
In Renner's Garage, where they thought was best.
And at 14 South Park, all automobile buyers
Will find Hal. Adamson with a large stock of tires.

So do all the buying you possibly can
Right here at home with some Hilltop man,
And all the bear places, please bear in mind,
If you look, in the Record you'll surely find.

We have moved across the street. Cussins and Hartsough.

The Ladies' Aid of Burgess Avenue U. B. Church is giving a lawn fete at the church tonight (Thursday). Ice cream and cake 15 cents. Orchestra music. Welcome.

Sherman Edwards, employe of the Edwards' Confectionery, Hague and Broad, is spending a week's vacation in Big Plain, Ohio. Mr. Edwards has had a nervous breakdown, from the rush of customers, since he had his clock fixed, paid his water rent and had his water turned on. He has had such a rush on time and water he felt a week's rest was necessary. He will be back on the job selling Ohio Electric tickets and foot balm next Monday morning. While he has been gone the stamp machine has been taken out and the thermometer placed in a more convenient place with a sign "Free Reading."

Last Sunday night at the evening service, at Glenwood M. E. Church, 34 young people were installed as officers of the coming year, of the Junior, Intermediate and Senior Leagues. They are as follows:

Epworth Sr.—President, W. W. Weatherman; 1st Vice President, Cleo Kramer; Assistant, Edeth Sawyer; 2nd Vice President, Margaret Huffman; Assistant, Irene Snider; 3rd Vice President, Dorothy Prior; Assistant, Goldie Six; 4th Vice President, Shipley McIntosh; Assistant, Jane Shanley and Oscar Nader; Secretary, Truth Daniels; Treasurer, Ernest Martindale; Pianist, Velma Currier; Chorister, Robert Hughes.

Intermediate—President, Geraldine Elliott; Vice President, Dorothy Calland; 2nd Vice President, Hernola Woodyard, 3rd Vice President, Elis Stahl; 4th Vice President, Lucille Elliott; Assistants, Mary Millikin, Evelyn Edwards; Secretary, Dick Decker; Treasurer, Mabel Adair; Pianist, Louise Hamilton; Assistant, Edith Williams; Chorister, Martha Donisvant.

Junior—President, Chas. Drosos; 1st Vice President, Eliz. Johnston; 2nd Vice President, Mary Randall; 3rd V. Pres., Frances Gillilan; 4th V. Pres., Grace Pinsenschaum; Assistant, Jessie Pinsenschaum; Sec'y, Eunice Johnson; Treasurer, Martin Sharp.

The Epworth League officers of the new year will hold their first cabinet meeting Friday evening at 7:30, June 15th.

Hatchway no buttons Union Suits 79c; Seillers.

Westwood Lodge No. 770, K. of P.

Birds Supplied With Natural Feather Dye

You must often have watched a duck preening herself and have noticed how every few moments she burrows with her broad flat beak among the feathers of her tail. It is curious how few people know the reason for this manoeuver. The truth is that the duck possesses an open oil gland just above the tail. The contents she uses for dressing her feathers, and practically as if it were an artificial fluid such as we at times rub into our own scalps, says the Continental edition of the London Mail.

All water birds seem to possess this useful oil gland—useful because it is essential to all the swimming and diving birds to keep their feathers glossy and waterproof. Otherwise the plumage would become soaked and draggled and drag its owner down instead of helping to float it. If a sparrow falls into deep water and gets its feathers soaked it simply drowns.

There are some land birds which are similarly equipped. The hoopoe, specimens of which are occasionally seen in England, has its own supply of brilliantine. Some of the hornbills are equally fortunate. In the case of the great hornbill the oil secretion in the gland is highly colored. The bright yellow of the bird's neck and wings is due to the frequent applications of this natural feather dye.

Advantage in Working for Smaller Concern

For some time past what I may call industrial doctors have been hunting for the cause of business slumps.

"When we find who starts them," Otto Mallery remarked to me, "perhaps we can find a way to prevent it. As you know, depression in one thing at once leads to a decline in others."

These surgeons of trade divide business into three sizes: Those which employ under 21 persons, those which employ from 21 to 100 persons, and so-called big business which employs more than 100.

It seems that if you want to hold a job through bad times you had better work for a small concern, observes Girard in the Philadelphia Inquirer. When a business depression sets in idleness in large industries is relatively far greater than in small ones.

The littlest class, or those employing under 21 persons, discharges relatively much fewer than any other.

The Personal Touch

"One of the oddest things about my business," said the clerk in the hat department, "is to see how men behave when they are buying a new 'kelley.' No, I don't know why a hat is called a 'kelley.' I have never had a customer upon whose head I put a hat who didn't touch it immediately after I had stepped back to see the effect of the new hat, and get a slant on whether the particular style was becoming. It seems that a man gets into the habit of having his hat rest upon his head in just one way, and he doesn't feel comfortable unless it does, and he is the only one who knows the correct way to place it. Try it sometime. Place a man's hat upon his head and see if he can refrain from giving it an extra touch. I'll venture the assertion that he can't."

The Golden Horn

The Golden horn is the name given to a beautiful harbor, an inlet of the Bosporus, near which stands the city of Constantinople. It is six miles long, about half a mile wide at its widest part and more resembles a river than a harbor. It is deep, well sheltered and capable of accommodating twelve hundred large ships at anchor. On the eastern shore of the horn are the suburbs of Pera and Galata. The city of Constantinople now consists of a collection of towns and villages on both sides of the Golden horn. Galata is the business district, while Pera is the residential district, occupied by the homes of European business men, embassies and modern hotels and shops.

To Untie Hard Knot

Sometimes a knot seems to defy all one's efforts to get it untied. Here is a plan by means of which a knotted cord, strap, shoe string, or whatever it may be, can be loosened. Put something hard under the knot and then pound it well with a hammer. Beat the knot on all sides. Then drop on the knot a little very hot water, or, if possible, dip the knot into scalding hot water for a few minutes. In most cases it will be found that the knot can then easily be picked apart with the fingers. When it is still a little hard to move use a skewer or similar instrument to pull the knot apart.

Fat Women Prized

Among the Bahuma tribesmen of Uganda the women are unusually fat, as corpulence is looked upon as a sign of beauty. Girls, before marriage, are not allowed to walk about, and are encouraged to drink as much milk as they can in order that they may become as fat as possible before their affianced husbands come to claim them. The fatter they are the bigger the marriage dowry the parents receive.

Always a Way

A thin man and a fat man were seated behind a lady who wore a wide hat. The thin man asked her to remove it. She ignored this request.

"Sometimes the hair comes off with the hat," whispered the fat man.

She proved it didn't in her case.

Odd Residence Chosen by Three Englishmen

In a lonely Martello tower on the Essex coast of England there has just died the last of three brothers, who, refusing to admit women to their household, lived by themselves for nearly thirty years.

All were talented men. William Cole was a naturalist, who founded the Essex museum at Stratford and the Essex Field club. Benjamin Cole was an entomologist and Henry Cole, the last to die, was an artist, etcher and sculptor.

The tower was a comfortable though somber residence. It was difficult of access, for it is surrounded by a moat over 20 feet deep and 20 feet wide. This is crossed by a narrow iron gangway, which can be drawn up.

A heavy oaken door leads into the tower, the walls of which are eight feet thick. Below are dungeons, while the roof is reached by a narrow, dark stairway set in the thickness of the wall. From the top the brothers could obtain magnificent views across the North sea, over the estuary of the Colne and Blackwater, and across to Colchester and Brightlingsea.

Theories as to Right and Left-Handedness

Most available evidence seems to confirm the views that left-handedness is a hereditary characteristic. The infant of a few months shows no preference in the use of its hands. But when four or five months of age the normal child begins to show a preference for the right hand. The hereditary theory of right-handedness is often called the "primitive warfare theory." It was in the left hand that the primitive warrior held his shield to protect his heart. His right hand was left free to handle the spear or other weapon. Naturally the right hand was used more and as centuries passed became more accustomed to strenuous exercise. Finally right and left-handedness became hereditary characteristics of the race. But this is only a theory. There is a wide difference of opinion on the subject. Some believe this characteristic developed by accident or education; others think that it is fundamentally physiological. It is said that most people are also right-eyed, right-eared and right-footed.

A Cat Study

The cat always uses precisely the necessary force; other animals roughly employ what strength they happen to possess without reference to the small occasion. One day I watched a young cat playing with a daffodil. She sat on her hind-legs and patted the flower with her paws, first with one paw and then with the other, making the light yellow ball sway from side to side, yet not injuring a petal or a stamen.

She took a delight, evidently, in the very delicacy of the exercise, whereas a dog or a horse has no enjoyment of delicacy in his own movements, but acts strongly when he is strong, without calculating whether the force used may not be in great part superfluous. This proportioning of the force to the need is well known to be one of the evidences of refined culture, both in manners and in the fine arts.—Philip Gilbert Hamerton.

The Missing "Link"

The scene of the following little tragedy-farce-comedy-drama was the police station of Slowcombe-on-Mud. As the curtain rises to slow music the inspector is discovered at his desk. In front of him stands a weeping woman.

Inspector—Now, will you kindly give me, as near as you can, a list of the things a burglar took from your house?

(Woman thinks for a moment).

Woman—Ten spoons, six forks, two vases.

Inspector (after writing busily for a moment)—Now, is there anything else missing?

Woman (brightly)—Only the feller what took 'em.

Senegal's Giant Tree

It is reported that at Dakar, in Lower Senegal, is an enormous baobab tree, whose trunk measures fully seventy-five feet in circumference at the base. The fruit of the baobab, which grows abundantly in Senegal, is called "monkey bread." It is used by the natives for curdling milk and as a specific for certain diseases. Decoctions of the dried leaves are also used as medicine. From the bark strong cords are made and the gum that exudes from it is employed as a salve. The root of the young baobab is sometimes eaten by the natives.

The Smile Loses

As a rule grouchy looking men are not popular, but a druggist of our acquaintance says he likes to see them come into his store. "When a man comes in with a grouchy face," he remarked, "I know he wants to buy something. The fellow who approaches with a broad grin either wants to bone me for a donation or stock me up with some unsalable line of goods."—Boston Transcript.

Statue of Liberty

Forty persons can stand comfortably in the head of the Statue of Liberty and the torch will hold 12 people. The thickness of the head from ear to ear is 10 feet and the height of the head is 17 feet 3 inches. The distance between the eyes is two feet six inches, the nose is four feet six inches and the index finger is eight feet long.

Likens Modern Life to Piecework in Factory

"Life is getting more and more like piecework in a factory," says Dr. Mary Dunning Rose, president of the Women's Medical society of the state of New York.

"You push on to see if you can't do just a little extra all the time. And there is always that push to do more.

"If you drive a motorcar, and many people do, your nerves are shocked every time you take the wheel.

"Women need more sleep. Eight to ten hours. Some are better off with twelve.

"The fact that so many in New York city eat in restaurants accounts for the fact that our death rate is lower than elsewhere in the state. People don't order or eat more than they need in a restaurant. Operated under the board of health, public places must have fresh, good food, not the spoiled products they sold 20 years ago."

Doctor Rose recommends her own profession as a particularly satisfying one for her own sex, since it demands qualifications usually found in women, patience, sympathy and attention to detail—qualifications which will not be wasted in such a career.

"We need more doctors," continued Doctor Rose. "All those I know are busy. Of course, it takes years of preparation, and a business career seems to bring results more quickly."—Margery Rex, in the New York Journal.

Great Awakening Is Coming to This Man

There's a certain member of the Hollywood Athletic club who didn't know what he was getting into, when he joined. It seems that his wife took a great fancy to the beauty parlor, and when she discovered that she could go there as often as she pleased and merely sign a tab, she got the habit bad.

Hubby, being a busy man, had not gone to the club, and thinking that the bills at the end of each month were merely announcements of coming events, he never opened them. Finally he did open one envelope, and it chanced to be a letter telling him that no more service could be extended his wife until the account was settled.

After inspecting the bill, he decided that this was great news and sent the club a letter of thanks.—Los Angeles Times.

First Bifocal Lens

Benjamin Franklin invented the bifocal eyeglasses—one of the greatest of blessings—to fit his own needs. At Paris he frequently dined out where there were beautiful women in the company. Like all sensible men, he was fond of good food, and fond of looking at lovely women. He declared it to be important to see your food before you put it into your mouth; but he also wished to see the faces of the guests that decorated the table. It was inconvenient to put on one pair of spectacles to eat, and another pair every time anybody spoke to him. He therefore hit upon the device of having the upper part of his glasses consist of one lens, and the lower of another, which proved in practice, like nearly everything he thought of, eminently satisfactory.—W. L. Phelps in "Some Makers of American Literature."

Gentle Judgment

When he was questioned about his religious opinions—about all sorts of things on which it seems to us a gross impertinence to question a stranger—every letter was answered, and with such courtesy, such gentleness, such willingness to assume the best of those who criticised him, as to compel the admission that there was something of saintliness in the life of Darwin. To one who had attacked him rather vehemently, and then apologized, Darwin wrote: "Do not think I was annoyed at your letter. I saw that you had been thinking with animation, and therefore expressed yourself strongly, and so I understood."—A. Maude Royden, in "The Friendship of God."

Orientals Have Odd Belief About Foxes

Foxes have a terrifying effect on the imaginations of superstitious Orientals. A fox will enter a human's body—between the fingernails and the skin, they say—and, having made himself at home, will control the person's thought, actions and even his voice, leading him into devilries for which he feels he cannot be held responsible. To thus be controlled by a fox—or rather by the spirit of a fox—is to suffer from what is recognized as demoniacal possession.

We are told, says the Detroit News, that "the person possessed hears and understands everything that the fox inside him says or thinks; and that the two often engage in violent dispute, the fox speaking in a voice altogether different from that which is natural to the individual." Scientifically, we have it explained that "whereas in healthy persons one-half of the brain alone is actively engaged —in right-handed persons the left half of the brain and in left-handed persons the right—in nervously excitable persons or in persons of weak mind the disused half of the brain is often aroused into activity by fear, and that the two halves, now functioning—one the normal self and the other the new pathologically affected self—are set one against the other, the result being that the activities of the 'new' brain are ascribed to the fox."

"Lift" Etiquette Most Puzzling to Stranger

Apparently it was the stranger's first trip in an office building elevator and he was unaccustomed to the more or less rigid rules of "lift" etiquette.

He stood facing the door as the elevator started down. At the next floor a young woman entered and took a stand behind him. Two floors below a man boarded the car and, looking straight past the stranger, noticed the woman and gallantly removed his hat. As he did so the stranger tipped his hat and then replaced it on his head. At the next floor another man entered and looking sharply at the stranger removed his hat. The stranger responded by tipping his hat and replacing it again.

This was repeated every time a man entered the elevator, the puzzled look on the man's face increasing with each stop. Arriving at the ground floor he paused until his fellow passengers had passed out of earshot and then asked the elevator operator:

"What's everybody saluting me for?"
—New York Sun.

Odd Experience

This experience occurred many years ago, but it was so odd that I have never forgotten it. I was visiting friends in the country who had a Shetland pony that I loved to ride. I wore my hair in two braids, which were crossed and tied up in the back, making a little loop, as was the fashion of the time. One day while riding the pony through the orchard, he became frightened and started running toward the barn. Under a low-growing apple tree he ran pell-mell, leaving me hanging by my braids on the apple bough! My feet just missed the ground, and there I hung like Absalom until the other children came and released me.—Chicago Journal.

Keeps Absolute Check on Time Taken for Operation

Modern efficiency methods as applied in factories and shops often make it necessary to study the time required for different operations in the manufacture of certain products. For this work it is absolutely necessary to have a stop watch. The conventional stop watch, however, leaves much to be desired, for the reason that, while it gives the time elapsed for a certain operation, it is necessary to indulge in a considerable calculation for determining the output per hour or day.

Now a time-study watch has been evolved for the purpose of eliminating all computation and making it possible for an observer to read from the dial the quantity desired. The circumference of the dial of the watch is divided into 100 parts, as in the well-known decimal dial, but instead of these divisions being numbered in the ordinary manner they are marked with figures which indicate the number of operations per hour, when the time of a single operation is represented by the elapsed time. In the instance of very short operations ten operations instead of one can be timed.

Soundproof Booths

Soundproof telephone booths are constructed by various firms, and owing to the principle involved in their makeup it is said that not the least sound can escape from them while the telephone is being used.

The walls of the booth are built of five layers of thin wood, with the grain crossed each time, and the layers are glued together, the whole then being covered with a special soundproof compound.

Inasmuch as the whole is made in six dismountable panels a booth can be set up in a short time and panels are not too large to be taken in through an ordinary door. Insulated openings are left in the partitions beforehand, so that there is no need of boring holes to install telephone or electric light wires.

Fire Done Away With

The four new ocean-going dredges designed by the United States Engineering corps to clean American harbors of sand and silt are said to be the only human habitations since the dawn of civilization in which fire in some form is not used or needed. Everything is done by electricity.

Each vessel is 286 feet long and is propelled by electricity from generators driven by oil engines. All control is direct from the bridge, without reference to the engine-room.

Fifty-six electric motors operate the dredging machinery and do all the work of the ship—from weighing the anchor to driving the electric fans that ventilate the crew's quarters.

Lightning Bores Iron

During an electrical storm in Ohio an official of a lumber company sitting in his office was startled by a loud report like the discharge of a gun, and, looking up at the ceiling, noticed a blaze. On examination he found that there was a hole large enough to insert his little finger in the iron gas pipe. The lightning had come in over the electric wires, jumped off on to the gas pipe, which they crossed at right angles, bored through the iron and ignited the escaping gas.

Smoothing Concrete

Concrete in the rough was for a long time treated with carborundum or some other abrasive stone to remove from it unsightly surface board marks. Concrete houses where a cement wash or paint is later used are usually treated in this way.

An electric surfacing machine which works dry, that is, without the application of water, performs the task much more quickly and produces a more perfect surface. The cutter discs operate at a speed of 2,000 revolutions, under pressure. One set of cutters will do about 3,000 square feet of surfacing.

The discs revolve only when pressed upon the surface of the concrete, and operate absolutely square to it.

The Last Straw

Mr. Busiman was exasperated with the telephone. Ten times that morning he had tried to get a number and each time something had prevented him from speaking. At last he got through.

"Hello!" he said. "Is Mr. X. there?"

"Yes," replied a voice, "Do you want to speak to him?"

That was the last straw. Back went the reply in icy tones: "Oh, no! I merely rang him up to hand him a cigarette."

Sewer Relief Action Taken

The Hilltop Improvement Association at its meeting last night had for special consideration the matter of sewers, and there were about fifty present with Councilman Lewis. Discussion was general but all to the same end that the association make it the order of the day until the Hilltop gets proper and adequate sewer system, and strong resolutions were passed demanding such relief and calling on state, county and city health authorities to take a hand in the matter, and asking council to order the city engineer to at once draw up proper plans and specifications for permanent sewerage for the Hilltop not only for present relief but to take care of the normal increase for the next twenty-five years.

Mr. Lewis informed the association there was enough leeway between bonds issued and the legal limit to take care of the entire proposition, and that he would do everything in his power to help it along.

This sewer menace has dubbed along so much in the past, and became such a nuisance at about every heavy rain, that a very large number of our Hilltop people who have suffered great inconveniences have nearly came to the place where patience ceases to be a virtue. And it does seem that they have a kick coming. It certainly does seem trying when a person saves and plans and constructs for his family a nice home with all modern conveniences, then only to have it damaged and all slopped up by a lot of, either sewer water backing up in his cellar to the depth of several feet, or water overflowing the curbing and running in his cellar or all over his front lawn and in front of his home to such an extent that it takes a boat to get in and out.

There is not a more honest, industrious and law-abiding community of people in Columbus than that which we have on the Hilltop, and we'll venture to say not a better taxpaying people, yet it seems that we must be the most patient bunch, also; but there is no reason why this section should be compelled to await this condition any longer. Every man and woman concerned should become interested in this matter sufficiently to make a stir about it.

This is only one of the many things the association is doing for the Hilltop, and Mr. Lewis in his talk voiced the sentiment that it was the duty of every man on the Hilltop to belong to the association and to be active in it, as it was the only organized body on the Hilltop that could concentrate on matters of public improvement and civic affairs.

The work of the central council of civic associations of which the association is a member was brought out, as another reason why every Hilltop resident should be a member of the Improvement Association.

Every member of the association has been made a committee of one to obtain new members, and every resident of the Hilltop is invited and urged to join and help in the work now going on.

Don't wait to be asked, it's your privilege and your duty to join and any business man on the Hilltop will be delighted to take your application.

Beta Lambda Class of Glenwood S. S. will hold an all-day picnic at Smith's Park on Tuesday, June 24th. Each one is expected to take sandwiches and a covered dish, also knife, fork, plate and cup. Bring the children.

His expert doctors have pronounced him "Made Whole" and humanly speaking may be able to preach ten or fifteen years. Last week he was urged to attend Commencement of Colgate University, Sunday, to fill the pulpit of his first church where he was pastor twelve years, and attend a reception of several hundred, as a token of esteem for work in the past, of leading in the erection of a fine church edifice with manse. Also was requested to preach his first sermon in the Temple in Cincinnati where such an unusual work was done during his twenty six years pastorate. But all these generous invitations were declined and he consented to preach in the smallest Baptist Church in this city. Mrs. Robbins leaves Friday evening for several weeks visit in Binghamton, N. Y. and other cities.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFadon

God's Laws and Health

The ten commandments are as they are because they are best so for us, and God can't change them. They are founded upon principles—laws—that existed long before they were written—before time was. Our physical lives are (if we allow it) governed by these immutable and beneficent laws. We cannot successfully resist them without injury, any more than we can resist the tides or gravitation. Our minds and bodies are entities and responsibilities to be conserved and cherished. In conforming to the laws of Nature—of God—we are not only contributing our mite to the kingdom, but are doing the best possible for ourselves. We cannot do violence to our bodies without suffering the consequences. How inconsistent, then it is to carelessly commit slow suicide and think of our ill health as "God's will."

We have the Divinely ordered, joyous, consistent, helpful, healthful, hopeful, optimistic life—a result of right living—on the one hand, and a grouchy, gouty, pessimistic, out-of-step sort of existence on the other. It is up to the individual to choose—not only once for all, but to decide many times every day, in which way is the greater uplift.

The laws of health are paramount, for without a good foundation of health, our judgments are inevitably biased. He that is in harmony with God's laws is healthy. He that, by his own carelessness is not healthy, is not in harmony with God and Nature, and it is the rankest sacrilege to ascribe the condition to Providence. It is inconceivable that any should expect or desire that God change His laws since they are as they are because it is best so for us. Ill health is a penalty for breaking the law, but it is self-inflicted and not a curse of God.

The greatest auto-causes of ill health are overeating and wrong combinations. The most prolific cause of overeating is too great variety of food in the same meal.

Here is some good advice—origin unknown: Eat less, drink less (except water), worry less, waste less, clothe less, ride less, talk less, scold less, preach less, chew more, breathe more, sleep more, give more, bathe more, walk more, think more, read more, practice more.

Social Affairs

Miss Edna Mae Weatherman, 443 South Ogden Avenue, entertained the members of Philos Missionary Circle of Hoge Memorial Church at her home last week. After business matters were transacted a delightful lunch was served in the dining room, the table being attractively decorated in Japanese style, a shower consisting of a large Japanese parasol and lanterns hung directly over the table upon which covers were laid for six. Following the lunch pictures were shown upon a screen, 20 of them in beautiful colors, depicting incidents in the life of Christ. Miss Hazel Linville, director and organizer of this circle, called upon members of her circle to explain the meaning of each picture. Those present were: Miss Hazel Linville, Miss Gladys Hoffman, Miss Elisabeth Kadel, Miss Margaret Combs, Miss Sarah Watts, Mrs. George B. Weatherman and the hostess, Edna Weatherman.

The Iwanta Embroidery Club met at the home of Mrs. H. L. Galb, 74 South Ogden, June 12th. Those present were Mrs. Ray Fullmer and son Robert, Mrs. Clarence Evans, Mrs. William Borland, Mrs. George Snow, Mrs. Edgar Planck and daughter Jean, Mrs. Carl Speckman, Mrs. Wayne Patten and Mrs. Harry Englehard.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Corcoran of North Harris Avenue entertained in a most delightful manner Monday evening in honor of their little daughter Edna's sixth birthday. The little guests arrived at 6 o'clock to enjoy the festivities of the occasion. The table was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers extending from the chandelier to each place at which dainty pink and white baskets filled with candy were placed. A beautiful birthday cake and flowers completed the table decorations. Games of all sorts were played, including peanut hunts and small prizes were awarded James Tucker, Fanny Koontz and Milton Stevenson. The little guests were then invited to the dining room where ice cream and pink and white cake were served. Those present were Mary Louise Creager, Helen Sliney, Dorothy Shields, Margaret Wilson, Jenny Perry, Caroline Sites, Emily Stevenson, Dorothy Ford, Fanny and Emma Koontz, Geraldine Kegg, Ruth Miller, Eldon Ford, James Tucker, James and Milton Stevenson, Bobby Perry, Bobby Meinhart, Jack Westlake, Arthur, Edna and Winifred Corcoran, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Kegg and Mrs. Forest Wilson. Many beautiful presents were received by the little hostess and all departed wishing Edna many more happy birthdays.

Watch for our opening. Rivoli Theatre Building. G. T. Cooper.

The following list of pupils are those of the Robbins-Greiser School of Music whose names are on the honor roll for attendance from September to June without missing a lesson: William E. Knox, Jr., Delbert Ardle, Ruth Walpole, Jessie and Grace Pinsenschaum, Virginia and Thelma Pressler, Rudolph Schmidt, Effie Fiedler, Lucille Raether, Helen Moorman, Mary Katherine Page, Edith Myers, Dorothy Dye, Neva Lauer, Frances Gemeinhart, Gertrude Corrigan, Robert Woodin, Wesley Fleming.

The marriage of Miss Elsie M. Bender daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bender, 89 South Park avenue, to Mr. Richard Liddil, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Liddil, 579 South Grant avenue will take place Tuesday morning, June 24, at 9 o'clock in St. Aloysius' Church.

Mrs. H. J. Thornton and daughter, Lois, 224 South Richardson avenue, entertained with a miscellaneous shower last week in honor of Miss Anna Menzer whose marriage to Mr. Clarence William Reinhard, will take place June 28 at St. Mary's church.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Elsey daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Elsey, 230 North Terrace street, to Mr. Karle Armbrust, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Armbrust, 307 South Warren avenue. The wedding took place at Circleville in May. The bride was graduated last week from the High School of Commerce. She was a pupil in the school of journalism there and was one of the editors of Commerce Life. Mr. Armbrust is associated with his father in the contracting business. The couple will be at home for the present at 307 South Warren avenue.

Rev. H. Brobst and family of Coldwater, Ohio, are stopping with Mrs. Fred Raether, 141 South Ogden Ave. During their visit Rev. Brobst conducted the Sunday morning services at the St. John's Lutheran Church, and during this week attended the commencement exercises at the Capital University.

OHIO LEGISLATURE

Many have thrown their hat in the ring for the nomination of representative in the lower house, among the number is John Berry, an attorney that has his office at No. 58 Ruggery Bldg., 20 East Gay Street.

Mr. Berry has been in the practice of law in Columbus a great many years, residing on the Hilltop, he has seen the Hilltop grow from corn fields to fine residence property and beautiful streets and the length of time he has lived in Columbus he knows well the needs of Franklin County.

During the late real estate boom he sold considerable real estate on the Hilltop, and was the only broker here that absolutely refused to show or sell real estate on Sunday.

That is what we want in the legislature, men of principle. He has a large practice in the Municipal Court, and knows that some changes in the law are badly needed; he says the costs in that court are entirely too high, although it is supposed to be the poor man's court; our Common Pleas Court is badly congested, it takes about one year from the time of filing a case to have it heard there, you may have a good case now, and in one year from now have no case; the witnesses die or move away, the contingency is too great, cases should be tried as soon as the pleadings are made up. This can be done by increasing the jurisdiction of the Municipal Court to $2000.00, it is only $750.00 now, entirely to slow, it is higher in all the surrounding cities, and electing another Municipal Judge, we can not provide at the court house for another Common Pleas Judge, no room to build on to the court house, the vast volume of cases require a remedy, which can be reached best in the manner suggested, and at the least expense to the taxpayer. He is in strong sympathy with the farmers, having been a farm boy, and believes he should receive more fair and just treatment.

Mr. Berry favors lower taxation and lower rents, he believes that rents are entirely too high, that they are unjust and unfair to the poor man that has a wife and children to support, he says that the United States is the wealthiest country in the world, and being the wealthiest should be the best place for the poor man and his family to live, and by the enactment of proper laws, and enforcing them against the rich and the poor alike, can be.

He says that he stands for everything that is calculated to better the condition of the home and family, and at all times good wages for the laboring man, and believes that laws should be enacted for the masses, and not for the select few. He has never run for office, but has been chairman on numerous occasions of political clubs, and is well up in parliamentary law, and we believe that he would make an exceptionally good representative for the people of Franklin County, to enact the necessary laws and guard their interest, having the principle and ability to fairly and honestly represent them, which we believe he could do.

Use of Columns Gave Charm to Old Houses

Much of the charm of old Colonial homes in the United States and of the plantation mansions of the old South was inherent in the use of the architectural column, an element popular whenever men build beauty as well as strength construction into the structures they erect.

For thousands of years, from far off Egypt, architects and builders have found nothing so utilitarian and beautiful as the column. Most all of the splendid buildings of the ages owe much of their character and beauty to the use of columns as important exterior and interior structural details.

A column fulfills its purpose when it really supports the structural weight above it. It should never be a false ornamental detail, forcing the appearance support to be gained elsewhere. Steel is a material which lends itself particularly well to column construction and is capable of yielding that sharpness of line that a genuinely attractive column ought to possess.

As a general rule it will be found that Roman or Greek Doric goes well with the simpler design of building. Roman Corinthian, Greek Ionic and the more florid variations due to Renaissance influence fit in logically with the more pretentious type of building, interiorly and exteriorly.

Forests Once Covered Whole United States

Before the coming of the white man forest fires were then as now caused by man or by lightning, says the research bureau of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association. The Indians practiced the burning of forests, prairies and swamps in order to encourage the growth of berries, to drive game and also as war measures. The early chronicles of the settlement of the United States contain many instances of the Indians setting destructive fires.

There is some reason to believe that it was recurring forest fires that created the great prairie regions of the middle states, part of the barren lands of Canada and the present extensive "parks" in the Appalachian and Rocky mountain regions. There is geological evidence that the entire United States below certain mountain summits was at one time or other forest land.

Within the last fifty years forest fires have destroyed the forest character of more than 80,000,000 acres of land in the United States. On the whole, forest fires have probably destroyed more timber in that period than has been utilized.

Indians Used Broadway

Weekquaesqueek path is the Indian title which was given to the road through Manhattan island, now known as Broadway, says an anonymous historian, according to the New York World. The long, impossible-sounding name is that of a tribe which once occupied the upper end of the island and it signifies "People-of-the-Birch Bark."

"Long before Hendrick Hudson made his memorable cruise up the river, the Indian pathway which, because of its great width, came later to be known as 'Broadway,' must have been a scene of great activity and used constantly, as an ordinary path without pavement would soon disappear through the action of rain and growth of vegetation. It was so thoroughly beaten down by the tramping of redskins that today, if modern improvements were taken away, the remains of the original path would still be found."

All meeting notices, store items, announcements and social affairs for the Hilltop Record MUST be in this office not later than 12 o'clock Wednesday a. m. to insure publication in that week's issue.

Employing the Magic Crystal With Success

By SELINA E. HIGGINS

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

FOR a whole day Ellida had moved about the house as one in some dreamlike trance.

Ellida was Hetton. She would sit for an hour gazing at seeming nothingness.

Her aunt and guardian, wondered if it was anxiety for her absent lover, Willard Hull, that had brought on this deep abstraction.

It was early that evening when a warm friend of the family dropped in. She was a music teacher and quite an attraction at local social entertainments. She had been out late the evening previous at a soiree that I knew Miss Evans had also attended.

We were close friends with the music teacher, and in my anxiety and perplexity I spoke of the strange mood that had held Elida in a strange thrall.

"My dear Miss Nettleton," spoke my visitor, when I had concluded, "I came purposely to see Elida. You understand me well enough to know that it would not be from any idle curiosity, but from motives of the purest friendly interest. Something happened at the soiree last evening that was inexplicable.

"Something happened?" I repeated, a trifle fearsomely.

"Yes. A young man, his name was given as Dalziell, attended the soiree last evening. He came with the Ritchies, whom I only know incidentally. He is a wonderful conversationalist and a marvel at the piano."

"And he met Elida?" I asked, dreading that something might shadow the love and loyalty of my darling and her fiance.

"Only as he did the others, as a gentleman of great attainments, courteous to everybody. He had just rendered a brilliant musical composition of his own, however, when I saw him lean toward Elida, who sat nearby, and fix his eyes upon her. A light shone in them, I cannot describe."

"You are alarming me," I said tremorously.

"I am sorry, but I must tell you all," replied Miss Evans. "I saw Elida start and a nervous tremor crushed her face. She was like one enrapt, fascinated. Suddenly, but without removing his glance, this Dalziell dashed both hands down upon the keyboard of the piano. There was a strain of wild, unearthly music. A look I cannot describe passed over Elida's face. Near to her was a stand containing a fragile glass receptacle for calling cards. He seized this, dashed it violently to the floor and it shattered in a thousand atoms. Then with a low cry she shrank back shuddering, covered her face with her hands."

"You astonish me!" was all I could gasp out.

"I glanced at young Dalziell," went on Miss Evans. "There was a strange, weird expression on his face. He dashed out into a gallop, noisy Polish mazurka."

I had gone two blocks from the house and was turning into an intersecting street, when I changed to look back. A man was just going up the steps of our home. In a flash I recognized him as answering the description Miss Evans had given me of Dalziell. I hurried back to the house. I paused to take up a small revolver kept for security in the drawer of the hall rack. Then I proceeded to the parlor entrance.

An amazing spectacle met my view. Seated at a little stand, her face pale but placid, her eyes dreamy and glazed, was Elida. Standing before her was the stranger. He held a piece of faceted crystal in one hand. On that Elida's eyes were fixed.

"Who are you? What are you doing here?" I quavered imperiously, and the man turned to face the weapon in my trembling hand.

He was not in the least cowed. He placed a warning finger to his lips, never lowering the crystal.

"For Willard Hull," was his astonishing announcement in low musical tones.

"From Willard Hull?" I cried.

"No—for him. Do not interrupt—it is a critical moment. Speak!" he added, directing the mellow intoning word at the transfixed Elida and fixing his glance piercingly upon her. "The well—is it cast? And which well?"

"No," came in a dreamy, faraway murmur from Elida. "Not a well—but a well."

"Success!" gasped the stranger, and sank into the nearest chair as if exhausted after some superhuman effort.

In a few moments the man arose. He made some movements with his delicate hands toward Elida, whose face removed its usual expression. Then he turned to me.

"Miss Nettleton," he said, "I have heard of you. I am a friend of Willard Hull, who has come to look up the hidden fortune of his dead uncle. He did not find it in any 'well,' as the hint was. I am credited with possessing certain occult powers. Perhaps. At least, my mind filled only with honest motives, working in the pure crystal-clear chemistry of the beautiful young lady, has received a clue—'well,' not 'well.'

It was a well, indeed—we knew it within a week. Uncle Mitch's Alden came back a rich man.

And Dalziell, the strange, mystic genius whom I at last so thanked, we all love now as a loyal, devoted friend.

Appropriated Grandfather's Deserted Home

By JOHN ST. CLAIR

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"ELLIS, there is our home," said Dorothy Milford with conviction, pointing to the old colonial building at the end of the village street.

"I wonder how much it would cost us, Ellis?" whispered Dorothy, clinging to his arm.

Ellis Milford was a hard-working clerk in one of the big insurance offices, and their home had been only a four-room flat in the dusty city. But every Sunday they had gone forth from the metropolis dreaming of just such a place as this.

The house had been untenanted for many years, and it was rumored that the owner resided in England. No, there had never been any effort to rent it. It would be hard to do so, anyway, because nobody wanted an old-fashioned house when you could get a brand new one on the installment plan.

At which information Dorothy's heart beat high with secret joy.

"You see, Ellis, it is my English blood," she explained. "You know grandfather was an Englishman, and though I never saw him, I know I have inherited his taste for just such an old-fashioned home."

Dorothy's grandfather had settled in America and calmly disinherited his son, Dorothy's father. Still, Dorothy always attributed all the English traits in her disposition to this semi-mythical person.

"Dorothy," exclaimed her husband, "let's go inside and have a look around. I saw one of the window shutters was nearly off its hinge, and I believe the window behind it is broken."

It was broken. Ellis climbed through and, standing inside, swung Dorothy into the room. They wandered from room to room. It was true the interior was in poor condition. But still the house was habitable, and a little money invested judiciously would turn it into a very comfortable abode. And, the greatest find of all, in the attic there was old furniture, all sorts of odds and ends which would go far toward the furnishing of the less showy rooms, at least.

"Ellis," said Dorothy, in a tone which even three months of married life had taught him to attend to, "we must have this house."

"You ain't going to live there, are you?" inquired a villager who watched them emerge through the front gate with ill-concealed interest.

"Yes, we have rented this place from the first of next month," Dorothy answered.

"Well, I swan!" exclaimed the yokel.

"Dorothy," said Ellis reproachfully, when they were out of his hearing.

"But, Ellis, I meant it," declared Dorothy, almost crying. "My dear, we are going to have the rooms papered and the windows mended and move in on the first. And when the landlord calls to make trouble for us we'll have the rent ready for him."

Dorothy's words proved prophetic, for on the first day of the month following a motorvan stopped in front of the old house and Dorothy superintended the disgorging of the furniture.

"They'll turn us out," said Ellis, when they were settled at their fireside, gazing admiringly upon the newly-papered walls.

"Not if we have the rent, my dear," said Dorothy.

Summer came on and soon the garden was ablaze with flowers. Ellis could hardly wait for the clock to strike to leave his office. And as the months rolled by and the neighbors took their occupancy of the house as a matter of course, their fears gradually dwindled until—

Until that Sunday morning when the strange man came walking up the middle drive.

The newcomer was an Englishman, but he appeared much less angry than Dorothy and her husband had anticipated. In fact, his first words were decidedly apologetic.

"I'm sorry to trouble you," he said, "and I don't know, of course, what your title will show; but the fact is, there is reason to believe that this property is part of an estate which I have come over from London to handle on behalf of the heirs. It seems to have been forgotten, as the owner did not enumerate it in his will. You have your title-deeds?"

No, Ellis had no title-deeds. In fact, he was so equally embarrassed that he blurted out the history of the acquisition.

"Most extraordinary! Most extraordinary!" said the visitor. "What a tribute to the—er—masterful habits of your great nation your action is. Now, in my country, nobody would ever dream of taking a house he fancied—"

"Perhaps your countrymen aren't so quick with the rent," said Dorothy. "You see, we have four months' all ready for whoever the landlord is."

"My dear young lady, I thought I explained to you that he was dead," replied the other. "He was an eccentric character, old Mr. Samuel Loft—"

"What!" said Dorothy, rising and staring hard at the visitor. "Who's his granddaughter? Quick! Answer me!"

"Ah, there you have me," answered the Englishman. "If we know that we could trace back the ownership—"

"Don't worry," answered Dorothy. "Here she is. Oh, Ellis, this was grandfather's house, after all, and it's mine—I feel it's mine. And, Ellis—we've got four months' rent money in the bank, and all by running to mend!"

The "kitchen cabinet" was a name given to a group of political advisers of President Jackson. They occupied no official positions, but were consulted by the president as private citizens. The principal members of this cabinet were Amos Kendall, William B. Lewis, Isaac Hill, Duff Green and Francis P. Blair. It was the custom of the unofficial advisers, whenever they called upon the president, to go in by the back door to avoid observation—hence the sobriquet of "kitchen cabinet," which is said to have originated anew, the Whigs.—Kansas City Star.

Diamond's Composition

"One of the most simple and beautiful crystals is the diamond. It consists," says Dr. William Bragg, "only of carbon atoms arranged in a very symmetrical way. Every carbon atom has four others spaced round it. The symmetry of the structure is such that the atoms are most difficult to displace, for which reason a diamond can be used as a tool to cut any other substance, because the atoms of the other substance give way before the rigidly set atoms of the diamond. In the diamond can be found the rings of benzene, the fundamental structural unit of all the substances included in one great section of organic chemistry."

But, Surely It Wasn't

The kindergarten had been studying the wind all week—its power, effects, etc—until the subject had been pretty well exhausted.

To stimulate interest, the teacher said, in her most enthusiastic manner: "Children, we were going to Baton Rouge to witness the game yesterday. As the train approached one of the stations something came softly and kissed me on the cheek. What do you think it was?"

A pretty girl in the rear shouted: "I know! It was the conductor, because when he took my ticket, he told me I was a very pretty girl and kissed me, too."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Birthmarks

A birthmark is merely the result of excessive development of fibrous tissue hair, blood vessels, or pigment in a circumscribed area. Surgical treatment is generally prescribed for the removal of birthmarks. Among the methods employed are electrolysis, X-rays and the use of chemical caustics, such as nitric acid or the acid nitrate of mercury. The removal of a birthmark is a delicate operation and should only be performed by a competent physician.

The Mystery of an Old, Old Love Affair

By HAROLD CARTER

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

MISS AMANDA listened stonily to her niece Mary's confession of her engagement to the man she had met on her vacation at Bellmuir. Sympathetically, too, for the two old maiden ladies, Miss Amanda and Miss Dorothy, were devoted to pretty Mary the child of their only brother, whom they had adopted when he lay dying. But when Mary mentioned the name of Ralph Lester an ominous look came over Miss Amanda's face.

"And he says his father knew you when you were a girl, Aunt Amanda," pursued Mary, with all the innocent confidence of twenty years.

Ralph Lester, in the city, received a despairing little note from his fiancee the following day which he could neither understand nor fathom.

The two old ladies realized Mary's sorrow and did their best to cheer her.

From timid Miss Dorothy the girl learned the cause of Miss Amanda's hostility. Miss Amanda had once been engaged to Ralph's father, Robert, who had been dead some years.

And then, one afternoon, a fair, curly-haired young fellow rang the bell at the old house door and Miss Amanda, coming to open it, found herself looking into the face of her youthful sweetheart, Robert.

"You are Mr. Lester," the old woman asked, pressing one hand against her throbbing heart.

"Yes, and you must be Miss Amanda," answered the young man. "My father often used to speak of you."

"My niece is in the garden. You are at liberty to go to see her. You are at liberty to take her away, to marry her. But let me tell you that, from the moment she becomes your wife, she shall never cross our threshold again or—" she hesitated. "I do not want to wrong you in my thoughts, Mr. Lester, but she shall never inherit a penny of my money."

The young man rose. "May I ask why, Miss Amanda?" he inquired.

The memories of old days flushed the old maid's withered cheek. "Because," she answered slowly, "your father was engaged to me. He left me a few weeks before the wedding day."

She started. Mary stood at the door. She had overheard all. She stood looking at Ralph, and he saw on her face that her love had never died. He started toward her.

"Mary, are you going to let the shadow of the past generation prevent our happiness?" he asked.

The girl went softly to her aunt and placed her hands upon her shoulders. "Aunt, are you going to ruin our lives because your own was ruined?" she asked.

The old woman's face was like a mask. "As his father did to me, so shall I do to him," she answered. "You can marry him—but my anger will never be assuaged."

Mary turned away. "You see, Ralph, it is impossible," she answered quietly.

[illegible]

relent, Miss Amanda?" inquired Ralph Lester quietly. The old woman saw how bravely he bore the shock, and the thought of his suffering added fuel to her ancient hatred.

"Yes," she answered. "If Robert Lester sends me a message from the dead, explaining his actions, his cruel behavior to me, then I can forgive."

Through the door came little Dorothy, leaning upon a stick. She was holding a package in her hands. She crossed the floor to where her sister stood and kneeled down at her side.

"Amanda—" she began.

"It is useless to plead for him, Dorothy," answered the old woman. "You know—who should know so well as you, when Robert Lester came to woo you before he courted me?"

"And you took him from me. Was that no wrong, Amanda?" pleaded her sister.

Miss Amanda frowned impatiently. "That is between you and me, Dorothy," she answered. "If I have wronged you in that, you have never borne me hate for it. You do not know the meaning of a ruined life; nor a hot pillow wet with tears for a frustrated love."

Miss Dorothy rose to her feet, and her face was ashen pale. She held out the package toward her sister. Slowly, with trembling fingers, she unfastened the ribbon which bound it, and the scent of faded perfume diffused itself through the room.

"These letters explain all," she said.

Miss Amanda uttered a gasp of fear. There were half a dozen unopened letters, in faded ink, and the handwriting of them, addressed to her, was that of Robert Lester.

"This is why," said Miss Dorothy. "I was jealous of you, Amanda. I hated you with a hatred which was to yours as wine is to water. When Robert's letters came for you I hid them away. And your own letters, which you gave me to mail, I destroyed unopened. Now acquit Robert and turn your anger upon me, Amanda."

The mask had fallen from Miss Amanda's face. Her eyes were wet with tears.

"Let the past bury its dead, sister," she murmured. "I am glad you told me—told me at the last."

And the two old women wept in each other's arms. And Ralph Lester drew Mary's arm through his, and pressed his lips to hers.

Copper in Olden Times

Chemical analyses have revealed that much of the so-called bronze found in ancient ruins or monuments is not bronze at all, but copper of a rather high degree of purity considering the facilities for smelting the metal in those early days.

This is especially the case with such objects found in the oldest Egyptian and Mesopotamian remains. On the other hand the bronze beads from the gates of the palace of Shalmaneser II are really bronze, containing about 9 per cent of tin, says the Detroit News.

Copper, rather than bronze, seems to have been the earliest used metal. Iron was known to the ancient Egyptians but was so rare and costly that it was used in jewelry.

The Scriptures set forth many interesting details concerning the method of Jewish mourning. The next of kin closed the eyes of the deceased; the corpse was bathed and, if a person of any consequence, the body was laid for a time in spices, or was anointed with them, swathed in linen bandages and deposited in a tomb. The mourners went bareheaded and barefooted, covered their mouths and kept silence were black cloth and sat in ashes. Funeral songs were sung by hired singers and splendid sepulchers containing numerous niches were carved out of rock. As a niche was filled, a stone was rolled against the opening.

First Relief Stop

"Too many are bothering the President."

"Absolutely. We agree to stop all that. We must not break down the health of our presidents."

"My friend, I am glad to see you realize the matter is serious."

"Oh, I do. We'll form an organization at once and you and I will call on the President as a notification committee."

Forebodings

"Really, my dear, I wish you would not name the baby Ethelbert."

"Oh, the boys can call him Bert."

"How do you know they will choose that syllable?"

In Indo-China rice is grown under very different conditions from those in America. In Cochin-China there is no irrigation; the rice is planted at the beginning of the rainy season, and all the necessary water is supplied by the rains that fall continuously during the growing period. The use of seeders and drills is impossible, as the ground is entirely covered with water at seeding time. The rice is planted in little patches and then transplanted when a sufficient maturity is attained. In Tonkin and Annam large tracts of land are being prepared for irrigation and modern methods will be adopted.

Of Interest to People on the the Hilltop and Vicinity

Vol. 8. The Hilltop, Columbus, Ohio, June 26, 1924 No. 10

Social Affairs

Several hundred guests were gathered Saturday evening at Glenwood M. E. Church to witness the marriage at 6:30 of Miss Lyda Marie White to Mr. Robert R. Bangham, in which Rev. Charles E. Turley, Oxford, formerly of Columbus, was the officiating clergyman. The bride, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. White, 143 Ogden avenue. She was graduated from the Columbus Normal School and Wilmington College. For the last two years she has been supervisor of music in the Franklin County schools. Mr. Bangham is an alumnus of Ohio State University. Mr. and Mrs. Bangham have gone East on their wedding trip and after July 10 will be at home at 939 Harvard Blvd., Dayton.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Lashley, 90 Belvidere avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Beulah Mae, to Mr. Archie Selby, 2410 Summit street. The wedding is to take place August 2.

A farewell party was given in honor of Agnes Gatten on June 13 at the home of Helen Hammond, 92 Highland Ave. Those present were Helen Keys, Florence Mathews, Dorothy Dye, Betty Cannon, Elizabeth Johnston, Thelma Hamilton, Mary Hann, Virginia Neff and Mildred Morris.

The Elite Embroidery Club held a picnic at Glenwood Park on Saturday, June 21st. The men held a very interesting ball game, but it would hardly be wise to declare the winners. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Spencer and children Alice and Helen, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Street, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Spangler and children Dora and Martha, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Rees, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Spencer and son Bobby, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Jenkins and children Elaine and David, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Spangler, Betty, Bob and Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fisher and Mary Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jordan and Betty and Mildred, Mr. and Mrs. D. U. Creager and Mary Louise, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt and son Kenneth and cousin, Helen Louise Hayes of Athens, O.

Hilda Graber Gillivan will present the following pupils in piano recital at Roth's Music Store, 268 North High Street, Friday, June 27th: Mary Adelaide English, Ruth Hammond, Rita English, Mary Jane Scully, Bernice Gentile, Dorothy Moss, Ruth Graham, Margaret Gunning, Margaret Weiland, Ellen Marie McGonagle, Mary Martin, Mary Isabelle Finneran, Jas. Hayes, George Scully, Charles Weiland, pupils of Helen Graber, violinist, will assist.

Mrs. R. C. Lane of 180 South Burgess Avenue gave a party on the evening of June 24th, the occasion being the ninth birthday of her daughter, Christene Virginia. The table, which was decorated in pink, blue and white, was set on the lawn, under a row of Japanese lanterns. The children enjoyed games and dancing, after which refreshments were served. The guests included: Elizabeth Streets, Dorothy Nicely, Kathryn Coke, Margaret Aschinger, Jane Roller, Margaret Pusker, Pauline Paulin, Betty Anawalt, Betty Mayhugh, Galena Williams, Norma, Helen and Christene Layne, Lynn Dupuis, John Stevens, Robert Wolfe, Clifford Harrison, Jack Mayhugh, Ban Williams. The hostess received many beautiful presents.

Mrs. Anna L. Brehm, 238 S. Richardson Avenue, entertained Mrs. Marie Ruryae, of Portland, Ore., at a six o'clock dinner on June 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell of South Burgess Avenue entertained with a dinner, honoring Mrs. Etta Earl Maher of New York City. Those present were Mrs. Maher, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Earl and daughter Audrey, Miss Alice Mitchell, Mr. Don Mitchell and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Earl and son Robert and daughter Audrey, assisted at the reception celebrating the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. Earl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Earl, 2278 Summit Street, Wednesday, June 18th. About 150 guests were present during the afternoon and evening among whom were the following from the Hilltop: Mrs. Jane Graham, Mr. and Mrs. James Armour, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Riley of South Ogden Avenue, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cochran of Clime Road, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Nunery of Richardson Ave.

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church entertained with a "missionary tea" on Thursday afternoon, June 19th. The devotional service was conducted by Miss Parrett. The members and their guests were very pleasantly entertained with the following program: Mrs. Kirby, a missionary from India (who is at Granville on furlough) came dressed in the native costume of that country and gave very interesting descriptions of the mode of living there; two piano selections were given by Miss Ada Birch; two vocal solos by Herbert Owen of Granville with Mrs. C. H. Nowell at the piano. A group of readings by Mrs. R. E. Shields, also a group of songs by Mrs. Earl V. Murray, accompanied by her sister, Miss Frances Thompson. The president, Mrs. Rudolph L. Heil, concluded the program with a few well chosen remarks and those present were ushered to the dining room where refreshments were served by the committee in charge, Mrs. C. C. Cook, Mrs. W. H. Beckett and Mrs. Daniel Jerman, assisted by Mrs. J. C. Close, Mrs. Herbert G. Deems, Mrs. Lelia Cooley and Miss Ada Birch.

If you want to be cool, drop in at Mrs. Walker's real estate office and get a fan. They are free.

RIVOLI OPENING

The new Rivoli Theater Building at the corner of Broad and Oakley, which is about completed and ready for the public, is one of the prettiest and most modern of its kind in the city. The building, which was completely remodeled, contains three office rooms on the second floor and two store rooms (one of which is now occupied by Mr. Cooper's Brunswick store) in the front on the first floor besides the theater proper. The theater proper is equipped with the latest in opera chairs and has a seating capacity of between 850 and 1000 persons. It has a stage of the Salem Arch style, finished in Masonic blue, and measures 12x26 feet, with a 16x18 beaded screen. A Wurlitzer concert organ with chimes and orchestra combination will furnish the music. A latest model Powers machine will be on the job making the pictures.

The room is richly decorated in panel system throughout, Mr. Schmidt, direct from Bumgardener's, Chicago, and originally from Tiffany's, New York, being the decorator. There are three exits from the theater, also a ladies' and a gents' rest room. The combination heating and ventilating system is so constructed as to give six changes of air per hour, and is the latest method in heating theaters and other public buildings. The lighting system is the work of Mr. J. A. Neth, designer of Cone Lighting Effects.

Mr. Charles A. Carson, member of the firm of Carlson & Bloom Co., is designer and contractor. He reports the job will be finished about three weeks ahead of schedule time.

The managers announce that next Saturday, June 28th, will be their opening night, with Gloria Swanson in "The Humming Bird." See their ad on the second page of this issue.

Friday night is to be "Inspection Night," in which the public is invited to call and be shown through the building.

Cut flowers, potted plants, asters and pinks. 320 Highland Ave. Hilltop 1111-W.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFaden

The medical doctors have carried the banner of medicine so long that the word has become ingrained although its original meaning is lost. An extreme notion is that some drug must be swallowed or there can be no cure.

This false notion made it inevitable that drugless methods of healing would appear and obtain, which teach that disease is not a specific entity, but rather a departure from Nature, a return to which involves natural methods of healing and personal responsibility of the patient.

Evolution is necessarily slow, but elderly people now living have seen some progress in the nearer-to-nature methods of living and treatment and it is common talk that the best medical doctors give the least medicine.

However, if the use of drugs should become entirely eliminated, which is not likely, the term "medicine," with its metamorphosed meaning, would continue, not as a synonym of drugs, but as a term including all schools of healing. As for instance, the osteopathic school of medicine, carrying no idea of the use of drugs.

Conversion of the world to practical belief in any postulate is a hopeless task. The reformer must be satisfied, as was the boy, who argued that if he shot his arrows toward the moon he would come nearer it than if he shot the other way. And as Dr. Tilden, in his book on Food says, "Meat and bread should not be eaten together, but all the world does it; bread and other starch food should not be eaten together, but all the world does it; bread or other starch food should not be eaten with fruits cooked in sugar, but all the world does it; tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol are drugs and are injurious, but all the world uses one or more of them." And so progress can only be made as individuals can be convinced, and they, by doing the best they know, may have a leavening effect upon others. With the whole world at variance, in health as well as in other matters, the only way for the individual to do is to get rational ideas, demonstrate their practicability and exercise will power (and won't power) until new habits are formed and the ideas become thoroughly grounded.

It is a fact that the average span of life is less than 40 years, when it should be nearer 100 years, for, judging by the way other mammals survive, man is entitled to 120 years of life.

The Life Extension Society (25 W. 43d St., N. Y.) is doing a most commendable work by dispensing, on request, wholesome and helpful tracts. One of their recent findings is that 45 per cent of pneumonia is preventable. Likewise 70 per cent of diphtheria, 75 per cent of tuberculosis and 85 per cent of typhoid.

Lives are auto-shortened by habits. If "dissipation is wasted energy" then most people are dissipated. All excesses break down resistance by using up nerve energy. We need our allotment of energy and all of it we can cultivate besides. If by excesses we deliberately waste enegy, our bodies and minds cannot function normally and shortened, inefficient lives are inevitable. When dissipation is mentioned we instinctively think of drug fiends and alcoholics, but there are food fiends as well as drug fiends—and we are all guilty in a greater or less degree.

Some one has wisely said, "Half we eat keeps us alive and the other half kills us off before our time." The healthy person who eats to capacity overeats, and does it at the expense of vital energy necessary to take care of it. It is our perverted and unnatural appetites that lead us astray, and the "other half," unnecessarily eaten, uses up nervous energy which represents the difference between success and failure and between a shortened life and the years we are entitled to.

Sewer Relief Organization

About 40 men of the John Burroughs school community met at the Burgess Ave. U. B. Church on Tuesday evening and organized the Hilltop Sewer Improvement Association. The purpose is to push the improvement of the sewer conditions in that locality. Councilman Lewis was present and spoke on the sewer affairs; others spoke. Officers were elected. Another meeting will be held at John Burroughs School next Monday night at 8 o'clock. Everybody interested is invited. Preparations will be made at this meeting to attend the council meeting on July 7th in a body. Mr. Bigham was made chairman of a committee to co-operate with the Hilltop Improvement Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Caranham, 2033 West Broad Street, will sail on the steamer Majestic on June 28th from New York to Havre, France, on an escorted tour furnished by John Grossman of North High St., Columbus, to France, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, England, and Scotland Will visit battle fields at France and Belgium and return home from Glasgow on S. S. Mountaiaurer to Montreal, Canada, about Sept. 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Hilliard arrived home, 215 North Park Avenue, Friday from a trip through the South. Mrs. Hilliard and son were gone two months visiting Mrs. Hilliard's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Williamson, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and motoring through Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia. Mr. Hilliards met them two weeks ago in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., motored to Muscles Shoals to see the Wilson dam, back to Nashville, Tenn., where they took the train for Ohio. Miss Ferne Williamson came home with them for an indefinite length of time.

Hilltop Deaths

June Arlene Barry, 3 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barry, 31 Belvidere avenue died Sunday night at the home. Death was due to brain trouble. Funeral was Tuesday at the residence. Burial in Union Cemetery by C. J. Kohn. She leaves her parents and one brother Elden.

Marion Matthews, 57, father of Marion Matthews Jr., 88 S. Park avenue, died Wednesday, June 18th. Death was due to apoplexy. He was a machinist. Funeral was Friday at C. J. Kohn's mortuary, 2456 W. Broad St. Burial in Green Lawn Cemetery. He leaves his son and two sisters.

A burning ironing board called the fire department to 366 Midland avenue last Friday evening. No other damage is reported as having occurred. About the same time while No. 16 and 17 departments were at this call, same one turned in another alarm for S. Oakley avenue, where the burning of a fiery dress was in progress. No. 6 Engine house responded.

A broken trolley wire fell across the automobile driven by Mr. Harry Foll, last Tuesday, at Broad and Oakley and so wound itself across and around the front of his machine so quickly that Mr. Foll had a narrow escape from the machine, and probably electrocution. The street cars were delayed nearly an hour. At the same time another break took place near Highland and Broad.

Mrs. H. O. Biddle, 135 S. Warren avenue, and daughter, Lois, have gone to Buckeye Lake to spend the summer at Biddle cottage. Mr. Biddle will join them later.

A very important meeting. Mrs. Mary Simeral, Mrs. Cinderella Smith, Mrs. F. P. Sperry, Mrs. A. L. Wagner and Mrs. Edward Winget are assisting hostesses.

The Home Builders' Class of Linden M. E. Church met at the home of Mrs. Hanawalt, 126 Eldon Avenue, on Monday evening, June 23rd. Twenty-five members were present. Program of stories and music was followed by light refreshments. The evening was voted a very delightful one.

The Glenwood Women's Foreign Missionary Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Gould, 114 Whitethorne Avenue on Wednesday, July 2nd, at 2 P. M. Study the Mystery Box in June Friend. Large attendance is desired.

The Beta Lambda Class of Glenwood Sunday School held a picnic at Smith's Park, North 4th St. Fried chicken and every thing good imaginable was spread on the tables under the large shade trees. After dinner games were indulged in, one of which was an auto race, which created much laughter. Wading in the clean, cool run was one feature much enjoyed by those who took part, the children especially. To those who were not there, they surely missed a good time.

Rev. Jasper Dean is recovering nicely from a very serious operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. S. A. Welling of South Eureka Avenue is in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

The friends of Mrs. Edward McFarland, who was operated on Tuesday at Grant Hospital, will be glad to know she is improving nicely.

Would Let All Have a Chance to Make Good

By MILDRED C. GOODRIDGE

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

DAVID ROSS had received a heavy blow financially and to his affections as well. He was an odd, silent old fellow, but when an impulse swayed him he carried it to the full limit.

Thus he had done with the sum of an old-time friend now dead—Vance Peters. Mr. Ross had formerly operated a little shop in Virden, given to the manufacture of hardware specialties. He took a fancy to young Peters and retired from the business in his favor. He still retained ownership of the business, but gave Peters full sway, asking only a monthly statement of the business.

One night the shop burned down and Vance Peters disappeared. Within twenty-four hours it was known that he had been embezzling money.

The day after the fire Mr. Ross sat at home gloomily immersed in thought. His adopted daughter, Elsa, watched his mood pityingly.

"Father," she spoke finally, "do not let this trouble distress you."

"If I had followed your advice I should have been better off," was the frank reply. "You never liked Vance, you believed that he was deceiving me, and you were right. For one thing I am sincerely thankful. That is that I did not urge the wish of my heart, that you and Vance should make a match of it.

"I find that Vance had little or no system in the business," Mr. Ross told Elsa. "He had a bookkeeper, and under manager and a traveling man. They were all here this morning to learn what the prospects were of the plant starting up again."

"Why, are you thinking of that, father?" asked Elsa in some surprise.

Rogers, the bookkeeper, turned out to be quite an exquisite. He lay around smoking and reading in a comfortable hammock most of the time, but was always on hand for his meals.

The old assistant manager, Mahon, devoted most of his time to hanging around the village billiard hall. Both borrowed money from Mr. Ross, who catered to their necessities and studied them.

Young Bert Delancy was restless and out of sorts the first day he arrived.

"See here, Mr. Ross," he said in his independent off-handed way, "you're a generous-hearted old man, but I'm no sponge. I don't see why three husky fellows like us should be dependent on you."

"Don't you want to resume your old position when we start up business again?" inquired Mr. Ross.

"Surely, but I'm not born to be idle."

"All right; I'll make a new bargain with all three of you fellows. There's a big garden to take care of, there's wood to saw and all kinds of odd jobs about the place. Put in your time about them and I'll pay a fair price for the service."

Rogers regarded his well-manicured hands and the rough garden tools, shrugged his shoulders and betook himself to his hammock.

Mahon tried clearing some brush, got a few thorns in his fingers and hied him to cue and ivories for solace.

Bert pitched in forthwith. He mended the broken fences. He made the straggly garden look as if an expert had gone over it. One morning Mr. Ross came out to find him with saw and buck tackling a four-cord pile of stove wood.

The old man's eyes twinkled secretly. That evening when work was suspended, he stole out to the woodpile and put a little clinking bag way under the last log of the heap.

Bert rather liked the task. The wood was just behind the kitchen where the fairy-like form of pretty winsome Elsa constantly flitted. Several times she brought the worker a glass of cool lemonade and then they had an enjoyable chat together.

"See here, Mr. Ross," said Bert, two days later, "that wood is all sawed and I found this little bag under the last log."

"Oho! you did?" chuckled the old man. "What's in it, now?"

"A dozen gold half eagles."

"That so?" chirped the old man. "I reckon the fairies have rewarded you for your industry. See here, Mr. Delancy, I put them there and you're going to keep them."

"I don't like overpay—" began Bert.

"There's better than that coming," announced Mr. Ross. "I've been studying you, and that ladylike bookkeeper, and that shiftless assistant manager. You can have the position if you want it."

Bert did not reply. His face grew so serious and thoughtful that Mr. Ross stared at him in wonder.

"Why!" he exclaimed, "you don't mean to say you turn down that kind of a chance of a lifetime, do you?"

"It depends," said Bert deliberately.

"On what?"

"No—on whom," corrected Bert. "I'm a plain, blunt fellow, Mr. Ross. I'm half in love with Miss Elsa. I'll be wholly in love with her if I stay here. That might not suit you—"

"Does it suit her?" challenged Mr. Ross.

"I think so, I hope so," answered Bert.

"Then go and settle it with her and decide on my offer."

And an hour later Bert had accepted the position, for Miss had accepted him.

Colette Was His Actress Sweetheart

By ANTHONY REIMERT

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"MY GOD, Parrish!" Sergeant Smith stared at the constable who had entered the office. "Jameson's mother? Mother?"

"That's so, sergeant. Came from Ontario to see her son."

"What's she like, Parrish?"

"One of those dear old ladies you read about."

"And him waiting to go down under escort to be hanged," muttered the sergeant. "Parrish," he said, suddenly, "that woman hasn't come two thousand miles to learn that. Listen!"

Jameson, in his cell, sat with his head in his hands. He had shot the storekeeper in a fit of frenzied jealousy over Colette, the little actress who had somehow drifted north, a derelict. Since then his fate had been inevitable. He had been tried and found guilty. Colette's frenzied pleas had not saved him. The girl had been sent south, and in a week's time Jameson must start on his own grim journey unless—

The cell door opened. Sergeant Smith stood there. "Jameson, your mother's here from Ontario."

"God!" The constable sprang to his feet.

"She doesn't know. And we're not going to let her know. We're giving out you've got to start north on patrol this evening. Till then you're a free man, so long as you don't stray from the post. I'm trusting you, Jameson. Keep up the bluff. You'll pretend to start tonight under charge of Smith—and we'll hustle her out on the boat tomorrow. Savvy?"

Jameson nodded like a man in a daze. The sergeant removed his shackles. He went out. In the office the little, gray-haired old woman was waiting. With a cry she fell upon his neck. The sergeant turned his head away.

"Guess he can't beat it," he told Parrish, "but keep an eye on him."

All that afternoon the old woman and the constable strolled about the fort. Sometimes they were out of sight for a few minutes, but it was clear Jameson had no intention of trying to make a get-away.

"I'm so proud and happy to see my son doing so well," the old woman told the sergeant gratefully.

"It's a pity he's got to start on patrol tonight," said Smith, "but that's orders from district headquarters."

"My son must do his duty," she answered proudly. "I'd be the last one to try to prevent him."

They had given the old lady the visiting inspector's empty room. The two sat there most of the afternoon. Toward dusk Parrish saw the old lady cross the parade ground toward the store.

"Guess she's going to buy him something," he meditated. He took the precaution to look in at the window of the inspector's room, however. Jameson was crouching there, his head in his hands, sobbing.

"Poor devil!" thought Parrish.

Smith came out of the office. "Time to start that fake patrol," he told him. "Hustle him a mile out of camp, come back round the cut-off and lock him into the cell again."

Parrish nodded. "Old woman's at the store," he said.

"Wait till she gets back. Then it's good-by." He crossed to the inspector's room. Just then the new storekeeper came hurrying up.

"Say—you know about old Mrs. Jameson?" he asked.

"Eh? What d' you mean?"

"No business of mine," grumbled the dull-witted man. "Only she went down the road and I heard a horse going like h—l for leather a few minutes ago in the direction of the brush, too."

"Wha-at?" The sergeant and the constable burst into the inspector's room. Jameson was still sitting there, his back toward them, his face hidden in his hands.

"Jameson!"

As the constable did not look around the sergeant advanced and shook him by the shoulders. Slowly Jameson turned his head.

They stared with stupefaction. They yelled with fury:

"You!"

Colette, the little actress, smiled. "You'll have hard work catching Jim in the dark," she smiled. "That's a good horse I brought him."

Appreciated Effort

A pastor was called to a former charge to officiate at a burial. He arrived in town in time to chat with old friends, but soon saw a funeral party coming. He hastened to the cemetery and informed the undertaker he was to officiate. He performed his duties with usual solemnity.

As he was leaving the cemetery he saw another funeral procession approaching, and it dawned on him that he had participated in the wrong service.

The next day the undertaking, who had been in charge of the first funeral received a letter from the surviving relatives, thanking him for his thoughtfulness in having the pastor at the grave who spoke such words of comfort to them.—Indianapolis Star.

A HOME for your children to grow up in

EVER since the first baby came you have been talking about building a real home some day. One thing and another has kept you from starting. You will never find a better time than right now. If you will figure up the amount of money you have paid out in rent you will see how much better off you would be today if you had been putting it into a home.

A home is not a speculation. It is an investment in happiness. It is a duty to have one. You can build the kind of home you and your family need.

This is the home-building year all over the country. Consult your dealer about it. He knows building materials and building conditions. His advice will be unselfish, for he wants to give you the kind of service that will make you a business friend of his.

Skulls as Scarecrows

The word "scarecrow" usually conjures up the vision of tattered clothing on a rude framework, standing in the middle of a field, but for stranger bird scarers have sometimes been used, says London Tit-Bits.

For example one Ceylonese cultivator guards his vegetables from bird pests by displaying two skulls on poles. One is that of a woman and the other of a buffalo.

One of the cleverest scarecrows ever used was made by a Belgian farmer. He set up a number of poles in the corn fields and conducted a wire from one to the other. A bell was hung from the top of each pole and connected with the wire. The end of the wire was then fastened to a small water-wheel, and as this went round the bells tinkled, frightening all birds away.

Clytemnestra's Humor

Sophocles makes Electra describe Clytemnestra as "laughing triumphantly" over the murder of Agamemnon; but Electra was a prejudiced witness. Killing an undesired husband is no laughing matter, though triumph over its accomplishment—when failure means death—is a legitimate emotion. Clytemnestra was a singularly august and composed sinner. Not from her did Orestes and Electra inherit their nervous systems; and not on their testimony should we credit her with an excess of humor alike ill-timed and unbecoming.—Agnes Repplier in the Yale Review.

Big Meeting of Sewer Relief Association

A large enthusiastic meeting of 300 residents of the southwest portion of the city was held in the John Burroughs School at Sullivant and Burgess Ave., June 30th. The ladies were there with additional complaints and a definite plan was decided upon as to what the West Siders expect to present to council next Monday. The city engineer is to be there with his definite plan which he promised these residents he would have in thirty days and the time is up Monday, July 7th.

The meeting opened with the regular elected officers in charge and an executive committee was empowered by all present to be the spokesmen for the body next Monday. Several suggestions were made relative to the best plans that could economically be offered and the final plan that the West Siders believe feasible will be offered to council next Monday.

As the two sewer systems are correlated the West Siders are enthusiastic over the plans worked out by the county engineer, Mr. Bradbury, and see no reason why the city should not heartily co-operate with the county office to complete the plans for this big sanitary sewer. It is proposed to run north from the disposal plant and then in a west direction past the Burroughs School and is supposed to relieve the small inadequate Sullivant Avenue mains. The West Siders are demanding though immediate storm sewer relief as thousands have been lost from flooded streets and basements. The water getting so high that it flows in the basement windows. The audience was asked for estimated damages incurred and it ranged from destroyed incubators with chicks in them to washboards and up to furnaces. Some wise crack suggested to the lady that lost the incubator chicks that she try ducks next time.

A large contribution was freely offered and the organization is standing firm for results and they will be there next Monday at 7:30 before council with their fighting togs on. Come, whether a member or not.

WHAT THE RECORD STANDS FOR

Heretofore the Record has not taken as active a part in the affairs of the Hilltop as some think it should. That is only because we have relied entirely on those who are interested in this community to bespeak its good qualities by word of mouth and whenever the spirit moved them through our columns.

From now on, we urge our readers to give serious thought to the matter of what they owe to the Hilltop, and to use these columns to spread abroad the good points of the Hilltop, and to help us in a program of progress that will make the Hilltop an even better place to live than it now is.

We therefore go on record as to three things that are just as essential to progress on our part as the daily conduct of our fellows is on theirs:

First—Our principles are the square deal to everyone.

Second—Our policy is to say nothing but that which will inure to the other fellow's benefit, to be considerate of his feelings and his rights, and to at all times invite his criticism of our statements and acts.

Third—Our program is to pull for all the good things the Hilltop needs and should have until they get them. This includes better sewerage for the whole Hilltop, more and better parks, and a system of children's play grounds. In this latter we hope to see the boy and girl scouts function as they do in the other Ohio cities of good size, where they act as monitors to prevent profanity, and to promote the square deal among children in their play. We would like to see the day that the children of the Hilltop have a regular system of playground control, where the boys and girls elect their own umpires and monitors and the umpires attend a school for their proficiency in the work of deciding fairly and correctly, for we want to see the youth of this community become self-reliant, and self-governing in their play activities that they may become the real men and women of the future.

Lastly, we want all sections of the Hilltop to fully understand that we are for every inch of the Hilltop wherever it may be, and we want to see every home on the Hilltop represented in the Hilltop Improvement Association that we may all pull together for the common good in an organized effort to make every home on the Hilltop a livable place of the very happiest type.

Eileene May Rhoads, age 2½ years, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Rhoads, who lived at 172 Whitethorne Avenue four years ago, was killed in the wrecking of their home during the tornado at Lorain last Saturday evening. Six persons were in the house at the time, it is said, but she was the only one killed, the body being found beneath the brick and timbers. The body was sent here to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Rhoads, 2233 West Broad Street, for funeral services which took place Wednesday. Burial was in Reynoldsburg.

Some time Saturday night, presumably between the hours of 7:00 and Sunday morning, some unknown person or persons, broke into the office of the Eureka Ave. Lumber Co. thru the window and proceeded to burglarize the safe and contents in a rather expert manner. The discovery was made about 4:00 o'clock Sunday evening, but the sheriff's office was very prompt in responding to the call, and are now working on some clues that seem promising of results. The loss in cash was small, as they only carry an amount sufficient with which to make change, and checks amounting to $100.00 are missing.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFaden

SHALLOW BREATHING

Nature is wonderfully kind to us. She not only provides a breathing machine at birth, but she works it for us 24 hours every day as long as we live, to the extent of, perhaps one-tenth capacity,—enough to sustain life. The remaining nine talents are ours to improve or not as we will. And we have no other talent which will yield a larger return for cutivation than our respiration plant. The business of our lungs is to admit and receive the oxygen from the air we breathe and expel the accumulated poison, which they store temporarily. We need only to think of the purity of the air we inhale and the impurity of every exhalation to realize the great amount of oxygen taken in and of poison expelled in 24 hours. The one is life and the other is death and the difference to date represents our vitality.

Exercise increases our strength and capacity only as it increases these two functions—the intake of oxygen (life) and the outgo of poison (death). We may exercise for this purpose, or for other purposes, and get the benefit just the same. The daily routine which requires the most exercise is the one best for health provided the air breathed be pure. But what shall the people do whose business does not require exercise? Must they go to a gymnasium? That might be best, but there are other simple ways of getting oxygen. And they can be practiced while about one's business, while riding or walking—any time.

This one is very simple:

Note your rate of breathing. Double the length of each breath. Keep it up, breathing thru the nostrils. Thus, you are taking in more oxygen, expelling more poison, and using more of your lung capacity than by shallow breathing.

Until a habit is formed there will be lapses back into the old rate of shorter breaths, but repetitions and persistence will bring results. Or, if walking, with neck back against the collar and mouth closed, inhale while taking 4 (or 6) steps and exhale during 4 (or 6) steps. Persistence here will soon make it as automatic as is the walking.

I have given these before in these columns and you may have done them, but you most likely have forgotten them and are not doing them now. The only way is to make a habit of it, and that may be accomplished incidentally. On the cars is a good place.

It might be well to keep in mind that this exchange of oxygen for poison in the lungs is the great act in building up good blood. Better blood means better and more abundant life. We may be thinking of the food we eat as the life, but we get as much (if we will) from the air as from our food, and oxygen is necessary to the digestion of food.

Food costs money and we are prodigal with it. Guided by our perverted appetites and tastes we eat too much, and thereby vitiate our blood. Oxygen costs nothing and we dress and build houses against it. We breathe too little and often of bad air, and thereby vitiate our blood. Eat less and breathe more. Double the length of your breaths now, and keep it up. Do it before you sleep and when you (and your nerves) get the habit the longer breaths will continue while you sleep.

On account of illness, Mr. J. W. Dinsmore resigned as treasurer of the Hilltop Chautauqua Association. Mr. A. F. Elliott was elected in his stead.

Please be present, if possible. If not, have in the hands of the committee option mailed you several days ago. O. H. Craft, President.

Chautauqua Coming Soon

E. B. Buller, first advance representative for the Redpath chautauqua, is in Columbus Hilltop distributing advertising and discussing chautauqua plans with the local committee. He gave an interesting report on the seven-day program which is to be offered July 27 to August 2, inclusive. The usual quota of tickets was left for those patrons who have learned the wisdom of attending chautauqua via the season ticket route.

It is doubtful if there has ever been a year when chautauqua offered as many real headline events as in 1924. Included in the local program are two plays, "Give and Take" and "The Meanest Man in the World"; the Hollybrooke Harpists in "Melody Land"; Elsie Baker, noted contralto and Victor artist; Vierra's Hawaiians; Miss Evelyn Hansen, with a dress lecture-demonstration; the DiGiorgia Orchestra and E. R. Root, with his 10,000 bees.

This season's lecturers include Hon. Thomas B. McGregor, former attorney general of Kentucky; Waldo E. Stephens, recently returned from a world tour with Sherwood Eddy; Dr. Thomas E. Green of Washington, D. C.; Judge George L. Alden of Boston; Hon. William E. Wenner of the Ohio Senate; Miss Evelyn Hansen, "Well Dressed on a Moderate Income," and E. R. Root, on "Bee Behavior."

There will be some special features for the boys and girls, one being a program of magic, music and rag pictures by the Duval Brothers of Chicago. The daily stories and games will be accompanied by special cut-out work with flowers, birds and animals.

Miss Bernola Woodyard won the story telling contest of the Methodist Episcopal Churches of the Columbus district, held last Sunday evening, at St. Clair Avenue M. E. Church. The Women's Foreign Missionary Society each year holds a series of story telling contests, the purpose of which is to stimulate interest in missions. The first contest is held in the local churches. In the Columbus district the churches are divided into three groups, the winner of the local church contest competes with other church representatives for the Group Championship following which the winners of the group compete for the district championship. Miss Woodyard will represent Columbus district in the Ohio Conference contest which will be held at the Lancaster Camp Grounds in the month of August. The winner of this contest will compete for final honors in the general contest held in October.

Hilltop Deaths

Wednesday evening, June 25, Miss Effie K Merwine, of 72 North Park avenue, died in Grant hospital, following an operation for goiter. ### "TAILS" OF TWO FISH

Or WHY FISH LEAVE HOME

By Top O'Hill

Doc. Fox, the dentist, and Sulsburger (Fred),
Returned from catching "big fish," so they said;
A couple of "nice ones" they'd left at Fred's store
Were put in a pail outside the back door.

When ready to "pluck 'em" to eat the next day,
They found that the fishes had flitted away.
From each business neighbor they sought for a "hunch,"
But no conciliation— 'twas an innocent (?) bunch.

Doc. Turner adjusted his "specs" on his eyes,
And tried to look innocent, pious and wise.
While someone suggested, "perhaps it might be
That Doc. Turner's dog chased the fish up a tree."

Draper, and Holder seemed "awfully concerned"
At the fate of the fish—the news they'd just learned (?)
"'Tis sad," said they, "to think such a plight
Of kidnaping poor little fishes at night."

Ed. Dolby, another "poor innocent bird,"
Of the fate of the fish had "only just heard" (?).
While Kingery, who runs the A. & P. Store,
Was like Draper and Dolby—only "innocent (?) more."

'Twas likewise suggested—"sometime in the night
The two fishes might have got into a fight,
And flopped from the bucket out into the yard.
And fought till they had each other devoured."

So to help find these fishes we publish this verse
'E'en though the truth might come to the worse.
But if you should find those fish "dubbing 'round"
Call Fred and Doc. to send their fish hound."

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dinsmore, 89 South Burgess Avenue, left by motor for Winona Lake, Ind., where they will spend the greater part of the summer.

HILLTOP DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

The Daily Vacation Bible School will open next Monday morning, July 7th, at 8:45 A. M. and will cover a period of five weeks, closing Friday, August 8th. Classes will be conducted every morning from 8:45 to 11:30. Afternoons are to be devoted to recreational features as the teachers may see fit, such as baseball games, swimming, hiking, motion pictures, picnics, etc.

We have a splendid corps of teachers this year. May we not take this opportunity and introduce them to you? Miss Helen Lenhart, a student of Ohio Wesleyan University and an ardent Sunday School worker, is to be our principal. Miss Cleo Kramer with Miss Helen Cunningham will be in charge of the Kindergarten. Miss Ardeth Roberts and Miss Edna Keefer are to work with the Primary children. Miss Mary Porter and Miss Lenhart will have the Junior boys and girls, assisted by Mr. Fred Ault.

A log book will be made by the children as they take their "Trip Around the World," visiting our mission lands. They will study the schools, religions, mode of travel, dress, customs, etc., of the people of China, Japan, India, Persia, Africa, South America and Mexico. As they take this trip the boys will make the necessary autos, kites, air planes and toys in their manual training class, and the girls will make the costumes representing each country that they visit in their sewing classes. A busy time with lots of fun.

We are trusting that parents will see that their children do not miss this splendid opportunity. Children from four years to fourteen may attend this school free of charge.

Campaign Paper Made No Money for Greeley

In 1840, when Gen. William Henry Harrison was nominated for the presidency against Martin Van Buren, Horace Greeley started a little campaign paper in New York city, which he called the Log Cabin, which is said to have been incomparably the most spirited thing of the kind ever printed in the United States, says the Detroit News. It had a circulation of unprecedented extent, beginning with 48,000 and rising week after week until it reached 90,000.

The price, however, was so low that its great sale proved rather an embarrassment than a benefit to the proprietors and when the campaign ended the firm of Horace Greeley & Co. was rather more in debt than it was when the first number of the Log Cabin was published. The last number of the Log Cabin announced the forthcoming Tribune, price 1 cent, which was a short time ago consolidated with the New York Herald.

Five thousand copies of the first number of the Tribune were printed, and Greeley found it difficult to give them away. He began with a subscription list of 600. But the little paper soon caught public attention and began its fourth week with 6,000 paid subscribers.

Courts Hold Tomato to Be a Vegetable

Technically, the tomato is classed by botanists as a berry. In the strictly scientific sense a berry is a simple fruit in which the entire pericarp or edible portion is fleshy except the outer skin. According to this classification, tomatoes, grapes, currants and bananas are all berries. All berries are fruits; that is, the berry is only a species of the larger division of plants called fruits. But popularly there is much confusion as to whether tomatoes should be called vegetables or fruits. The fact is there is no well-drawn distinction between fruits and vegetables in the popular sense of the terms. However, courts in this country have held that all those plants, like potatoes, cabbage, carrots, peas, celery, lettuce and tomatoes, which are eaten, whether cooked or raw, during the principal part of a meal are to be regarded as vegetables, while those used only for dessert are fruits. But this comes a long way from the difficulty.

St. Peter's Chair

Since the Eighth century, the festival of St. Peter's chair has been celebrated annually at St. Peter's at Rome, with great pomp solemnity. The chair, old, ugly and worn, on which St. Peter is said to have been pontificated, is enshrined by a magnificent throne, supported by four gigantic figures, and mounted upon a tribune decorated by Michelangelo. The throne stands in the great nave, behind the altar of St. Peter's. The Venetians once claimed to possess the Chair of St. Peter, but it was discovered about a century ago that this supposedly sacred article bore the inscription: "There is but one God and Mahomet is His Prophet." It is supposed that this chair was brought from the East by the Crusaders.

If you don't get one of our bills this week, call us and we will send you one. Haenis Grocery and Meat Market.

Forced to Do Public Penance for Slander

Public penance was the punishment meted out to slanderers as recently as the Nineteenth century. In 1822 thousands of persons assembled in Bethnal Green church, London, and the adjoining thoroughfares, attracted thither by the announcement that a young married woman, named Sarah Green, had been ordered by the surrogate of the ecclesiastical church to do penance in the church for having called her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ann Johnson, an opprobrious name. The order said she was to stand in a white sheet, but this was dispensed with, much, it is said, to the disappointment of the spectators. Mrs. Green, who is described as being "a very fine young woman," was attired in a white dress, and repeated the following recantation in the vestry in the presence of the rector, church wardens, the person solemnisted, and five or six of her relations:

"I, Sarah Green, wife of James Green, have uttered and spoken several scandalous and opprobrious words against Ann Johnson, wife of William Johnson of St. Matthew, Bethnal Green, to the great offense of Almighty God, the scandal of the Christian religion, and the injury and reproach of my neighbor's credit, by calling her '——' I do, therefore, before God and you, humbly confess and acknowledge such offense, and am heartily sorry for the same, and do ask her forgiveness, and promise hereafter never to offend her in the like manner, God assisting me."

Mrs. Green appeared very much affected; and after the form was gone through was led out of the church by the beadles, who conducted her safely through the mob, and she was conveyed home in a coach.

Diversity in Retail Trade Is Spreading

"John," said the affectionate wife, "before you come home tonight will you stop at the drug store and get me one of those electric flatirons they advertise for $3.98 and a pound of tea?"

"Yes," said the loving husband, "and when I go out to get my luncheon in the cigar store I'll buy you a nice box of candy."

At how many kinds of store can you buy a safety razor? asks the Nation's Business. Hardware stores, drug stores, cigar stores, stores that deal in men's clothing, department stores, sporting-goods stores, occasionally in stores that began by selling candy and later carried tobacco. They can be bought from mail-order houses and direct by mail, and there may be others.

These instances could be multiplied indefinitely to show the increase in diversification that has come over retailing in the last few years in this country.

Made Sick of Liquor

One of the most original ways of curing the habitual drunkard is that practiced in the "inebriates' homes" of Norway. And, according to report, it is one of the most effectual.

When brought to the "home" the "case" is allowed nothing but wine to drink. Not only this, but all food supplied to inmates is flavored with, or dipped in, wine.

For a day or two there are "no complaints." But gradually the wine and wine-flavored food begin to pall, until presently even the most thorough-going drunkard begins to wonder what virtues the grape can possibly possess. So quickly does the treatment work, indeed, it is claimed even the worst cases can be cured.

Disciplined by Their New Schoolmaster

By J. B. AYRES

(©, 1914, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE farmer looked at the slim, bespectacled young man in front of him and gave a contemptuous grunt.

"So you're the new schoolmaster of Four Corners!" he said. "Yes, I guess I can board you. I boarded the last three schoolmasters. My terms is twenty dollars a month, payable in advance."

"Why in advance?" inquired Mr. Pendleton quietly.

"Because you won't last a month," answered Silas Prettyman. "None of 'em does."

In spite of his anticipations, Mr. Pendleton's heart sank as he took his place at the desk.

The school consisted of boys and girls of all ages, from Jim Smith, a husky youth of some twenty years, who was still struggling over the mysteries of long division, and Miss Susie Connor, a farmer's daughter, who attended principally to be a sort of matron to the little ones, down to the staid little ones of seven and eight years.

It was after school on that day that Smith came insolently up to Pendleton.

"Say, you've the one-lunger, ain't you?" he asked. "We don't want to be hard on a feller what's only got one lung. So I'm going to make things easy for you, if you act right. Understand?"

Before Pendleton had recovered from his surprise, Smith had slouched away, leaving the young man gasping at his pupil's audacity.

"No corp'ral punishment," was the slogan in Four Corners, which prided itself on being an enlightened community. But, even if such a method of discipline had been permitted, how would it have been enforced?

The question was prompted by the pandemonium that followed upon Mr. Pendleton's resolute rejection of Jim Smith's proposition.

Smith lounged insolently in his seat; Smith talked with his neighbors and contemptuously refused to recite his lessons.

"I told yer what it would be if you didn't do as I said," he explained to Mr. Pendleton, when the schoolmaster remonstrated with him privately. "Get out of the school? Say, yer crazy. What'd I get out for when I'm having the time of my life here?"

There was one thing that kept the schoolmaster to his work. That was Susie Connor. A strong attachment had begun to dawn between the young man and the pretty country lass.

"If I were you, Horace," she said one day—they had begun unconsciously to call each other by their first names—"I would try to make a real school here."

On the next day Smith cast aside all pretense at discipline. His remarks—made in class—were brief and pointed.

"You're sweet on her," he said, indicating the girl, whose face was mantled with red. "She's my gal, Mr. Schoolmaster—understand? And I won't have any miserable, measly interloper coming here fooling round Susie."

Mr. Pendleton had been aware that Smith had a calf-like attachment for the girl, but it had never occurred to him to take him seriously.

He looked up hopelessly, and he saw a strange look in Susie's eyes. He could not help interpreting it aright. It said: "Are you man enough to prevent my being insulted and to stand up for me?"

"Mean that, Smith?" asked Mr. Pendleton, leaving his desk and crossing the floor.

Smith leaped at him with a bellow. "Ah, sure!" he mimicked. "You've had your day, Mr. Schoolmaster, and now you can git, because this school won't open any more so long as you're in this town, you snivelling hound."

"Smith," said Horace Pendleton, "you are a bad boy and you have the makings of a bad man in you. Do you see that switch in the corner? Go and bring it to me."

The lout stared at him incredulously; then, with swinging arms, he rushed at him. Next moment, he found himself lying on the floor.

The schoolmaster yanked him from the floor and grasped him with one hand by the collar. And Smith crept to the corner—then, with a wild yell threatening vengeance, he had burst out of the door and was running in the direction of his home.

"This will mean good-by, Susie," said the young schoolmaster, after the wide-eyed, respectful class had been dismissed.

But when he reached his home Miss Prettyman was waiting for him with a hearty handclasp.

"I wouldn't ha' believed it of you," he exclaimed. "Why, we all over the town and everybody's saying as how we can begin to have a real school. You—little—whippersnapper! Let me feel your arm. Gosh almighty, where did you git that?"

"Oh, I used to be lightweight boxer at Yale," answered the schoolmaster, cheerfully. "But how about the corporal punishment rule, Farmer?"

Prettyman grinned. "Say, young feller," he said, "the man who wins out makes his own rules in general. An' I want to put in the first bid for boarding you and Susie till you get your house fixed. Thirty-five a month, it'll be—and you needn't pay in advance. I guess you'll get down."

Musk Oxen Drive Off Hungry Wolf Packs

Of all the strange animals of North America the musk ox is one of the queerest and most interesting, says William T. Hornaday in the Youth's Companion. First of all, it is a true connecting link between wild cattle and sheep. It is able to live and thrive in cold arctic regions, even up to the farthest north for hoofed animals, the most northerly point of Greenland. It has horns like the wild Cape buffalo of Africa, cattlelike hoofs, and its flesh looks and tastes like beef. It has next its body a dense coat of soft, woolly hair and through this grows a coat of very long, straight brown hair, like that of the Tibetan yak. It has a tail so short and small that the animal seems tailless. Its supply of "musk" and its "musky" odor are both wholly imaginary.

For thousands of years the musk ox herds have been preserving their calves from the hungry wolf packs of the North by most excellent military strategy. When wolves threaten a herd it at once forms a compact circle, with the adult bulls and cows standing shoulder to shoulder in the outer circle, and with all the calves and young stock inside.

Even to hungry wolves that circle of deadly down-drooping horns is impregnable. A bull may leave his place for a moment to rush out 30 yards or so in an effort to puncture a wolf, but he never is lured too far. Back he goes to the circle, backs into his place and plays the game to the end.

Remained Single for Various Odd Reasons

In the course of a breach of promise case a man confessed that he had avoided the marriage he had contemplated because he had a fondness for a certain dish to which, he discovered, his prospective bride strongly objected, and it was on this score that he broke off the engagement, London Tit-Bits states.

A well-known man of letters once confessed that he had consistently shirked the ordeal of marriage because it involved what was to him a still greater ordeal, that of proposing.

And there were at least a score of women known to this man and his friends who would have been only too glad to have been led to the altar by him. That none was destined to be so escorted was due, simply and solely, to his rooted aversion to proposing.

An actor, famous in his day, once declared that his reason for remaining a bachelor was that he preferred breakfasting in absolute peace and quietness.

It was his custom, on rising at seven o'clock, to have his breakfast by the fire, instead of at the table in the usual fashion. The meal was laid ready and he simply helped himself, allowing no one to disturb him until 10:30, while he read his letters and papers in silence.

To marry, he said, would mean the breaking of a long-established habit and because of this he declined to take the step.

Largest Fresh Springs

The National Geographic society says that it is impossible to state exactly which fresh-water spring is the largest in the United States since springs fluctuate in their discharge, and it is also the question of considering a group of springs singularly or collectively. Among the largest fresh-water springs in the United States are the Thousands springs and the Malad springs, both of which are in Idaho. Either of these springs would supply the city of New York with water. Silver springs in Florida are also among the largest fresh-water springs in the United States.

A Little Careless

"What do you know of the character of the defendant?" asked the judge of a colored laundress subpoenaed in an accident case of a white man arrested for careless driving of a motorcar.

"It's tolerable," Maria said.

"Had you seen him drive the car before?"

"Yassah."

"Would you consider him careless?"

"Well, jedge, as fo' de car—dat little thing ain't gwine to hurt nobody, but being as is all here, I might as well tell yo' dat he sho' is careless 'bout payin' fo' his wash!"

Hid From Lightning

A thunderstorm was approaching and a group of Jennings county women began talking of the laughable things people do to guard against lightning. The honors went to Mrs. Henrietta Elliot of North Vernon. She turned to a former pupil and said, "Alice, you must remember the time a terrible storm came up in the afternoon and lightning struck several trees right close to the schoolhouse. I got so scared I pulled the door back to hide myself the best I could, and took off my steel hoopskirt!"—Indianapolis News.

Doing One's Duty

Take good care of disagreeable duties. Attend to these first. Never select the things that you want to do, and shirk upon others the things that you do not want to do. Choose the disagreeable things you will get in your manhood. You cannot grow in any other way so fast. You may be angry with some shiftless man, who is willing to put on you work that he ought to do himself, but you cannot afford to be unfaithful because somebody else is.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Odd Argentine Vehicle

The carretta, a huge, awkward, two-wheeled cart used in the Argentine to carry hides and wool to market, has bread wheels, sometimes ten feet in diameter. They are often drawn by 18 or 20 horses or oxen, but instead of being hitched two and two these animals are hitched shoulder to shoulder, 18 to 20 abreast, with a heavy leather rope from each animal attached to the axle of the vehicle.—Detroit News.

Influenza Old Complaint

Influenza has been known almost as long as man has been known. The word itself is derived from the ancient astrologers, who believed it to be caused by the "influence" of the stars. The disease has been unmistakeably traced back to 1580. It was then prevalent in eastern Germany, and was known, curiously enough, as sleeping sickness. It appeared again in the Eighteenth century, when epidemics of it were frequent and prolonged in most European countries. Among the famous people of long ago who suffered from it were Sir Isaac Newton, Goethe and Schiller. The great philosopher Kant was attacked by it, and he believed it was caused by noxious insects brought to western Europe as a result of trade with Russia.

Each in His Place

Tolstoy on his farm, Milton without his sight, Bunyan in his prison, Pasteur in his laboratory, all did great things for the world. All these had their burdens and their limitations—and who has not? Yet they wrought mightily for the good of mankind. They didn't say, "Because I am on a farm, or blind, or in prison, or confined within a workshop, I cannot do anything worth while." Rather did they say: "This is my lot, but I shall not despair. I will make the most of my opportunities, and do my best while I have life." This is the spirit of all those who do great things.

Hard as Rock

Ever try to identify rocks by their shades, color, feel, taste, hardness and other marks of identification? That's something else to think about while hiking. A stone is something more than to stumble over or to throw. A cigar box divided into six or eight sections makes a splendid case in which to put away various specimens found along the way and labeled correctly as soon as you learn their right names. Glacial lopsided pebbles, concretions, fossils in limestone, crystals and stalactites are some of the special things to look for.

Build your Home now while you need it!

This is the home-building year. As you travel over the country you see thousands of homes being erected. People have come to the realization that it is true economy to put their money in a permanent building, rather than pay out so much for rent or for board and lodging, with nothing left to show for it in the end.

The American family spirit has much to do with it. Every child is entitled to a real home. People who have children want their boys and girls to know what it is to live in a house, with a yard.

A few minutes with a pencil and paper will convince you that you can own a home suitable for your needs. Talk it over with your dealer. He is a practitioner in building. He knows conditions; his experience is valuable to you. He wants to give you the kind of service that will make a friend of you.

BRILLIANT DIALOGUE IN COHAN PLAY SECURED AS CHAUTAUQUA FEATURE

Scene from "The Meanest Man"

Following the original production of "The Meanest Man in the World" at the Hudson Theater, New York City, metropolitan critics were enthusiastic in their praise:

World—"A triumph, beyond a doubt."

Tribune—"Well received. Generously applauded."

Evening Journal—"Rich in charm and originality."

Times—"It aims to be a good show, and is."

Herald — "Enthusiastically welcomed. Full of types."

Mail — "Snappy and amusing. Chock full of brilliant dialogue."

American—"A jovial play which provokes gusts of laughter."

Post—"Pitched in American idiom. Crisp with epigram. Abounding in suspense."

Telegraph—"Many of the lines and situations stand out like the proverbial good deed in a naughty world."

Telegram—"A sure-fire hit. A typically popular American play, with clearly drawn characters of an amusing sort. The play abounds in rapid everyday humor. Its obvious hits register easily and satisfy completely."

Story of Stolen Kiss of Revolutionary Days

From Mount Holly, N. J., comes a story of a kiss snatched from Stephen Girard's pretty young wife by Col. Walter Stewart of the American army, which is a cherished legend of that section and for which there is considerable historic foundation. It is generally known that upon the approach of the British army to Philadelphia in 1777, Stephen Girard, who was in business there and who later became one of the leading financiers of that city, moved to Mount Holly and purchased a small farm. Here he and his wife lived and kept store for two years.

The story of the stolen kiss is told in Stephen Simpson's biography of Stephen Girard, published in 1832. During Girard's residence at Mount Holly, the biographer states, the American army encamped in the neighborhood, and Girard's store afforded many moments of hilarity to the soldiers. One afternoon Colonel Stewart and a fellow officer visited the store to make a small purchase and to see Girard's pretty wife. Colonel Stewart could not resist the temptation to snatch a kiss from Mrs. Girard while her husband had his back turned. The lady immediately told her husband who forced the colonel to apologize. It is said that the occurrence caused a lot of disturbance at the time.

For many years the story was believed to have originated in the author's imagination for it was known that he had a personal grudge against Girard, but the discovery that Walter Stewart was a colonel in the Continental army and that he spent six days in Mount Holly during Girard's residence there gave the story some credence.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Hare at Least Got a Brief Run for His Life

"Talkin' about running'," said the seedy man, "about the finest bit o' sprintin' I ever saw was in the country year before last. I'd been out all day rabbit shootin', and had the most awful luck, when I spied a whoppin' great hare about two hundred yards away. Talkin' a careful sight I let fly, but the instant my bullet touched him, and before it had time to penetrate his skin, that hare was off like a flash.

"I never saw two such evenly matched things as that hare and my bullet. For over half a mile they sped on together, neither gainin' on the other, the bullet just managin' to keep in touch with the hare's skin. At the end of a mile, however, the pace began to tell on the hare and he faltered for a moment.

"'Twas fatal. The bullet sped on and the poor beast was bowled over. He deserved his freedom if ever an animal did. He'd have got it too, if he could have stuck out another 20 yards, for that's about as far as my rifle carries."—Exchange.

Annuity Idea Old

Historically, annuities antedate life insurance by far, says the World's Work. It is thought that the great development of banking facilities in Assyria and Babylonia must have provided annuities.

The first definite mention of them, however, was 40 B. C. in Rome, and is of such a character as to justify a belief that they had been long in use.

In the Middle ages kingdoms, municipalities and bankers obtained money by selling annuities for life or terms of years. It is said that England's national existence during the wars of William of Orange was largely maintained through the money obtained by selling annuities. At first the values of such contracts were determined without scientific calculation.

Life in Everglades

The Indian name of Everglades in Florida means "Grassy Water." There are miles upon miles of flat, grassy land covered with water, usually very shallow and filled with grasses. Now and then there is a "gut" or "slough" (a creek). Now and then also there is a big swamp filled with trees.

Sometimes one will find a lake all edged with sawgrass. There are little dry spots called "islands" or "hummocks," with trees on them. The water is usually clear, but for the most part has a limey, slippery taste.

There isn't much game in the glades proper, but on the higher land in the vicinity of the glades there are deer, turkey, panther, little black bear, raccoon, fox, squirrel, etc., especially in those places that are farthest from civilization, says Hagsburg Liebe in Adventure Magazine.

Shadows in Oil Do Not at Once Fade

Freak shadows that do not fade away at once when the objects that cast them are removed are described by S. Leonard Bastin in St. Nicholas (New York). We read:

"In the great oil regions of California, pools of crude petroleum are quite commonly seen. Here the oil is allowed to remain until it is stored away in barrels. One of the curiosities of the district is the freak shadow which these ponds of crude oil produce. If, when the sun is shining brightly, a person stands so that his shadow falls across the surface of the petroleum, a very remarkable thing happens. Should the individual change his place, strange to say, the first shadow remains on the oil, while the person casts a second shadow from his new position. The longer the individual has been standing by the oil pond, the longer will the original shadow remain. The explanation of the mystery is simple: Under the influence of the hot sun, gas is freely produced in the crude oil. This rises to the surface in the form of millions of bubbles far too minute to be noticed by the human eye. When a shadow is cast over the surface of the petroleum the temperature is reduced, and this has the effect of checking the production of bubbles. The result is that the shaded area looks different from the part which is exposed to the sun. Now, when the person moves, the temperature of the oil which has been shielded from the sun does not at once get back to its former warmth. It takes a little time to heat, and, until this actually happens, the shadow effect persists, giving the curious appearance which has been described.—Literary Digest.

Easy to Tell Fortune Shown by Tea Leaves

The custom of telling fortunes from tea leaves left in the cups is by no means on the wane. It is a simple matter to memorize most of the signs, and a good imagination is also of great assistance.

Leaves in the form of a train are said to mean either a journey or the arrival or departure of some one in whom you are interested. A snake indicates enemies. Doves are supposed to be lucky, and so are stars, the crescent moon, and horseshoes, says London Tit-Bits.

News from abroad is often foreshadowed by a tent. Shoes mean a journey. If the cup is clear all round it is said to be a good sign. Gloves indicate a meeting with strangers, while stockings usually foreshadow presents.

Chairs mean visitors; keys new undertakings. Initials are usually deemed to be lucky. Black clusters of trees mean gatherings, but may also be taken to mean a cluster of worries.

Origin of Perfume

To the Greeks, who attributed the origin of perfume to a drop of nectar spilt at a feast of the gods of Cupid, we owe the addition of flower fragrance to the list of perfume materials, observes the Detroit News. Their refined sense of smell demanded more delicate scents than the strong fragrance of spices and heavy animal odors, as musk, one of the oldest and best known perfumes at that time and still popular in the Orient. Iris, rose, crocus, violet and also the aromatic plants, thyme and marjoram were favorite scents with them.

Then came the Dark ages—even for perfumers and perfumes, as the natural and inevitable result of Roman extravagance. The art of perfuming was lost, not to have rebirth until Renaissance days and the time of the famed Florentine perfumer, Rene, who, history tells us, accompanied the fourteen-year-old Catherine de Medici to France as court perfumer.

But One Got Him

"At sixteen the girl is a woman; at twenty-five, if still unmarried, she is a girl," sternly said the philosophical youth, who had devoted much time to thinking. "She will face death without a tremor and swoon at the sight of a mouse. The only time she does what you expect her to do is when you expect her to do what you do not expect her to do. The only reason she does anything is because she doesn't know why she does it. She jumps at conclusions and always lands on them, because when the conclusion skips to one side in an endeavor to avoid her it gets squarely in her way. The only man who understands a woman is he who understands that he doesn't understand her, and lets it go at that."

News Note: Two weeks later he married one of them.—Country Gentleman.

Careful People Realize

THAT THE PROTECTION OF THEIR PRINCIPAL IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN THE RATE OF INTEREST PROMISED.

Few can afford to speculate. Speculation sooner or later leads to loss. It has always been so. In the busy world of today homely advice of this sort is often ignored. It is nevertheless true.

For most people a deposit here on a 5% Certificate is one of the best investments obtainable. No worry, no trouble. A check for the interest comes to you each six months by mail. Or it may be compounded semi-annually.

TH' OLE GROUCH

Odd Time Recorder

Familiar to Indians

A sort of primitive sundial was sometimes set up by a Bellacoola Indian traveler to record, for the benefit of those following him, the time which had elapsed since he had left. This was used only where one followed another, not as a true sundial to tell the time of day. The Carrier Indians and the Chilcotin Indians also used it.

This time recorder consisted of a twig made into a circular hoop about six inches in diameter, by twisting the ends together, and fastened firmly to a slanting stick stuck up in the smooth earth. The Bellacoola, who so commonly traveled up and down the Bellacoola river, frequently put one of these upon the sandy river beach. The more or less circular shadow of the hoop was marked in the soil, and the distance that it had traveled from the mark indicated how long the recorder had been standing.

If the one following was traveling in a river canoe and saw the shadow was near the mark, his canoe party might pole hard in an effort to catch up, but if the shadow were far away he knew that it was probably useless to try to overtake the one ahead.

Many Names for the "Root of All Evil"

Money is money under any and all conditions, but in its transfer from one person to another it has many special names. Here are a few of the terms in common use:

Wages for workmen; salary for the office-force; emolument for the clergy; honorarium, or fee, for the medical man; dividend for the shareholder; remittance for the boy or girl at college; alms for the beggar; alimony for the divorcee; dowry for the widow; legacy for the lucky heir.

Indemnity for the litigant; royalty for the literary man; interest for the money lender; stipend for the college professor; retainer and fee for the lawyer; commission for the salesman; premium for the insurance agent; "dot" for the engaged girl, and "dough" for everybody, to say nothing of "kale," "mazuma," "jack" and other appelations not yet admitted to good standing in the dictionary.—New York Times.

Water Digs for Gold

There are many forms of gold mining, but probably the easiest is that known as "hydraulicking," which is nothing more nor less than sending against the gold-bearing rock or soil a jet of water of enormous power, which disintegrates the hardest earth, or even stone, and converts it into a mud wherefrom the precious particles can be easily reclaimed.

There is a special apparatus used for this purpose. The current of water or jet may be supplied from a reservoir or a mountain torrent of great force, but in many cases a full-powered steam fire engine of a special type, such as can be carried on poles over trails where wheels would be impossible, is the source of power.

Umbrella's Long History

The umbrella is of very ancient origin. It had its origin in the East, and was used quite commonly in the ancient Empires of Nineveh, Persia and Egypt. The "Satrap" of Persia was so called because he carried an umbrella and the word itself means "Umbrella fellow." The Eastern umbrella was in reality a sunshade, for it was against the roasting rays of the sun that it protected. "Lord of the Umbrella" is one of the titles of many an Eastern monarch. In the Imperial days of Greece and Rome, only women carried umbrellas in times of peace, but in times of war they were served out to Roman troops, to assist them in avoiding sun-dazzle in battle.

A Girl's Way

The young man next door was watching Bluebelle narrowly from his front window. He had declared frankly that he wanted to marry a sensible girl. The skies were dripping and the sidewalks were wet.

Bluebelle had emerged and turned her beautiful orbs upon the skies.

She inspected the sidewalks. Then she went back into the house.

"Wise girl," murmured the young man. "She has gone after her overshoes."

But Bluebelle, as it transpired when she again appeared, had merely gone back for her new earrings.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

That "Alteration"

It was a case of assault, and the following is what a witness said he witnessed:

"I saw the plaintive and the defender argumentive, and the defender struck the plaintiff, and the plaintiff struck the defender, and they both missed each other, and an alteration took place, and they knocked each other down, and—"

"That will do," said the magistrate. "Judging by their faces, the 'alteration' has been about equal. Case dismissed."

Canary Has Rival

Canaries, long the pet of bird fanciers, are being replaced by a new species of bird pet popularly called the "love bird," because of its devotion to its mate. Scientifically it is known as the budgerigar. A pair of these birds will sell at close to a thousand dollars, though some may be bought for five dollars or thereabouts.

Secret of Happiness

To live content with small means—to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion, to be worthy, not respectable, and wealthy, not rich—to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly, to listen to stars and birds, babes and sages, with open heart—to bear all cheerfully—do all bravely, await occasions—never hurry; in a word, to let the spiritual, hidden and unconscious, grow up through the common.—W. E. Channing.

Famous Patrons of Art

The Medici was a distinguished Florentine family, which rose to supreme power in the Fifteenth century, and became famous as the restorers of literature and the fine arts throughout Italy. Its most illustrious members were Cosimo de Medici, surnamed Il Vecchio (The Ancient) and Pater Patriae, and Lorenzo, his grandson, surnamed The Magnificent, and The Father of Letters. This latter ruled Florence from 1469 to 1492, and proved himself a most munificent patron of art and literature. The family of the Medici became extinct on the death of its last male representative, Gian Gastone, seventh grand duke of Tuscany, in 1737.—Kansas City Star.

Cured the Pup

"'E's a nice pup, isn't 'e?" said Jim, the village idiot, gazing proudly at his pet terrier. "I 'aven't 'ad 'im long. I used Farmer Giles one day takin' 'im to t'pond, and I says to 'im, I says, 'What be ye goin' to do with that pup, Farmer Giles?' 'I'm goin' to drown 'im,' 'e says, sorrowful like; 'e's always chewin' the paint off the legs o' Farth.'

"'Oh! Don't drown 'im, mister,' I says, 'give 'im to me. I'll cure 'im.' And I did cure 'im, too; I did that. I sewed rings off t'eats!'—London Answers.

Origin of "Sterling"

Of unusual interest is the derivation of the word "sterling" as applied to something that is "genuine, pure, unadulterated, or of excellent quality." The Easterlings were the north Germans, or the merchants of the Hanseatic league, the original "moneyers" of England. The name of these merchants came to be applied to coin or goods of a fixed, standard value, answering all tests.

In the time of Edward I, we find an English coin issued of the designation of a dinar or dinarius, called "sterling," has been applied to the English pound, which before the war was regarded as the best value in the world. —Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Greenland

Greenland was named by the Norwegian explorer, Eric the Red. Upon his return from Greenland in 986 he gave the new country that name in order to make people more willing to go there. The climate is very cold, the mean annual isotherm of freezing temperature crossing the island at its southern end. This fact does not prevent the prevalence of warmth suitable for vegetation during the long summer day in the interior of the fiords and in sheltered places quite to the northern end of the inland. Thus the summer temperature in favored localities often reaches an important height.

Hilltop Given Sewer Relief

City Council Monday night voted for immediate relief of the Hilltop storm sewer problem and ordered legislation for a $250,000 issue of bonds to be presented at next Monday night's meeting, in order that work may go along at once.

A delegation of 60 Hilltop residents left Council pleased with the prospects of early relief.

City Engineer Simpson presented plans for storm sewer relief by means of a trunk sewer to carry off drainage water from ditches west of the city limits, and by other smaller storm sewers. In addition to the $200,000 for this work he suggested that $450,000 be spent for sanitary sewer relief for the West Side. He said the sanitary sewers are badly overloaded.

Members of Council debated for half an hour on the matter of holding up the Hilltop sewer project to include with a general sewer bond issue proposal at the November election. Councilmen Lewis and Worley argued strenuously for immediate relief on the basis that the city is in shape to do the work now and that it has been a long aggravated evil. Other members of Council finally swung to this side of the argument when it was learned that the emergency work will be connected up with later extension.

This work is expected to relieve flood water conditions in Sullivant Avenue from Hague Avenue east to Terrace Street, and on all streets intervening, where heavy rains leave water in cellars and in many cases on streets and lawns.

Claude Bawden, 444 South Ogden Avenue, and C. F. Bigham, 2714 Sullivant Avenue, were spokesmen for the delegation.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFadon

NUTRITION AS A SCIENCE

Long before there was a science of nutrition our ancestors were guided by instinct and experience. By eating a variety, they usually obtained the necessary elements in food, but they often had a one-sided diet. Now, nutrition is becoming a science, and the essential factors in food are carefully pointed out. This is decreasing the percentage of unfit among us, depending, of course, upon the extent to which the people avail themselves of it.

Such reports as, "20 per cent of our school children suffer from malnutrition," and "25 per cent of the country's manhood are unfit," based upon physical examination, are startling, and show the need of more definite, well digested, practical knowledge by the people. Progress in educating the masses is necessarily slow. The sure way to make each succeeding generation wiser, dietetically, is through the Home Economics courses now in most schools. In this way the findings of the scientists are so reflected that the future generations especially, will be benefited. The apathy of the people concerning the importance of scientific research work is most natural, for they are often led into fads which experience leads them to discredit. As, for instance, the caloric which, a generation ago, was a dietetic God. The caloric is all that it ever was—a heat unit of measurement—and is as necessary in estimating body needs, as the yard stick is to the merchant, but nobody, except people in Sanitaria (who have naught else to do) computes accurately the number of calories he eats. As the mineral element in food is not a nutrient, its importance was under-valued or ignored, until science discovered and demonstrated that no matter how balanced the ration in protein, carbo-hydrates and fats, we cannot live if the "ash" or mineral element be omitted. It is important that the general public know this, that they may be sure of getting these minerals from their food. But while all recorded scientific facts are necessary, it is not necessary for the average man to differentiate as the chemists do. For instance, there are 12 or more minerals next the bran of a grain of wheat, the chemists can tell us the quantity and quality of each one and give its name. But the all important point for individuals is that this bran, with its minerals, must not be taken away (as the millers take it away) leaving to the people only the white part, upon which alone, animals cannot live.

There are 16 minerals in our bodies, many of which are absolutely necessary to the best and most efficient life. Normally, the amounts of each varies from a half ounce of silica to 30 pounds or more of carbon, all of which must be replenished by our food. The food cannot do this if we allow ourselves to drift with the current and live on such denatured foods as white flour, polished rice, degerminated corn, etc. (the parts the manufacturers choose to leave) instead of whole wheat bread, fruits and well selected vegetables.

We are told that we have one and a half ounces of iron in our bodies. Not very much but it is necessary to life and that is reason enough why we should eat fruits, greens and other leafy vegetables, even though we do not get so much caloric value from them. In like manner we get iodine (so necessary to the thyroid gland) from oat meal. We may not get one part of iodine in a million from a helping, but if that small part does the business we can't afford not to take advantage of it.

But, I imagine I hear some one say: "If iodine and iron are needed in such small quantities, why not buy them as drugs, and mix small amounts with our food?" Simply because the blood refuses to appropriate the unorganized, commercial minerals. It cannot use them unless they are organized in some vegetable, and then only after digestion, assimilation and absorption by our own body laboratory.

Social Affairs

Miss Ethlyn Doughty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Doughty, 310 S. Harris Avenue, was married to Mr. Herman A. Williams, on July 2nd. After the ceremony they left for a trip through Michigan. They will reside on Gill Street.

---

A very pleasant 4th of July was spent by several Hilltop families and residents of Columbus along the creek on the farm of Wm. S. Morgan near New Albany, O. A gathering of the children and many friends with baskets overflowing with good things to eat. They began arriving from early morning until it was time for the spread. A spread it was too. A table was provided by Tom Morgan who transformed the old sled into a table then dragged it down to the creek under a large willow tree where there was plenty of shade and a real dining room was arranged by the women folks. Twenty-nine hungry persons sat around the sled table and filled themselves with all the good things that were laid before them. Russell Gregg made the coffee and everybody said it was the best they ever tasted. Bathing, fishing and many games were enjoyed in the afternoon. Will Knox was the champion horseshe pitcher. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Dave Morgan and daughter Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Morgan, Mr. Orville Morgan, Mr. Tom Morgan of New Albany, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morgan and children of near New Albany, Mr. and Mrs. Will E. Knox and daughter Evelyn and William Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Evans and children of New Albany, Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. HILLTOP DAILY VACATION SCHOOL STARTS

The Daily Vacation Bible School opened at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church on Monday, July 7th, at 9 o'clock with 96 children the first day and 135 the third day. The school is still growing and there is room for many more children.

A "Trip Around the World" began; each child in the Junior Department having a "Round the World ticket." Miss Helen Leukart is the principal; Misses Mary Porter, Ardath Roberts, Edna Keefer, Cleo Kramer and Helen Cunningham are teachers and Fred Ault in the handcraft for boys. A fine kindergarten for little children meets in the cool basement. Children will enjoy free motion pictures Friday night at the church. Next week G. T. Cooper, Brunswick Hilltop agent, will give a sacred phonograph concert to the school.

No words can describe my consternation! I could easily have fainted, but an instant's thought showed me that I should make a scene at court, when borne out by Lord Kinnear whose would attract immediate attention, probably fall off and be handed to him by the purse-bearer, or a gentleman-in-waiting. I summoned all my courage and, when the awful moment came, made the deepest and most graceful of curtsies with one end and one only in view, that of concealing my feet.

I was obliged to remain in bed and wear room slippers for the remainder of the proceedings.

LIBRARY NOTES

Vacation time has not lessened the enthusiasm for books. During June 3137 books went out, an average of 126 a day. Seventy-four persons joined the library, bringing the membership up to over 2200. If July can be judged by the first week, it will be a more prosperous month than June. The hours remain the same throughout the summer.

We are in need of children's books. Donations are always appreciated. The financial committee would be glad if any unpaid subscriptions could be left at the library.

HOLDER'S HELPFUL HINTS

(Editor's note:—The real estate brokerage office of S. O. Holder & Co. offers to its clients a service that covers all items peculiar to their property. And inasmuch as they limit their dealings exclusively to Hilltop real estate, they feel that they owe to every resident of the Hilltop to give all the service they can to enhance the value of the property of the Hilltop. They have kindly consented to make up a series of helpful hints, to be presented to residents of the Hilltop through the columns of the Record.)

Holder says:

The inimitable Eddie Guest wrote

"It takes a heap o' livin'
To make a house a HOME."

And he was right, believe me.

So while there may be more costly houses in Bexley and Upper Arlington, there are no better homes than on the Hilltop and the first of our Helpful Hints, to help values on the Hilltop, will also keep those homes healthful and happy.

"Clean up and keep clean" the odd corners, attic, cellar, spare room and the closets in your house."

When the real estate man brings the customer around, you never know what is in his mind, and you will wonder "why he did not buy." Sometimes the customer himself could not tell you, but the real salesman knows why, as he watches the customer intently to get his reaction, and he sees the buying instinct killed by an offence to his sense of order.

Another thing about this is that fire starts more easily in rubbish and of course you want to be protected against fire not only to save your own property, but your neighbors as well.

It is the law, that if his property burns on account of your negligence, you can be made to pay his loss.

So be carefully clean in the conduct of the home.

China's Great Wall

This historic wall, extending for a distance of more than 1,700 miles across the northern boundary of the Chinese empire, was built by the Emperor Chi-hoang-ti about 200 B. C. It was built to protect his dominions against the incursions of the Tartars, Kalmucks and other northern tribes, but proved utterly useless. It was from 25 to 50 feet high and 20 feet thick at the base, but tapered to a thickness of 15 feet at the top. It was supplemented by towers 35 to 40 feet in height, at intervals of 200 or 300 yards. The "Great Wall" is said to have required ten years to build, and to have caused the death of tens of thousands of workmen.

Monkeys With Smallpox?

Explorers of the Brazilian wilds have reported finding monkeys showing clear traces of having suffered from smallpox, says a message from Rio de Janeiro. George Clarke Bleyer, an expert on life in the Brazilian forests, points out that there is no good reason why wandering animals and insects should not carry smallpox germs from human victims to their simian cousins.

Trivial Things Lead to Broken Home Life

"We may talk about the leading causes of divorce, drunkenness, unfaithfulness, cruelty, lack of support—but in my experience I have found that it is the pin pricks which poison," said a social worker, according to the Milwaukee Journal. "These things, of course, do not appear on the surface at the moment when the home is broken, for one of the bigger questions has cropped out as the predominant issue, but I try to go back and find where it all really started. Almost invariably the first rift was about some small thing that arose from differences in character."

A good deal of sense to that. We once knew a girl—it was in the days when marriages were still carefully considered before they were consummated—who refused her mother's choice and was deaf to all pleas. Yes, she liked Jack immensely and on the main points of life they were agreed. "But, mother, on many little things we are at total disagreement. I like boat-ness, and Jack is not neat. I like to be up and doing with the start of the day and Jack is a lazybones until after most others are at their work. You know how strictly I keep account of all I spend; when we go out together Jack never knows whether he has a dollar to pay the bill until it is presented to him. I fear that these little disagreements would make our lives unhappy."

Perhaps one might say, that a great love would overcome all this. In some cases it may, but the experience of the social worker shows that in many other cases it does not. We'd have more happy homes if the young woman and the young man about to be married each analyzed more closely the little points in the character of the other.

Slayer in Hard Luck; Betrayed by Trophy

As in the "wild West" in the old range days, so in Matto Grosso, Brazil, a man's best lawyer is his gun. There is the story of Machado's car. Indeed, the affair happened only two years ago. This wise—Machado—dark-skinned Bahiano Brazilian—thief. He stole the cattle [illegible] Heck, who had come from T[illegible] try his fortune in Brazil. He to him about it. Machado [illegible] He said next time he met would kill him and cut off his [illegible] native custom). Very foolishly so speaking, he fumbled with [illegible]

Having killed his man, Ben pack up for a bit. Weeks without news and Ben's friends anxious. They found him chained to the prison floor of [illegible] town.

Ben, no great orator, explained best he could. He said he was getting safely over the border [illegible] the police raided the train, for revolutionaries. They searched every one's luggage. "And there, in the bottom of my grip, they found that darned car."—Arthur Mills, in the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Curious Shepherd Custom

There is, or was, a curious custom in Sussex, England, the explanation of which is somewhat obscure, in connection with the burial of the old shepherds, says the Detroit News. A tuft of wool is placed in the right hand of the dead man in his coffin. The purpose of this is believed by many to be that thereby the vocation of the man may be known, and he will be excused for his nonattendance at church on Sundays.

During lambing in particular a shepherd can never leave his flock, and Sunday and weekdays alike may be seen on the downs with his sheepdog attending to the countless duties that call for ceaseless vigilance.

Willing to Be "Fired"

Some of the inmates of the jail were lathing a room, and the governor was inspecting the progress of the work.

After watching the men for a few minutes, the governor said to one of the convicts: "Look here, my man, you are putting those laths too close together. That sort of work will never do."

The prisoner laid down his tools and said: "Well, sir, I am willing to be turned off if my work don't suit you. I didn't apply for the job, and if you are dissatisfied—well, you can fire me."

Taking It Nicely

Grandmother had been talking to four-year-old Mary Ellen about becoming angry so easily. After the little girl had listened a few minutes she thought it time to tell of some of her good qualities, so she said:

"Yesterday my dolly got stepped on and broken and I didn't cry a bit or scold anybody."

"That was fine," said her grandmother, very much pleased. "And who stepped on your dolly?" she asked.

"Why, I did, grandma."

What's in a Name?

"Why do you call your wife Christ?" This was the question put to a man by a lodge brother who had met the wife.

"Because that is her name."

"Seems an odd name for a woman."

"Well, her folks gave her a floral name. Her full name is Chrysanthemum. Of course I might use the last syllable," went on the husband genially, "but she's never mum."—Los Angeles Times.

Deeds of Young Men Blazoned in History

Alexander the Great licked over the parental traces and conquered the world at twenty-three. Over in Carthage, when they needed a commander in chief for all the armies, they picked on a youngster by the name of Hannibal—and he was twenty-six. Columbus had plans for his voyage all laid when he was twenty-eight—and failed to get started only because he couldn't convince his elders. John Smith, the first of the line, staked out his colonial empire in Virginia when he should have been serving an apprenticeship somewhere. He was twenty-seven. A visionary young man, Martin Luther by name, was just [illegible] thirty when he started the Protestant Reformation. Luther was joined by John Calvin, who was twenty-one. Calvin wrote one of his greatest books at twenty-three. Joan of Arc, when she was seventeen, emerged from obscurity in France, made her way to the leadership of the nation, and at nineteen was burned at the stake.

Patrick Henry cried "Liberty or death" when he was twenty-seven. Hamilton was thirty-two when he was made the secretary of the treasury and laid the plans for America's national banking system. A youngster of twenty-six discovered the law of gravitation. The first American modernist, Roger Williams, was a banished heretic at twenty-nine. And that's only the beginning of the list!—Stanley High, in Collier's.

Difference as to "Cat and Dog" Law

Animal pets may on occasion scratch, bite, and commit other injuries, and the owner's liability for damage will vary according to the nature of the animal.

It is much more risky to keep a monkey or an elephant than a dog; while cats, which in natural history primers are described as "of the tiger kind," are more favored by the law than almost any domestic pet.

Generally speaking, the first question asked by the law is whether the animal is fierce by nature. If so, its owner is liable for damage whether he knew of its vicious propensities or not, and it is immaterial whether he was careful or negligent.

A tame menagerie elephant and a pet monkey have been held to be animals fierce and vicious.

Although their ancestors were indubitably fierce, cats and dogs, as a result of many generations of domesticity, are now regarded as friendly to mankind. An injured plaintiff must show that the owner knew of the animal's vicious propensity toward mankind, and that with such knowledge he was negligent in the custody of it.

Dick Turpin's Home

It is reported that the reputed home of Dick Turpin, the celebrated highwayman, Percival or Parsifar hall, a fine old mansion in the valley of the Wharfe between Barden and Appletreewick, Yorkshire, is to be sold. It is a hall with an interesting history. Here it was that William Nevison, alias Swift Nick, the original of the traditional Dick Turpin, was wont to spend his time when not engaged in daring exploits on the road. The place is famous, too, as the one-time home of one of Yorkshire's quaintest characters, Parson Heye, while tradition says that one of the most terrible Barguests—those ghostly dogs which Yorkshire country people believe walk at night—is to be found near the hall.

Forest of Vallombrosa

The forest of Vallombrosa was founded in the Twelfth century and given its name, which literally translated means "Shadowed Valley," by St. Giovannie Gaulberto. It was founded as a monastery and retreat for one of the Benedictine order of monks, and from its early inception the monks took great pride in caring for, cultivating and replanting the forests, the Detroit News notes.

Use of charcoal in Italy has always been very heavy because of its almost universal use for cooking and heating. At Vallombrosa a large quantity has always been made, even in the time of the monks during the Middle ages.

Get His Answer

An Irish politician was delivering a passionate speech to a mixed crowd. He had suffered badly at the hands of one particular heckler, but at last his chance came.

"You think you're smart, don't you?" sneered the heckler. "Well, just tell us how many toes a pig has got."

"Take your boots off and count!" was the lightning reply.

Euphemistic

Mrs. Newrich—So you've traced my family back to great-great-grandfather. How did he die?

Genealogist—Well—er—he died of apnoea, superinduced by pendulous flic-quention.

Mrs. Newrich—Oh, that sounds so aristocratic. Please write it down. I must tell my lady friends.

Genealogist—I don't think I would, madam. To tell the truth, it means that he was hanged.—Boston Transcript.

FILLED IMPORTANT CHURCH POSITION

Elsie Baker

Unlike most singers, Elsie Baker, noted American contralto who appears in recital on chautauqua's sixth night, believed that the true school for the American voice was in the church. Accordingly, she was for many years soloist at St. Paul's Church in New York City.

Miss Baker comes of a Philadelphia musical family. At an early age she began the piano, then studied singing under various teachers, including Oscar Saenger. Her career has broadened until she is now widely known throughout America both for her concert work and for the many Victor records she has made.

Miss Baker is pleasing in both appearance and manner, a fact which makes itself evident at once with her audiences.

Grover Tilden Davis, who assists Miss Baker, has a finished pianistic art. He has studied under the great masters of America and Europe, and has written several notable compositions.

Noah's Son an Inventor

Perhaps the most primitive form of artificial light was the wax taper. In Turkey the guild of candlemakers venerate Shem, the son of Noah, as their patron saint. It was he, according to legendary history, who invented this early form of light—wax taper.

When the ark was already afloat, so the story goes, a swarm of bees settled upon the roof, the Detroit News states. Shem removed them carefully to a corner of the ark, where they hived and multiplied. When finally the ark rested on Mount Ararat, Shem took some of the bees' wax, melted it in an earthen pot and into it dipped strips of wool which he probably got from the sheep (although this is not mentioned). These when cool he rolled in his hands, thus making the first candle.

Until 1908 the sultan of Turkey would permit no other artificial light than wax tapers to be burned, except in his own palace, where he had electric lights.

Triangular Wheels

The cars that travel the "rocky road to Dublin" would have a much rougher time of it if their wheels were like those that the Mongolian peasant uses on his ox cart. The two wheels, says Mr. A. S. Kent in "Old Tartar Trails," are unprotected by iron tires, and therefore with constant use over stony roads they soon lose their roundness and become first octagonal, then hexagonal and then pentagonal. At that point the Mongol begins to think that he ought to have new wheels; but before his caravan has reached a place where he can find a Chinese to do the work the wheels have passed the rectangular stage and have become triangular, and the vehicle will go no farther.

Incident Well Called Impossible, but True

Most persons can remember at least one startling coincidence in their experience. The elder J. Pierpont Morgan liked to tell of one lucky encounter he had while he was seeking a pair of vases to complete a set of Sevres table decorations on which he had set his heart. Collectors had been ransacking Europe for them in Mr. Morgan's behalf, and then one stormy night—as Mrs. J. Borden Harriman tells the story in "From Pinafores to Politics"—he arrived in London from Liverpool, having come from America without warning the servants when to expect him.

As he ran up the steps and put his latch key to the door a shivering figure in the vestibule drew two vases from under a torn coat and murmured, "I've been going from house to house all day; won't you buy these, sir? My children are starving."

The light from the half-opened door fell on what seemed to be porcelain from the famous set. While the man waited Mr. Morgan rushed upstairs to compare the marks. They seemed the same, but it wasn't possible!

"How much do you want for them?" he demanded when he came down.

The man asked a small price, took the money and melted away into the night.

The next day all the London connoisseurs were at Morgan's house, exclaiming, "It's impossible, but true!"

The vases matched, and the set was priceless.

"I wasn't expected in London," said Mr. Morgan. "The man didn't know what Sevres was worth. I never could trace him. How did it happen? Out of all London to come to my house and at that moment!"—Youth's Companion.

When Ears of Gadding Wives Were Cropped

The ancient Assyrians, 2100 B. C., punished severely their gadding, wasteful wives, according to writings on clay tablets recently unearthed by Doctor Hromy, Czechoslovak archeologist.

If a gadding wife went to see another married woman in a distant house her ears were cropped as a penalty. If a husband found his wife with another man he was at liberty to kill or mutilate both.

A scold or reviler was separated from husband and children and a wasteful wife could be called to account before the authorities and divorced. If the husband did not divorce her she had the option of being a servant to the second wife. An invalid wife had the same tragic option, or she could go home to her father.

If a married man was living in his father-in-law's house and his wife died he had the right to marry one of her sisters on the same dowry.

One Dreadful Moment in Kate Wiggin's Life

In 1897 Kate Douglas Wiggin was presented at Holyrood palace. She describes what happened in "My Garden of Memory":

"I watched the curtsies carefully to see how those 'to the manner born' carried themselves, and as I neared the lord high commissioner I noted one young lady, virtuous, I am sure, for she was extremely ugly, who allowed a long, bony foot and ankle to appear as she swept aside her train.

"I glanced down to enjoy the effect of my own white satin shoes with crystal buckles, when lo! I beheld large, black, bedroom slippers on my feet!

"No words can describe my confusion! I could easily have fainted, but an instant's thought showed me that I should make a scene at court, and when borne out by Lord Kinnear my shoes would attract immediate attention, probably fall off and be handed to him by the purse-bearer, or a titled aide-de-camp. I summoned all my courage and, when the awful moment came, made the deepest and most distinguished of curtsies with one end alone in view, that of concealing my feet."

She was obliged to remain in her bedroom slippers for the remainder of the proceedings.

Workers Cross Chasm on Wire Foot Bridge

Tourists who are looking for red-blooded thrills need go no farther than Pearson's logging camp, near Bellingham, Wash., where a woven chicken-wire foot bridge enables workmen to cross a yawning ravine 130 feet deep. When the men went across this chasm to cut down firs and hemlocks the problem of getting them back to camp for meals and lodging was difficult. They had to crawl down into the valley and climb up the opposite steep precipice twice each day. The management then planned a cable bridge, but found the expense prohibitive, says the New York World.

Finally the woven-wire idea was advanced and tested out. Three thicknesses of wire netting 450 feet long hang across the valley. At intervals of five inches 12-inch boards are stapled on for treads. Every tenth board extends out three feet each side of the bridge, to which braces woven wire is fastened. In calm weather crossing the bridge is pleasant, but on windy days it has a swing of three feet in the middle directly over the deepest part of the chasm.

Heroic Struggle for Education He Coveted

The story is told of Kamba, a full-blooded African of the Ndau tribe, who has progressed from absolute illiteracy to a Columbia university degree. The first printing that he ever saw was on a pack of playing cards that came from the coast, and by studying these he taught himself the figures from one to ten. Later he went South to work, and an American missionary there who taught native boys in spite of the opposition of the Portuguese, whose policy is to keep the people ignorant, took him into his home as a house boy.

There the idea of that cultivated missionary, and especially his wife, going to live in that fever-stricken area for the sake of the black boys, gave him a new vision. He knew they must have some secret that made them different from all other white people he had ever seen.

When the American missionary left for home, he told his boys of a mission in Rhodesia, and Kamba walked 250 miles to reach there. His capacity and ambition for more education led the missionary to secure work for the boy by which he earned enough to go to Hampton institute, Virginia.

Burning his living all the time, he took a course of carpentry and then went to Columbia, where he secured the coveted education. His whole ideal in seeking this education has been to go back and develop his own people, but not necessarily on western lines.

Moon Has Always Been Mystery of Mankind

We all feel very wise nowadays about the moon, and smile indulgently as we relate tales of its lonely old male inhabitant to the young.

Our wisdom, based as it is upon maps and photographs and scientific theories, is, however, of very recent origin. The moon for generations was the greatest mystery of mankind—greater even than the sun. When Galileo, in 1609, first turned his telescope upon the moon, he created throughout Europe a much greater sensation than did Columbus when he discovered America.

Till then the scientific men had believed in Aristotle's theory, that the moon is a perfectly smooth and round body, its markings being the continents of the world, reflected, as in a mirror.

Every one else explained away the mysterious marks with myths. There is nothing more remarkable in history than the strange resemblances which exist between the explanations given by different races.

Almost all of them interpreted the marks as being a man carrying a bundle of wood. Furthermore, they all seemed to regard him as one who, on account of a crime, was condemned to eternal isolation on the moon. He was, indeed, a horrible example to young and old alike.

Shark Furnishes Man With Many Products

The old-fashioned shark is now becoming sought and respected on account of the many uses which are being found for his jacket and what he contains. A considerable amount of "cod-liver oil" is really shark-liver oil, and possesses medicinal properties of the same character. Shark-fin soup is appreciated by the Chinese. The eyes of the shark, after they have been boiled, lose their outer covering, and the residue becomes quite hard and has a sort of shifting light in its texture. These are mounted on tie-pin or other forms of jewelry and present an unusual appearance. A valuable part of the man-eater is the skin. The thin outer skin is removed and when dried has a remarkable hardness, and is used by cabinet-makers for giving polish to hard woods, ivory, and so on. The inner skin is tanned so carefully that it eventually yields a waterproof, non-cracking leather. Different parts of the skin give differing shades of color, and the tanning process succeeds in preserving these dark greens and browns so that shoes, traveling bags, purses, belts and similar articles made of the skin have a handsome appearance.

Feathered Duelists

Blackgame may soon fight out their early morning tourneys in the woods of Wiltshire. A writer in the Sporting Times (England) announces that he intends to import their eggs and hatch under French partridges.

The blackcock, now confined almost entirely to Exmoor and the North, is a powerful bird and a lusty fighter. Any wood which holds him has, somewhere, a smooth trampled patch of grass some 15 yards in diameter. This is the arena.

As dawn breaks the first blackcock sails over the treetops, pitches and sounds his challenge. Another answers and the two bow like gamecocks. The rest is a maelstrom of feathers and claws. The grayhens, as the females are called, stand by and look on, after the medieval fashion.

What a Daguerreotype Is

The name is given to the result of the first successful attempt at photography, in honor of the inventor, Louis Daguerre. The process was perfected in 1839 and consisted of a copper plate silvered and covered by the action of the vapor of iodine, with a thin film of iodine of silver. By means of the action of light on the iodine of silver at the focal point of the camera, a picture of the object is formed on the plate. This result is afterward developed by means of vapor of mercury and fixed by treatment in a solution of sodium hyposulphite. In recognition of the importance of his discovery the French government awarded to Daguerre a life pension of 6,000 francs.—Kansas City Star.

Worse to Come

Having been served with a wedge of some yellow substance the husband poked at it cautiously with his fork and finally turned it over heavily on his plate, asking: "What is this?"

"Pound cake. What of it?" the wife replied.

"Nothing," said the husband. "I thought my section weighed more than a pound. What are you going to make next?"

"Marble cake," said the wife, defiantly.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Plant Eats Animals

A most unusual plant that reverses the natural order of things by eating animals has recently been put on display at the London Horticultural hall in England, says Tit-Bits. This meat-eating plant is a native of the tropical East Indies. Its principal prey are mice, which are attracted to it by a very pungent odor emanating from the mouth of the blossom, formed into almost a perfect hole. The mice crawl into this opening and natural friction on the petals close about the victim as it makes an attempt to escape. Digestive juices similar to those secreted in the stomach of animals are given off, and the victim is slowly consumed.

Wise Old Owl

The young hopeful of the family was just entering the age of late nights and notions.

One morning, after late hours the night before, the youth announced:

"Paw, I've a notion to raise chickens."

Paw drew his eyebrows together and gruffly commented:

"Better try owls. Their hours would suit your habits."

World's Rulers Who Were Labeled "Great"

Lord Bryce, in an essay on "Great Men and Greatness," gives a list of 14 names to which the adjective great "is invariably, or at least, usually attached by the world at large." National appreciation runs on more generous lines.

Spain alone has labeled four of her kings "the great," while France pays the same tribute to as many as six sovereigns, says the Detroit News. Russia, Germany, Austria, Denmark, Sweden, Portugal and even Hayti have attached the adjectives to one or other of their rulers. Ethelred the Unready, king of England, seems to have been the only monarch branded with this adjective.

Some royal epithets refer merely to physical peculiarities. Like William Rufus, and the large group of plump monarchs known to posterity as "the fat," Charles the Bold, Pepin the Short, and Olaf the Hungry, are also of this company.

Others have a warlike connotation: Brave, valiant, victorious, hardy, strong, all appear in the list; also terrible, though Ivan of that memory was not so formidable to his foes as to his fellow countrymen. Suleyman I was "The Magnificent," John II (of Portugal) "The Perfect," Louis V "The Well Beloved," and Peter IV (of Aragon), "The Ceremonious." The names of the monarchs acclaimed "wise," "just" or "great" would fill a large space.

Valuable Man

His son was a graduate of a financial school in the Middle West, he was in New York on other business and he dropped into a bucketshop a few months ago to see about getting the young man a position.

"I think he could write those market letters that you mail me," said the father rather doubtfully, after explaining the scope of the young man's accomplishments.

"Yes?" inquired the office manager hopefully.

Further encouraged, the father continued: "I'm sure he could. There's just one thing you'd have to watch him for. He's likely to change his mind every few minutes."

"Every few minutes?" exclaimed the office manager. "An invaluable man! Tell him to call on me?"—Wall Street Journal.

"Platonic Year"

The term "platonic year" is used in astronomy to denote the period of time required for the equinoxes to complete their revolution. The duration of this period is estimated at about 26,000 years, at the expiration of which time the various stars and constellations occupy the same positions relative to the equinoxes that they did at the beginning. Tycho Brahe computed the length of the platonic year at 25,816 years; Riccious at 25,920 years. It is also called the great year.

Home Fires Kept Burning

There are domestic fires burning in Yorkshire today which have never been out for hundreds of years.

At the old-fashioned farmhouses in the dale of Yorkshire peat is still burned. The fuel is obtained from the moors, and stacks of it are kept by the farmers in their stack garths. The country roundabout is noted for its griddle cakes, which are made from dough baked in quaint pans suspended over the peat fires, says the London Times.

These fires are kept glowing from generation to generation, and the son warms himself at the fire which warmed his sire and his grandsire's sire and which will warm his son and his son's son.

There is a fire at Castleton, in the Whitby district, which has been burning over 300 years. The record probably is held by a farmhouse at Osmotherly, in the same district. This fire has been burning for 500 years and there are records to show that it has not been out during the last three centuries.

Exploration for Truth

Forewarned that the vice of the times and the country is an excessive pretension, let us seek the shade, and find wisdom in neglect. Be content with a little light, so it be your own. Explore, and explore. Be neither chided nor flattered out of your position of perpetual inquiry. Neither dogmatize, nor accept another's dogmatism. Why should you renounce your right to traverse the star-lit deserts of truth, for the prematurer comforts of an acre, house, and barn? Truth also has its roof, and bed, and board. Make yourself necessary to the world, and mankind will give you bread and, if not store of it, yet as shall not take away your property in all men's possessions, in all men's affections, in art, in nature, and in hope. —Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Cuckoo Superstitions

There are numerous superstitions associated with the hearing of the cuckoo's first call. In the maritime Highlands and Hebrides, if the cuckoo is first heard by one who has not broken his fast, some misfortune is expected. Indeed, besides the danger, it is considered a reproach to one to have heard the cuckoo while hungry. In France to hear the cuckoo for the first time fasting is to make the hearer "an idle do nothing for the rest of the year," or "to numb his limbs" for the same period. There is a similar belief in certain parts of the west of England. In Northumberland one is told, if walking on a hard road when the cuckoo first calls, that the ensuing season will be full of calamity; to be on soft ground is a lucky omen.

Of Interest to People on the the Hilltop and Vicinity

Vol. 8. The Hilltop, Columbus, Ohio, July 17, 1924 No. 15

Rousing Interest in Hilltop Picnic

Never before has there been such an interest taken in the annual picnic of the Hilltop Improvement Association and never have committees been worked liked the present ones.

There will be more stunts than ever before and the list of prizes will fill a whole column of this paper and will take several trucks to haul them to the grounds.

All the prizes will be right on the grounds at the picnic and will be given at once to the winners, and they will run from a diamond ring to a ton of coal. You can take the coal home with you and the diamond ring will be delivered or vice versa, just as you please.

The Hilltop band will give their services to make an enjoyable afternoon.

All the stores will close at noon Wednesday, July 23rd, and every Hilltopper will be found at Glenwood Park for the rest of the day.

The merchants of the Hilltop and all the members of the Hilltop Improvement Association will parade over the Hilltop Monday evening, July 21st, so that no one will have any excuse for going any other place on Wednesday, July 23rd.

---

The Hilltop Band will kindly donate their services at the Hilltop picnic next Wednesday at Glenwood Park. Mr. Shockey wishes us to mention that all members of the band will have a rehearsal the last of the week and first of next week. Call him for information.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

The Hilltop Daily Vacation Bible School has been privileged this week to boast of the largest enrollment of any school in the city. Wednesday morning a special treat in the form of the phonograph concert of sacred records and familiar airs was given thru the courtesy of Mr. G. T. Cooper, Brunswick dealer on the Hilltop. The children enjoyed every minute of the concert. On Thursday they were the guests of Mr. William James at the James Theatre, as were all the schools in the city. The program of Bible stories, songs, handwork and special features will be continued until Aug. 8th. Children 4 to 14 are urged to enroll.

Next week at 1 P. M. the children will go to see "Alice Adams" at the James Theatre free of charge. Something is given every week of a special nature in addition to all their handwork and full program at the school. The school meets at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church every morning at 9 o'clock and is conducted by the Glenwood M. E. and Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Churches.

---

The Haunts family reunion will take place at the county fair grounds at London, Ohio, on July 27th. All relatives and friends on the Hilltop are invited.

THIS YEAR'S CHAUTAUQUA BEST EVER PRESENTED

Chautauqua and the Home

The home is the cornerstone of all civilization, and the most sacred spot on earth, yet our home will either reflect our social contact, or vice versa.

Outside of the home, I would consider the Christian churches the greatest influence and balancing power between the two great contending forces of good and evil.

We have in our schools a great and moving intellectual force wrestling in a masterful way with the increasing complexities of a modern civilization.

With the rapid development of the age, one of our greatest problems is to furnish a social program that will act as a stabiliser to the mind and body, the reflection to a foundation on which future generations may build, the single standard for humankind.

Geographically speaking, and as a part of a great and growing city, we have a great future as a community, to do even greater things in the future, than in the past. The individual, community, city or institution that lives in the present, with a future assured, is the one that thinks in terms of things well done.

We have as a community placed our endorsement upon such an institution, in seeking the Redpath Chautauqua to bring to our midst the talent and wholesome influence they command. They are bringing to us this season one of the best programs that was ever offered to any community.

Anyone who passes up the opportunity offered the seven days—July 27 to August 2, inclusive, for a real entertaining and uplifting liberal education for the sum of $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children, is losing something vital not to be found elsewhere with the same influences for character and community building.

You will find here the best that the lecture platform has to offer, and the unvarnished truths on questions of vital importance. The institution is non-sectarian, intensely patriotic and spiritual in its foundation.

The value alone of cementing community interest and not becoming too cliquish, making new acquaintances, and being alive and equal to the biggest and best things, is worth all the effort we can put behind it.

The task of the committee, the community's representatives, becomes much easier, and a real pleasure when active support is in evidence. Let us all as Hilltop boosters, alive to the best interests of a clean and growing community, rise to the occasion and continue to deserve, demand and obtain the things worth our mettle.

By O. H. CHAFT, President,
Hilltop Chautauqua Association 1924.

---

The following is a list of campaign workers for the Hilltop Chautauqua beginning July 27:

Donald Latham of 87 Belvidere Ave. will captain and have charge of Lechner, Wrexham, Fairmont and Floral Avenues.

J. W. Wright of 242 Nashoba Ave. will have charge of Nashoba and Columbia Avenues.

Mrs. Walter Howell, 2055 Sullivant Ave. will have charge of all Sullivant Avenue.

Donald Webb, the insurance man, will captain a team of workers and canvass Belvidere, Midland, Clarendon and S. Eureka.

F. F. or Jack Shank of 130 South Richardson Ave. will captain a division of workers and canvass S. Wheatland, S. Oakley and So. Park.

A. F. Elliott, the shoe man, will assume the responsibility of seeing to it that Whitethorne Ave. is thoroughly canvassed.

Rev. Stimmel, pastor Glenwood M. E. Church, will have charge of Highland Avenue.

Fred Ault of 107 N. Eureka Ave. will canvass S. Terrace.

C. J. Kohn, the undertaker, will canvass S. Richardson.

J. V. Jordan of 159 S. Burress will have charge of S. Burgess Ave.

W. L. Roller of 129 S. Burgess Ave. will captain the Engineers Division and have charge of S. Ogden, S. Warren, S. Harris and S. Hague.

A. C. Skipper of 838 N. Eureka Ave. will captain the Plumbers team and have charge of N. Wheatland, N. Oakley, N. Park and N. Eureka Aves.

Rev. J. N. Johnston, pastor Hilltop Church of Christ, will have charge of Eldon Ave.

Rev. E. E. McFarlane, pastor Hill Crest Baptist Church, will have charge of No. Terrace St.

Mrs. J. C. Close of 189 N. Burgess Ave. will captain the Women's division and have chare of N. Burgess, N. Ogden, N. Warren, N. Harris and N. Hague Avenues.

C. D. Hardesty of 104 N. Powell Ave. will work Powell Ave., north and south.

Herbert Deems of 89 North Bureas Ave. will assume responsibility for Camp Chase, Broadview and surrounding territory.

C. B. Story, the bakery on wheels, will solicit rural territory.

C. C. Davis of 70 S. Eureka Ave. will have charge of State Hospital.

Rev. Richard E. Shields, pastor of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church, will have charge of all residences on both sides of Broad Street from Lechner Ave. to Hague Ave.

S. E. Poole of 2455 W. Broad St., secretary of the Association, and another good insurance man will have charge of the business houses on Broad Street and Sullivant Ave.

Dr. Howard Whitehead has a bunch of tickets and as usual can be depended on to dispose of them.

T. S. Sharp of 224 Eldon Ave. will have charge of the Construction crews.

The writer will find some place to work if nothing more than to help Bert Elliott count the money as it comes in.

With such a representative organization alive to the best interest of the Hilltop and community, we should go over the top before the gates open. Let's go. The tickets are on hand at Elliott's and Bidwell's Shoe Store. Those taking tickets are responsible to Mr. Elliott, the treasurer of the association, for the value of same in money or the return of the tickets. Those who are acting as captains and have under them assistant workers, are responsible for all tickets given out to them for their respective territories.

Hilltop Chautauqua Campaign Com.
By O. H. Craft, Chairman.

Big Parade

The largest parade ever held on the Hilltop will be staged before the people gathered at the park next Wednesday morning. The line of march will be from in front of the park on Broad Street, west to Hague Avenue and countermarch to the park. Parade will form at 10 A. M. and start promptly at 10:30 A. M. First division will consist of the Hilltop Band leading the parade with every business man on the Hilltop having a truck or horse-drawn vehicle used in business every day.

Second division will be all automobiles owned on the Hilltop carrying owners and friends to the largest gathering ever held at Glenwood Park.

For announcements for the parade see W. E. Draper, builder and contractor; Donald Webb of Dolby & Webb, insurance, or H. R. Gibson, Home Producers' Milk Co.

---

Mrs. Susan Koons, 123 N. Warren Avenue, is spending two weeks with her sister in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Twenty scouts of Troop 21 and the scoutmaster, R. C. Kadel, will leave Sunday morning for a two weeks' camp in Fairfield County. The camp will be located on the farm of the Logan Gas Company, with which corporation Mr. Kadel has been connected for the past seven years. This is the third annual summer camp conducted by this troop. Two years ago they hiked from Chillicothe to Washington C. H., Ohio. Last year the camp was conducted at Rockyfork Caves and Greenfield, Ohio. This year's camp will be located near Sugar Grove and a very extensive program has been planned, including hikes to Crystal Springs, Rock Bridge, Jacob's Ladder, the Boys' Industrial School and Mt. Pleasant, and several other places of interest in that vicinity. Mr. J. W. Montgomery is going along as assistant camp director.

Meeting of Eleventh Ward Republican Club

There was a good meeting of the 11th Ward Republican Club at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dolby on South Richardson Avenue on Monday night and about 25 were present.

Talks were given by Walton Weber and E. B. Taylor who are candidates for the legislature, and R. Bruce Bidwell, Stanley Colburn, candidates for sheriff and county treasurer, along with Mr. Christian who is candidate for committeeman for the 11th Ward were also on hand.

The matter of getting out the full Republican vote was given plenty of attention and various methods were discussed.

The next meeting will be held on Friday evening, July 25th, at the residence of Mrs. Johnson at 41 North Terrace Avenue. Don't forget that Levi Johnson will be more than glad to say "howde" to his old-time friends and to meet any new acquaintances who are getting active in the 11th Ward Republican Club.

Holder's Helpful Hints

Every merchant seeks to display his merchandise to the very best advantage. Goods are arranged in an artistic design in the windows by a man well paid for that work. Everything that can be done to arouse the buyer's interest is done.

If you want to sell your property, make it attractive. Make it so attractive you may change your mind and want to keep it. If you allow it to run down, that shows you don't care for it and don't want to hold on to it. When you allow your place to show you don't want it, you have no right to expect anyone else to want it either.

Keep the lawn well mowed, have little flower beds, have nice trees and shrubbery, keep the fences in repair and well painted. Keep the back yard neat and clean, and always have a nice little vegetable garden. If the back yard is large have a few fruit trees like peaches and cherries. Small fruit like currants and gooseberries. These all have a tendency to show you built or bought the place for a home and expected to stay there. It takes time, money and no little care to make your yard a real selling point about the home, but all the time you are waiting for some one to buy, you draw dividends in real satisfaction and good fruit and vegetables that you are absolutely sure are fresh.

The real estate man likes to take the customer all around your house first, before he takes them inside. It makes a great difference in the mind of the prospective buyer, if you can arouse real interest before he steps inside the house. And as a rule if the back yard is neatly kept, the inside of the house will be attractive. Many a house with a "Queen Anne Front" has a "Mary Ann Back," but if the owner is enough interested in his own property to keep the fence corners clear of rubbish and tin cans and weeds out of the garden and the tin cans out of the alley, he or she is generally found to be living in a neatly kept house.

Whenever the outside appearance of your place indicates not merely a house, but a home, you create in the prospect a desire to have the place. It is human to want what another has and wants to keep, so keep what you have as though you did not want to let go of it. And it won't stop the sale if you show that sentiment plainly in an inaudible manner. Say, "yes we'll sell," but act like you don't want to very much.

Everybody do their best to make the Hilltop the best place to live in Columbus, then boost.

Fill Your Coal Bin Now

After the lessons of the last eight years the unwisdom of taking chances on the winter supply of coal ought to be apparent to every householder, and the warning of the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life of the danger that attends waiting until cold arrives before stocking up the family coal bin ought not to fall upon deaf ears. The commission has been looking into the fuel situation and finds that, while there is a large stock of anthracite in the yards of the Massachusetts dealers, larger than at this time last year, the number of consumers who have purchased all or a part of their next winter's supply is much less than in previous years.

This situation is bad in several respects. For one thing, it threatens to flood the dealers in the fall with more orders than they can handle with promptness, causing delay in deliveries at the time the fuel is most needed. Then the failure of coal to move reasonably rapidly from the mines to the consumers in the summer time always results in a curtailment of production. The more coal the dealers sell and deliver in the summer the more they can order from the mines and the more production is stimulated. Owing to the holding off of buyers, the commission finds, there has been a reduction of 10 per cent in production this year, and unless this is made up before winter serious consequences will result. It may bring about a scarcity of coal for prompt delivery after the first fall rush is over, and it may result in manipulation of prices, to the disadvantage of the late buyers.

The only sure way to escape these evils is to buy coal now, as much of the winter's supply as one can pay for. The dealers are well stocked for this time of year, they have the men and the equipment to make prompt deliveries, and now is the time to take advantage of this favorable situation. Nothing will be gained by waiting. There is not, as the Commission on the Necessaries of Life points out, the slightest possibility of a lower price later on. On the contrary, the price, if it changes, is likely to rise. And if consumers delay too long in putting in their orders the price may rise higher than they will relish. The sensible thing to do is to fill your coal bin now.—Springfield Mass.) Union.

GREAT DAY FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Andy Duval

Do you believe in fairy stories? Do you have doubts concerning Aladdin and his wonderful lamp? Well, it's not to be wondered at. If there existed such a character who could do such astounding things, no one now living ever saw him. He belongs to "once upon a time" and "happily ever after."

But if Aladdin is a thing of the past, magic and mystery are not, as the Duval Brothers will show at chautauqua. They need no lamp, but use only their own ingenuity and skillful fingers. Masters of wizardry and magic, they present many amusing novelties. The phantom screen, the bowl of Wang Foo, magical horticulture and a mind reading travesty are a few of the many astounding features on their program. Their rag pictures are surprisingly made.

Owner of "Pearl" Took Long Chance, but Won

An important connoisseur recently found in Paris, after a great deal of searching, an immense black pearl, a glorious thing with pink and purple lights in its dusky depths. He brought it to this country and took it to a widely known jeweler to have it set. A few days later the head of the firm sent for him.

"Mr. Z," he said, after they were seated in the invariable little office, "I'm afraid I've got something very disagreeable to tell you. I believe your black pearl is an imitation."

"Why," laughed Mr. Z, "That's impossible! I paid $100,000 for it at your own Paris house."

"Nevertheless," said the jeweler, "I do not think it is genuine. And there's just one way to find out—it seems to be such a perfect thing. If you are a very good sport you will let us crack it open. If it is the imitation we believe it to be, we will assume the responsibility for our Paris house and replace it. If it is real—well, you lose."

"Crack away," decided Mr. Z, after a slight pause.

The pearl was imitation.—Katherine Sproehule and Jane Grant in the Saturday Evening Post.

Mount Athos' Famous Monastery Destroyed

The famous monastery of Chilandari, on Mount Athos, built in the Middle ages, has been destroyed by fire. Mount Athos, the "Holy Mountain," gives its name to the northernmost of those peninsulas which extend like a three-pronged fork from Greece into the Aegean sea. It contains several monasteries and hermitages standing amid magnificent scenery. Access to some of the monasteries overlooking the sea is so difficult that visitors have been drawn up in a sack-shaped contrivance operated by rope. Chilandari monastery is famous for a most valuable MS. of the Gospels in gold letters on white vellum, probably given by the Emperor of Andronicus Comnenus about 1184, and a treasure chest containing valuable specimens of Serbian ecclesiastical art. In 1910 Chilandari was raided by Bulgarian monks from the neighboring monastery of Zographou.

Caught a Monkey Stealing

One day in 1910 a well-dressed man, wearing a heavy overcoat, entered a jeweler's shop in London and asked to be shown some valuable rings. Those shown him, he said, were not quite good enough, and he asked to be shown another tray. As the attendant went to get it he glanced in the mirror specially set to show the counter when his back was turned, and, to his amazement, saw a long, hairy arm suddenly come out of the customer's pocket, seize a couple of rings, and vanish.

Assistance was quickly summoned, and the man and monkey arrested. His rooms were found filled with all sorts of valuable objects which had been stolen by this clever monkey.

Elephants at Work

In Burma there are large lumber mills, and elephants are used for rolling the logs into position for the saws, an exchange says. Pushing with their heads, they run the logs up two inclined skids to the platform; two elephants do the pushing and a third elephant acts as boss. In his trunk the boss carries a few links of anchor chain, which he uses as a whip if one elephant falls behind.

When the whistle blows they all know that it is time to stop work and eat. It makes no difference whether they have a log within a fraction of an inch of the platform; the boss drops his anchor chain and gets out of the way, and the pushers step to one side and let the log crash.

Buckskin

Buckskin, from which gloves are made, for the most part comes from Mexico and Brazil. The skins are usually smaller than those of sheep, and seldom perfect, because of the wounds or thorn scratches. The latter do not weaken the gloves, however, and, in fact, a visible scratch is pretty good proof that a glove is genuine buckskin. The leather is dressed in oil and the color is obtained with colored clay dust. Because of this method of coloring, every buckskin glove will dust off or crack the first three or four times it is worn. Buck leather is close fibered, soft after wearing and warm.

Farewell, Old Scout

Roaring Rip—Ki, whoop! At last I'm goin' boys! Bury me deep—if yer find me dead!

Piute Pete—What is Roarin' Rip goin'?

Prairie Rat—Well, yer see, Hurricane Gal has turned down all the boys ever proposed marriage, now Rip is goin' ter take a chance. Fetch out the picks an' shovels, boys. Dig the grave deep. Poor ol' Rip.

Tragic

Little George came to his mother apparently in great distress of mind.

"Why, what is the matter, sonny boy?" she sympathetically inquired.

"Well, mother, I'm in an awful fix. I can't decide whether to marry Mary or Ethel when I grow up. You see, Mary is awful pretty, but (here was a long meditative pause) Ethel has a motor car!"

Moslem Fast of Ramazan

In the Moslem world Passion Sunday corresponds with the first day of the month-long fast of Ramazan. During Ramazan, western customs, where they have been adopted, are set aside, and the more primitive native manners revived. The muezzin supplements his usual announcement of the hour of prayer with the exhortation: "Give food, O ye faithful, unto the orphan and the poor, the wayfarer and the boatman," and though the wealthy do not now, as in former days, stand at their doors and invite the needy to a well-laden table, Ramazan remains a time of peace, charity and hospitality.

Compound Interest

We often hear that Peter Minuet in 1626 paid the Indians only $24 for Manhattan Island. We are apt to think of this as a ridiculously small sum for what is today the most valuable piece of land of its size in the world; but we do not stop to think that if this original $24 had been invested by Peter Minuet at the rate of 7 per cent per annum and compounded every six months to date, it would have earned a sum equivalent to the assessed value of the entire city of New York, so it is said, including its streets, sewers, railways, subways, theaters, hotels, skyscrapers and palatial homes.—Thrift Magazine.

Birth of Christ

The Christian era was first figured out in about 532 by a monk named Dionysius Exiguus. At that time the actual date of Christ's birth was only a matter of speculation. Later, when the calendar took more definite form, the birth of Christ was put on the 25th of December, but it was found to be impractical to change the date of the era which was already fairly well established. As a matter of fact, it is now believed that Jesus was born three or four years before the beginning of the era known as the Christian. So we have the anomalous fact that Christ was born about four years B. C. But the exact date of Christ's birth is unknown.

Lion of Lucerne

The Lion of Lucerne is a famous piece of sculpture by Albert Therwaldsen, commemorating the heroism and devotion of nearly eight hundred Swiss guards, who died to save Louis XVI, in the attack on the Tuileries, August 10, 1792. The colossal figure of the crouching lion, transfixed and dying, but still faithfully defending the shield of France, is carved in a recess in the face of an upright, vine-draped rock in a little park at Lucerne, Switzerland. A commemorative inscription, with the names of the officers killed, is cut in the rock.

Perspiration of Dogs

Dogs sweat or perspire very little. The physiological purpose of perspiration seems to be the regulation of the temperature of the body. But in the case of the dog, as well as many other animals, the body temperature is regulated by respiration. After running a dog breathes more rapidly—pants. This has the same cooling effect as sweating would have.

Mark Twain's Reason for Not Asking Loan

Dr. Clarence C. Rice of New York, who introduced Mark Twain to H. H. Rogers in 1894, when the fortunes of the writer had failed, and thus got the American humorist back on his feet financially, has told of his acquaintance with Mark Twain as a patient, says a writer in the Mentor.

According to Doctor Rice, Mark Twain was never seriously ill till the final illness. Doctor Rice writes: "Mark Twain was never ill—just colds. I would take his temperature occasionally, but he generally insisted that is was only a bluff and that the thermometer was put in his mouth to keep him from talking. He told me that old yarn of the patient who obtained a prescription from his physician and, after looking at the paper, asked how much the medicine would cost. When the doctor told him that it would cost about $8 the patient requested the physician to loan him the $2. The indignant doctor finally said: 'Here are the $2; give me the prescription. I want to make an alteration. I'm scratching out the nerve tonic; you won't need that.' Mark Twain observed: 'I have always admired that man. That was a noble piece of graft. I have thought of trying the game on you, but I've never seen the time when I thought you had the $2.'"

Son Took the Wind Out of Dad's Sails

A shrewd old Yankee who had accumulated a fortune by strict economy, noticed his son had spent carfare to go a few blocks and deemed the expense a foolish one. That evening after dinner he called his son into the library, saying he wished to speak with him. "But first," he said, "I will turn down the light; we can talk just as well in the dark and it will save gas." As he went on explaining the value of economy he heard a fumbling and shuffling from the direction of his son's chair. Stopping his lecture he inquired: "Sam, what are you doing?"

"Father," came from the darkness, "I can hear just as well without 'em, so while we are sitting here in the dark I'm taking off my trousers to save 'em."

For the rest of the evening economics were not discussed.—Boston Transcript.

Doll's House for Czar

When a young man of twenty-four, Peter the Great of Russia went to Holland. He was working at different jobs so as to be better fitted to become ruler of Russia. In Utrecht he saw a miniature doll's house, furnished down to the minutest detail. In the library were paintings two inches square. Cabinets were filled with thumb-high porcelains from Japan. Special carpets were manufactured for this house, and the finest was woven in Flanders.

Peter the Great took a great fancy to this tiny palace and offered any price for one like it. The builder, a retired merchant, would not accept money for his handiwork, but offered to make one as a gift to the young czar. The Lilliputian mansion, completed after 25 years of labor, is now in the royal museum, Amsterdam, says Mentor Magazine.

Get Her Clock Back

In "My Garden of Memory," Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, the famous authoress, tells a story of the time when she was the guest of some friends, and was kept from sleeping by the ticking of a clock in her bedroom. Finally, she had to place the clock among some blankets in a drawer. Leaving early next morning, she forgot to tell the maid about the clock, writes Puck in London Tit-Bits.

Three months afterward, in Germany she remembered it. She would have cabled, but it seemed bizarre to say, after an interval of many months: "Clock buried in guest room between blankets in bottom drawer. Impossible to sleep with it! Forgive!"

Instead, she wrote, and by reply came word from her former hostess that her new chambermaid had searched for and recovered the clock.

The toad-stone is generally described as a species of black pebble of no especial beauty as an ornament. During the Dark ages, however, it was in great demand. It was supposed to protect children from the molestation of fairies and to cure kidney and stomach troubles.

That a common toad wears a precious jewel in its head was a profound belief in the Middle ages. Its possessor was supposed to be immune from toothache, so the legend runs, and it was a sure antidote for poisons. These creatures were said to forewarn against venom by transmitting a smarting sensation to the flesh. The toad was credited with having a natural fear and antipathy for man as well as for all venomous reptiles, hence its warning.

The Word "Jovial"

The word "jovial" conceals the name of Jupiter, or Jove. A "jovial" person is theoretically, at least, a person born under the influence of the planet Jupiter, or Jove.

This planet was supposed to be the most joyful of all the planets to be born under, just as Saturn is the least joyful.

Gradually the word "jovial" became dissociated from the astrological significance and was generally applied to persons who indicated the quality of joyfulness ascribed to birth under a joyful planet.

Thus many a word in the English language, in common use, traces its origin to mystic beginnings and beliefs in the darkness of past ages.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Birds as Prophets

In early days superstitious people paid considerable attention to the birds and their different cries, which were believed to foretell events. Thus comes the old saying: "A little bird told me." Traces of this belief are to be found in our own Old Testament, where verse 20 of chapter 10 of Ecclesiastes speaks of "for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter." It is generally agreed that it is from this belief in the universal knowledge of birds, which, of course, are supposed to see everything from the sky—that we get this saying.

In the Highlands

Mornings of heavenly freshness on the trail, canyons on canyons, peaks beyond peaks, ridges beyond ridges; sweet scents of balsam and pine; stormy sunrises and wistful sunsets; lakes lying blue in hidden hollows or trembling to sudden silver as the wind went by—quiet lyings awake at night, solemn glories of sunset peaks; communions with friendly trees; chatterings of brooks; singings of creeks, and roarings of rivers; ghostly snow-glimmer by starlight; peaks in solemn ranks against the sky.—J. Smeaton Chase.

THREE-ACT CHAUTAUQUA PLAY FULL OF HILARIOUS SITUATIONS

SCENE FROM "GIVE AND TAKE"

"Give and Take," announced for Chautauqua, is a play full of chuckles and laughter, yet just beneath the mirth there is an undercurrent of tears. Action is centered around a California fruit cannery and the business troubles of its owner, John Bauer. The rich fruit canner has few interests in life except the cannery and his son Jack. He has little faith in any one except his foreman, Albert Kruger, and Kruger's daughter, Marion.

Tenseness of situation develops when Bauer's placid life is stirred by the return of his son Jack from college. Imbued with ideals of an economic democracy, Jack is determined to reorganize his father's factory on a plan in which the employees are to be equal partners with the owner. The workers, and even the trusted foreman, Kruger, become enthused with Jack's idea.

A strike is threatened, business is slow, and old "Bullhead" Bauer is forced to accede to his son's wishes. The ups and downs of the business under its democratic regime are most amusing. Finally, Daniel Drum, the firm's banker, refuses to renew a note, and all concerned face ruin.

Brightness comes, however, in the person of Thomas Craig, a millionaire who acclaims Bauer "The Lincoln of the Age." He gives the firm a large order and all are rejoicing when it is learned that the contract maker has been adjudged insane by a New York court. The largest order the firm ever received is, of course, repudiated.

Nevertheless, ringing true to its name of "comedy," the play ends well after all. Craig finally appears as a mentally well balanced millionaire, the victim of designing relatives, his order to the firm is made good, and the curtain falls with the economic democracy forgotten. All are absorbed in the interests of making a record production.

All reading notices, news items, communications and want ads for the Hilltop Record MUST be in this office not later than 11 o'clock Wednesday a. m. to insure publication in that week's issue.

If you don't get one of our bills this week, call us and we will send you one. Hanna Grocery and Meat Markets.

Big Time at Hilltop Picnic

One of the nicest and largest parades was held on the Hilltop Wednesday preceding the annual picnic at Glenwood Park. The parade was made up of machines of Hilltop business firms and were mostly very prettily decorated. The Hilltop band headed the parade. There were about 100 autos and trucks and 20 horse-drawn wagons.

Being a fine day, the park was crowded with pleasure seekers, being the largest crowd ever in the park. The contests were taken part in by folks of all ages, the great number of valuable prizes distributed to their various winners. Great credit should be given to the committee of the Improvement Association who worked tirelessly every day to make the affair a success.

We will give a better account of the day next week, also full account of the prize winners and contest winners.

Holder's Helpful Hints

Have you not noticed certain men whose clothes though not of the latest cut, were nevertheless, so neat, trim, well kept and evidenced such good taste, that the wearer always appeared "well dressed"?

The same judgment is required in getting good paint, properly selected as to shade, etc., rightly put on in a workmanlike manner by a competent painter and well cared for by the owner, if the attractive "homey" appearance of that 12 or 15-year-old house is to be made a selling point.

There are always enough people of good taste and sound judgment in the market to buy "homes" rather than houses, to make it worth while to keep up the outward appearance of the "Old Home."

Many a sound piece of property has missed a sale because the owner did not want to give it a needed coat of paint or failed to replace a rotted board in the front porch or steps. Just a little thing. Just a trifle. "But trifles make PERFECTION, and that is no trifle."

So much for the outside appearance of your home. Now for the inside. Be sure the wall paper is tasty and clean, and take pains to keep the floors and finish clean and bright. The tan and light shades of paper are to be preferred over the rich darker shades in the average home, as they conduce to a cheerful disposition, and are more pleasing to the eye. Don't overlook the value of ferns and blooming plants about the house and front porch. Natural finish is usually much better than the dark stains and the enamels, though these latter have their places too in every house. And even the chirp of a good canary singer adds to the charm of any home.

Whenever possible good screens should be provided, and while it costs a little to provide them in place of the cheap ready-made screens, the results always justify the expense.

Some one will say "this is going to a lot of expense and trouble just to sell your house." That is correct, but don't forget it makes life more livable for you, while the sale is made more certain, and don't forget that if you want the right price for your home, you must have your home right for the price. It won't do to tell a prospective buyer "it will be alright and look O. K. when you put a little paint on it, paper this room or refinish this part or repair that."

People buying houses have to avoid all possible expense after the sale or at any rate they feel that way about it, so it is up to you to show that property is worth enough to you to spend a little on it if you want to get the right price for it, and want to make the real estate man a zealous salesman of your place.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Churton and Curtis and Paul of 251 South Burgess Smart of Huntington, W. Va., were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Isabel Burnside, 92 North Powell Avenue. Paul Churton who has been visiting at the home of his grandmother for the past three weeks returned with his parents Monday.

Miss Annie Scott of Sainesville is a guest at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Isabel Burnside, 92 North Powell Ave.

Misses Cora and Minnie Schilling of 391 Midland Avenue have returned from an extended tour of the South and East. Among the cities visited were Chattanooga, Tampa, Jacksonville, Savannah, Charleston, Richmond and Washington, D. C. Miss Bertha Schilling who accompanied her sisters on the former part of the journey, has remained in Tampa where she expects to stay for several weeks.

Mrs. P. B. McCloud, Paul, Leona, Gertrude McCloud and Helen Colvin motored to Cleveland Saturday morning, where they spent a few days with Mrs. M. E. Barber. They returned by the way of Cedar Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCabe and Miss Regina Downs of Xenia, O., visited over the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, 87 South Ogden Avenue.

Miss Leona McCloud, 93 N. Eureka Avenue, is spending a three weeks' vacation at Cleveland, Ohio, where she is visiting Mrs. M. E. Barber.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Denham have moved into their new home, corner of North Eureka Avenue and Steele Ave.

Mrs. Richard Case is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Curtis, in Cleveland.

Charles Kurtzhals of Swarthmore, Philadelphia, visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kurtzhals, over the week-end. Mr. Kurtzhals is in Ohio as superintendent on the Colonial Five Circuit of the Swarthmore Chautauqua. His lecture subjects are "Guarding Our American Ideals" and "African Travel Tales."

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Hyde, who have been visiting their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Budd, 97 N. Terrace St., left on Friday motoring through to their home in Omaha, Nebraska. Mr. and Mrs. Budd accompanied them as far as Osceola, Iowa, where they will visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Roberts and sons Mrs. John Gill of 261 South Burgess, Avenue and Mr. Roberts' mother. It's wise to ignore party ties and place left early Saturday morning for northern Michigan. They will be gone for a period of ten days.

Rev. and Mrs. Clayton Judy of Salem, Oregon, with their three sons, John, Clayton Jr. and Charles, are guests at the United Brethren parsonage on Warren Avenue this week. Mrs. Judy is the sister of Rev. Wallin Riebel, the pastor of Burgess Avenue U. B. Church.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFaden

(The writer of "Health Hints" hereby expresses his thanks for the kind words given him from time to time from interested readers. The re-appearance of the present article is because of a call for more copies, and as both author and publisher would emphasize its doctrines the indulgence of the Record readers is hereby asked.)

Mother's Responsibility

We, who have learned to choose and eat foods because of their proven value, are pained daily when we observe others, especially the young, catering to their tastes alone. Must 90 per cen tof the people first lose their health by indifference and indiscretion and only learn better ways as they build themselves up by reform methods? It may be so, for the line of least resistance is the easiest followed. This suggests the enormous responsibility of the house wife, who, more than anybody else, forms the gastronomic tastes of her family. If she follows the line of least resistance she will most likely do as her mother did and imitate her faults as well as her virtues, which will in turn be passed on to future generations. If every mother in the land could and would learn how to choose the most wholesome foods and the best way to cook them, the world's progress in every way would not be so slow because every member of every family would come nearer being 100 per cent efficient.

It makes a difference to the children in school, to the young people, to the father and to the mother herself, in their daily grind, whether the breakfast is intelligently planned and cooked or carelessly thrown together. It makes a difference whether the various members of the family go forth each day fortified with an impetus for further achievement, or with a reckless, don't-care attitude, which, when often reproduced, makes criminals. The attitude of the mother, here, is most valuable and that involves her culinary contributions to the welfare of her family.

Reorganization and reform by any mother need not necessarily be drastic. In fact it may well be insidious, gradual, camouflaged. Let her have workable convictions of the superior value of whole wheat flour, for instance, as compared with white flour. Then, without necessarily discussing the matter, make and serve more bran muffins, oatmeal and graham and whole wheat bread than formerly. The appetites can be carefully watched and so cultivated as to create a demand for these foods without arbitrary methods.

Likewise, in getting away from fried food habits, let her oftener serve potatoes baked or boiled with the jackets on, and stew other vegetables served with the most valuable part—the syrup in which they are cooked.

And, why shouldn't she take an interest in parent-teachers or other clubs which will, at times, secure the lessons or lectures of food specialists or expert health cooks for community benefit?

Next to our breathing, the choice of food and manner of cooking and eating are the most important of our body processes. Three times a day, through our natural lives, we are the happy or unfortunate victims of the food manufacturers and those who do our cooking. The food manufacturers with their "East more meat" and "Eventually, Why Not Now," ads, are in it for the most money and they must be watched, and therein lies the opportunity and responsibility of the housewives, for they are our mediators. It is said that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. This means, also, that the women are the makers of destiny for the men—if they will.

HILLTOP BOWLERS

The Gettrost Recreation Co. advised the committee, there will be reserved six alleys on the third floor at 8:15 P. M., Gay and Front Streets, same as last year. There have been some remarks made among the bowlers that the league should have eight teams. If there is anyone interested and can make up two more teams, please advise any one of the committee on arrangements within 3 or 4 weeks. Committee, Fred Raether, Marvin Millikin, Dr. Pletcher.

THE CIVIC PROGRAM OF THE RECORD

Now that adequate sewerage is assured in a short time for the Hilltop, we urge everyone on the Hilltop to become intensely interested in the following:

1st—The vacation of those streets west of Powell and south of Olive Street that will enable us to have a acre plot for the new West High School. This is now before council and our fellow Hilltopper, Cecil J. Randall, wants your support for this measure.

2nd—Repaving of West Broad St. from the west line of the grounds of the Feeble Minded Institute to Hague Avenue. The present condition of the paving is a disgrace and creates a very bad impression of Columbus in the mind of the tourist from the West as well as causing expense and danger to autos and the public.

3rd—Cut all weeds down on vacant lots on the Hilltop and see that we get all rubbish out of our yards and into containers in the alleys, and then insist on having the city department haul it away at regular intervals. Keep the alleys clean, and if they are full of mud, cooperate with your neighbors and either fill them in with gravel or cinders.

4th—Grade down the hill in front of the recreation house in Glenwood Park, and particularly along Broad Street just east of the dugout and put the surplus dirt down in the tourist camp to fill up the mosquito breeding bog that always is there after spring rains.

5th—Have the speeding of automobiles on the narrow side streets on the Hilltop stopped before somebody's child is run down, or a collision at the corner of some street and Broad occurs in which somebody is killed.

6th—Keep up the fine community spirit of neighborhood cooperation that the Hilltop picnic has shown, carry it right through the Chautauqua and keep it up without let or hindrance.

ENDORSED BY HILLTOP UNION

Mr. Russell P. Grigg, being a resident and citizen of Columbus, Ohio, and residing at 215 Whitethorne Ave., is a candidate on the Republican ticket for committeeman from the 11th Ward and has asked for the support of the Republican party at the primaries to be held August 12, 1924.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, by the Hilltop W. C. T. U. "of which Mr. Gregg is an honorary member," that we hereby endorse him and that we commend him to the voters of the 11th Ward as a true Republican, of upright character and of fearless and outstanding courage.

Resolved further, that this Union tender him its support and will make every effort to secure his election.

The prospects for a successful Chautauqua are very bright. Reports coming from solicitors so far are most encouraging. The two Sunday sessions will be free. Westgate chorus will not sing, but a musical program has been arranged, together with one of the best lectures of the entire week. W. B. Dolby and R. B Bidwell will have charge, and see that good order is kept. A section close up to the platform has been reserved for the elderly and hard of hearing folks. The management has new equipment and there should be no danger or inconvenience from storms.

Get your season tickets early, and urge your friends and acquaintances to do likewise. By so doing, you get them cheaper than if you wait and buy them from the Chautauqua management, and also assist the Association committee in putting over a complete program, reflecting the cooperative efforts of the Hilltop.

Yours very truly,
O. H. CRAFT

Chautauqua a Treat for All

Seventeen events, as follows, are crowded into the seven-day program for the Hilltop Chautauqua beginning July 27th and ending August 2nd. These consist of six musical numbers, two plays, five lecturers and four diversions. A season ticket makes these attractions cost about 15 cents each, whereas if attended by paying single admissions they would cost about $3.

Some of the musical attractions deserving special mention are Elsie Baker, the DiGiorgia Family Orchestra, the Hollybrooke Harpists and Vierra's Hawaiians. Among the lecturers are Dr. Thomas E. Green and Judge Geo. D. Alden, each with more than twenty years of platform experience. The two comedies, "Give and Take" and "The Meanest Man in the World," alone are worth the price of a season ticket judging from the success of these plays in the theatrical world.

Mr. Root and his bees, Miss Hansen in her dress demonstration are some of the other numbers of special interest to many Chautauqua goers.

Upon entering the Chautauqua tent some very pleasant changes will be noted among which will be a new grand piano on the stage, a new lighting arrangement for the stage and tent, and an entirely new color scheme in the stage curtain and draperies.

Just a word to Hilltop voters. Republicans and Democrats and all other parties—Every voter, don't you think its wise to ignore party ties and place in office men and women of character—of known integrity? Certainly you do. Then go to the primaries August 12th and cast your vote for Mrs. Viola D. Romans, as state representative. She is worthy and fully competent, well educated in books and travel, the very best type of noble womanhood, well fitted in every way for this position of trust. As we have five to be nominated in our county, it is but fair that one should be a woman and that one, noble among the noblest, of Franklin County's women, Viola D. Romans.

Keep the date in mind, August 12, 1924, and don't fail to cast your vote. —A Reader.

If you have any part of your household goods that needs repairs, makes no difference what it is, call Hilltop 3612-J. You will then get a first-class job done.

The Marathon class of Hope Memorial Church will hold a big lawn fete on the evening of July 25 on the church lawn. Ice cream and cake, pop and Coco-Cola, water melon. Everybody come.

Mrs. Andrews of Murray City has returned to her home after spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Willis Toohey.

Anna Curley has been spending a few days in Linden with her aunt.

Miss Edna Ruddock of 14 South Warren Avenue is spending two weeks in Marietta as the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Morrell.

Westgate Lodge Lays Cornerstone

Tribute was paid to Camp Chase by former Governor James E. Campbell Saturday afternoon, July 19th, when, as the grand orator of the grand lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Ohio, he delivered the principal address at the laying of the cornerstone of the new West Gate Temple.

Saturday afternoon, July 19th, when, history has crystallized, and when the world war becomes ancient history, there will be thousands who will visit this location, because it had a part in the civil war, by which the nation was made enduring forever," the former governor said. "On this spot 3000 Confederate soldiers died for what they felt was right," he said, "and I am still man enough, still American enough to honor any man who will starve, suffer and fight for a cause, whether he is right or wrong."

This "grand old man of Ohio" proclaimed himself, during this talk, to be the oldest Mason among the 2000 or more present at cornerstone exercises.

Campbell M. Vorhees, grand master for Ohio, presided at the ceremonies and called upon O. E. Cornell, grand treasurer, to read the contents of the box which was placed in the cornerstone. The typewritten pages, which were read by Mr. Cornell, gave a resume of Saturday's happenings, together with the names of the officers of West Gate lodge, of the grand lodge and a history of local Masonry. Copies of the local newspapers also were put in the box.

A large crowd of Masons and Hilltop folk gathered there to hear the music and speeches, and the street was filled with automobilists. The committee in charge of the affair included Frank H. Constans, worshipful master of West Gate lodge, chairman, ex-officio; Charles O. Irwin, senior warden, chairman; Frank H. Wendler, junior warden; Harry C. Biddle, John W. Morgan, George W. Matson and George F. Hults.

The new temple stands on a wooded site, facing 210 feet on Broad Street and extending southward, two acres in size. At present the grounds surrounding the building will be landscaped, but it is planned eventually to use the rest of the plot for a recreation center. The building is to be two stories in height, with full basement, this to contain the dining room. On the first floor will be an auditorium and reception room, while on the second floor will be located the lodge rooms for West Gate lodge, West Gate council, and for Robert Morris chapter, Order of the Eastern Star. The whole project will cost about $100,000, including equipment for the building.

Jealousy Proved Fatal to English Musician

Certainly the most destructive of human emotions is that of jealousy. With the exception of love and war nothing seems to be so provocative to the green-eyed monster, who seems to have the faculty of consuming all those who admit him to their souls, as music. A list of the famous musical jealousies would be interesting. It would run into the hundreds. Opera companies are usually nests of jealousy.

Possibly one of the most famous cases of musical jealousy is that of Henry Cooke, deceased (1672). Cooke was a fighter who gloried in the term of captain. He joined the king's army and fought bravely, it is said, but when the commonwealth came into existence he was obliged to make his living teaching music. Eventually he became gentleman and master of the children when the chapel royal was established again in 1660. There he had as his pupils no less than Purcell, John Blow and Pelham Humphrey.

Humphrey so closely imitated the work of his master that after some time he was able to supplant him in his state position. Captain Cooke flew into a rage of jealousy, and this continued until in his death notice there appeared the significant line, "Died of jealousy."

WHAT TO BUY IS A PUZZLING PROBLEM

Evelyn Hansen

Correct attire for mother, daughter and business woman, and clothes appropriate for sport, afternoon and evening wear will be discussed and displayed by Miss Hansen at chautauqua. She will explain how materials and lines can increase or decrease your actual appearance of size. The importance of dressing to fit the occasion is stressed. Budgeting the dress allowance, so that it covers the entire wardrobe, also is discussed.

"My main plea," says Miss Hansen, in speaking of her lecture, "is one of helpfulness. I want women to learn how to plan their wardrobe in accordance with principles of art, and help them solve the problem of buying things suited to their needs, instead of being sold something incorrect."

Fox Hunter Puzzled Over Scent Mystery

No one should write of hunting without alluding to the important question of scent. To ignore the subject is gravely unconventional, if not worse. That at least is the excuse which Miss E. E. Somerville offers for quoting this incomprehensible incident in her memories of Irish life:

We were hunting in the hills. It was a bright and sunny day with a light and vanishing tough of frost. The hounds were drawing along the southern side of a high hill covered with short rough grass and heather, with furze brakes here and there among the rocks. We had not "found," but the hounds were busy "feathering" and were obviously sure that a fox had been about. Then one of the field rode up to me and said, with the icy calm that so often masks the fullness of pride:

"There's your fox, master!" He pointed with his whip to something that looked like a rusty coat lying under a furze bush.

A fox! Not as I first feared dead, but very much alive, I cracked my whip at him, and he slid away over the hill, crossing after half a dozen yards or so a wide blackened patch where furze had been burnt. In an instant we brought the hounds to the place where he had lain. They made no outcry. They were interested, but no more than that. We took them on and crossed the burnt patch, and suddenly on its farther verge they all put their heads down and went away with a shout, and we had a brilliant forty minutes, till the fox beat us on the edge of the sea and got safe into a slit in the cliffs.

Why should the bed of the fox have been less odorous than his light feet, and why did the hounds not acknowledge him until he had crossed the burnt bit of hill? These things are a mystery.—Youth's Companion.

American Indian May Have Come From Egypt

It is probable, if not certain, that the American Indian did not come from Egypt but that in centuries following the glacial era, or even later, tribes started to migrate. It is also very possible that at that particular time Asia and America were not separated by a body of water in the northern part—that is, between Kamchatka and Alaska by the Behring sea. Then why would it be improbable that a few tribes started on their migration in a northeast direction as later migrations started in a northwest direction?

Furthermore, one of the oldest symbols of the world can be found from Siberia to Ceylon and from Alaska to the Tierra del Fuego, if not in its entirety, always in a recognizable form. I am speaking of the swastika and we know that the swastika is Asian in its origin, says Dr. P. Anther in Adventure Magazine.

The features of the Indians are not Mongolian but Asian. There is no doubt there and in the eyes of some you find the same characteristics and also the cheekbones in both are prominent, but not like the Mongolian race.

Learn From Lazy Man

Managers of a department store were asked to pick out their best salesman, writes Fred Kelly in the Nation's Business, that others might study his methods. They looked up their records and picked a man, but an investigation of his methods quickly showed that he was only a mediocre salesman. True, he had sold more than anybody else in his department, but this was because he had the heavy expense of a sick wife and consequently unusual incentive to work hard for more commissions. While he sold a lot of goods, he did it with wasteful expenditure of his energies. Several other salesmen sold almost as much as he did with only about half the effort. As Frank Gilbreth says, "The ideal man to learn methods from is one so lazy that he works barely hard enough to avoid being fired."

There Is Much to See

Often as I work I stop to see, really see, see everything, or to listen, and it is the wonder of wonders how much there is in this old world which we never dreamed of, how many beautiful, curious, interesting sights and sounds there are which ordinarily make no impression upon our clogged, overfed and preoccupied minds. I have also had the feeling—it may be unscientific, but it is comforting—that any man might see like an Indian or smell like a hound if he gave to the senses the brains which the Indian and the hound apply to them. And I'm pretty sure about the Indian! It is marvelous what a man can do when he puts his entire mind upon one faculty and bears down hard.—David Grayson.

What Are We Coming To?

The other day in this city an operatic tenor offered as evidence of his affection for his wife the pies that he always washed the dishes, says the New York Evening Post. Such stories as these offer a fine opportunity for novelists to portray the wifely sturdy oaks and the husbandly clinging vines. The tired business woman coming home, finding the easy chair near the fire, her slippers warm, while the husband sits on the arm of her chair, lights her cigarette and prattles about his household cares—a very pretty picture. And the husbands need not mind, so long as their wives don't beat them.

Home of the Brave

"The rapidly increasing divorce rate," remarked the newcomer, "proves that America is fast becoming the land of the free."

"Yes," said his friend, "and the continuance of the marriage rates shows that it is still the home of the brave."

KENTUCKY ORATOR SOUNDS DUTY CALL

Thomas B. McGregor

"Tom McGregor was an orator before he could spell a word," someone has said of Kentucky's former attorney-general, who is on chautauqua's third-day program. At an early age he became a skillful lawyer and a forceful public speaker. His years of experience have ripened his innate ability on the platform so that his lectures are a joy and privilege to hear.

A clear thinker, Judge McGregor speaks for and to the masses. Running through and interwoven with his sage remarks is the silver, glinting thread of humor. He has a great fund of southern stories which lend point and vigor to his utterances.

In "Getting Back to Normal" this statesman from the Bluegrass region "stresses the fundamentals of practical patriotism pleasingly and impressively. His "You and the Law" is a call to duty.

Wide Variation In Vitality of Seeds

In the past there was perhaps no other trade in which swindling was so rampant as in that of the sale of seeds. The artless dealer of half a century ago adulterated his goods by adding a considerable proportion of boiled seeds.

The seed adulteration act put a stop to that practice, but not to the sale of dirty and old seeds. Most seeds are "dirty" when fresh gathered—that is, they contain a considerable percentage of weed seed, and all the great seed houses possess elaborate and costly machinery for cleaning, says London Answers.

Clover seed has to be carefully cleaned. If this is not done the result will be a crop of all kinds of pernicious weeds in the clover field. Some weed seeds, such as those of the dodder, are so tiny that it is almost impossible to detect them except under a strong magnifying glass.

Seeds vary in their powers of retaining life. While those of peas and beans will retain vitality for many years, others, such as those of the parsnip, are useless if kept over one season. Seeds of the willow and the poplar are so short-lived that unless they land at once in a moist place, they die in a few days.

Salesman Had Answer for Silly Old Saying

A salesman in an Iowa town called on a storekeeper who had an old-fashioned store in a splendid location. The salesman was of the creative type and was urging the storekeeper to change his methods, and to adopt new selling ideas.

The reply of the storekeeper was: "Oh, those old methods were good enough for my dad, and I guess they're good enough for me."

The salesman answered, and he could make this answer because of his experience and familiarity with the situation: "Your dad, when he established this store, was the most progressive merchant of his time—that's why he won success. If he had been content with the methods of your grandfather he would never have established any business at all. Your dad, and I knew him well, never refused to consider new ideas; he adopted the things that had proved successful with other merchants. If he were alive today he would be the first one to recognize that the community your store is serving is greatly changed, and that new methods must be adopted to take advantage of new conditions."—Forbes Magazine.

DON'T JUST LIVE—
have a home!

HAVE you got a "place of your own" to come home to? Is life with you just a day-in-and-day-out proposition? Or do you want a nice home which you can approach with the feeling, "This is mine"? Are you "just living" somewhere, or are you alive?

This is the year when, all over the country, people are building homes. You should build yours—and you can. Think of the money you are paying out for rent every month. Any good business friend will show you in a few minutes how easy it will be for you to build and own a home—and have a real asset that will mean everything to you.

YOUR wife undoubtedly has many ideas of what should be in a home. They can be incorporated into the plans you decide upon. Your local building material dealer is familiar with everything in his line, and will be glad to consult with you. You will be delighted with the many helpful, practical ideas he has available for you. He wants to give you the kind of service which will make you his friend for all time.

Make up your mind now. Begin building your home—and begin really living.

The Century Plant

The belief that the century plant blooms every 100 years is a myth, according to Pathfinder Magazine. The flowering of this interesting plant depends upon the climate and rapidity of growth. In warm climates such as Mexico and Central America, the original home of the century plants, they grow rapidly and usually bloom about the seventh of eighth year, seldom later than the twelfth. In colder climates the period before bloom is much longer. Some authorities say that in hot houses 80 to 100 years may elapse before the plant flowers, a fact which probably gave rise to the century myth from which the plant gets its popular name. After flowering the century plant dies down to the ground. However, new plants arise from lateral buds.

Flowers of the Desert

Arizona deserts have their own flowers. In places the supply is abundant, the growth large, the flowers when in bloom of marked beauty, the big yucca and the sotol, both members of the lily family, showing beautiful bloom on tall and stately stalks.

One of the interesting desert growths is the water cactus, so named because its great stalk, from five to ten feet high and as large in circumference as a barrel. It has a heavy pulpy covering from which it is possible to squeeze goodly amounts of water, and Indians and travelers are quick to turn to the cactus when water supplies are short, says the Detroit News.

Ruskin's Voice About His Only Attraction

I never met anyone in my life whose personal appearance disappointed me more than Ruskin's, when Fraught Morris in American Memoirs. Until I met him I had always believed that a man of great ability showed his genius in some feature or other, but I could find no hint in Ruskin's face to figure that suggested abnormal talent.

His appearance was not even prepossessing. He looked shriveled up and shrunken, though he was perhaps five feet seven in height; he was slight to frailty and stooped; in spite of a large nose, his face was too small, baby, thin and very wrinkled; the gray hair that must once have been reddish was carefully brushed flat; the beard and whiskers were gray, too, and straggling thin; the eyes were bright, grayish-blue in color, quick-glancing now, now meditative under the thick outjutting brows; the high aquiline nose was matched by a snub-chin receding chin; nothing in his face or figure was impressive or interesting; his clothes even were loose and ill-fitting; his manner shy, self-conscious, unassured; I was disappointed to doubting his ability.

But as soon as he got excited in speaking I noticed his voice, a thin high tenor irresistibly pathetic; it often wailed and sometimes cursed, but was always intense. The soul of the man was in that singular, musical voice with its high rhetoric and impassioned moral appeal.

Cows Peacefully Graze Where Once War Ruled

Southern Denmark has many things to show to the stranger within her gates, and in the south of Seeland—best known of the three islands, ferry-bridged, which, together with the restituted portion of Schleswig-Holstein, make up the modern kingdom of Denmark—one may visit a model Danish dairy farm which has its home in a thirteenth century fortified farmhouse, says the Christian Science Monitor.

At the quaint old farm of Holmegaard a stone taken from the ancient archway gives the date of the building as 1571, and, though the whitewash which covers the masonry hides its rugged outlines in part, still where the water of the moat laps the foundations one can still see the massive forms of the old stones.

There are many of these old fortified farms in France and Scotland, now happily requiring no moat to guard them against aggressions, but in olden days they were little forts in themselves, sheltering in troublous times the whole neighborhood and storing provisions enough for a siege in their capacious granaries. The outbuildings of Holmegaard are immense, built around a great quadrangle paved with cobblestones.

Making Writers Efficient

A "scheme of work" for writing short stories is given by Miss Hamer in "Fiction Writers on Fiction Writing," the short story analysis compiled by Arthur Sullivant Hoffman, from answers to a questionnaire he sent more than 100 authors concerning their creative methods. The scheme is:

1. Be sure an idea is worth developing from a "human interest" standpoint.
2. Develop the climax first.
3. Know all the characters like a branch of chemists knows and bring them to the climax as quickly, but as logically, as possible.
4. Write merely at first, supplying where advisable—rather than make voluminously and clog out.
5. Write nothing that won't at least put a grain of weight into the final wallop.

Simply Couldn't

Dorothy, aged five, had been given a pretty blue-silk sash and the first day she wore it she was constantly running to her mother to have it tied.

"Why, Dorothy," said her mother, "this makes the fifth time I've tied your sash this morning. You must learn to do it yourself."

"But how can I, mamma," replied the little miss, "when I'm standing ground in the front all the time?"

LARGE CONCERT HARPS USED IN TWO PROGRAMS AT REDPATH CHAUTAUQUA

One of the Hollybrooke Harpists

A glorified inheritance of the misty past—of the early, dim, dark ages—are the finely constructed concert harps used by the Hollybrooke Harpists on chautauqua's third day.

From the earliest Egyptian harps, which were crude affairs having only 13 strings and no fore pillar, the modern instrument has developed into something pleasing both to the ear and eye. Of graceful proportions, it now stands 72 inches high and possesses 48 strings. They are all of gut except the lowest 10, which are of silk or wire. The harp has a 6½ octave compass, and 7 pedals to alter the pitch and change the key. The tones produced are beautifully clear and resonant.

Although the concert harp is really Egyptian in origin, Ireland always has been the country most closely associated with harp music. The instrument was introduced there by the Phoenicians, some centuries B. C. One of the oldest harps now in existence is that of Robin Adair at Hollybrooke and it is after this instrument that the Hollybrooke Harpists take their name.

All reading notices, news items, communications and want ads for the Hilltop Record MUST be in this office not later than 11 o'clock Wednesday a. m. to insure publication in that week's issue.

If you don't get one of our bills this week, call us and we will send you one. Haunts Grocery and Meat Markets.

ENTERTAINER USES POPULAR PLAYLET

Jane Goude

One feature of the program to be given by Jane Goude on the fourth day of chautauqua is "The Florist Shop," a one-act play. In it she impersonates five characters and ably demonstrates her remarkable versatility.

Included in her repertoire are humorous and serious readings and impersonations, from Riley to Shakespeare. Illustrations of classical stories, in artistic pose, is a distinctly original feature of her work. Her recitals are planned to please a mixed audience.

This popular dramatic artist brings with her something of the zest and vigor of her native West. She gives her lighter numbers in a vivacious manner and with dashing spirit, while the poignancy of her more pathetic readings is brought out by her evident sincerity, sympathy and understanding.

ALPINE HORN IN DIGIORGIO CONCERT

Signor T. DiGiorgio

A happy combination of the classic and popular is the program offered by the DiGiorgio orchestra on chautauqua's first day. Unusual versatility on the part of each individual in this family of artists permits the orchestra to offer a wide diversity of musical entertainment. Brass quartet and string quartet selections, descriptive numbers, popular marches, violin, cornet, trombone, piano and xylophone solos are given.

Signor T. DiGiorgio, who conducts the orchestra, plays the trombone, Alpine horn and guitar, while Mrs. DiGiorgio is cornetist and 'cellist. Miss Adelina DiGiorgio is a violinist of splendid technique. The piano, mandolin and xylophone are the instruments used by Miss Florence DiGiorgio.

Hilltop Picnic

Never before did the Hilltop witness such an outpouring of all the residents, as they did on last Wednesday at the picnic of the Hilltop Improvement Association. And such a time, Oh Yeih, Oih Yeih.

If there was a single family that was not fully represented at the picnic, we have failed to hear of them, and what is more, we doubt if they would want to be heard of after finding out what they missed.

There has never been any doubt, but what the Improvement Association has had at all times the complete co-operation of every business man, and every live wide awake resident. They have never before made an effective call for the unstinted support of all the people of the Hilltop. But this time they did and they got it full measure and overflowing.

Old, young, married, single, little, big, fat and thin, but all good to look at, they began to pour into Glenwood Park before noon and they never ceased to come until after dark, and the majority of them stayed till after 11 o'clock that night.

Every committee worked and worked hard, but we believe that there were two committees that outdid themselves and that was the Refreshment and the Advertisement Committees. The Advertisement Committee did its work so well that all the other committees had to work or be snowed under, and the Refreshment Committee did not have anything to do, but WORK.

There were so many fine prizes to give away that the Advertising Committee did not get through with them until after 11 o'clock, and some of the contests were not decided as the Contest Committee worked too hard and too long, helping the Refreshment Committee satisfy the thirst and appetites of the crowd.

The eldest married couple present, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbarger, who have been married over 58 years, received $10 in gold, and Cliff Rice and his good wife received $10 in gold as the youngest married couple, while the eight children of Mrs. Ferguson settled the contest as to who had the largest family at the picnic, by bringing along eight children.

The Rivoli Theatre took some moving pictures of contests by boys, girls and ladies, and one or two other features and had these on the screen Saturday and Sunday. The pictures were very fine and make a good showing of portions of the crowd. Had a photo of the parade and the awarding of the prizes been taken the set would have done real well to any community. The film should be shown elsewhere for its value in community work.

The enthusiasm which had been pent up for a week before the picnic broke loose when the parade began with about 100 autos left the park at 10:30 A. M. and started its way over the Hilltop. By 2 o'clock the park was a seething mass of families. It was one of the old fashioned home town gatherings, and if any one ever doubted the fact that the Hilltop is a community all to itself, organized to put over every civic measure that it gets behind, they should have been present Wednesday.

The Hilltop Improvement Association has demonstrated that it can accomplish what it starts out to do, and every resident of the Hilltop should give it the heartiest support, join it if not now a member and get behind the good things it has already planned for the Hilltop. It is the one organization, that bars no one but those not interested in their community, and it will fight just as hard for any section of the Hilltop as for another. Let's get together with the bunch and make the Hilltop even better than it is now.

A great many people and personal friends of Stanley W. Colburn have induced him to be a candidate for county treasurer on the Republican ticket. His declaration of candidacy was signed by the following Republican electors: John Esper, 615 South Third St.; R. T. Stimmel, 74 Highland Ave.; F. G. Simpson, 1094 East Gay St.; H. Meyer, 400 E. Oakland Ave.; Ray G. Haunts, 64 S. Harris Ave.; Clara A. Elliott, 2614 West Broad St.

Mr. Colburn is 40 years old, was born and raised in Columbus. He resided on the East Side for 25 years where he attended the 23rd Street School and East High School. He is well known to the public in general, being in the Union Station and Pennsylvania City Ticket Office for a number of years. For the past 10 years he has resided on the Hilltop at 304 Midland Ave. with his wife and children, and is at present in the grocery business for himself at 1893 Sullivant Ave. He is a member of the Buckeye Republican Club, the 11th Ward Republican Club, the Hilltop Improvement Association and the Glenwood M. E. Church. He is the Republican committeeman from the 11th Ward now. By his past experience and education, he is qualified to fill this office in a business-like manner.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFadon

MINERALS IN FOOD

Lime (calcium) in food makes the bones strong, hardens the teeth, makes muscles firm, tones up the nerves, helps the beating of heart, the digestion of food and functioning of the kidneys. The system cannot appropriate unorganized mineral. It must be organized in the food we eat to become a part of us.

The human body should have one and a half ounces of iron. Not very much, but without it we could not get oxygen, and without oxygen there is no life. Choke a man and you have murdered him. Take half his oxygen and he is sick. Deprive yourself of a part of the oxygen you might have, and you are committing slow suicide. Good breathing means abundant life. Careless breathing is the rankest extravagance in vitality.

For the good of the bones and teeth of the baby, the expectant mother should have the minerals that are in whole wheat, but are not in white flour products.

Cows fed on the dark parts of the wheat, which we should have, thrive; but if given the white part, that is fed to us, and deprived of the dark, they degenerate. If fed on the denatured, waste products of cotton-seed oil and brewery plants and starch factories—as many of them are—no wonder they are found tubercular, for they have not sufficient resistance. The fault is in the feeding. They are deprived of the necessary minerals.

Wheat, corn, rice, barley and oats, in their natural state, have phosphorous, and phosphorous is necessary to life. The phosphorous and other minerals—12 kinds—is near the surface of the grain. Most of it goes with the bran and other dark parts.

Bran is supposed to be laxative for man and beast, but when the bran is taken away, the effect on cows is constipating on cows—proving that the phosphorous, is the laxative, and not the coarseness, as is generally supposed.

The white flour habit is largely responsible for the almost universal tendency toward constipation. The minerals go with the bran.

All That Survives One

To be rich to be famous? Do these profit a year hence, when other names seem louder than yours, when you lie hidden away under ground along with the idle titles engraven on your coffin? But only true love lives after you, follows your memory with secret blessings or defends you and intercedes for you. Non omnis moriar, if dying, I yet live in a tender heart or two; nor am lost and hopeless, living, if a sainted departed soul still loves and prays for me.—Thackeray.

Poisonous Flower Bulbs

Daffodil bulbs, which superficially resemble onions, have sometimes been eaten for them by mistake and have caused serious poisoning. A case was reported not long ago in Edinburgh, where a cook took a daffodil bulb for an onion and used it to flavor a stew subsequently eaten by five persons. All were made acutely sick before the end of the meal. All recovered in a few hours and apparently suffered no after effects of the dose. The poisoning is supposed to be due to a principle known as "narcissine," found in the bulbs of daffodils and jonquils. Persons keeping daffodil bulbs in the house should take care that they are not confused with onions.

Beginnings of Music

The beginnings of music-making, as it is practiced by uncivilized people, offer curious reading. Among savage tribes, it is said, the earliest acquired musical phrase is derived quite distinctly from a simple howl, the notes gilding down or up a scale by semitones. And savages repeat over and over again one phrase, their satisfaction in having mastered which is childlike. As the people rise in the scale of intelligence, their favorite musical phrases grow larger and become more elaborate until a systematized making of music can be clearly discerned.

Scotland Made Game of Golf National Pastime

Three months before the Pilgrim Fathers left Dartshaven James VI approved the contract for the first municipal golf links at St. Andrews, Scotland. Golf may have started in Holland, where a game called "kolf," a cross between golf, hockey and bowling, was played on the ice, within covered courts and even in churchyards. If the Scotch did import the sport they changed it greatly. "Links" for example is the Scotch term referring to rolling close-cropped shore fields which have become the model for all golf courses. "Bunkers" are really cut banks such as are found along a graded country road. Such banks with sand pits are natural to the Scotch shore. St. Andrew's cut banks are now artificially created on golf links wherever golf is played. For many years the original Scotch course consisted of 11 holes, a match being two rounds, or 22 holes, but in 1764 it was decided to eliminate two holes, so today the standard course is in multiples of nine. —National Geographic Society.

Early Navigators Dared Perils of Every Sort

It is a little more than 400 years ago since man made his first-known trip around the globe. The first voyage took three years, and they were years of great privation and discomfort. The early successful navigator was J. S. del Cano, a Spaniard. He returned to port on September 6, 1522. The expedition numbered five vessels, and of the 280 pioneers who set sail only 31 returned—ragged and broken. One of the objects of the adventure was to test the theory that the earth was round, and the ships took a westward course to discover a passage to the Indies. Ferdinando Magellan, a Portuguese, after whom the straits are named, was a leading spirit in the expedition. When the task was almost accomplished he and 40 others were killed by natives in the Philippine islands. Only one ship, the Vittoria, under del Cano, completed the journey.

Modest Maiden

"John, I want to say, something to you!"

"Say on, my dear," replied John, as he looked fondly at the golden head that was pillowed on his manly bosom.

"This is the year when proposing is done by the women."

"Yes."

"I hope you don't expect me to propose to you?"

"Well, Mary, I have never given the matter a thought. To tell the truth, I've only known you for—that is to say—"

"I am glad you don't expect me to propose. I'm not that kind, I hope. So, John, I couldn't be so immodest. I am going to let you do the proposing yourself in the old-fashioned way. The old-fashioned way is good enough for me."

The girl gave her lover a beaming smile, and the youth rejoiced that he had found such a treasure of modesty.

PROGRESS OF OUR PROGRAM

Now that the sewer relief ordinance has been passed, and the second item of the Civic Program of The Record has been accomplished by the vacation of those streets south of Olive and West of Powell to make way for the new West High School on the Hilltop, we ask every one on the Hilltop to study the program and join the movement to accomplish it.

The next item we should put over is the repaving of West Broad Street. Following that is a real Hilltop clean-up of vacant lots and alleys. Then comes the grading along the Broad Street side of Glenwood Park and one of the very fine ideas that came out of the Hilltop picnic should be added to this item. Glenwood Park should be landscaped properly, the trees down in the tourist camp should be thinned, and the good sized saplings taken out in proper order and placed up on the top of the hill where needed, as they will either die or kill other trees too close to them where they are, while on the top of the hill they will afford additional and needed shade. There should be an adequate space for parking of machines southeast of the west entrance and the entrance should be made fit to drive over with an auto, as now it is only fit for a dirt wagon to pass over.

When this is done and the surplus dirt is put down in the low spot in the tourist camp, the park will be a real recreation center for both the Hilltop and the balance of the town as well and will afford the tourist a fit place to stop until we arrange for him a better place just west of Hague Avenue somewhere.

Begin right now and stop the speeder on our side streets before some child is hurt and some auto demolished as it turns into Broad Street. The balance of the program has been accomplished as we have the civic spirit of this community right up to the highest pitch. Now let us keep it there.

Holder's Helpful Hints

The front porch is one the first things about your house that the prospective buyer gets to see, when he comes to see your place. See to it therefore, that the front porch is cool and inviting, that it is neat, and whatever furniture you have on it be tastefully arranged, that there be flowers blooming about its base, and ferns or porch boxes about the porch in proper places, well watered and cared for. A few fancy pillow on the porch swing give an air of comfort. If your house is on the east side of the street be sure the awning is down early in the afternoon to keep the glare of the sum off the porch.

The porch should, where possible, be screened, even if it has to be remodelled, as this keeps out flies, mosquitos and the myriads of insects that come with the nightfall. Keep up the appearance of the front porch by painting before it gets to looking shabby, and then be just as careful to keep dirt off it as you are to keep the inside of your house neat and clean.

The back porch should be just as carefully kept up as the front for there is nothing that so quickly turns the mind of the buyer as to see signs of neglect about the place, be it inside or out. Not only should porches be screened in the summer, but they should be glassed in during the winter. There should always be space outside your house during the colder months, where there is a break between the temperature inside and that outside. That is always a good preserver of health for both you and the children, and it cuts down the fuel bills and assures a place to get all the snow, slush and dirt off on rugs for that very purpose, before you come into the house proper.

This all costs money, but remember it is an investment that not only brings you dividends in comfort and reduced fuel bills, but it adds to the selling value and shortens the time wasted in selling a home without the "homeyness" it should have. The expenditure of $300 in putting on a front porch, or a sleeping porch, has more than once added from $750 to $1000. to the price of a house that without them would have been hard to sell at any price. And think of the comfort they added for the owners until the place was sold. Show the buying public you like your place and wan to keep on living in it, that makes them want it too.

The way to this is to make the home look comfortable and pleasant, do so yourself and don't talk too much, as you pay the real estate man to do that, and remember that cleanliness, like honesty is a principle not a policy.

Women Surely Have Keen Sense of Money Values

If the average woman were without a sense of money values, as charged by a budget expert, the average American family would have less money in the bank than it has. Eliminating the girl who lives at home and can spend her earnings for pretty things, and whose extravagance is one of the manifestations of her youth, it would have been fairer to say the average housewife of America has a very keen appreciation of the value of money and how hard it is for the husband to earn it. It is probably quite true that women do not budget their expenses; neither did the great United States government until a few years ago. If the budget expert would go into the stores patronized by the wives of wage earners and note with what care and anxiety the customers spend their money and how anxious they are to get full value, she might revise her judgment a bit. With due respect to the paragraphers, the women are shrewd buyers. The hardly saved dollars which bulk so large in savings fund reports and bank deposits are where they are because the women of the country have put them there, often against the will of their husbands. The average man is a much swifter spender than a woman, and despite the jokes of the paragraphers and comic artists, all women do not throw away money on innumerable hats and gowns. The budget expert did less than justice to her own sex when she criticised their financial acumen.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Contented Prisoner

The idyllic character of the old New England village is prettily illustrated by a remark made about Concord, Mass., by a former resident, Mr. Edward Simmons, the famous painter. Concord, he says in his book, "From Seven to Seventy," was a town utterly without crime. There was no gazing into the jail windows to catch a glimpse of the hideous offenders against the law.

I have heard of but one prisoner in my life, and he was so mild that he hardly made an impression. During my time the man was the only inhabitant of the jail, and technically he did not belong there. He had been imprisoned a number of years before for some offense and after being released had returned and begged to be taken in again, as he was lonely and had got used to the place. So you could see him almost any summer evening, sitting out on the steps of the jail. He was a great pet of the Emerson family and was hired to play the violin for all the dances.—Youth's Companion.

Saved by Roosevelt's Idea of Square Deal

When Roosevelt was getting ready for his African trip various sportsman friends, as a matter of course, volunteered suggestions.

"When you get to Nairobi," said one—a Mr. Blank, a happy-go-lucky, careless, prosperous chap, who had dived into the jungle and out again two years before—"whatever you do, don't hire a guide by the name of W——. He is capable enough, but not trustworthy."

The day Roosevelt reached Nairobi he inquired about this particular guide. He sent for the repudiated guide and got his side of the story, says the Milwaukee Journal.

Just as Roosevelt had divined, it was a mountain made out of a mole hill. The damning word dropped by Mr. Blank without warrant had left stark misery in its wake for the guide. After that he could get no employment from any hunter who came to Nairobi.

Roosevelt heard all this. By way of rejoinder he smashed his itinerary. He rearranged to over night to include a ten days' expedition never before dreamed of in that section of the country. He hired the Nairobi guide to take entire charge of the trip.

When the expedition got back in, scheduled time Nairobi's housetops heard from Roosevelt. He said: "That guide is the most intelligent, the most industrious, the most reliable and the most satisfactory guide I have ever had."

The rehabilitation of the wounded guide dated from this utterance and this use of Roosevelt's. Again the man began to be sought after by hunters.

Outlaw Queen Could Be All-Feminine at Times

Belle Starr, outlaw queen of the old days in Texas and Oklahoma, wore her hair short and was particularly sweet to women, says the Detroit News. She lived for years on the proceeds of loot and lined up a gang of the meanest-looking, hardest cursing, wildest riding and shooting hard-boiled customers in her particular genre of the cow country.

She used to call at women's houses on her way home from leading her band on a robbery, and she would talk feminine things with them, sing religious songs and tell stories to the children.

Several stories are told of the way Belle Starr met her death. The generally accepted one is that she was assassinated by a man named Edgar A. Watson, who had gone to Oklahoma in the '70s and started farming near her place. It is told they became enemies in a dispute over land rental. Anyway, February 3, 1889, as the version has it, a double-barreled shotgun did the work.

Long Pedigrees

Royalty, as in the Hatfield chart, which traces Queen Elizabeth's descent from Adam, is not alone in claiming long pedigrees. On the tomb of a former town clerk of Burton-on-Trent that worthy is described as thirty-seventh in descent from Alfred the Great. Again, a distinguished French family, the Magons (an Admiral Magon was killed at Trafalgar) shows a pedigree deriving from Mago, the brother of Hannibal.

An Italian nobleman, the Marchese Porro, traces his line back to Porus, the Indian monarch who fought against Alexander the Great, while the Samson family who own estates near Lyons claim that their descent is from the strong man of the Bible, and in support of the claim bear on their coat-of-arms the broken column of a temple.—Manchester Guardian.

Real "Robinson Crusoe"

Alexander Selkirk was an adventurer, born in Largo, Scotland, in 1676. He was a skillful seaman and made several voyages to the South sea, in one of which, having quarreled with his commander, he was put ashore on the island of Juan Fernandez with a few supplies. Here he lived alone for four years and four months; when he was rescued by Capt. Woods Rogers. He returned to England in 1711, and is said to have given his papers to Defoe, who, from them, wrote the story of "Robinson Crusoe." Selkirk died on the ship Weymouth in 1723.

Famous the World Over

Epsom, England, is in the county of Surrey, 15 miles southwest of London. Epsom was formerly celebrated for a mineral spring, from the water of which the well-known Epsom salts were manufactured. A number of the sons of medical men are educated at the Royal Medical college, and adjoining the school is a home for aged physicians or their widows. The principal attraction is the grand race meeting held on the downs, which is attended by hundreds of thousands of persons.

Characters of History

Razi or Rhazes was an Arabian physician who lived from 852 to 932. He is noteworthy as being the first man to describe smallpox and measles in an accurate manner. Hugbald or Hucbald was a Benedictine monk and writer of music. He was born at Tournai, France, about 840. He later started a school of music and other arts at Elnone. He was the inventor of the gamut. The only work positively ascribed to him is the Harmonica Institute. He died in 930.

Great Statesman Had Genius of Invention

Thomas Jefferson, signer of the Declaration of Independence and third President of the United States, was of an inventive turn of mind as well as being a fairly good violinist and something of a scientist, remembers the Detroit News. On one of his tours of Europe he was struck by the bad construction of the plows in use by the peasants of France.

The moldboard, a device given the share to turn over the earth, he decided, required redesigning. He spent the greater part of his leisure time for two years evolving a moldboard that would be most effective.

Satisfied, at length, that he had succeeded, Jefferson sent a plow equipped with his new device to the Royal Agriculture Society of the Seine. A medal which the society awarded him—for the plow proved to be all he had hoped for—followed him to New York, and 16 years later, the society sent him a specially made plow containing his improvement as a token of appreciation for what he had done for agriculture in France.

"Cates" Word Little Used

The word "cates," meaning dainty foods, is probably never used except in poetry, and seldom there, yet we call the person who caters for our food a caterer, and in that form the word is of everyday occurrence.

It has come into some prominence lately in connection with the fifth centenary celebrations of the famous Dick Whittington, whose fame rests more solidly on his possession of a cat than upon any municipal honors which came to him, observes London Tit-Bits.

There have been all manner of learned discussions as to Whittington's cat, one of which pointed to the probability that this city merchant had a ship called the Cat. But the late Professor Rowley of Bristol was perfectly sure that "cat" was an abbreviation of this old English word "cate," meaning provisions, which survives, even in our geography, in the Cate river at Plymouth.

Valuable Black Walnut

A number of native black-walnut trees have been discovered whose nuts possess superior cracking qualities. By means of scions or buds from the original trees, these are being propagated in greater numbers each year since the value of the nut crop is thereby greatly enhanced and the timber is of the same high quality as that of other walnut trees. Stocks of these selected trees are available in limited numbers from the owners and made possible the growing of valuable nut trees about the home or in the orchards, says the American Forestry association.

Forced to Beg Off

An indefatigable traveler, arriving in New York, did not go to the palatial caravansary he usually patronized but put up in an obscure hotel on a side street. But the very next day he bumped into the manager of the down-to-the-minute hostelry where he had always stopped and where he was known so well.

"Why, Mr. Blank," was the shocked greeting, "in New York and not stopping with us?"

"It's this way, old fellow," explained Blank contritely. "I'm too tired this trip to live up to the unparalleled service you give."

Right and Left Hands

It is a fact not generally known that the fingers of the right hand move much more quickly than those of the left. They are also much more accurate, says London Tit-Bits.

Recent experiments have also proved that the ring finger of the left hand can work more quickly if it is moving in conjunction with the right-hand forefinger. Any two fingers working together, indeed, move considerably faster than one finger working by itself.

The more a person uses his or her fingers, the more adept they become. A pianist or typist will find that, in time, the left hand becomes almost as skilful as the right.

Use of Canvas Modern

It was not until 1520 that artists began to use canvas. The masters previous to that time worked in ceramics or painted on wood and walls, then on canvas stretched to a frame.

Many of the great painters ground the pigments and mixed their own colors, says the Detroit News.

American supplies of art and industrial paint are dependent on a large variety of foreign raw materials. We import Windsor and Newton, and still in the opinion of artists do not make colors that give the appearance of age

HANDLES SWARM OF TEN THOUSAND BEES IN CHAUTAUQUA DEMONSTRATION

E. R. Root

You can bluff bees into making their stingers behave," declares E. R. Root, bee specialist, who gives a lecture-demonstration on chautauqua's last day. "You just have to convince them that your intentions are good."

And he backs up his statement by fearlessly handling 10,0[illegible] bees—the wildest and most vicious that can be brought in. He keeps his head bared, his sleeves rolled up, and uses neither gloves nor veil.

He washes his hands in bees, puts them in his mouth and covers his face and neck with them. He gets hundreds of the buzzing little insects into his hat, calmly places the hat on his head, and in a few moments takes it off again. Through it all he remains unstung. The bees like Root and Root likes the bees.

Root has edited "Gleanings in Bee Culture" for 37 years and is author of "ABC and XYZ of Beekeeping."

Bringing with him bee lore gained in 40 years of experience and study, Root, in his lecture, "Bee Behavior," tells how the honey makers live and act.

SOUTH SEA MUSIC BY NATIVE TALENT

Vierra's Hawaiians

Chautauquans are assured a program of genuine Hawaiian music when Vierra's Hawaiians entertain on the closing day, for the company is composed of six natives skilled in the art of interpreting the music of their homeland.

Indeed, it was the Vierra family that introduced musical Hawaii to America. They played at the San Francisco exposition and aroused such popularity for South Sea melody and song, that many companies have toured the country attempting imitations.

In "An Evening in Hawaii" these artists of steel guitar and ukulele will, with their peculiar instruments and a remarkable harmony of voices, present the tuneful, haunting music of a land of moonlight and romance. Scenic effects will be a happy surprise to chautauqua patrons.

HILLTOP BOWLERS

The Gettrost Recreation Co. advised the committee, there will be reserved six alleys on the third floor at 8:15 P. M., Gay and Front Streets, same as last year. There have been some remarks made among the bowlers that the league should have eight teams. If there is anyone interested and can make up two more teams, please advise any one of the committee on arrangements within 3 or 4 weeks. Committee, Fred Raether, Marvin Hilldebolt, Dr. Fletcher.

Drawback to Affection Inspired by a Horse

I am not, as I say, sentimental about horses; I have never yet seen a man a horse liked as well as a nice bundle of hay, writes Guy Struthers Bart in the Saturday Evening Post. But on the other hand, if you have ridden one horse a lot and know all his little ways and he knows all yours, and if you have ridden many lonely and sometimes dark miles with him, after a while you begin to cherish an affection for him against your better sense.

There's a sweet, warm, companionable feeling to the rippling muscles of his neck when you put your bare hand against them on a pitch-black deserted trail, almost, although not quite so much company as you get out of a dog in camp. And as for Joe, if you miss the trail in the dark and try to turn off it he will do his best to buck with you.

There's one thing about being with such short-lived things as horses and dogs that isn't pleasant. You understand what age is too soon. Here is Joe getting old—and he's sixteen. You get too much an impression of the flight of time. A wise man should keep an elephant and always feel young.

Timidity Has No Place Among Arabs of Desert

Bravery is the great outstanding characteristic of the Arab. His judgment of what constitutes cowardice is relentless and terrible. As soon as a man is proved a coward the tribal poet laureate makes a song about him magnifying his fault and ridiculing him. If the victim is unmarried no woman will consider him, as the song of his cowardice endures forever in the tribe. If he is already married his wife or wives are permitted by tribal law (not by Mohammedanism) to return to their fathers. The men, too, cease to associate with the coward and he becomes an outcast and a pariah. To no other tribe can he turn for shelter, and almost invariably suicide is his lot.

Above everything the Arab must prove bravery in the eyes of his women folk. An Arab man's arms are invariably covered with circular scars. These are relics of his childhood and are the result of his proving his worthiness to some childhood sweetheart, his method being to stand in front of the object of his adoration and smile, the while he allows pieces of red-hot charcoal to burn him.

The Homing Instinct

Do you know those distressing people who, as soon as they start on a holiday, begin to worry about coming home?

I met one in the train the other day. She was being "seen off" by a friend, and this was the burden of her conversation.

"I suppose I can't reserve my seat for coming home? What a bother! But I shall send my luggage in advance.

"I shall wear my blue serge costume for coming home in. I hope it will be a fine day; I hate coming home in the rain.

"I mustn't lose the return half of my ticket; and I'll ask about the time of the train for coming back as soon as I arrive, to make sure."

"Well, goodby for the present, dear. I'm quite looking forward to coming back."—Windsor Magazine.

Saved by Mother's Spirit

One evening, a short time after my mother died, I was walking along a lonely road near our home when a young man approached and asked the way to a certain street. As we were both going the same way we walked along together until we came to the crossroads. I stopped to give him further directions. Suddenly he seized me and tried to force me into the tall bushes which bordered the road. I struggled frantically, but he pulled me to the ground and was dragging me backward. Suddenly I felt my mother's presence beside me, although I saw nothing. Just then my assailant looked up. Without a word he dropped me and ran down the road and out of sight as fast as he could go.—Chicago Journal.

Good Motto for Life: "Bring Out the Best"

Did you ever stop to think what kind of a woman your wife would have been if you had not asked her to marry you? Or did you ever imagine what type of man your husband would have been if you had not answered "Yes"?

Have you ever crushed any ambition, chased away any talents or driven inspiration from your household? What have you done to increase or develop your life partner's talents? Whether you are aware of it or not, you have either brought out the best side of this partner's life or buried all that was good in him or her.

A good many of us possess two sides. There are more Doctor Jekylls and Mr. Hydes in the world than we realize. How frequently your opinion of a man and mine one other's do not tally! You will often say: "I can't see how Brown tolerates Jones; he's the meanest man in the world!" And yet Brown has found the better side of Jones.

Have you found the better side of your husband or wife? Have you done anything to bring that better side to the front?—Chicago Journal.

China Had Great Ruler in Ch'in Shih Huang

Fifty miles south of the Chinese city of Peking has been discovered the walls of an ancient city which flourished over 2,000 years ago. The walls embrace greater area than the walls of Peking and lie buried at an average depth of four feet. Late in the Second century B. C., there arose a king in the then comparatively small China who compared favorably with Alexander in conquests and empire building and whose empire lasted almost until the present day. This was Ch'in Shih Huang, or Shih Huang Ti ("The First Emperor"), whose rule ending in 209 B. C., marks the close of the feudal period and the beginning of the empire in Chinese history. Shih Huang Ti subdued the feudal princes, built the famed great Chinese wall and successfully defended the country against the Tartars from the north, standardized money, transportation, writing and other things which aided centralization, and destroyed as much of the ancient classics and traditions as possible, with the idea that the history of the Chinese empire should begin with his reign.

Guiana Blow Gun

Perhaps the most elaborate form of blowgun is that made by the Indians of the Guianas. It consists of an inner tube fashioned from a certain palm which grows very thin and straight.

The pithy center and the knots are knocked out with a hardwood point, and the bore, about one-half inch in diameter, is ground to a machine finish with a rough leaf which acts like sandpaper. This barrel is then inclosed for protection in an outer casing made of two lengths of hardwood grooved down the center, glued together and bound with ornamental cane and beadwork, says the Detroit News.

A lip piece of carved wood is carefully fitted, and sights are added—actual front and rear sights, the latter upon the lower jaw and canine teeth of some small jungle cat—and the weapon is then a completed sarabatan, a field piece of some eight to ten or twelve feet in length, according to the available length of the original bamboo tube.

John on Archeologists

Fossils of prehistoric animals which lived during the great Ice age are found in certain layers of blue clay in Tennessee. Also, it has been claimed, arrived on the scene thousands of years after these blue clay deposits were made. Recently, however, geologists working near the site of an old Indian earthwork found some of the same sort of blue clay. Underneath this clay were human bones. The discovery was exciting—the geological evidence seemed to place the first Tennessean back with the Ice age fossils. Then some John-Jap in the party discovered that the Indians had evidently transported this clay from somewhere and packed it down into the layers resembling geological strata.

Famous London House

Carlton house was a famous mansion in London, which formerly stood in Waterloo place, near Pall Mall. It was erected in 1709 by Lord Carlton, and was afterward the residence successively of Frederick, prince of Wales (father of George III) and of George IV when prince of Wales. The building was removed in 1826. Carlton club, the famous Conservative club, was founded by the duke of Wellington, in 1831. It occupies a position near the site of Carlton house, whence the name.

HEALTH SERVICE

We have and are conditioning athletes well known thruout the country, whose names are daily before the Public.

Many people engaged in business pursuits, whose time lost means a financial loss, are keeping fit thru our Method of Drugless Therapy.

Children, who have not been in the best physical condition during past school year, are being built up physically by us.

People who have tried several methods, and having failed, are finding relief thru us.

We are frank. If we think we cannot help you, we will tell you so.

U., Mrs. Flonda Dyer, chairman. All the women of Franklin County are invited to come and bring a basket lunch. Coffee, ice tea and ice cream will be sold, the proceeds to go to relief of Lorain. A unique program has been arranged. One feature will be a voting booth fully equipped with clerks who have had experience. Registration will be demonstrated, just who must register to vote at the primaries August 12th. Sample tickets will be given out and a mock primary played and much practical information relative to the election laws of Ohio. There will be a round table discussion led by Mrs. Viola D. Romans on "Influence of Women in Political Life of the Nation."

Words We Have Clipped

A few years ago a music-hall comedian made a great hit by clipping familiar words, and we still hear him imitated in colloquial conversation, London Tit-Bits says. People say "impost" for impossible, "bis" for business and "pash" for passion.

But such clipped words are not destined to appear in any dictionary, and we must go back much farther in the history of words to find that when we say: "He led the van," we mean the "vanguard"; when we speak of a pair of van horses, we mean "caravan"; when we retire to the "drawing room," we ought to say the with-drawing room; when we talk of a "hobby" we refer to riding a "hobby-horse"; when we talk of sport we mean "disport," of "tending" we mean "attending," of a "cute" lawyer we mean acute, and of a "still" we mean a distillery.

If you don't get one of our bills this month, call us and we will send you one. Wamsley Grocery and Meat Market.

Mrs. Scrubbs, whose highly colored imagination was well known in her neighborhood, was called as a witness in a damage suit.

"The evidence which you will give to the court shall be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," said the clerk.

"Yes," quavered Mrs. Scrubbs, now thoroughly frightened and unable to think of one word of the story she had resolved to tell—a story in which she was the heroine.

"Well," asked the judge, "what have you got to say about the case?"

"Well, judge," she replied, "with the limitations I've just had put on me, I don't think I've anything at all to say!"

Fair Enough

Rents were exceedingly high in that part of the city in which the young couple felt they had to live. After looking at apartment after apartment they began to get discouraged.

At length, after looking at one that just suited them, they expressed indignation when the agent told them the rent would be $150 a month.

"I can't ask less, because of the view," the agent said.

"Well, I'll tell you what we'll do," the young husband replied, "You knock off $50 a month and we'll sign a contract never to look at the view."

Circles Around Moon

Circles around the moon are caused by moisture in the atmosphere. It frequently happens that the sunlight reflected from the moon to the earth is so refracted by the atmospheric moisture that a ring or circle is formed. The more moisture there is in the atmosphere the smaller the circle will appear. The form and size of the ring will depend entirely upon the particular condition and quantity of moisture in the air.

Social Affairs

Miss Beulah Lashley was married last Saturday at the home of her mother, Mrs. D. B. Lashley, 30 Belvidere, to Mr. Archie Selby. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jasper Dean. They have been spending a few days in Indiana.

Mrs. W. H. Engard and Mrs. Wm. C. Link entertained with a six o'clock dinner Friday at their summer home at Wissatchichen camp on Big Darby in honor of Mrs. Alexander from Piqua, Ohio. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Carl Geren, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Geren, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Friend, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Link, Mrs. Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Engard.

Some of the features at the Hilltop Chautauqua last week were the different contests. The main one was the beauty contest. About 55 girls competed in the contest. Miss Ruth Beckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beckett, 66 North Warren Avenue. Other contests were the freckle contest, which seven boys won, and the contest for bald headed men. Four men received a prize each. The judges were Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Drye, and Mr. Poole.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Eddy and daughter Francis Jane of Washington C. H. and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood and children Geraldine, Elizabeth, Charles Jr. and George William of Mt. Sterling were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Terry and family at 2337 West Broad Street.

Dr. B. E. P. Prugh, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman of the National Prohibition Committee, will speak in several places in Franklin County this week-end and the Sabbath day. He speaks in the Sullivant Avenue Friends' Church on Friday evening at 8 P. M., in New Albany M. E. Church Saturday evening at 8 P. M., in Hilltop Church of Christ on Sabbath morning at 10:30 A. M., and in the Fourth Avenue Church of Christ on Sabbath evening at 7:45 P. M. Dr. Prugh emphasizes the Lordship of Christ in the affairs of government in his addresses.

A comprehensive program for the betterment of the Hilltop sections is included in a statement of aims of the Hilltop Improvement association made public by Charles B. Cranston, a member of the association.

"The recent picnic of the association held at Glenwood Park stood for more than a mere outing," Mr. Cranston said. "For example, the baby contest was not intended as a means of picking the best babies only, but as the first step in an educational program of child welfare which will produce better citizens.

"The baby contest marked the beginning of a campaign for better babies, which will be carried on by holding baby conferences composed of child welfare committees from the different denominations, clubs, associations and other organizations, under the auspices of the Improvement association."

Other phases of the program of the association include the promotion of play grounds for children, the supervision of child play by Boy Scouts, and the training of umpires for children's games who are to eliminate unfair tactics, profanity and the like, according to Mr. Cranston.

"In addition to this, the association gets behind every improvement in the way of streets, sewers, alleys, clean-up of vacant lots, securing of new parks and so on. It already has its own clubrooms and plans enlargement of its facilities," Mr. Cranston declared.—Columbus Dispatch.

I'M WONDERING

At the W. C. T. U. garden party, recently held in Glenwood Park, there was quite a sprinkling of ambitious candidates for office, and in this crowd of course they were all bone dry, full of compliments and gracious smiles.

After they had each spoken their piece and bowed themselves out of the audience, one of their number sent in three boxes of sweets with his compliments, both to be passed out among the ladies, and being somewhat outuse, I'm wondering whether he thought us such a sour looking set, that we needed sweetening up, or such a simple, easy to be caught bunch, that a chocolate drop would win a vote. Will the editor, or some reader good at guessing, please clear the mind of poor, perplexed

AUNT PHEBE.

HILLTOP DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Friday night at 7:30 P. M. at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church the Hilltop Daily Vacation Bible School held by Glenwood M. E. and Hoge Memorial churches will exhibit their closing program and show their handwork. Over 250 children have been enrolled in this school which is the largest in Columbus and the program Friday will repay anyone for their time in coming. Two playlets will be given and as a special treat four reels of motion pictures of Bible School work in China and Japan will be shown. Besides stories and songs the children will demonstrate their memory work which has been especially fine. The public is invited. Come early and see exhibit of sewing, cut-out work, kindergarten and woodwork.

Holder's Helpful Hints

Our hints so far have had to do with the house and the yard and until the advent of the automobile as the common means of travel, that would have sufficed for all purposes, as the alley was only used to dump trash in and to cross to see the neighbor on the street back of us occasionally. Now the almost invariable use of the auto compels us to consider the alley as a very important part of our property.

The customer wants to know if the alley is paved, or if not, is it a good alley, that is have those living along your street and on the street back of you, put gravel or cinders down in the alley until it has a good firm base on which to drive in. Then the customer goes back to see just what conditions are and if he sees an alley that has been the dumping ground of broken bottles, old tin cans, shoes and other rubbish, this does not make a good approach for an automobile.

It behooves everyone therefore to see that the alley is kept clear of all items that make for untidyness, or that may cause a puncture of a tire. Your next consideration then is the garage, and here you should consider both the side drive from the street, and its effect on your front yard, and the risk of having your garage too close to your home, especially if the home be a frame. Convenience of course is in favor of the side drive, as you do not drive through the alley at all in this instance and both the wire for lights and the pipe for water are more easily taken care of. On the other hand this spoils your terrace, and adds a fire hazard to your frame house, as well as shortens or cuts up your back yard. The considerations therefore that favor the garage being on the back of the lot are, nice, clean front yard, with attractive terrace, not hard to take care of, and reduction of fire hazard by putting the garage farther from the house.

However, these matters are best settled by the owner from his own point of view and the particular type of house, depth and width of lot, and other considerations.

The main thought that should guide the home owner is that with the alley and the garage having assumed the importance they now have, it is absolutely necessary that more care and thought should be given to the upkeep of the back yard, the garage and the alley. There are lots of folks you know who keep a spotless auto, and a rundown house, but as a home owner it is up to you to see that every point about your property shows your interest in it, for that creates, both interest and desire in the buyer.

THOSE WHO HANDLED THE HILLTOP PICNIC

For the information of those who attended the picnic and who want to know just who were responsible for the success of it, the Record requested the Hilltop Improvement Association for a list of those who did so well in putting over the best picnic the Hilltop ever attended.

Ed. Dolby, chairman of the picnic standing committee, had as his associates the following: H. G. Butler, Jack Shank, Wyatt Milliken, Stanley Colburn, Allan Dale, George Dial and A. F. (Bert) Elliott.

C. B. Cranston, G. W. McKendry and Fred Sulzberger, advertising committee; H. G. Butler, A. F. Elliott and Jack Shank, refreshment committee; Herb Gibson and Don Webb, parade committee; Stanley Colburn, George Dial and Allan Dale, park committee; Chester Herbert and Jean Worrell, contest committee; Dr. L. B. Turner, Herb Gibson, C. B. Cranston, Carl Geren and Denny Sites, prize distributing committee.

To these gentlemen a great deal of credit is due for there was not a shirker in the bunch, and they will always be found pulling for the Hilltop.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFadon

OXYGEN

But why oxygen? What is oxygen? We can't see it. We can feel its uplift, but we do not appreciate it. "Put your light under a bushel" and it will not burn longer than the surrounding oxygen lasts. Fire will not burn without it. The draft you give your furnace simply lets in the oxygen it burns and ventilation is necessary to get more.

We carelessly say that without oxygen there could be no animal or plant life, but do we realize that without oxygen for an hour all plants on the earth would be as dead as if they never had been. No animals, of any sort, would be living. There would be none of us left to bury the dead and the earth would be as lifeless and cheerless as the moon. Without oxygen in our bodies there could be no digestion of food. The nutrients we prize so highly are worthless to us till they are oxidized and that process is going on, unconsciously to us, in the minute cells of our brain, muscles, blood, and various organs all the time. Our greatest asset is your blood, and the greatest need of your blood is oxygen. Oxygen is as necessary in the makeup and utility of your blood as water and sunlight are necessary to a plant. The lungs are like a great market—a place for exchange of products. All the blood of the body is said to pass through the lungs every minute, for the exchange of its poison for oxygen, and it is up to the breath—the other party in the deal—to be present with its load. The blood makes its changes without stopping and leaves its accumulated energy everywhere, picking up worn out tissues as it goes, to be again sifted out, and so on in an endless round.

The air cells of the lungs are thus constantly bathed with swiftly running blood and if they are not filled with pure air ready for the exchange, the blood must go on its way unpurified, and will necessarily leave disease, rather than health, in its path.

We are all working for Nature, "on a salary and a percentage." The "salary" is the "natural" breathing which serves us while we sleep, and the "percentage" is what we get in addition if we hustle for it—breathe deeply.

Some people go to market with push-cart loads, and others with trucks. The business is there if the power house—the heart—is on the job. If you do a push-cart business, your vitality will be low; if you make big deals, your vitality, nerve force, energy will put you on a high plain, where existence is a joy and long life may be expected.

Verily there is nothing we can do which costs less effort and brings greater returns than the reasonable deep breathing of good pure air. With careless breathing (and we are all guilty) and careless eating (and we are all guilty) is it any wonder we have bad blood and consequently bad health, and that we do not live out the hundred years to which we are entitled?

Lapps Contented With Few Creature Comforts

No one knows when the Lapps came into Sweden, but for centuries this queer little people, a branch of the Mongol tribe, have wandered about the mountains with their reindeer, living a more or less nomadic life and holding their own in population, although not increasing in any number.

During the summer months, when the reindeer are on the move, the Lapp contents himself with a birch-pole tent covered with canvas or turf, so that it may readily be moved from place to place. Some of the homes have modern comforts, but as a rule the Lapp contents himself with very little, says the Baltimore Sun.

In autumn the young reindeer are marked on the ear with their owner's name. At this time there is a gathering of all the tribes, and, though to a stranger all reindeer look exactly alike, a Lapp will point out his own in the herd with unfailing knowledge. Nor does a Lapp remove his neighbor's mark.

Hilltop Deaths

Injuries sustained by William H. Martin, aged 43, 269 South Richardson Avenue, when the scaffold on which he was working in Carey, collapsed, caused his death, August 2d, Saturday evening.

Martin and Edward Davies, 411 Midland Avenue, lathers, were working on a church when the scaffold collapsed under the weight of a load of steel laths, hurling them to the ground, 45 feet below. Davies was unhurt, but Martin suffered a broken hip and foot, in addition to severe lacerations about the head. He was taken to a hospital in Findlay.

The body will be brought to Columbus for funeral and burial. He is survived by his wife and two children, William, aged 9 and Charles, aged 3. Martin's body was returned to Columbus Saturday afternoon and funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence in charge of the Westgate lodge of Masons. Interment was in the cemetery at Canal Winchester.

Javanese Houses by No Means Things of Beauty

The clay walls which surround a Balinese farm in Java are usually two or three meters high. Very often they rest upon a foundation of stones and are covered with a heavy layer of rushes which are to protect them from destructive tropical rains. A door in the wall is closed at night with wooden or bamboo planks, the Detroit News states.

The walls around farms of "poenggavas" or district mayors, are usually built of more substantial material. The same is true of the homes of Balinese princes. Yet while these latter houses may be elaborately decorated they resemble the more humble dwellings in that they are exceedingly filthy. The numerous members of the family—parents, brothers, sisters, nieces, nephews, married or unmarried—live in a single house.

The pigs, dogs and goats found on every Balinese farm are kept in a separate hut. The loan huts are usually built upon wooden elevations and are exceedingly ugly and ungainly.

On each farm one will also find bamboo baskets to house the fowls.

Big Lips for Beauty Is Idea of Africans

The women of the Lake Tchad region of Central Africa vie with one another as to who can possess the longest lips.

When girls are about four or five years old their future husbands pierce a hole in the center of the upper and lower lips with a big thorn or a knife. Through these holes be places thick straws or reeds.

In a few weeks, when the girl has become used to the punctures, wooden pegs the size of a lead pencil are pushed into the holes, says London Tit-Bits. Three months later, when the lips have become accustomed to the distension, larger pegs are inserted. At twenty-five a fashionable matron of the Sara-Djinges tribe is likely to have disks seven inches wide in the lower lip and five inches wide in the upper. Up to this time the disks stick straight out like birds' bills, but now they drop down from their weight.

After this larger disks are inserted about once a year. It is a matter of social pride with a woman to go on increasing her lips as long as possible.

Raise Fine Specimens of Butterfly in France

Butterfly culture in the south of France is rapidly growing in popularity. Here, under expert scientific guidance, hundreds of beautiful specimens are bred. The farms are provided with special leafy trees and plants on which the eggs are hatched. Directly the young appear the branches are taken to a well-ventilated room, where they are placed in jars of water. As soon as the caterpillars have eaten up this first supply of leaves fresh branches are provided. Having been in an even temperature for about two weeks, the young caterpillars are taken out into the open, where they are placed on plants protected from birds by nets. When fully grown this protective net is removed and soon they retire into cocoons or roll themselves up into leaves. These are collected and stored in boxes, where in a very short time butterflies of wonderful hues are evolved. Cross-breeding has been tried and numerous experiments are conducted to obtain brilliant and original markings on the wings of these insects, which are afterward sold to collectors or for the adornment of women's hats and dresses.

Fable of the Four Men

"I got off a street car this morning," said a doctor, "and being in no hurry I began moralizing on the actions and probable character of three men who had alighted just ahead of me. The first one was even then halfway down the block and was going on with such rapid strides that he had already put a couple of hundred yards between himself and the next man. 'There,' thought I, 'goes a hustler—a man who's bound to succeed in life.' The second man was walking rather slowly and impressed me as one who would do fairly well, perhaps, in this world. But the last fellow was just dawdling along in the most shiftless sort of way. I very quickly set him down as a loafer.

"Just then another idea came home to me. All three were ahead of me!"—Pathfinder Magazine.

Turf Natural Filter

France's experiments with natural turf have shown that it is an excellent material from which to form beds for the filtering of sewage. A volume of between three and four cubic meters of sewage can be purified every day for every square meter of the surface of the turf. An experimental turf filter that has been in use for more than seven months shows diminution of efficiency. If a larger proportion of sewage than that mentioned is employed the filter proves less effective, but it recovers its power when the amount of sewage is reduced to the proper proportion. Chemical analysis and the effects upon fish put into the filtered water unite in testifying to the efficiency of the process.

French Butter Markets

During the months of June, July and August the butter markets of Normandy are an interesting sight to the visitors. The peasants assemble in the market squares of the various towns, almost in military formation, with their baskets filled with large pats of butter, each done up in the whitest of cloths. The buyers walk along the lines and bargain for the wares, tasting samples before deciding. If the prospective buyer is satisfied with the flavor of one morsel he knows he may rely on the rest of it being equally good, for the French law regarding the adulteration of food is very strict, and a fraudulent seller is severely dealt with.

Poor Henry!

A Baltimore man, who was formerly a resident of a town on the eastern shore, recently revisited his old home town after an absence of many years. One day he was talking with an old friend about various people he formerly knew.

"What became of the Hall family?" he inquired.

"Oh," said the latter, "Tom Hall did very well. Got to be an actor out on the Pacific coast. Bill, the other brother, is something of an artist in New York, and Lucy, the sister, is doing literary work. But Henry never amounted to much. He took all he could lay his hands on to support the others."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Soft Drinks Traced to American Revolution

There is an interesting story about how the first soft drinks happened to be made.

Back in the days of the American Revolution a man named Townsend Speakman was running a little drug store in Philadelphia. He supplied medicines for Washington's army, and was pretty well known. One day, says a writer in the Progressive Grocer, a doctor asked him to fill a prescription of carbonated water. Druggist Speakman succeeded in compounding the concoction. The doctor's patient liked the new water. Soon, one patient after another passed the word around and, before long, Druggist Speakman had lots of calls for the new medicine water.

But Druggist Speakman was a keen business man and conceived the idea of flavoring the medicine water with fruit juices to increase its popularity. The plan worked. Its popularity spread like wildfire. That was the beginning of the carbonated soft drink business.

The soft drink business has been growing ever since. Last year, for example, the people in the United States consumed 8,000,000 bottles of non-alcoholic beverages, an average of 75 bottles for every man, woman and child.

Scientist's Explanation by No Means Flattering

A spiritualist, who also was something of an orator, visited a town where a skeptical scientist lived, and delivered a lecture one afternoon, the lecturer's desire being to convert the scientist to his belief. The audience was large, including the scientist, who had attended by special invitation.

The next day the spiritualist called on the scientist with hope that his effort had been successful. "What did you think of my lecture?" he asked.

"Well," said the scientist, "I couldn't sleep last night at all, and I lay it to your talk."

The spiritualist was highly flattered. "I knew my argument would make you think," he said. "Is it not so?"

"I am not so certain about that. Whenever I sleep during the day I cannot sleep at night."—Los Angeles Times.

What Did Peggy Say?

In her "Memories," Katherine Tynan writes at some length of Dudley Hardy, the great Bohemian: "I can remember an evening when Dudley slipped the tablecloth off the table and was Maud Allen. In the midst of the delicious performance in came the stolid English cook. Later when, in the Irish way, I went to the kitchen fire to warm my feet, I said to her: 'Isn't Mr. Hardy funny, cook?' 'Well, I did think so at first, mum,' she said, 'but now I've got used to him and I don't take no notice.' Once we came in to find Dudley in a desperate mood. There had been a terrible cheap French lamp in the dining room, all ornament, that gave a glaring unshaded light. We found it beautifully swathed in white silk and lace, looking all a lamp ought to look. But Dudley sat, his head in his hands, a guilty creature with a conviction of guilt. He had cut up some of Peggy's (his wife's) beautiful Paris lingerie to make the lamp-shade."

Relic of Roman Era

Among the interesting curios to be found in the museum at Oxford, England, is a huge stone sack. It is carved as though fresh from a man's back; it bears the mark of a rope which once encircled it in two places, and has the usual puckers at the mouth, where the string once secured the opening. All over the stone can be seen the marks of the coarse sacking which once covered it. Its history is curious. Some years ago it was fished up in the Thames below London bridge, where it must have lain for centuries. Some workmen in the time of the Romans was carrying this sack of cement from a mount to the shore, when the burden slipped from his shoulders into the water. There, under the action of the water, it became solid and, as years passed away, the sack at last rotted off, leaving only the hardened cement within.

Tongue Twisters That Have Become Classics

Some time ago there appeared in the British comic journal Punch, a particularly effective tongue twister, which ran something to this effect:

A lady was walking down a country lane when she met a tinker. "Ah," she said. "I see you are copper-bottoming your pots." "Oh, no," he replied, "I'm aluminiuming 'em, mum." As a tongue twister this is pretty hard to get, though perhaps the American form of the words is just a trifle more difficult to wrap one's tongue around: "I'm aluminuming 'em, mum."

There are, of course, many thousands of these traps for the unwary floating about. Here are a few. The test is, not merely to say them, but to manage to repeat them quickly, say a half a dozen times without getting one's tongue tied up in a knot.

The sea soeseth and it sufficeth us.

A growing gleam growing green.

The bleak breeze blighted the bright bloom blossoms.

She took a switch at Smith's fish sauce shop.

Fresh of fresh-frying fish.

High roller, low roller, lower roller.

A box of mixed biscuits, a mixed biscuit box.

She stood at the gate welcoming him in.

She sells sea shells on the sea shore.

Which switch is the switch, miss, for Ipswich?—Kansas City Star.

Music of the Orient Harsh and Strident

The idea as to what real music really is varies according to race and environment. Music of the Orient is apt to jar upon sensitive occidental ears. Take the question of drums as an instance. The playing of drums in European orchestras has reached a high standard of art, though it is rare that more than three or four are used. In a Burmese orchestra, however, the two principal instruments are one made of a series of drums called the saing-waing and a similar series of gongs called the kyee or gongs graduated in size, the drums being played with the fingers and hands and the gongs with knobsticks. Besides these there are cymbals, tom-toms and castanets, the last-named being much larger than the European instruments and made of bamboo. Of wind instruments there are only a number of clarinets and one flute played by the leader or conductor. String instruments are not used, and there are also no brass instruments.

Pleasant for Auntie

Little Margaret was spending a holiday with her aunt in Cornwall. Now, auntie was a spinster, and not in the first bloom of youth. In fact, an unkind person had once been heard to refer to her as "old," and we believe the other word used was "cat." Anyhow, she was not young.

Auntie was determined to give her little niece a good time, and she arranged several pleasure trips in order to give Margaret a chance of appreciating the beauties of the Cornish scenery.

"When I take you to St. Ives I will show you the school that I went to when I was a little girl," promised kind auntie one day when they were out for a walk.

"Oh, auntie, is it still here?" asked the child, innocently. "I expect it's in ruins now, isn't it?"—London Answers.

Insect-Eating Plant

An insect-eating plant in the sundew, so called because of a shining sticky substance secreted by glands in the sunlight like a rare gem, says the Detroit News. By means of the sticky mess, the sundew attracts and entangles its prey. Then the edges of the leaf curve inward, forming a sort of stomach into which an acid secretion is poured to digest the meal. The portions which cannot be digested are later thrown out and the trap is set for the next victim.

The sundew seems to know when food is near, for if meat is placed close to it the plant slowly reaches out for it. If a portion is placed within a few inches of the plant the leaf will bend toward it until the tiny hairs unfold the delicacy and the sticky substance completes the grip.

Oldest Work of Fiction

"The Tale of Two Brothers," so far as anyone now knows, is the oldest existing piece of fiction. It was written 32 centuries ago by Enana, a scribe of Thebes, who was librarian in the palace of King Manapta, identified by some as the pharaoh who held the Israelites in bondage.

The tale, which is written on 10 sheets of papyrus, appears to have been invented to entertain the oldest of the princes who subsequently ascended the Egyptian throne. This strange old manuscript now reposes in the British museum, where it is known as the "D'Orbiney papyrus."

Another old book, written more than a thousand years ago, mentions two breeds of poultry which are still being raised in China today.

History of Loving Cups

All racing cups are not necessarily loving cups. A loving cup is one having two or more handles, generally constructed of silver. The custom of the loving cup is traced back to the days of wassailing. It was continued after the introduction of Christianity. The words called the wassail bowl the "poculum caritatis," meaning "loving cup." The ceremony of drinking from the cup and passing it around was preserved in the Jewish paschal feast.

Young Farmer Surely Played in Hard Luck

"A young farmer had been somewhat too much of a general lover before he settled upon one sweetheart in particular, but this time he was truly attached to his Emily. It was about a month before the wedding, on a moonless night; and as he led a white heifer past the public house the door suddenly opened and a man stumbled out into the road, a little confused in his brain by too much beer. Now, this reveler, on returning home, unobserved, like many another husband, to placate his wife by offering her a scrap of gossip—he had just seen that young So-and-So walking out with somebody in white, and it wasn't the right girl, because she was at Doncaster.

"Next morning the wife, of course, told a neighbor, and the neighbor passed it on to the mother of the prospective bride, and, though the fiance was able to explain everything, the girl thought, on the whole, she would prefer to have a young man who could lead anything home at night—plain or colored—without giving rise to talk."—From "What I Have Gathered," by J. E. Buckrose.

Lord Didn't See Much to Admire in Wordsworth

Wordsworth is held up for the derisive gaze of future generations in the journal of the fourth Lord Holland, published in London.

His lordship was a languid young man of fashion, who employed part of his leisure in the early days of the Nineteenth century in keeping a rather dull journal into which the unlordly public is at length permitted to gaze, says the Living Age.

One paragraph, scrawled on the evening of March 18, 1802, suffices, however, to redeem the journal, for, the more important topic of food being safely disposed of, Lord Holland bestows three aristocratic sentences on Wordsworth:

"Dined at the B.'s. A very dull affair. We had, however, asparagus, a rarity at this season. Lady B. informed me that these, as well as the pommes de terre, were sent direct from the estate. Over the wine talked with a young Mr. Wordsworth—a pompous, conceited kind of young man, and a poet. He belongs to the new school of ranting, canting, Germanising vapourists. One has to meet very odd people sometimes."

The Obscure and Faithful

What we call illusions are often, in truth, a wider vision of past and present realities—a willing movement of a man's soul with the larger sweep of the world's forces—a movement toward a more assured end than the chances of a single life. We see human heroism broken into units and say this unit did little—might as well not have been. But in this way we might break up a great army into units; in this way we might break the sunlight into fragments, and think that this and the other might be cheaply parted with it. Let us, rather, raise a monument to the soldiers whose brave hearts only kept the ranks unbroken, and met death—a monument to the faithful who were not famous, and who are precious as the continuity of the sunbeams is precious, though some of them fall unseen and on barrenness.—George Eliot.

House Paint Once Banned

Linseed oil was first made in New York in 1715. Pigments were all imported. In New England there was much prejudice against the use of paint, it being considered a sign of worldliness and vanity.

In 1680 a clergyman in Charlestown, Mass., was haled before the council for having the interior of his house painted, and during the ensuing 40 years there was not a painter in all New England. Still, by 1759 the use of paint had become general throughout the country, the white house with green blinds for many years being the common form of exterior painting in all parts of the United States. This manner of painting frame houses is today enjoying popularity. In fact, in some quarters this color scheme is criticised as lacking individuality.

Scored on the Orator

The atmosphere was getting slightly heated in the village hall, where the candidate for office was addressing a meeting of those who he hoped would vote for him at the next election.

One man in the crowd was determined not to give the aspirant a moment's peace, and he didn't. At last the speaker lost his last remnant of patience and, shaking his fist at the heckler, he shouted:

"I look upon you, sir as a confounded rascal."

"Quite," replied the interrupter, with a sweet smile. "You are perfectly at liberty to look upon me in any character you desire to assume."

Not in Dictionary

In the good old days when science was still in its infancy, which was not so long ago, scientists were firmly convinced that the various atoms of a given element were absolutely identical with each other and quite immune from any transformation whatever. The very name, from the Greek, means indivisible. This view has recently been shattered by the investigations and developments of radio activity. The isotope has taken its place as the smallest particle. The word is not in the dictionary yet. It is of Greek origin and signifies "that which is in the place of."—Chicago Journal.

Give — your children a REAL HOME to remember—

WHAT are your fondest, happiest memories? The old home—the yard you played in, the trees you climbed. And the quiet, pleasant hallway, with mother waiting for you. You cannot think of a mother without associating her with a home—a house.

You can and should have a home that will make you and your family happy. Figure up what you have paid out for rent and for other things that represent no permanent investment—and realize what you could have been doing toward owning your own home.

Talk the matter over with your dealer. He knows local conditions; he knows the answers to your building problems; he wants to give you the kind of service that will make you a business friend of his.

Many Volcanic Craters in the United States

While we think of volcanoes we generally associate them with some foreign country, but here in our own domain we have within a comparatively restricted area a group of 68 volcanic craters. This is in Idaho and the place is called the "Craters of the Moon," because the landscape is so cold looking and so barren of vegetation that it resembles the landscape of the moon as it seems to us when viewed through a telescope. While it is barren it is not without color, for there is considerable variation in the tints of the ground which is covered with the "frozen" lava which flowed from these craters a few hundred years ago. There is one field which is called the Blue Dragon which is lava of a beautiful aurelean tint and with a polish as if it had been varnished. There are cracks in the deposit at regular intervals and all of similar shape, which makes the mass resemble the scales of a great dragon. These volcanic mounds are of various heights and some of interesting formation, with considerable variation as to color. This field is about three miles wide and thirty long and has been recently dedicated to the purposes of a public park. While it is not exactly accessible, it is not a difficult place to get at and at the present time it is little known. It is located between Cary and Arco.

Rich Man Might Better Have Forgotten Penny

In his "Queer Things About London," Mr. C. G. Harper tells the following story:

On the north side of Piccadilly is that famous labyrinthine warren of exceedingly select bachelor chambers, dating from about 1804, and known to most people as "The Albany."

By the smart set who reside there, however, it is accounted absurd to speak or write of "The" Albany. If you perpetuate that grave error, you cannot be "one of us."

Albany has always been affected, as a place of residence, by men of rank and fashion. Herein dwelt the millionaire Baron Meyer de Rothschild, and coming from his luxurious chambers one day he dropped a penny on the pavement outside.

He sought long and anxiously for the coin; but vainly, for it had rolled down a grating. Resuming an upright position, he remarked sadly on the fleeting nature of riches. Meanwhile a pickpocket had relieved him of his watch.

What the Dial Was For

"I see that you don't know how to tune this set," the friend observed, as he began adjusting the knobs. "But don't let that worry you, old man; we all have to learn, you know. Now," he continued, "did you notice the increased volume of sound as I turned the last dial? Just put the finishing touches on reception, as it were. Of course, one cannot teach you the whole game of reception at one sitting; but I will say this much—you would do well to pay particular attention to that dial if you want good quality and plenty of volume. That is one of the most sensitive controls. Condenser, I suppose?"

"No, Bill," replied the host. "You see, it is like this: I bored an extra hole in the panel by mistake and I put a knob there to hide it. It does not control anything, except the imagination."—Wireless Age.

The "One-Hose" Shay

"My grandfather and grandmother once hired an antiquated four-wheeler, driven by a man even older than the cab, whose horse was a greater age than all of them combined, to pay a Sunday afternoon call in a London square nearby. On its funereal way from house to house, the bottom fell out of the cab, and as the aged man of the box was too deaf to hear the by no means unviolent expostulation of the hot-tempered old gentleman and the cries of his small and timid spouse, there was nothing for them to do but to run along inside. The laughter of those who gazed with an abandonment of joy at this most unusual sight must have done much to break the gloom of that early Victorian Sabbath."—From "Unwritten History," by Cosmo Hamilton.

Gauls Conceded to Be First Makers of Soap

Made from goat's tallow and beechwood ashes, the earliest forms of soap were used by the ancient inhabitants of Germany to give a reddish color to the hair, according to the records of the historian, Pliny the elder. Although mixed into hard and liquid material, it was not known as a cleansing substance, but was often employed in the treatment of skin troubles.

The Gauls, it is said, introduced it into other parts of the world.

Today the yearly production in the United States is estimated to be two and one-half billion pounds. Not until about the second century of the Christian era was the product used as a cleansing article, it is claimed, and an ancient factory for manufacturing the material unearthed in the ruins of Pompeii still contained a quantity of it in a good state of preservation.

Northern Spain and Marseilles later became the chief centers of the industry and produced large amounts of the Castile variety from olive oil and lye. Earlier accounts of the existence of soap among Asiatic peoples are believed to refer to some kinds of mixtures which were devoted to purposes entirely apart from those of dyes or cleaning substances.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Some Preliminaries to His Good Night's Rest

Courtlandt Bleecker, at a dinner on Fifth avenue, was talking about the high prices in Europe since the war. "Yes, they are high sometimes, but most of it is travelers' tales. That reminds me that I heard a good one recently. It was a tale about Ceylon. An American had just arrived at a Colombo hotel and the chambermaid said to him, as she put his bedroom in order: 'Have you asked at the office for your frog, sir?' 'My frog?' gasped the American, 'what do you mean?' 'The frog to kill your cockroaches, sir. Make them give you a young, lean, muscular frog, a good jumper; one that will clean out the cockroaches thoroughly. Then, afterward, when the cockroaches are all gone, you must go down to the office again and get your snake.' 'Snake?' Holy Moses! Why a snake?' 'A snake to eat the frog, sir!' replied the maid. 'And then, as soon as the frog is eaten, you must get out of bed and kill the snake with a club; after that you'll be sure of a good night's rest.'"

Example of the Bee

It is very important to remember, says John Burroughs, the great naturalist, that the bee does not get honey from the flowers; it makes honey from what it gets from the flowers. What it gets from the flowers is nothing but sweetened water. The bee gets its sweet water, retires, thinks it over and by a private process makes its honey. So many nature writers fail to profit by the example of the bee. They go into the woods and come out again and write about their experience—but they don't give us honey. They don't retire and subject what they find in the woods to a private process. They give us just a little sweet water, pretty thoroughly diluted. I have tried for many years not to give the world just a bare record, but to flavor it with my own personality.

Duck's Use of Wings

Do ducks use their wings while swimming under water? The question is discussed frequently among sportsmen and nature students, and opinions sometimes differ. Testimony of reliable authorities, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, supports the belief that various species of ducks and grebes, loons and other diving birds do not use their wings when swimming beneath the surface for food or in trying to escape capture. A ruddy duck was observed on Lake Michigan not long ago, feeding in fifteen or twenty feet of clear water. As it got well started on its downward plunge, the wings, about two-thirds extended, were used in quick, short strokes at the rate of about one a second, to assist in propelling it and in rising to the top, as well.

Does the Truth Pay?

We have often asked ourselves this question, especially when applied to advertising. It is a debatable question that many have never really settled.

Stores have become large and successful, with continuous ficticious, circus advertising, and when you argue with one of these successful merchants, they claim the public wants to be humbugged, and they point to tdeir successful institutions as a mark of evidence to back up their assertion.

Our advertising is truthful. Our merchandise in one quality only---the best that price will buy—reliable goods always. If bought especially for a sale we say so. If reduced from regular price we say so without exaggeration.

And we go further than that. If goods are not satisfactory to you for any reason we cheerfully make good to you—AT ONCE—satisfaction guaranteed in each sale. This policy has taught the Hilltop people that you may read our advertising, and purchase our merchandise with confidence. The truth does pay.

A Man's Prayer

Teach me that 60 minutes make an hour, 16 ounces a pound, and 100 cents a dollar. Help me to live so that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience and unhaunted by the faces of those to whom I may have brought pain. Grant that I may earn my meal ticket on the square, and in earning it I may do unto others as I would have them do unto me. Deafen me to the jingle of tainted money. Blind me to the faults of other fellows and reveal to me my own. Guide me so that each night when I look across the table at my wife, who has been a blessing to me, I will have nothing to conceal. Keep me young enough to laugh with little children and sympathetic so as to be considerate of old age. And when comes the day of darkening shades make the ceremony short and the epitaph simple: "Here lies a man."—Herrington Sun.

Moonlight and Mockingbird

Late in the night from some vantage point—the tip-top twig of the tallest tree the pine point above the crossarms of a telephone pole or the peak of the barn—sits a mockingbird, pouring forth his song.

The world lies deep in slumber. High over all rides the moon, its radiance veiled by a delicate mist that lightly drapes the ancient Ozark hills and shrouds the valley. Rest, peace possesses all, a silence deep, broken only by the voice of the wonderful bird. His music rises and falls, filling the hours with melodies rare and sweet, and having for accompaniment the soft sound of dewdrops falling from the points of the leaves on the Balm of Gilead trees.

Redbird Got Its Name From Church Dignitary

At first thought it is difficult to see the relationship between the common redbird, or cardinal, and the hinges of the front door. The explanation is simple enough, however, when the words are traced to their source. The redbird was originally called a cardinal because his plumage bore the coloring of the hat and cassock of a cardinal of the Roman Catholic church. The use of the word "cardinal" as denoting a dignitary of the church came about through the poetic fancy of an early pope, who spoke of the cardinals as "the hinges by which all things are moved" in connection with church government. In the Latin language "cardo, cardinis," is the equivalent of the English "hinge." For this reason the dignitary was called a cardinal, as signifying his function as one of the "hinges" of the church. From this early usage "cardinal" came to be applied to anything of prime importance, including the cardinal numbers, the cardinal points of the compass and the cardinal virtues. The use of the word as applying to a color came about from the fact that the color was the striking feature of the dress of a cardinal. This explains the use of the word in naming the redbird.

Beloved Part of It

The men and officers of the navy are known all over the world for their smart appearance, and it was for this reason that one of the officers on board a battleship was rather disgusted at the untidy appearance of a certain midshipman.

One morning the "middy" strolled into the wardroom wearing a collar that was, to say the least of it, extremely soiled. This was too much for the officer and he decided to tackle the young man on the matter.

"Look here," he said, "you ought not to come in here wearing a filthy collar like that round your neck."

"Filthy, sir," replied the middy; "I assure you this collar was washed ashore only yesterday."

"I don't doubt that," was the quiet reply, "but from which wreck?"

New Dish

The young man who was accustomed to having an early breakfast every day was absent one morning, having gone to see his wife off on an early train.

Returning to the house some time later he said to the cook:

"Well, Jane, I have no spouse this morning."

"Tain't my fault, suh," she replied, indignantly. "I sho' cooked it fo' yuh. But you jes' wouldn't come eat it."

Demons and Storms

Evil spirits and demons were held by the ancients to be responsible for great winds and storms at sea. Horace, in his writings, lamented the rashness of those who tempted the fates by trying to pass the boundaries that the gods had interposed between the continents. The discovery of the Cape of Good Hope was long delayed by the fear of the storm fiends which infested the African coast; though only at Peel, in the Isle of Man, have I ever heard that the seafaring people were astute enough to capture the author of all the mischief, which is at least comforting. — Montreal Family Herald.

Some Funkins!

Western Exchange—The letter "p" is the most important in the alphabet, because it leads all others in perfection. It is likewise first in peace and prosperity and gives pleasure its proper form. It is found in every enterprise and aspiration and without its valuable office the anchor of hope would be but a commonplace hoe. Besides being foremost in philosophy, it is at the front in patriotism, patience and piety. Purpose has no meaning without it and the pyramids are built upon its base.—Boston Transcript.

Needles With "Eyes" Traced to Stone Age

The American spooled thread industry is founded on experiments made by the wife of Samuel Slater, who in 1798 introduced Arkwright's spinning or cotton gin at Pawtucket, R. I. Mrs. Slater twisted cotton yarn in an ordinary spinning wheel and made a two-ply thread. This industry still has to go back to Egypt, the mother country of linen, for the sewing cotton used in every American home.

It is made almost exclusively of imported long staple Egyptian cotton. The larger and coarser sizes, for crocheting and industrial purposes, are made of domestic cotton. The first material used by woman for binding was made from the roots of plants, or leather thongs.

Women's earliest needle was like an awl and was not pierced at the head, says the Detroit News. The earliest needles were made of bone, stone or bronze. In the Stone age needles began to have eyes, this kind being found in the reindeer caves of France. China was the first to use needles of steel. This instrument, traveling westward, reached Europe through the Moors. At Nuremburg, Germany, in 1370, the needle industry was founded, and prospered later in England under Queen Elizabeth.

Few Bricks Actually Brought to America

How often you hear it said of an old house that the bricks of which it is made were imported from England or Holland, States House and Garden Magazine. People actually believe this to be a fact, just as they believe that the Mayflower brought over vast quantities of furniture. Had this been true it would have required more than one Leviathan to have brought either the furniture or the bricks.

The historian, George Cary Eggleston, remarked on this in one of his books: "Nearly all those bricks, whether English or Dutch, were made in America, as later scholarly research has conclusively proved. The only difference between English and Dutch bricks was one of dimensions. The small bricks molded upon a Dutch model were known as Holland bricks. The much larger ones, molded upon an English model, were called English bricks.

"The very learned and scholarly historian of South Carolina, Mr. McCrady, has conclusively proved that the so-called English bricks used in the construction of Carolina houses could not have been imported from England."

Bowls Were Not Alike

"A man selling pottery came to Salem and rapped at a certain lady's door," says the Boston Globe. "He was asked in. Just as he got inside the door he dropped one of the bowls, supposedly by mistake, and it did not break. When in the kitchen he dropped another, and then remarked to the lady that his bowls were guaranteed not to break. She bought some, to be paid for when delivered. When they came she put them away to wait until some of her friends would appear and she would drop one for a surprise. A friend finally arrived. The lady took a pot from the shelf and dropped it accidentally on purpose. It shattered into a thousand pieces—quite unlike the rubber samples."

Basis of Civilization

Let us never forget that the cultivation of the earth is the most important labor of man. Man may be civilized in some degree without great progress in manufactures and with little commerce with his distant neighbors. But without the cultivation of the earth he is, in all countries, a savage. Until he gives up the chase, and fixes himself in some place, and seeks a living from the earth, he is a roaming barbarian. When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers, therefore are the founders of civilization.—Daniel Webster.

Social Affairs

A delightful evening was spent in honor of Mr. Harold H. Moore, 177 North Wheatland Ave., on August 5, 1924, celebrating his 26th birthday. The evening was given mostly to music and dancing. Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vanmeter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Denenbaugh and family, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Mosely and son Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Amspoker and son Richard, Miss Helen Southward and Mr. Harry Mosely.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Moss and children Dorothea and Robert, motored on a trip to Alpena, Mich., July 23, 1924, camping and fishing for 10 days. They motored on to Mackanaw City, St. Ignace, Sault Ste Marie and Mackinac Island, returning on the west shore of Michigan August 9. They report an enjoyable trip.

The Misses Bess and Catherine Sperry left the city August 5 for a three weeks' trip via Buffalo, Niagara Falls, thence to Albany and down the Hudson to Brooklyn, New York, where they will visit their brother, Captain J. Russell Sperry and family, returning via Chesapeake Bay, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., and other points of interest.

The Home and Foreign Missionary Society of Hoge Memorial Church will hold their meeting after Sabbath School Sanday instead of their regular meeting on Thursday.—Mrs. Ault, Secretary.

Mrs. M. L. Gill of 53 North Terrace Street, has returned from Pana, Ill., after spending two weeks, where she was called by the death of her mother who was 97 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lear, 66 South Burgess Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Lear, 78 North Eureka Avenue, and son Tommie, leave Saturday for Michigan City.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Goudy and sons James, Frederick, and Richard, 264 South Terrace Avenue, have left for Sheffield, Ala., where they will spend ten days.

Miss Lois Thornton, 224 South Richardson Avenue, entertained with a garden party on Saturday, in honor of Miss Muriel Ross, of Lancaster, Ohio, who is visiting her sister, Miss Audrey Ross, 1069 Say Avenue. Those were guests: Miss Dorothy Schwartz, Miss Margaret Snider, Miss Winifred Ontor, Miss Rhea Mougey, Miss Margaret Gooch, Miss Muriel Ross, Mr. Henry Thornton, Mr. James Williams, Mr. Edgar Thornton, Mr. E. Morrison, Mr. Bennie Pearce, Mr. John McNerney, and Mr. Miles Hoover.

Mrs. S. M. Kingery and son Mac Donald, 80 South Eureka Avenue, and the former's sister, Miss Elizabeth Barrett, of Lima, have returned from Lakeside.

The following have returned from a vacation spent at Lakeview and Lima: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Massiow and son Jack, 253 North Warren Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Keller and daughter Louise, 103 South Eureka Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Hughes and son Edward, 259 North Warren Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Graham and son James, 287 South Terrace Street.

Miss Thelma Worrell, 1968 Floral Avenue, left Sunday for a motoring trip through the East. She will visit Niagara Falls, New York City, and Washington.

The Misses Minette and Winifred Bishop, 482 South Hague Avenue, and Gertrude Elias, of 446 South Terrace Street, have returned from a week's visiting near Centerville in Jackson County. While there they visited Mr. David Lloyd and family, and at the Keystone Summer resort. Returning they stopped in Jackson to visit with Rev. E. B. White and family.

Mr. Elmer C. Dildine, 31 North Warren Avenue, and his cousin, Mr James L. Peyton, 124 North Ogden Avenue, returned last week from Buckeye Lake, where they spent several days with Messrs. Rudolph H. and Harry Knechler, 50 Richards Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Slater and daughter, Marjorie Mae, 27 North Ogden Avenue, have returned from their summer home at Klinger Lake, Mich., where they spent six weeks. Mr. Ralph H. Smith, 120 North Ogden Avenue, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Slater during the last two weeks of their stay in Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Haddon 349 Nashoba Avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter Jane to Mr. Wilbur R. Huston, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Huston, of Urbana. Mr. and Mrs. Huston will be at home at 135 South Souder Avenue after a short wedding trip.

Mr. C. S. Rhoades, of Indianapolis Ind., superintendent of telegraph, Big Four Railway Co., accompanied by Mrs. Rhoades and Miss Katherine and Wilhelmina Rhoades, of Chicago; Mr. Hazel, of Indianapolis, Ind., touring from New York to Indianapolis, paid a visit with W. M. Tucker and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. McCormick, 1999 West Broad Street, Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. McCormick, 1999 West Broad Street, who have been taking a tour visiting with relatives and friends at Chillicothe, Jackson, and Lima, Ohio, have returned.

The marriage of Jane Haddon to Wilbur R. Huston was solemnized on Tuesday evening by Rev. H. S. Bailey, pastor of Thurman Ave. M. E. Church, at the parsonage, 169 Thurman Ave. Miss Haddon was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Hadden, 349 Nashoba Avenue. The groom is the son of S. S. Huston, Urbana, Ohio. After a wedding trip of about ten days they will be at home at 135 Souder Avenue.

Mrs. J. O. Bottman and Mrs. J. J. Rings entertained in honor of their mother, Mrs. Ella Tipton of Memphis, Tenn. Those enjoying the surprise of Mrs. Tipton were Mrs. Elizabeth Bayha, Miss Nina Holden of New Lexington, Mr. and Mrs. Rings and daughters Frances and Blanche and son Roy, of 70 South Burgess, and Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bottman, son Bobby and daughter Nancy of 1665 Andover Road.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFaden

We are so prone to think of Mother Nature as an indulgent mother, who forgives without repentance and restores without recompense, that transgression becomes a habit and we forget our indebtedness. There is no escaping the penalty for breaking any natural law. Our habitual dietetic indiscretions have their origin in our nerves of taste which are not to be trusted. The "I don't like this," and "I don't like that" are, with most of us, condemnatory and conclusive and the question of "What is best?" is seldom thought of till the danger signal bowls painfully, and we wonder why it is that we must be more careful than others (whose time hasn't come yet).

The fact that most people of 50 years of age have some disease resulting from faulty alimentation is conclusive proof that the common method of living is wrong. Anything habitual is easy, and we, unwittingly or wilfully, excuse, in ourselves, daily indiscretions, and perhaps experience daily discomforts therefrom, which are tolerated because of the pleasure from our perverted taste, experienced momentarily, while eating.

A depressed feeling after eating is so common that we habitually expect that during digestion we cannot approach our rightful percent of energy. And so we drift on above and between these waves of efficiency, complacently accepting the condition as normal.

It is comforting to know that we are "as good as the average," but if the personal equation is low—and it surely is—then why not hitch your wagon to a real star? Not follow in the footsteps of those who are broken down before they reform, but get in touch with the various movements for the promotion of right living.

The only part any method of healing can do toward the healing is to so change conditions that Nature can effect a cure. The medical method is based largely upon chemical stimulation, which depends, often, upon the introduction of extraneous and inorganic substances. The osteopathic way, after finding the cause, provides, primarily, for removing mechanical obstruction, and using such other natural methods as may be indicated.

The fact that dietetic errors are the most prolific causes of disease, and the co-incident truth that applied dietetics is greatly neglected and ignored by doctors generally, are really pathetic.

Health should be made a hobby, but there should be no dominance of fear of sickness. Hope of success is not fear of failure. To worry about your health is to undermine it. A hopeful optimistic spirit is the best remedy. Proper poise and mental attitude are important at all times—sick or well. Fear, anger and worry are great consumers of nerve energy. They so influence the natural body processes as to prevent the normal excretion of poisons, without which disease cannot be cured. To eat a hearty meal when fear, jealousy or anger is much in evidence, is a mistake, for digestion cannot be normal. There will be fermentation, causing additional poison. So poisonous are these baser passions that a mother should not nurse her baby when her feelings are so dominated.

Most any person who has been a resident on the Hilltop for the past eight or nine years and has had occasion to visit the barber shop that, until recently was conducted by Mr. T. C. Mitchell on Broad Street, near South Park Ave., will recall the familiar face of Mr. C. W. Cunningham who served faithfully at one of the chairs there. Also of the accommodating and gentlemanly manner of Mr. Cunningham. But time came, that because of sickness, Mr. Cunningham had a nervous breakdown and was compelled to give up the barber business and take to the out-of-doors. This was all right in its way, but he had a family, besides a son at his home who was sick for about four years and needed his care. So securing a nursery agency he started out to make a living that way, and has, to a certain extent helped to keep things going at home, but, to our way of thinking, Mr. Cunningham should be patronized more by our Hilltop people who are needing supplies in the nursery line. Later Mr. Cunningham has taken on all kinds of insurance listings, such as auto, fire, theft, life and plate glass. He has been on the Hilltop about fifteen years, and is paying on his property at 64 South Oakley Avenue. This is a good time to order nursery stock for your fall planting, and Mr. Cunningham, we are sure, would appreciate any order from you, however small or large. He guarantees his stock and asks no pay until delivery. His phone number is Hilltop 2551-W.—Publisher of The Record.

"Scaramouche" the picture that took the nation by storm, and one that has made film history in every city where it has been shown, will be the attraction at the Rivoli Monday. Rex Ingram directed this masterpiece of photo-drama which uses the great French Revolution as a background and to center a powerful love story such as the screen has seldom seen. The stars are Ramon Navarro, Alice Terry, Lewis Stone and George Seigman, who portrays the immortal part of Danton. The management announces that there will be no advance in prices, this being the first time that this great picture has shown at popular prices.

There will be a special matinee for children from the ages of five to 12, all residents of the Hilltop, who will be admitted free. The matinee will start at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and an especially chosen program of pictures that will make a hit with the kids will be screened. Spread the news to your friends and don't fail to come yourself.

A lawn fete will be given by Burgess Avenue U. B. Church on Saturday night, corner of Burgess and Sullivant Avenues. Ice cream and cake 15 cents. Everybody welcome.

Miss Carrie Geisinger of Findlay, Ohio, visited Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ditrick, 125 North Park Avenue.

Mr. J. W. Ham, Mrs. H. W. Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ham and daughter Mary, all of North Harris Avenue, left Saturday for a motor trip through northern Ohio to Hillsdale, Mich., stopping at way points en route.

We were shown some nice everbearing strawberries by Mr. W. C. Link, raised at his home, 158 North Harris Avenue. He only let us taste one, but it tasted like "more." They were beauties.

MOTHER OF 3 CHOKES SELF TO DEATH WITH BED SHEET

Mrs. Eva Boggs, 41, wife of O. M. Boggs, 84 North Eureka Avenue, choked herself to death Monday with pieces of a bed sheet, because of ill health. Mrs. Boggs suffered a nervous breakdown two years ago and never had recovered fully. Her body was found by Miss Helen Glick of 86 North Eureka Avenue. Mr. Boggs told police his wife was in bed when he left for work at the Eureka Avenue Lumber Co. at 8 a. m. Two sons, Londie, 21, Earl, 19, and a daughter, Mary, 9, survive her in addition to her parents.

Frank Keifer, injured several weeks ago at the time of the explosion and fire at the Central Ohio Oil Co. plant on West First Avenue, was removed from White Cross Hospital to his home, 107 Belvidere Avenue, Saturday afternoon. He is recovering.

About 9:40 Monday evening Mr. Campbell was standing behind the counter in his drug store at 2766 West Broad Street, when the door opened and in walked a young fellow of about 19 years. Mr. Campbell asked him if there was something for him, when he replied, "Yes, I'll trouble you to open your cash register," holding a gun in his face to back up the request. Mr. Campbell quietly obeyed the request and the young robber took the fifty dollars in paper money, turned and walked to the door with the gun on Mr. Campbell all the time and made his escape. Mr. Campbell immediately notified police headquarters and officers were out there in about ten minutes. But as yet the robber has not been caught.

We are glad for the regularity in attendance of so many of the members and friends of the church. The work moves with power when every one does their best. It is hoped that every member of the church will find it in your heart to spend at least one hour in the house of God next Sunday, and as much more as possible. You need the inspiration that comes from meeting in the house of worship.

A number of the classes are increasing the number of scholars each Sunday. Last Sunday there were 97 in the men's class. Let us make it 100 at least next Sunday. Every person in their place for the Glory of God.

THE DANGEROUS AGE

"I have been a judge for a number of years and I know that boys between 17 and 22 years of age commit about 75 per cent of the crimes, says a writer in World's Work. "Between the ages of 16 and 23 you will find that men are inclined to commit crime. Now, why is it? If they grow up to be 25 or 30 it is not likely they will get into the criminal courts. It is the most beautiful age of a man's life, an age of dreams, of romance, of vitality, fired with ambition. That beautiful age is perverted because of the wrong system under which these boys live. They all have surplus energy and that energy should have some outlet. It is a time when they should be impressed with the beauty of a clean life, of a purpose; but no one seems interested until they get into the criminal courts. The Marshall Stillman movement takes the boy before he goes wrong. It doesn't preach to him, but it shows him the finer side of life and if he does slip from grace it opens up its doors and says: "Come here: we will do what we can for you if you want to help yourself."

A man is apt to forget that running a home is pretty hard work. There isn't much of diversion about housework. The man swallows his breakfast whole and rushes away to his affairs, leaving the little woman many times with children to be made ready for school, lunch to be prepared for them at noon, washing to be done and the preparation of a big evening meal. The lord and master of the house comes home late in the day, tired out, as he describes it, and sometimes after dinner falls asleep, in which state he remains until the dutiful wife relieves his agony by suggesting that he better go to bed. From morning until night a woman's work continues, without variation. Man at his worst manages to get something of a holiday, says the Dayton News. Of course women need holidays, and the right kind of husbands always plan to give the mother and wife some diversion.

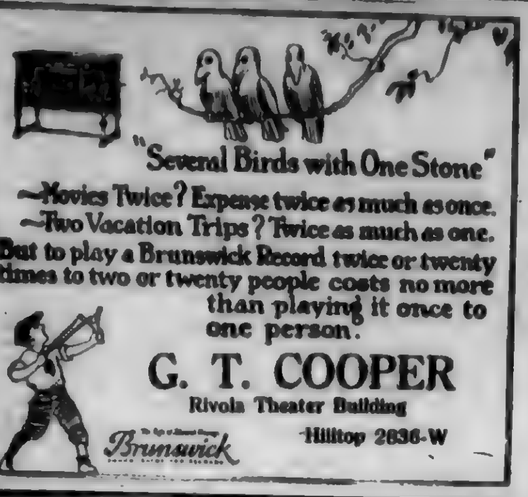
Great as is the influence wielded by hymns upon the consciousness of both individuals and nations, only very few have obtained a recognition in any wise equal to that which "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" has received, says the Christian Science Monitor. These verses of Bishop Heber's have been, in the century since they were set to music by Lowell Mason, translated into almost countless languages, used to an extent veritably beyond imagination in missionary work, and just recently were accorded a special centennial service in Savannah, Ga., where Mr. Mason acted as organist from 1812 to 1827. The fact that the tune was composed, so the story goes, in about half an hour, shows how little the concept of time enters into the record of real achievement.

Europe is worrying because we have so much waste space in America. But with one hundred and twelve millions as a starter there is no danger that we will fail to fill up in due time, and the gentle hint from the old world that she would like to help is quite unnecessary.

So many of nature's choicest preserves have been invaded if not conquered by mere man that one can scarcely blame her for defending the few that remain with all vigor. Two members of the party scaling Mount Everest have been killed.

The dead silence which pervades the place where the British and Russian governments are trying to reach a friendly agreement tends to confirm a general impression that it is much easier to quarrel with Russia than it is to effect a reconciliation.

Perhaps when they license the chauffeurs it would be a good scheme to have them wear license plates fore and aft, so that they can be readily identified in an emergency, as is so often desirable.



Automatic traffic signals are all right enough if they are obeyed, but they probably would become unsuccessful if they were so arranged as that they could make a few terse remarks on occasion.

That a country's size is no criterion of superiority in a given field is indicated by Belgium's third consecutive victory in the international balloon races. Thus it has clinched its possession of the Gordon Bennett cup.

When we read of moves to dissolve parliament in Europe, we almost regret that the system which makes it possible was not adopted by the framers of our own Constitution.

This is the time of the year the college seniors worry over how much money bricklayers are making.

The campaign-song posts should be given an office—if that would hold them.

Cherokee Myth Tells of Bravery of Spider

Lucky was it for all the animals that there are spiders that have egg sacs resembling bowls, for otherwise all the creatures of the forest would have had to go without fire, the Youth's Companion remarks. At least so we are assured in a Cherokee myth. Natural History thus tells the pretty story in which a spider played the part of Prometheus:

In the beginning there was no fire, and the world was cold. In time, however, the thunders placed fire in a hollow tree on an island. The animals gazed enviously at the smoke that curled upward from the concealed bonfire, knowing that there was warmth there, yet at a loss how to obtain it. So they held a council, and as a result the raven set out on the quest. He reached the island and the tree, but all that he bore back with him as a result of his adventure was scorched and blackened feathers. The little screech owl next made the trial. He reached the tree, but while he was hesitating what to do next a blast of fiery air arose and nearly burned out his eyes, which are red to this day. Other owls tried in their turn, but with no better success. Then the black snake tried, and today he bears a covering of sooty scales as a badge of his ineffectual hardihood.

Daunted by the failure of their fellows, the remaining animals managed to find the weightiest of reasons for not venturing to go. Not so the spider, however. She wove a little rustic bowl of her silk and, fastening it to her back, set forth on her adventure. Reaching the island, she crept through the grass to the tree and snatched up a little ember of fire, which she placed in her bowl and returned with it to the expectant animals.

Years Have Brought Changes in Meaning

If we wish to label anything strange or barbarous we say it is "outlandish," but when the Bible speaks of an "outlandish woman" it means a foreigner.

Another curious expression in the authorized version is "The other basket had very naughty figs." That means fruit which was good for naught. Today the word "naughty" means "ill-behaved." In the prayer book the word "presently" means "at the present time," but today is always means a future time, though not far distant, says London Tit-Bits.

When the authorized version of the Scriptures was first printed, the word "careful" meant "full of care and anxiety," as in "careworn," but if a man were said to be careful it would today be a good testimonial. Thus, when the New Testament tells us to "be careful for nothing," it is not enjoining wastefulness and speaking against thrift, but simply telling us not to worry about anything.

Beginning of Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian association was founded in England by Sir George Williams, a London merchant. Williams' organization grew out of meetings he held for prayer and Bible reading among his fellow workers in a dry-goods business in London, and the association was founded in 1844. On the occasion of its jubilee, its originator was knighted. Similar associations had been in existence in Scotland at a much earlier date. In 1824 David Nalsmith started the Glasgow Young Men's Society for Religious Improvement, a movement which spread to various parts of the United Kingdom, France and America. Later the name was changed to the Glasgow Young Men's Christian association.

His City of Refuge

The train came to a grinding stop at a small town in the South, and the head of a gentleman of color protruded from a window at the end of a car. Seated by his side could be seen a brown-skinned maiden.

"Does yo' know a cullud pusson by de name o' Jim Brown what lives here?" he asked of a station lounger.

"Ain' nevah heard o' no Jim Brown nyah, an' Ah lived in dis town fo' ten yeahs."

"Is yo' right sush dey ain't nevah been no Jim Brown aroun' nyah?"

"Positively."

"Den," announced the arrival, reaching for a suitcase, "dis is whah his new mon-in-law gits off."—The Continent.

Lost Talent

A great deal of talent is lost in the world for the want of a little courage. Every day sends to their graves a number of obscure men who have only remained in obscurity because their timidity has prevented them from making a first effort; and who, if they could have been induced to begin, would in all probability have gone great lengths in the career of fame. The fact is that, to do anything in this world worth doing, we must not stand back shrinking and thinking of the cold and danger, but jump in and scramble through as well as we can.—Rev. Sydney Smith.

Will-o'-the-Wisp

"Will-o'-the-Wisp" is a popular name for a phenomenon called ignis fatuus, which in Latin means "foolish fire." It is a light which appears floating in the atmosphere a few feet above the ground in marshes or other places where there is decaying animal matter. When approached it appears, as a rule, to recede. It has been attributed to phosphoreted or carbureted hydrogen escaping from decaying substances.

Major's Man Knew How to Deal With Scorpion

The major acquired a body servant named Garvino while we were combating malaria in the hills back of Santiago. One day the major was stung by a large scorpion—stung through his leather legging at that. Major Latimer was probably one of the world's greatest technicians in the art of profanity. He tore loose with his entire vocabulary when the virus of the scorpion made itself felt. Then he concluded he was going to die, as many other scorpion stingees had.

Garvino dug around till he found another scorpion. He broke the critter in two, tore off the major's legging, rolled up his pants and drawers and applied the raw end of half the broken scorpion to the spot on the major's leg where the sting had entered, writes Leo P. Cook in Adventure Magazine. The pain ceased immediately and the major felt no further discomfort. Thereafter we knew how to treat a scorpion sting. This may be old stuff.

Another little trick of Garvino was to catch a scorpion, hold it by the head from beneath with thumb and finger, and with his other hand tear out the muscle that actuated the scorpion's sting. You know the scorpion must flip his tail up over his head to strike. After Garvino had performed this operation the scorpion was helpless to sting, though his locomotion was not interfered with.

Writing on Pinhead No Longer Novelty

Wandering about town one might get the idea that America had developed a new industry—that of engraving the Lord's prayer on pinheads. The impression is strengthened if one takes to visiting the regions in which sideshows flourish, near towns or along the rustic routes of the traveling shows.

Considering that the man who engraved the prayer on a pin a few years ago was reported to have gone blind and insane as a result of his three years of application, one might almost pause to ask if all this pin engraving were not dangerous. There is no fear, however; the engraved pin business has been placed on a safe and sane basis, remarks the New York Times.

The original pin was all that has been said for it. On a disk forty-seven one-thousandths of an inch in diameter there were engraved 65 words with 254 letters, and nearly 2,000 lines had to be cut in doing it. The original might conceivably have got lost in a sewing basket and gone the way of all pins. But a die was made of it—no inconsiderable job in itself—and the market is now supplied from the die.

Legend of Pontius Pilate

Among the Swiss Alps is a mountain named after Pontius Pilate. Country people say that it is haunted by Pilate's ghost. According to legendary lore it appears that after the Crucifixion Pontius Pilate fell from imperial favor and killed himself in prison, whereupon his body was cast into the Tiber, which immediately rose and almost burst its banks. The body was taken to a lonely pool at the top of the mountain which now bears its name near Lucerne. According to another version Pilate retired there during his lifetime and was thrown into the pool by the Wandering Jew. In any case his presence caused terrible trouble, avalanches and floods devastating the district amid a thunderous noise in the recesses of the mountains. In the Sixteenth century the ghost was finally laid, and a procession went up every year, headed by the vicar of Lucerne, to cast stones into the pool.

Gehenna Place of Horror

The word Gehenna is translated "hell" in the Bible. Gehenna, strictly speaking, was the valley of Hinnom, a deep narrow glen south of Jerusalem, where, after Ahaz introduced the worship of fire gods, the Sun, Baal and Moloch, the Jews, under Manasseh, made their children pass through the fire and offered them as burnt offerings. "So Josiah defiled the valley making it a receptable of carcasses and criminals' corpses, in which worms were continually gendering." A perpetual fire was kept burning to consume this putrefying matter; hence it became the image of that awful place where all that are unfit for the holy city are supposed to be cast out.

Hidden Love Messages

There have always been parents and guardians to hinder and thwart the hapless lover, and many girls have been obliged to resort to methods of deception.

The simplest means ever employed was to write the love messages with fresh milk instead of ink. On the receipt of a blank sheet of paper, all the recipient needed to do was to sprinkle it with soot or charcoal. The grit stuck to the lines traced by the pen.—Exchange.

Study Woods Again

When iron ships came into use the study of woods began to decline and the decline was steady until recently when the United States Department of Agriculture placed wood upon a footing of a "principal product." Galileo, upon his visit to the arsenal in Venice, which visit had much to do with his law upon the resistance of solid bodies, was one of the first eminent students of woods. Leonardo da Vinci was another.

First Democrat

Kleisthenes, an Athenian scholar and statesman, was the first Democrat really to raise his voice in the interest of the common people. This occurred in about 510 B. C. About eighty years before a spirit of revolt made itself felt in Attica, owing to heavy taxes and the arrogance of the nobles. Solon, another eminent statesman and lawmaker, was authorized at that time to make some steps to remedy a situation that was already feared by those in power.

Historic Battle

The name Battle of the Giants is given to a battle fought at Marignano (now Melegnano), near Milan, September 13-14, 1515, between the allied French and Venetian forces under Francis I of France, and the Italians and Swiss, commanded by the duke of Milan. The battle was hotly contested and resulted in a victory for Francis. The total number of slain is said to have exceeded 20,000. Trivulzio, who had been present at 18 pitched battles, called them all child's play as compared with this "battle of giants."

Will Be Record Bridge

What is to be the largest arch bridge in the world, costing more than $40,000,000, will be constructed across the harbor at Sydney, Australia. The total length will be 3,700 feet, more than half a mile, while the single arch in the center will have a span of 1,600 feet. The head from high water will be 170 feet, allowing the largest ocean liners to pass beneath. —Popular Science Monthly.

Wise John

Mrs. Grabb—I can tell without asking whether John has won or lost at poker the minute he comes home.

Mrs. Gobb—How?

"If he has lost, he throws his overcoat across the foot of the bed. If he has won, he puts them under his pillow."

The Sunshine Club will give a benefit lawn fete on Saturday evening, August 16th, at Broad and Oakley, the funds to go for the Friends Rescue Home. Homemade cake and ice cream will be served for 15c. Patronize them.

Significant Words on First American Coin

After the American colonies had achieved independence, the provision of a coinage became their own sovereign right. The devices for the first coin struck by authority of congress were prescribed by a committee of that body in the following terms: ". . . On one side of which piece . . . thirteen circles linked together, a small circle in the middle, with the words United States around it; and in the center 'We Are One.' On the other side of the same piece the following device, viz, a dial with the hours expressed on the face of it; a meridian sun above, on one side of which is to be the word 'Fugio,' and on the other the year '1787'; below the dial, the words, 'Mind Your Own Business.'" The types of this piece are very similar to those of the dollar pattern of the proposed continental currency, which bears date of 1776, and which were probably designed by an artist, who on the earlier piece placed the signature E. G. Fecit. The types are interesting as a commentary on the state of mind of the times. The political hope, for it could be only a hope still at that time, of an inseparable union, expressed in the obverse type, was probably not less prevalent than the caution so graphically set forth by the other that "Time is flying," so "Mind Your Business" affairs. This terse expression of practical sense, because so much in the spirit of Poor Richard, has won for the coin the name of "Franklin cent," but Franklin probably had nothing to do with the designing of it.

"Little Rock"

The principal city of Arkansas derived its name (originally "Le Petit Roche" and "The Little Rock") from the rocky peninsula in the Arkansas, distinguished from the "Big Rock," the site of the army post, Fort Logan H. Roots, one mile west of the city. The big rock is said to have been first discovered and named "Le Rocher Francais" in 1822 by Sieur Bernard de la Harpe, who was in search of an emerald mountain; the little rock is now used as an abutment for a railway bridge.

Early New Englanders Fond of Their Beans

In the absence of positive information on the subject of the origin of Boston baked beans and their place on New England breakfast menus this conjecture is offered: In the early days of the Plymouth colony people did their baking in brick ovens. These ovens were heated on Saturday and enough baking for the week was done at that time. As the oven cooled off the temperature was just right for beans, which need long, slow cooking, so they were thus ready to be eaten on Saturday night and were probably put back into the oven to keep hot and these were eaten for breakfast on Sunday morning. Many New England people reheat them and eat them for breakfast each morning until they are gone, and some people who bake them on Wednesday continue to serve them for breakfast until the Saturday beans are baked. In northern New England beans have been baked from time immemorial in a hole in the ground, the hole having first been lined with stones and the stones made very hot with a fire built in the hole. In lumber camps the beans are usually put in to bake the night before they are to be served for breakfast.

Truth Prevailed

The criminal lawyer believed in being absolutely frank with his clients, and accordingly when a man came to him charged with stealing a pig he said:

"Now, I will be perfectly open with you. If I take your case you must in the first place tell me honestly: Did you or did you not steal this pig?"

"Well, yes, sir, I did," the man admitted; "but I have a big family and no money, and I was in need of meat for them."

"That's all right," replied the lawyer. "You bring me half that pig and I'll take on your case."

When the case came into the court the lawyer addressed the jury thus: "This man did not get any more of the pig than I did."

The verdict was "Not guilty."

Inventor Unknown

The history of the monkey-wrench is obscure. Even the origin of the term "monkey" in the name is unknown. It is commonly believed, however, that a London blacksmith named Moncke (pronounced "Munke") made some of the first wrenches with movable jaws adjustable by a screw. Such wrenches were called Moncke wrenches. Owing to ignorance of the origin and spelling of the name it was easily corrupted into "monkey." But this story is not supported by any definite information. The United States patent office says it can find no record of a patent having been granted by the British government to Moncke for such a wrench.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Works of Art in Copper

Copper ornaments that were made between 6,600 and 9,600 years ago are dug up near Ur, city of ancient Babylonia. Made thousands of years before King Tut was born, these copper ornaments are among the earliest works of art. They express the infancy of the creative spirit. The Babylonian copper objects represent men and oxen. In addition to being art, they were intended as a history of accomplishment—main motive of which is vanity.—Farm and Fireside.

Honey Once Main Sweet

It is only within the last few centuries that sugar has become known, and within the last generation or so that refined sugars have become so low in price that they may be commonly used in the poorest families. Formerly honey was the principal sweet, and it was one of the things sent as a propitiatory offering by Jacob to his unrecognized son, the chief ruler of Egypt 3,000 years before the first sugar refinery was built.

1924—the Home Building Year—

This is the year for building homes. Big homes, small homes, luxurious homes and modest homes—but real homes, for families to live in and be happy in.

All over the country this is true. Reports show greater interest and activity in home building than has existed for a long time. There is a thought in this for you.

Build your home now. You will be better off when you own your own home. Your family will have a better time. There is more than comfort in a real home of your own—a home that expresses your own ideas and realizes your own ideals.

You know where you want to build. Maybe you already have the lot. Talk to your building material dealer about the proposition. He knows conditions; he knows building materials. He is right here at home and his one aim is to treat you in a way that will earn your friendship for good and all. He has to meet you on the street every few days—and he wants you to smile when you see him.

Let 1924 be your home year, too.

All Life a Struggle

Life is a battle all through, physically as well as morally. Everything is struggling to endure, and the more successfully we struggle the stronger we become against a weakening enemy. The plant that is badly nourished, that slacks and flags in the fight is the one all its enemies fasten upon. The weakly animal is the one that sickness most easily attacks. The battle of life is generally to the strong. The early wheat is the best prepared. Finest land makes the better stand, in most cases, against blights and other afflictions. Often the finest character, also, belongs to the best fighter, perhaps to the one who has had most to fight against.—Rural Family Herald.

Amusing Things, Those Very Superior Beings

It is curious how differently people regard human beings. William Lyon Phelps comments in Scribner's Magazine. Some, upon entering a trolley car, hate everyone else in the vehicle; some look upon the crowd at a street corner with disgust; it must be wonderful to have such a sense of superiority, to have such childlike unquestioning faith in one's own splendid intellect.

The most amusing thing is to enter a fashionable hotel, and as you advance to the office desk, followed by your traveling bags, to glance for a moment at those individuals who, having already been there some days, now gaze at you from their settled and comfortable chairs. They look at you as though you were garbage.

In the same way, many people, traveling in foreign lands, hate all their fellow countrymen whom they meet. This scorn used to distress me, just as I used to be disturbed by the contempt of a waiter in a hotel or a butler in a fashionable mansion; now I am only amused; and instead of being sorry for myself, I am sorry for those who sit in the seat of the scornful.

One may have a certain satisfaction in a feeling of complacency or superiority, but such an emotion is not so desirable as the cheerfulness produced by a general sympathy for mankind.

Cow's Milk Largely Used in Manufactures

Should the humble cow ever aspire to trade-mark her products, the average shopper would be amazed at the labels "Made from milk" which would adorn his purchases—purchases ranging from horn-rim spectacles to chessmen, magazines to radio sets.

Animal Intelligence

According to William T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological park, the chimpansee is the most intelligent of all animals below man. He can learn more by training and more easily than any other animal. A high-class horse is a very wise and capable animal, but this is chiefly due to its age-long association with man and education by him. A high-class dog is the animal that mentally is in the closest touch with the mind, the feelings, and the impulses of man, and the only one that can read a man's feelings from his eyes and his facial expression.

Lyric Soprano

The word lyric is derived from the lyre, which is now used as an instrument to accompany the smaller forms of poetry. It has become associated with songs that are composed more for their melodious interest than for their dramatic effect. A lyric soprano is known as a light soprano, which is more suited to light songs and solos, to distinguish it from dramatic soprano, which are heard to greater advantage in opera and oratorio work.

Colonists Called On to "Trade" at Home

In a copy of the Providence Gazette issued during the Colonial period appears an amazing item of local news, which, if literally adhered to, doubtless would have devastated a portion of New England of its household cats. The copy of the paper bears the date of November 28, 1767, and one readily discerns that the residents of that Rhode Island city regarded themselves at the time as loyal subjects of George III. The article reads: "A number of householders in this town will engage to supply the public with the article of Catskins of American breed, not inferior to British ones, for making Muffs and Tippets. There are at this time a large number of his majesty's American cats, finely colored and spotted, who are bad mousers and now ready to be sacrificed for the good purpose of muffs and tippets, and it is hoped that all persons who wish well to America will give the preference to his majesty's catskins before those of foreign growth. As muffs and tippets are thought to be of the first importance, it would be well worth the consideration of all lovers of this country whether we ought not to encourage the use and consumption of our own catskins in preference of all others. The learned assure us that the American catskins are vastly superior to those of Europe, being of finer fur and more beautifully variegated with spots and streaks."

Despotic Tribunal

The Star chamber was a tribunal in England consisting of a committee of the king's privy council, instituted, or revived by Henry VII in 1486. It had extensive powers and held itself unfettered by rules of law, dealt with civil and criminal cases by bill and information, without the intervention of a jury, and could inflict any form of punishment short of death. It was abolished by act of parliament in 1641, in the reign of Charles I. The court is said to have derived its name, either from the gilt stars that adorned the ceiling of the chamber in the old palace at Westminster, where it held its sessions; or as is more probable, from the Jewish bonds (starrs), deposited there by permission of William I.

Sacred Stones Pressed by Millions of Lips

During the holiday season many tourists in Ireland visit Blarney castle and its famous kissing stone.

Of the stones variously asserted to be the original one, able to bestow the gift of persuasive eloquence upon whoever touches it with his lips, the one the kissing of which is a difficult feat, on account of its position, has received numerous kisses from daring visitors, as well as the one which is easy of access.

The Blarney stone is not unique in having received an immense number of chaste salutes. St. Peter's statue, in the nave of St. Peter's church, in Rome, can claim a like honor. In fact, the toe of this bronze figure's foot has been worn away by kisses.

Perhaps, however, the Mohammedans possess the most-kissed object in the world, namely, the celebrated Black stone at Mecca.

No true Moslem, after having made a pilgrimage to the Prophet's birthplace, would think of leaving it without first kissing this sacred stone.

Said to have been white originally, the Black stone is stated by those to whom it is an object of veneration to have been turned to its present color either through the sins of men or by the tremendous number of kisses bestowed upon it.

Early Jewish Cemetery Now Business District

On New Bowery, near Oliver street, New York city, is a little Jewish cemetery, said to be the oldest Jewish burial ground in North America, says the Detroit News. It once occupied what is now Chatham square. The grant for the graveyard was issued by Gov. Peter Stuyvesant in 1656. The first Jews in America are supposed to have arrived September 12, 1654, on the bark Catarina, which brought 27 refugees from Cape St. Anthony, Brazil.

The spot selected for the cemetery was out among the sandhills, outside of the city. There was a range of hills, at the foot of which was the present site of Chatham square, and on the crest of one of these hills, facing east, the cemetery was started. The location was ideal, overlooking the meadows below the city to the south, with the East river in the distance. When the War of the Revolution came batteries were planted in the body of the cemetery and on its hills. In 1656, 200 years after the opening of the final sleeping place among the hills, New Bowery was cut through, and all that was left of the cemetery was a 57-foot front on that thoroughfare.

London Rests on Clay

The crumbling and decay of many famous London (Eng.) structures is partly due to the clay subsoil upon which London rests. This is compact enough to transmit to foundations the full destructive effects of traffic vibrations, and slippery enough to allow subsequent movement. London got its clay in Eocene times long before any of the present topography took shape. The floods of the Ice age overlaid this with wide areas of gravel, upon which earlier London arose and over which it extended, as the gravel afforded an easy water supply. Those parts where clay forms the immediate subsoil were uninhabitable until the invention of the steam pump and iron water pipes; largely they were overgrown with forests. It is, however, an ideal medium through which to drive London's tubes.

Why "Jerkwater" Towns

For many years, villages and out-of-the-way hamlets throughout the country have been called "jerkwater" towns, but few persons know where the term originated.

A version is given in the Indiana Magazine of History. In the early days of the railroad train, it was not an uncommon occurrence to stop the engine at a wayside stream to replenish the water supply. The water was carried in leather buckets.

First-class roads soon eliminated this necessity, but smaller ones, touching only villages, continued their "jerkwater" engines. Railroad men are credited with having jokingly referred to the smaller towns as "jerkwater" places, and the name has stuck.

Stories of fairy music in the forest, of haunted waterfalls, and mermaids singing near the seashore, long thought mere figments of the imagination, may have a sound basis in fact. In an issue of Science, Dr. Alexander Forbes of the Harvard medical school reports numerous cases in which trees seem to have separated discordant shouts and noises and given back echoes in musical tones.

"In every case," he says, "the source of the sound—waves on a beach, roar or a river, exhaust of motor boat or discordant human voices—was one in which many pitches were present. Something in the surroundings, usually trees, must have separated the sounds according to pitch, placing those of one pitch in one place and those of another pitch elsewhere. In this respect the phenomenon appears analogous to that of white light being broken up into pure spectral colors by a prism."

This reflection of absorption of sound waves of different pitches, Doctor Forbes explains, is only rarely observed. Sometimes the phenomenon is distinct and clear in one spot, yet a few paces backward or forward only the ordinary noises are heard.

The frequent association of trees with these musical echoes is thought to be due to the lack of uniformity they present as a reflecting surface for the sounds. Each tree apparently sends back part of the sound, and this reflection is broken up into innumerable parts on account of the varying element of distance.

Boy Was Right There After Job He Wanted

He was a clean-cut, wide-awake young chap and he wanted a job. "I have nothing at present," said the corporation manager, "but leave your name and if anything turns up you will be notified."

"May I ask if you have made the same promise to many others," said the applicant.

"Yes, quite a few," was the reply. The boy grinned and remarking that it was no monopoly he went out.

A few days later a young man was needed in a hurry and seven telegrams were dispatched to seven waiting applicants. Hardly had these left the secretary's office when in walked Johnny on the Spot, holding his telegram.

"How in the world did you get it?" gasped the executive.

"Well, sir," he answered, "the other day as I was going out I stopped and got a job as errand boy. I thought it would be a good plan to be where I could get the news quicker than the others."

"You'll do!" said the manager.—Boston Transcript.

Observant Japanese Lady

A Japanese woman has given to a newspaper her reasons for always applying the feminine gender to ships, motors, trains, etc.: "Yes, they call 'she' for many becauses: They wear jackets with yokes, pins, hangers, straps, shields, stays. They have apron, also cap. They have not only shoes but have pumps. Also hose and drag train behind; behind time all time. They attract man with puffs and mufflers. Some time they foam—refuse to work when at such time they should be switched. They need guiding—it always require man manager. They require man to feed them. When abuse are given they quickly make scrap. They are steadier when coupled up, but my cousin say they h—ll of expense."
